Bullets Pierce Police Cruiser

An RCMP officer inspects the scene where RCMP Constable Dennis Fyculuk was shot Monday as he waited at a roadblock for escaping would-be bank robbers. The escapers pumped several bullets into his cruiser (left) hitting him in the chest. The suspects failed to get any loot from the bank they tried to rob in Coquitlam, east of Vancouver. (CP Photo)

Two Men Arrested in B.C. After Policemen Wounded

PORT COQUITLAM, B.C. (CP) — Two men were taken into custody today following an overnight search for four suspects wanted in connection with Mondays abortive robbery of a bank at nearby Coquitlam and the wounding of two RCMP officers.

Police said the two men, one of whom was armed, were arrested near the spot where one of two cars used in the attempted holdup had been abandoned. They did not offer resistance.

Meanwhile, the RCMP pressed their search for the two other men. "It looks promising, but we've still got a hell of a long way to go," one RCMP official said.

Police said the holdup attempt began when two armed men forced their way into the bank Monday morning as employees were arriving for work. Two accomplices remained outside, one acting as a lookout, the other ready to drive one of two getaway cars.

Brian Noble, the branch manager, notified police that he suspected something was wrong when he approached the bank. Several police cars arrived at the bank, but they were sighted by the robbers who fled.

During the getaway, one man sprayed the bank parking lot with bullets from a semi-automatic M-1 carbine. Another attempted to take a male employee hostage, but was pushed away.

When the two suspected cars split up, police concentrated their pursuit on the vehicle from which shots were being fired. It contained the two men who entered the bank. Meanwhile, the second car, occupied by a lookout man and his driver, escaped down a sideroad.

The first car, hit by four police bullets, later was found abandoned near here and the two men were believed to have fled into the bush.

Constable Robert Ellergodt received superficial cuts from flying glass when a burst from the semi-automatic rifle shattered the windshield of his car as he waited at a roadblock.

Constable Dennis Fyculuk suffered a chest wound and cuts when his patrol car was struck by a burst of gunfire at another roadblock. He was reported in good condition.

Ships Change Courses, Shun Quebec's Ports

MONTREAL (CP) — Ships bound for three St. Lawrence River ports paralyzed by a longshoremen's strike are changing course for other Atlantic Coast ports, a National Harbours Board spokesman said Monday.

Canadian ships headed for Montreal, Quebec City or Trois-Rivieres, Que., are being rerouted to Halifax and St. John's, Nfld., while foreign vessels would probably dock in Boston, the spokesman said.

The strike by 2,200 longshoremen began Monday when the Maritime Employers Association (MEA) failed to meet demands by the International Longshoremen's Association (ILA) to reopen contract negotiations on the issue of job security.

The Change to Celsius

Beginning today Canada's weather reports will be given in degrees Celsius only. On the Celsius scale, water freezes at zero degrees and 20 degrees is room temperature. When the temperature is minus 12 degrees, you might like to go skating and minus 18 degrees is zero on the Fahrenheit scale. (CP Newsmap)

Ford and Ky Differ on Cause Of Reversals

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (CP) — President Ford has let it be known that he attributes Hanoi's military successes in South Vietnam to its violations of the Paris ceasefire accord and the failure of Congress to grant more aid to that country.

That is Hanoi, a former vice-president of South Vietnam said his country's devastating losses in the North Vietnamese were not due to the lack of U.S. aid.

Nguyen Cao Ky instead blamed "very poor leadership".

Ky said manpower and military equipment were available to do the job without receiving $300-million in military aid from the U.S., a reference to President Ford's request to Congress for additional help.

Canadian Dies in Cyprus

NICOSIA (Reuter) — A Canadian officer serving with the United Nations peacekeeping force in Cyprus was found dead in his room at the Ledra Palace hotel here early today with a bullet wound in the head, a UN spokesman reported.

The spokesman said the officer was presumed to have been killed by a shot fired at the hotel during shooting between Greek and Turkish-Cypriots and the Turkish army Monday night.

Strike Expected

Two-bits To Stall Belleville Buses

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Belleville Transit Commission management and union will meet Wednesday, with strike predictions already being made by union leader Hugh Kerr.

Union and management are 25 cents apart in negotiations which broke down March 12. Pay has been a central issue in negotiations — the first contract negotiations for the 23-member union in three years.

Originally, union negotiators asked for an increase of $1.46 an hour but later trimmed the demand to $1 an hour.

Management opened negotiations with a 75-cent offer and hasn't moved since.

Lawrence St. Pierre, negotiating for the local members of the Brotherhood of Railroad and General Workers, will meet with commission chairman Marylea Burtt Wednesday afternoon. "We see if she has changed her mind," said Mr. Kerr, chairman of the negotiating committee.

Mrs. Purtt told The Intelligencer Monday, "I won't offer any more"

Commission vehicles carried more than one million passengers last year.

Mr. Kerr said that because the union has had the same contract for the past three years, members have fallen behind inflation and that the union request is the minimum it will consider.

"It looks like we're going to have a strike," he said.

A provincial conciliator — after failing to broker a settlement to the transit commission — filed a no board report two weeks ago. That report gives transit workers the right to strike at a time of their choice.

In the event of a strike, Mrs. Burtt said "We'll hold out as long as city residents can find other ways of getting to work".

A strike vote has not been taken by the employees though one is expected to be held following the union-management meeting Wednesday.

The union local has never staged a strike in its 19 years

President Nol Leaves Cambodia

PHNOM PENH (AP) — President Lon Nol left Cambodia for Indonesia and the United States today after expressing hope that his departure would open the way to peace negotiations with the Khmer Rouge insurgents.

The ailing 61-year-old president and an entourage of 27, including Premier Long Boret and their families, took off for Thailand as insurgents rocketed fell on Phnom Penh airport.

Military sources said the government operation against the insurgent firing positions northwest of the airport was "temporarily suspended" as troops were moved back to bolster the capital's northern defence line.

Five heavier rounds exploded 100 yards away as Lon Nol was helped from a helicopter that took him to an Air Cambodge Caravelle jet from his presidential palace.

The party flew to Thailand to board an Indonesian air force plane for the flight to Indonesia. Indonesian Foreign Minister Adam Malik said the Cambodian president would rest for 10 days in Indonesia and then would go to the U.S.

Although he retains the title of president, Lon Nol is not expected to return to Cambodia. He led the coup that overthrew Prince Norodom Sihanouk and is on the Khmer Rouge death list.

"I am leaving to pave the way for a peace settlement," he told his top generals at a farewell meeting Monday.

Nhon; Nha Trang, 50 miles farther south the big former U.S. base at Cam Ranh Bay, 25 miles south of Nha Trang.

Military pressure meanwhile appeared to be building up close to Saigon.

The Saigon command said Chon Thanh, an isolated district capital 45 miles north of Saigon, was hit by a 3,000-shell barrage and that North Vietnamese tanks moved in under cover of the shelling.

The communique said the attack was driven off and 13 tanks were knocked out. It reported 18 government soldiers killed but gave no report of North Vietnamese losses.

Fighting also was reported at two points near Xuan Loc, a provincial capital 45 miles east of Saigon. The Saigon command said 37 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong were killed and government losses were two killed and seven wounded.

Celsius Not Weatherman's April Fool's Joke

TORONTO (CP) — Its April Fool's Day today, but don't think a joke's being played when the temperatures reported in the newspaper or on radio and television seem too low, too high or just plain foolish.

As of today, a warm spring day will be about 20 degrees above zero because the weather office will no longer use the familiar fahrenheit temperature figures. As part of a massive metric conversion which will take until 1980, the federal metric commission now wants to implement use of the Celsius temperature scale.

First called the centigrade scale, it now carries the Celsius name, after its inventor, Swedish astronomer Anders Celsius, who decided in the 18th century that the logical way to measure temperature was with a scale of 100 equal units of degrees between the freezing and boiling points of water.

Freezing, which is 32 degrees fahrenheit, becomes zero Celsius. The boiling point, 212 degrees fahrenheit, is 100 degrees Celsius.

The metric commission says public usage is voluntary and it can only encourage radio and television stations to give Celsius readings. However, beginning today, all public weather forecasts will be issued with Celsius temperatures only.

The Canadian Press and its subsidiary, Broadcast News, which relay the weather forecasts to newspapers and broadcasting stations, will distribute reports in the form they are received from the weather office, with temperatures stated only in Celsius.

CP news stories on the weather in Canada and abroad will also use Celsius only.

Reporting temperature in both Celsius and fahrenheit readings is frowned upon by the metric commission, which sees it creating unnecessary confusion.

From now on, 35 degrees Celsius will be hot and sticky, 25 degrees will be a pleasant summer day, 20 degrees is normal room temperature, minus-10 is good skating weather and minus-20 is a time for brisk walking.

There is one minor consolation for traditionalists. At 40 below the two temperature scales coincide, minus 40 celsius being the same as minus 40 fahrenheit.

It May Be Celsius Country Elsewhere But Pumphouse Still Reads Fahrenheit

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Today it's certainly Celsius — but not for some.

Like the record-keepers at Belleville's filtration plant.

Up at the pumphouse — as it has long been known locally — they've been keeping a record of daily temperature changes since 1918.

They'll still be sticking with Fahrenheit readings for at least another two years after today — when the Celsius gauge becomes part of Canada's advance into the metric system.

The reason: The atmospheric people at Environment Canada which supplies the equipment don't expect to have all observatory units outfitted with the Celsius instrumentation until late 1977.

A target date for the switchover by climatological stations is Jan. 1, 1978, says filtration plant superintendent Jim Sirven.

In the interim, he will continue to furnish monthly reports to the government agency, in the old measurements and any conversion will be done by computer.

The plant is official reporter for all local readings.

It furnishes regular reports to city hall and the Moira River Conservation Authority, as well as to other information sources.

All such local reports will still be delivered in Fahrenheit.

Celsius conversion will be left to those at the other end of the phone.

$338 Will Buy a Lot Of Mosquito Repellent

AMELIASBURG — The sum of $338 will buy a lot of mosquito repellent — enough to bathe in and still have plenty left over.

In fact for that amount of money you can obtain 1900 ounces (about 12 gallons) at the price charged by one of Trenton's hardware stores.

As the result of a swamp fire on Graves Island just off Massassaga Point in the township last week it is possible that some person responsible for its origin will have to pay what it cost the Amelisburg volunteer fire department to fight and subdue the blaze — $338.

After the bull rushes and undergrowth were reduced to ashes township reeve and fire chief Arnold Mitchell offered a reward a carbon copy of the cheque to William Belnap, who had permitted Grove to live in his cottage on the island.

Nominations Close Friday For Loyalist Elections

This is election month for the students at Loyalist College and the campaign will begin in earnest Friday at the close of nominations for the 10 positions on the Student Administrative Council (SAC).

Students will actually select officers of their Students Association of Loyalist College Friday in the form reminiscent SAC.

That event will occur between 11 a.m. and 3 p.m. April 10 in the student lounge, preceded by an election rally April 9 from 12-1 p.m. at the same location where candidates will have an opportunity to address voters.

Charley Benson of the student services division, an ex-officio member of SAC, outlines what candidates and their supporters are permitted to and prohibited to do during the campaign.

Radio station students will assist them in making free political announcements on WBLCR, to be aired by the college closed-circuit radio station.

He adds posters are allowed on corridors and notes in all advertising. There can be no comparison of views between candidates. Each advertisement can only contain a standard policy statement and "no pitch, hype or lies.

"We try to keep as many personalities out of it as possible because we don't like to see it become a popularity vote," comments Mr. Benson.

He says there is usually below a 50 per cent turnout of voters but points out that figure compares favorably with most municipal elections.

Acclamations in many positions also reduce the turnout. "The problem in the past is we've never had to elect a full slate," he remarks

As advisor, Mr Benson goes over SAC duties during the initial meetings of the new council and the councillors-elect are also expected to attend say remaining meetings of the present body to become familiar with operations.

OHC has allocated serviced building lots for the construction of 26 three and five-bedroom detached houses for sale under the H.O.M.E. Plan. These houses will be distributed on a first-come, first-served basis.
An additional three houses will be purchased by OHC for allocation to applicants for rental housing. These houses will be leased on a geared-to-income basis as part of Ministry of Housing policy to integrate assisted housing into the general community.
All the houses will be located in the northeast section of Trenton, about one-and-a-half miles from the centre of the town.
Families interested in purchasing a house should contact the builder listed below. Since the H.O.M.E. Plan is designed to help families become home owners, applications are restricted: (a) to couples with or without children or (b) to individuals with at least one legally dependent child.

PRICES
22 three-bedroom houses $21,250
4 five-bedroom houses $23,250
By leasing the land on which the houses will be built, OHC removes the land costs from the necessary down payment for a house. As a result, the home may be purchased with a down payment as low as five per cent of the house price. With a minimum down payment, a family with a gross current annual income as low as $9,720 may qualify for a house.
The lots are offered on the basis of a 50-year lease, with the home owner having the option to buy the land at any time after five years of the lease have elapsed. Monthly land lease payments will be approximately $36.
Mortgage financing for the purchase of the houses is being provided by the Province of Ontario at 9% per cent interest on a five-year term with an amortization period of 35 years.
All applicants must have been resident in Ontario for at least one full year prior to applying for a house.
Applicants are restricted to single-income families whose current gross annual incomes do not exceed $14,500 and to two-income families whose incomes do not exceed $17,000. In the latter case, the major wage earner's income must not exceed $14,500.
Preference will be given to applicants who do not own a home. H.O.M.E. Plan houses must be owner-occupied and not rented.
Families who have previously purchased a dwelling sponsored under an OHC program are not eligible.
Monthly carrying charges, including mortgage payments, ground rent and estimated municipal taxes, must not amount to more than 30 per cent of the family's gross current annual income.

PERCA to Study Takeover Of Macaulay Ski Slope

PICTON — Resources manager for the Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority, Tom Proud, will investigate the feasibility of operating the Macaulay Mountain ski slope by the Authority.

The ten members of the Prince Edward Ski Club have requested the takeover following three years of adverse weather conditions for skiing. The club has at undisclosed cost from its operations.

Members of the PERCA have agreed it would be necessary for Mr. Proud and a ski slope expert to study the proposed takeover thoroughly.

Chairman of the land use committee for the PERCA, Donald Walker said the ski club can no longer operate the slope and unless the project is rescued it will fold.

Mr. Proud noted an investigation will reveal information on water supplies for artificial snow equipment, projected population for the next 30 years, size of the hill and the amount of machinery required to keep the slope in operation if there is not much snow.

Mr. Walker added conservation authorities have assumed operation of ski slopes in other areas and the Macaulay Mountain slope is expected the best for 150 miles around.

Chairman of the PERCA, Henry Leavens referred to the ski club's failure in running the slope commenting "We feel they didn't put enough work into it."

A five-member committee of the board of education, members of the swimming pool committee and representatives from Prince Edward County council discussed location of a pool at the high school at a meeting held Thursday. Also in attendance were Picton Mayor Donald King and county warden Clifford Walker.

Business administrator for the board, Ernest Shortt, said the school generally was favored as the best location for the proposed pool although several persons expressed other opinions.

The pool committee plans to make a presentation to school trustees at the next board meeting to learn if the proposal of the pool at PECI is acceptable.

Bookworm Turns

Beverley Skidmore enjoys reading and is convinced Picton needs a book store to supply readers with good paper backs. After residing for four years in a community where there are no book stores she has decided to form a partnership with her mother and open her own shop.

County Authors, Artists To Be Featured in Store

By MARG. HAYLOCK

PICTON — In Picton the bookworm has turned, abetted by two Prince Edward women who expect to open the County Book N' Craft Shop here this spring.

Beverley Skidmore, now manager of a Picton record store, observed that in 1970 the town boasted two bookshops but today there is no retail outlet carrying books as its main stock.

To remedy this, Mrs. Skidmore and her mother, Ada Wilkinson of Wellington have formed a partnership to operate the County Book N' Craft Shop.

"Its for the whole community," explained Mrs. Skidmore outlining the goals of the store scheduled to open May 1 in the Armory Mall.

"The shop will carry a full line of paperbacks and a wide selection of children's books in both hard and soft cover.

In addition, an extensive range of crafts kits will be sold as well as crafts made by Quinte area residents.

A number of local craftsmen already have been contracted and have agreed to offer items for sale in the store.

Mrs. Skidmore said among the crafts in stock will be ceramic pieces, hanging pots, afghans and wall hangings. Hooked rugs also will be included.

Picton artist Jerry Putman will provide a number of pen and ink drawings for the shop and its is hoped others will express interest in contributing art work for sale.

To bring books alive for their readers, Mrs. Skidmore and her mother plan to invite local authors to visit the shop and sign their works. Several Prince Edward residents such as Willis Metcalfe and Alan Capon have written of the county and its history.

Mrs. Skidmore stressed the shop will be a showcase for county crafts and county authors as well as a sales outlet for books.

Now manager of The Record Grove, a store in the Armory Mall, Mrs. Skidmore plans to leave this job to work full-time with her mother when their book shop and craft centre opens.

The young business woman has resided in Picton for about four years.

World Traveller Still Enjoys Big Island Home

By TERRY SPRAGUE
Staff Correspondent

BIG ISLAND — Henry (Hal) Roche was awarded a plaque this year for travelling one million miles. Not one mile of this distance was travelled in a car.

An employee of Canadair Ltd., Montreal, Mr. Roche is director of international marketing for unmanned airborn systems. For 11 years he has travelled around the world promoting development programs for these systems including satellites and numerous other unmanned conveyances, meeting with governmental contacts in most of the European countries, the Far East, and the United States.

He is often absent from his Montreal apartment for as long as six consecutive weeks, but upon return, he drives 250 miles to spend a relaxing weekend at his Big Island home. Mr. Roche estimates that he has crossed the Atlantic at least 100 times. He says that he enjoys his work and appreciates the opportunity to travel.

"It makes me appreciate all the more what a fantastic country we live in. I frequently find myself making comparisons between the 'haves' and have notes' in the different countries," he commented.

"Here, we are constantly complaining about the price of milk; I have seen many countries where there is no milk to argue over," Mr. Roche said.

"I dont think many people really appreciate just how lucky and advanced we are in Canada. The only thing we know about poverty is how to spell the word," he confessed.

Mrs. Roche says that she "doesn't like Hal being away for so long" but manages to keep herself occupied. "I have a lot of hobbies and interests to keep me busy until he comes home," she remarks.

Tickets for the popular amateur variety show are on sale at Pro Hardware, Mason's Department Store and Vince's Market, Picton, and Quaiff's Service Station and Weede's Store, Waupoos.

Broadcast Club Marks Birthday

TRENTON — The CFB Trenton Broadcast Club marked its second anniversary Monday, March 31. The club each Saturday morning airs a 1½-hour radio program on base activities over CJBQ-FM.

Tennis Still Popular

TRENTON — If the number of people registered for the first two recreation department tennis clinics for beginners is any indication, the game of the racket remains a popular one in Trenton.

The two April sessions — the first starting tonight at Trenton Community Gardens — are sold out. Only the final clinic, from April 29 to May 8, remains open. Only 24 openings are available.

The last beginner clinic will be held either Tuesdays or Thursdays over two weeks. The one session each week is 1½-hours long and is geared to teaching basic racket strokes and rudimentary skills of tennis.

Cost of the program is $4. Registration is held on weekdays at the Gardens (9 a.m. to noon).

Establishment of the clinics mark a change from last year when small classes were held.

Reason was the classes were so overwhelming according to recreation department officials, that the change was made to accommodate more people.

During the sessions, Trenton instructor John Bryant will act as instructor. He is certified by the Ontario Lawn Tennis Association, as an instructor.

Deserved Rest

—Hal Roche and his wife Anne (Nan) relax at their kitchen table in their Big Island home during the weekend It is a well-deserved rest for Hal, who was recently awarded a plaque for travelling one million miles on company business for 11 years as a director of international marketing for unmanned airborne systems with Canadair Ltd. in Montreal.

Dealers Report Brisk Demand for Seeds

TRENTON —A survey of Trenton and area stores handling garden supplies shows that many families concerned about rising food prices are getting ready to fight the problem by growing their own vegetables this year.

Demand for vegetable seeds, fertilizers and tilling tools is well above average for this time of year those retail outlets contacted said.

The boom in business in this line is expected to continue while planting time is still about six weeks off, one seed supplier reported.

"The way they're (packaged seeds) going, I think everyone in the Quinte area is putting in a garden this year," reported Jim Little, a clerk at the Canadian Tire Store here. Mr. Little, in charge of the garden section said he has already sold more than 25,000 individual packages.

Saylor's Home Hardware on Front St. indicated the garden seed turnover is flourishing but found many customers unhappy to learn "our Dutch sets on order hadn't arrived yet!" Down the street, however, MacDonald's hardware sold out of the popular onion bulb soon after they went on display.

Meanwhile, the William Rose and Son Nursery at Bayside is getting ready for a big season in boxed vegetable plants. With the Easter rush for plants and flowers out of the way, workers are busy planting seeds for the 25,000 boxes of tomatoes, cauliflower, cabbage, Spanish onions and pepper plants they grow annually for gardening enthusiasts.

CGE Staff Back

TRENTON — Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd. workers returned to their jobs Monday morning after the small motors plant here closed down its production lines last week.

About 150 employees — the majority hourly-rated workers — were given unexpected unpaid holidays for four days last week.

CGE relations manager Ray Baklin said Monday the shutdown was prompted by growing inventories, swelled by slow and erratic buying by consumers.

Faced with growth in stockpiled motors, the company was forced to decide between a temporary plant shutdown and further layoffs.

Mr. Baklin said the shutdown route was chosen as a method to stem additional layoffs and give company employees a chance to stay home with their vacationing school children.

So far this year CGE has laid off 80 workers in three separate layoffs. All but three have been hourly-rated members of Local 509, United Electrical Workers (UE) Radio and Machine Workers of America.

Production during the week's shutdown was the least harmful method of combating mounting inventories which otherwise, "could have meant more layoffs."

What the future held he said was "unforeseable".

Company marketing men have tried to predict sales of the plant's motors, but find the task difficult.

"Part of the problem is that it changes day to day," said Mr. Baklin. "How do you predict from that?"

YMCA's Community Effort

For a number of years now the Belleville YMCA has been subjected to criticism on the grounds that it does not pay its own way, that it is subsidized by municipal taxpayers.

The sniping has continued since before the late Bert Mesacar was the Y's executive director, and has continued during the renewed tenure of Dr. Diamantides who heads a staff of six. These include two women and a part-time male employee who handle reception work, registrations and information, and maintenance personnel. The main burden falls on Mr. Diamantides and the 1975 budget, which is up only 3.6 per cent to $109 845, provides for a program secretary as from May 1. Salaries and wages are up a modest 4.9 per cent to just over $69,000 this year.

Mr. Diamantides, who held the executive post before Mr. Mesacar, then returned for a time to his native Greece and Y work there, says the Belleville Y earns 70 per cent of its budget, the rest coming from the community.

Some weeks ago Y president Dr. Douglas Horne indicated that the Y was hoping to clear up its outstanding debt of about $40,000 this year.

More than 1,000 people think enough of the Y's work in the community to take advantage of its programs, now numbering more than 100. With the salaried staff down to half-a-dozen, it is not surprising that volunteers play a strong role in the Y's operations.

Ability to pay is not a barrier to participation in Y activities. Young people whose families may be in straitened financial circumstances can participate in the programs without charge.

Yet the criticism of the organization persists among a handful of people. Consider though that without the Y there would be a large gap in the recreational base of the community.

Consider also that if a balanced budget, even a surplus, is desirable, it is not always possible. Deficit financing is one of the economic facts of the day and since a sizeable number of people benefit from Y activities, it is deserving of community support.

If there were no Y, something else would have to take its place. The wiser choice is to give the Y the support it needs to do its job and which most people do not seem to begrudge.

No community organization should be above criticism. Let's have criticism of the kind that keeps people and organizations on their toes; but let's recognize the positive aspects of entities such as the Y; let's recognize also, in the realm of criticism, the point when enough's enough — especially when the same arguments have been heard before.

Tennis Gets Under Way

The tennis clinic for junior players at Ben Bleecker Auditorium is a useful initiative of the Recreation Committee. It's good to see also that some hardy souls are braving Spring chills to play at Zwick's Island — like the two youngsters heading for the courts at 8:30 a.m. the other day.

How's Your Awareness?'

If you're one of those people who thinks such groups as the Committee for an Independent Canada is just a crackpot Anglo-Saxon version of the FLQ, consider this.

A year ago, the CIC conducted a 'Canadian Awareness Study' in six Vancouver area high schools. Bear in mind all students polled were in their LAST year of secondary school.

One in five students couldn't name the capital city of Canada. Asked to name three Canadian authors, some 60 per cent of the respondents were unable to do so. Only seven per cent of the sample group could name Canada's Governor-General.

The results so astonished CIC director Mel Hurtig that, with the aid of some professional pollsters, he prepared another survey that, this time, was distributed across the country to students in villages, cities, and from a greater cross-section of the population than was involved in the 1974 study.

This time, the results were better, but still astonishingly disturbing.

Sixty-eight per cent were unable to name the Governor-General. Between 60 and 80 per cent of the students couldn't identify pop idols like Margaret Atwood, Gordon Purdy, and Bruce Cockburn as Canadians.

Both Winston Churchill and Harry Truman might have turned in their tombs to hear themselves picked as former Canadian prime ministers.

The overall failure rate — the number of students scoring below 50 per cent on the questionnaire — was 62 per cent.

In a place at the end of the test set aside for comments, one student responded: "After going through this, I found myself wondering what it was that I had learned in 13 years of school."

MP's Right to Privacy

A politician has a right to an inner life.

That's the word from NDP member Ed Broadbent. It was the possibility of losing that privacy, in the context of family and individual interests, which for a time had discouraged Mr. Broadbent from announcing his availability as a party leadership candidate to succeed David Lewis.

Now the member for Oshawa-Whitby has changed his mind, noting that at the time of his original decision he was "tired and had not had a day off in eight weeks."

The life of an MP makes excruciating demands on his time, and when there is additional pressure from the Opposition and allegations of questionable involvement — as there has been in the case of Labor Minister Munro and the Hamilton harbor dredging affair — it is not surprising when the breaking point is reached.

That was the experience of Mr. Munro, although he is now back in harness after a spell in hospital and of home rest.

Mr. Broadbent has made a valid point; he even acknowledges that Prime Minister Trudeau is entitled to his skiing trips although reverting momentarily to the politician, he reserves the right to question government shortcomings which he terms "abysmal".

Certainly, Mr. Broadbent touches on an aspect of the parliamentary scene that is beyond party politics. MPs are human, even if the rest of us regard them variously as superhuman, incompetent, or whatever. We have seen a lot in recent times of the pressures of political life, from, for instance, Mr. Trudeau's and his wife's own experience. There was a time too when provincial NDP leader Stephen Lewis was verbalizing the need for more time with his family, and the responsibilities of leadership. Now Mr. Broadbent has articulated the problem anew, explaining he will run for the federal leadership of his party, but will reserve the right to his free time too.

It makes sense.

North Sea Energy Problems Technical and Political

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

LONDON — Oil companies have had their eyes on the North Sea's hydrocarbon riches ever since the Suez canal crisis of 1956-57.

But the tantalizing promise of the means to energy self-sufficiency, on Britain's east coast, remains unfulfilled.

The shores of the United Kingdom, Norway, Denmark, West Germany, the Netherlands and Belgium are all washed by the waters, of the North Sea, and each country has its assigned sector.

It appears that oil deposits are chiefly in the northern half of the sea, and gas deposits in the southern half.

Just recently, some interest has been shown by industry and government in the so-called Celtic Sea, a designation defined to indicate the previously-unnamed body of water south of the Irish Sea, between the Irish, Welsh and West-Country English coasts. Geological evidence suggests the presence of a large sedimentary basin that could hold oil or gas.

In both the Celtic Sea to the west of England, and the more intensively worked North Sea to the east, the environment is a major challenge. Offshore weather conditions are among the worst in the world.

But when you talk to oil-industry people here, you quickly learn that the hostile environment is only one of several factors that have been delaying the long-awaited day when Mother Nature's gift of offshore gas and oil would make Britain independent of the Middle East oil producers' cartel.

The technical problems, for example, are staggering. Offshore exploration and drilling equipment used elsewhere in the world had had to be radically redesigned to be of any use in water depths that considerably exceed 600 feet, and on sea bottoms that range from mud to quicksand to boulder clay.

Not only have equipment deliveries been delayed because of the additional design work needed, but overall development costs have risen tremendously—up 50 per cent in the past six months on the Conoco-owned North Sea field, for example.

Added to the hyper-inflation has been political intervention. Britain's Labor government has assigned itself a major ownership position ("participation") in all North Sea discoveries, and levied royalties, corporation tax and petroleum revenue tax that will skim off more than 70 per cent of the producers' revenues.

The ideological, inflationary and environmental factors, taken all together, point to a bad case of excessive optimism. The blame for this can be shared by the government's ideologues and the industry's planners alike.

That optimism was present from the time a huge natural-gas field was discovered in the Netherlands' sector of the North Sea in 1959. It was greatly intensified in late 1971, when the Middle East producers' cartel quintupled the world price of crude oil.

But while Britons have been looking forward to proclaiming their independence from Middle East sources of supply, estimates of North Sea production costs have been climbing so rapidly that any price advantage that North sea oil might have had seems likely to vanish.

And if the cartel were to fall apart and the price of Arab oil were to drop, it would become decidedly uneconomic to go ahead with development of many North Sea oil fields.

Some of the oil companies are warning that inflation and government policy will hit the economics of North Sea oil, just as surely as a drop in the world price.

The truth of the matter will probably be known only when Britain's hard-headed banks decide to stay in or get out of the business of financing the many smaller exploration and production companies operating in the North Sea.

Party Woos Veterans 'Blue Machine' Looks to Defences

By DON O'HEARN

Queen's Park Bureau

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — The wheels of the Big Blue Machine have started to turn.

They are still in low gear. But they have been put into gear. And from now on we may expect them to move more rapidly.

The other day Osie Villeneuve came up to me in the hall.

A few months ago Osie, the PC member for Glengarry had told me he wouldn't be running again.

When we met this time he said "Don, I've changed my mind. I am going to run again."

I answered: "Charged Osie, or been changed for you?"

He gave me just a grin in reply. But it was a knowing one.

The obvious conclusion, of course, is that Osie is being forced, or at least highly-pressured, to run again.

In other words, the government, running scared, is out to get every seat that is possible for it.

There is no practical, or even humane, reason why Osie Villeneuve should run again.

He has been the member for Glengarry since 1948, with two breaks while he represented the riding federally.

He now has had nearly 30 years of service at the provincial and federal levels.

He has earned a full pension. And he is not going to get into the cabinet. He is now 69 and well merits a rest.

But it happens that by nature Glengarry is characteristically a Liberal riding.

It was the riding into which Liberal parachuted Mackenzie King when he got defeated.

There probably is no other PC in sight who could hold the seat. So the pressure has been put on.

And we are liable to see a lot more of this as the election approaches.

Members who hold their seats through a strong personal grip and who would be expected to retire we probably will see changing their minds.

The Big Blue Machine it is under pressure and it is not going to give a any chance within its grasp.

NDP Leadership Campaign Is Gathering Momentum

By PETER LLOYD

OTTAWA (CP) — New Democratic Party leadership hopefuls will hit the political trail next May on a cross-country tour to present their cases to party members.

Cliff Scotton, national party secretary, said in an interview Thursday that each candidate will receive $1,000 from the party to cover most, if not all, expenses.

"The party has consciously developed over the years a system whereby any member of the NDP who wants to get the support can seek the party leadership.

"As a result, we've made a financial allocation to make sure that, as a minimum, they can get across the country and meet party members."

Mr. Scotton said he anticipates that "perhaps half a dozen" people will seek to succeed David Lewis, who offered personal defeat in the July 8 general election.

So far, three persons have declared their candidacies: Ed Broadbent, parliamentary leader; Lorne Nystrom (Yorkton-Melville) and Rosemary Brown, a member of the British Columbia legislature.

A similar tour in 1971, prior to the convention that elected Mr. Lewis, cost the party between $6,000 and $7,000.

The first leg of the campaign is planned to begin May 2 in Brandon, Man., with candidates spending about two weeks travelling together to Winnipeg, Regina, Saskatoon, Toronto, Sudbury, Thunder Bay and Ottawa, Mr. Scotton said.

After a few days off, candidates will then spend about four days going to Calgary, Edmonton and Vancouver. Another break will be followed by stops in Montreal, Halifax, Sydney, Moncton, N.B., Fredericton, Charlottetown and finally St. John's, Nfld., May 31, if tentative plans hold up, he said.

The arrangements are made for the meetings is that each candidate address the audience for about 10 minutes with questions from the audience and answers from any or all of the candidates following," Mr. Scotton said.

Any NDP member who has the signatures of 50 other party members can run for the leadership, he said. No one is allowed to spend more than $15,000, including the $1,000 from the party, on the campaign.

The new NDP leader will be elected July 7, the final day of a four-day convention in Winnipeg.

Whither Canadian Society?

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

I have a few comments on a number of subjects. The apparent lack of interest in letters which seem to follow the well-known line of divide and conquer, instead of generous support which is due the city council, is easily trying to be a difficult job. Instead of constructive criticism such bitterness has no effect.

Perhaps our immigration policy should be more restrictive, as something is happening different from the maxims that made Canada a great country. The reckless influx of today would not have been likely in the past as Canada's welfare was paramount.

Also we should be happy to welcome visit from the Royal family of England whose influence has been nothing but good as far as Canada is concerned, and by the way costs Canada nothing. Let them be their entertainment while they are our guests.

A CONCERNED CITIZEN.

Recreational Needs of City

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

In your editorial "Discipline and Recreation" Friday last (March 14) I believe you have misquoted the "teen-aged girl" when you infer that she said that "the only recreational activity available for young people is pub-crawling."

I understand her to say that she enjoys dancing but it is difficult to find a place to dance where liquor is not served with the resulting pressure on those present to drink.

This is a rather different contotation and the young lady in question obviously shares your views that there are other things to do — otherwise she would not have been in attendance at the seminar.

Perhaps some of our organizations in Belleville could give some thought to organization of social functions more suited to young people.

H.L. COLLINS.

Editors Note: Perhaps some of our young people in Belleville could give some thought to organizing social functions of their own suiting.

William Sawyer Exhibition

Editor

The Agnes Etherington Art Centre is planning an exhibition of the work of William Sawyer (1820-1880) a portrait painter who worked in Belleville, Toronto and eastern Ontario.

We are now trying to locate as many of his works as possible. Through our research we have come across the names of several Belleville people who had portraits done by Sawyer. In 1857 Sawyer painted — Mr. Hagerman, Mr. Ketchum, Mr. Hames, Mr. Jellet, Mr. and Mrs. Aikin, The Aikin children, Mr. Mckaynon, Mr. Duff, Mr. Bell, Mr. and Mrs. Menckell, Dr. Lister, Mr. and Mrs. Turnbull. In 1859 Sawyer returned to Belleville and painted — Mr. Coleman and Mr. Frank's child. In the event that any of your readers have or know of any of these portraits or of any others by Sawyer we would appreciate your help in locating them by publishing this letter.

Any information would be greatly welcomed and may be sent to:

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

April 1, 1955

A special meeting of city council will hear representatives of companies seeking franchises for the distribution of natural gas in the city. At least four companies are expected to have representatives at the meeting. It is reported that although construction of the Trans-Canada Pipeline is being held up, effort will be made to build a line east from Toronto with temporary arrangements to be sought for the procurement of natural gas elsewhere.

As a result of discussion at a recent meeting of Front Street property owners and members of the local city council, plans for the construction of the proposed Riverside Drive along the east bank of the Moira River north of Bridge Street have been further brought up to date by City Engineer Chas. Mott. Most striking in the change of plans is the proposed continuation of the drive north along the river bank to emerge onto Front Street at the present fire hall instead of through the alleyway north of the Belvedere Hotel. The drive would continue north along the river west of the Pull Machinery property. A fill would be necessary in the river at the Pull Machinery property, a metal clad frame structure to the north and the present fire hall would have to be razed.

Board of education of this city will consider the advisability of procuring special medal-contests to be distributed to school children of Belleville on the occasion of the Silver Jubilee of King George and Queen Mary on May 6. It was stated today by Col. E.A. Geen, chairman of the board. The medals are expected to be carefully treasured by the children and preserved by them as previous sets have been on similar occasions, such as the Golden Jubilee of Queen Victoria.

Point Anne district is seeking official status as a village. At a meeting held there attended by prominent property owners of the section of Thurlow, and Col. R.A. Carman, it was decided to proceed at once to secure incorporation. Petition will be presented to the Hastings County Council conveying facts and the wishes of the residents. On the consent of council expressed by bylaw, the incorporation question then is brought up before the Legislature. In case of incorporation as a village, the community will begin its village life, on January 1st, 1926. Point Anne is one of the oldest of unincorporated villages and possesses wealth in the form of a large cement plant. Recent improvements in buildings were Frankford and Deloro.

One-time Jazz Musician Becomes Rawdon Farmer

By CHRIS ALMEY
Staff Correspondent

MARMORA — Former New York City Jazz musician Lars Anderson is "living a lull" working on his 300-acre farm just south of this village on concession 14, Rawdon Township.

Mr. Anderson was studying as a young man to become a violinist with the National Symphony in the United States. He started out studying the organ in Sweden.

"The program to just get acquainted with the music the National Symphony played consisted of playing constantly at home, plus three hours a day in rehearsal five days a week, for three years," Mr. Anderson recalled in an interview recently.

The young Anderson, however, had to support himself and his mother, so he could not pursue this career, instead, at the recommendation of Mr. Roxy, of the Roxy Theatre in New York, years before it was the rage across the U.S. in the mid-1930's.

He said he decided to come to Canada with his family for various reasons, such as his neighbors running around with guns. He is also disturbed over Viet Nam, and the killing. He also expressed deep gratitude for the peace in Canada and said he loves nothing better than plowing the land.

Commission Not Board Imposes Whey Controls

STIRLING — Percy Reid, past chairman of the Hastings Milk Committee has pointed out "a little known fact". It is the Ontario Dairy Commission and not the Ontario Milk Marketing Board that is imposing a whey control system upon cheese factories.

This system would have cost the Ryalstone Cheese and Butter Co-Op $30,000 to $40,000, co-op president Don Stewart said in an interview, and that was what, finally forced the co-op to close and sell the cheese factory. This fact was deleted in the original story which appeared in Monday's Intelligencer. The unedited story attributed the OMMB as being the force behind the whey tank installation.

The original story contained 19 paragraphs, and eight were deleted to shorten the story for publication. In editing, the first three paragraphs were attributed as statements by Mr. Stewart. They were not statements made by Mr. Stewart, but were facts gleaned from the story for an introduction to what it was about.

Mr. Reid also pointed out that all cheese factories can purchase milk quotas, and when the Ryalstone quota was sold, it went for $80,000.

Mr. Reid also pointed out that the OMMB has been reducing the amount of milk distributed to all cheese factories.

In the story Monday, it was noted that the Ryalstone factory could not get enough milk to operate. The factory had a quota for seven million pounds, but was getting a little over five million from the OMMB. To overcome this shortage, which had forced the plant to close, two million pounds were leased from another company.

Mr. Reid explained that many cheese processing factories and dairy companies bought quotas from cheese factories as they closed since the OMMB was decreasing the amount of milk everyone could receive each year. This was the only way they could be certain of having enough milk, he said.

Free Labor for Arena

A project of the Stirling and District Arena Finance Committee is to build a house and sell it to raise money for a new arena.

Marvin Reid of Quinte Excavating Ltd., donated his time and machine to excavate. Recently, R. W. Solmes, of Springbrook, four of his sons and two of his other employees all donated their skills to lay building blocks for the foundation.

Stoco Lake May Be Fit for Swimmers

TWEED — Hopefully, this is the last summer Stoco Lake will have to be posted against swimming because of pollution, says Reeve Barbara Allen.

Mrs. Allen explained, 10 years ago Tweed was one of about six communities in Ontario that installed a septic tank system. Tweed has three of them, one large and two small. At the time the system was installed the sewer pipes and sanitary sewers were combined.

The reeve said that 50 years ago the system was adequate, but now homes have automatic washers, two or more bathrooms, and "they didn't have the phosphates we have today."

"The main separation of storm and sanitary sewers was carried out in 1969. It is two-thirds finished now. The septic tanks are being replaced with sewage lagoons," reeve Allen noted.

At times with heavy rains the septic tanks have flowed raw sewage directly into the lake "like two huge toilets," the reeve said.

"Because of the tremendous overload on the septic tanks, one thing we have been doing for the past five years is hypochlorinating to kill some of the pathological germs getting into the lake," Mrs. Allen observed. "That is far from 100 percent but it is better than doing nothing."

Mrs. Allen said one of the problems of the sewage runoff has been that it acted as a fertilizer in the lake which she described as warm and shallow. This makes aquatic growth flourish, she said, the result being less oxygen in the water for fish at the deeper levels.

The reeve added that the geology of the area contributes to the water quality, and there will always be a rich algae bloom.

A study on Lake Stoco was carried out in 1972 and work on the sewage separation and lagoon system was started last year. The report based on the study suggests that until the work is completed all bathing beaches within Tweed should deposited as unfit for swimming, but it also notes they were not posted in 1972, but had been previously.

Mrs. Allen noted that checks are made by health people to ascertain if posting is necessary.

Cartoon Book and Art Show To Benefit Viet Nam Child

MADOC — Central Hastings Secondary School has two events taking place in April — one funny, one serious, but both for the same good cause.

The Cartusion, a 1975 cartoon book compiled entirely by CHSS art department students will be on sale shortly in the school. On April 24, 25, and 26 "Arts in Action," the second such exhibition featuring 50 artists from Centre Hastings, will take place.

Art teacher Brenda Hudson says the art department has put a lot of money into the art show, and hope to get a response that will make it worth while. Some of the proceeds will be used to support a child in Viet Nam.

As for as the cartoon book said "it is a risky business putting cartoons out about people. They will either sue me or won't speak to me again."

"We had 200 cartoons to chose from," Mrs. Hudson noted. "All the students had a go at it. It took quite a while to teach the students to be funny without being unkind — not to treat teachers with abuse. It was a good moral lesson as well as an art lesson."

"Arts In Action" will offer a diversified look at the arts. There will be 30 painters showing their work. There will be exhibits of drawings, illustrations, photography, small furniture, costume jewelery, ceramics, quilting and needlecraft.

Second Youth Charged

MADOC — A second London, Ont. youth has been charged with the theft of a motor vehicle in connection with an incident in this village late Thursday.

Ontario Provincial Police have have identified the youth as 18-year-old Jerry Williams. He is charged jointly with 19-year-old Steven Paul Chippewa, also of London.

The charges, followed the theft of a 1968 Plymouth, parked on Durham St., owned by John Stitt of Madoc.

Red Cross Backs Pool

MARMORA — The main objective of the Red Cross Society is to provide aid when an emergency first arises, Mrs. B.W. Spry of Orono, national vice-president, told the members of the Marmora branch recently.

Mrs. Spry congratulated the Marmora branch on the $700 collected to date toward its $1,000 objective. She recommended that other areas, such as Cordova, Springbrook and Madoc, should be canvassed for funds next year.

Mrs. Spry also said The Marmora branch should provide some specific piece of equipment for the swimming program at Legion Park or use the money to promote water safety or awards, rather than contribute toward salaries.

She also urged residents of Madoc and Tweed to participate in the blood donor clinic scheduled for May 21 at Centre Hastings Secondary School. She also suggested that the local senior branch should try to maintain close contact with students who might wish to support a local project since the Juniors Red Cross is being decentralized.

50 Married Years Celebrated

AMELIASBURG — A couple formerly from the third concession of Ameliasburg now living in Toronto celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary Sunday at the home of there were snow squalls and Carrying Place.

Mr. and Mrs. Ceburn Adams, 43 Robinson Avenue, Scarborough, were married in the Redneraville parsonage by the Rev. T.L. Seymour, Monday, March 30 1925.

Sunday the couple recalled their were snow squalls and short periods of sunshine almost identical to the weather here on Easter Sunday.

Best man Douglas Williamson drove them to the railroad station at Belleville in a model T. Ford to catch a train for Montreal for their honeymoon.

He was among the 60 guests some from as far as Brockport, N.Y. who attended the afternoon and evening receptions and luncheon held in their honor.

The couples daughter Variae, son Keith and grandson Neil were also present along with Mr. Adams' two sisters, Alta Brown of Picton and Olive White of Belleville.

Today's Child

By Helen Allen

ANDY

With that questioning look, Andy might be asking, "Are you going to be my Mummy and Daddy?" But Andy has just turned two and doesn't know that he has no mother and father of his own. The look was probably because he was entranced by the man with the camera.

Andy is a beautiful child, with his light brown hair, big blue eyes and fair skin. Three of his grandparents were white Anglo-Saxon, the fourth Canadian Indian.

Andy was a frail and sickly baby but is in amazingly good health now considering his difficult start in life. He has cerebral palsy (lack of muscle control), with some paralysis on the right side. He can walk, though he drags his right foot, and he is using his right arm more than he did.

Andy's main problem is speech. He makes lots of noise but doesn't say any words. Speech therapy has not yet been recommended but he will need it later.

Though Andy doesn't talk, he has no trouble in making himself understood by gestures. And he knows everything said to him. Ask him if he wants a cookie or where his sweater is or say "Point to your nose" and you get appropriate action.

Andy is alert, happy, responsive and sociable, if a bit shy with strangers. Psychological testing is difficult because of his lack of speech but he appears to be good average in intelligence.

Andy has a good appetite, feeding himself with his left hand. He sleeps right through the night and has a long afternoon nap. The rest of the day he's as busy as most two-year-olds.

He loves small children and gleefully welcomes rough games with bigger boys and girls.

Lovable Andy needs parents who will give him much love, help him continue the good progress he has already made and see that he has therapy when it is needed. Andy will bring real joy to such parents.

To inquire about adopting Andy, please write to Today's Child, Ministry of Community and Social Services, Box 888, Station K, Toronto M4P 2H2.

Books By And About Women

WOMEN OF RED RIVER by W.J. Healy

As late as 1870 Red River was the only settlement in the West with more than a trading post and a few hunters' facilities. The first women settlers arrived in 1812 with Lord Selkirk's party via Hudson Bay. A later group was forced to winter at the mouth of the Churchill River and in April to set out on snowshoes for York Factory and thence by boat to the Red River; on the way a child was born in a snow-banked tent.

Yet by the end of 1812, Scottish people had arrived at the site of what is now Winnipeg. What the women endured can hardly be realized today — the complete isolation from their menfolk, the savage wars of the fur traders, the nomadic Indians, the plagues of grasshoppers and the flood of 1826!

As a tribute to these women and their successors, the Women's Canadian Club of Winnipeg has published a book compiled by W.J. Healy, based on interviews with women whose own memories extended back to the 1870s and who were able to pass on stories handed down by their fore-bears.

These first-hand accounts of happy times and sad times give a fascinating glimpse of the life behind the historical events which cannot be found in textbooks but which certain to add to an appreciation of our history.

This book is available at Corby Library.

Ann Landers

Reader Knocks Ann's Answer

Dear Ann Landers: I do have better stationery than this but after reading your advice to the Protestant parents whose daughter was going to marry a Catholic, I decided even this junk is too good for you.

You owe an apology to every Catholic in the world after that rotten answer. You said it wouldn't hurt them to go and suffer through the hour."

I'll have you know the Catholic Mass is a beautiful experience and nobody has to suffer through it.

You spoiled my day.—A Disappointed Christian.

Dear D.C.: Sorry I spoiled your day. You didn't spoil mine. Please read the next letter:

Dear Ann Landers: This is for "St. Petersburg, Fla." the woman whose daughter is being married to a Catholic. She wonders if she and her husband should attend the wedding.

I know how you feel because our son, who was brought up a Protestant, married a Catholic girl five years ago. My wife and I refused to attend the wedding and we have regretted it ever since.

Our son and his dear wife forgave us promptly and we see them often, but I still have a gnawing feeling at the pit of my stomach that they will never get over the humiliation.

Our daughter-in-law is one of the sweetest girls in the world. Our son could not have made a finer choice. Please, St. P., don't make the terrible mistake of building a barrier that will never disappear. — Columbus, Ga.,

Dear Columbus: Thanks for the testimonial from someone who has been there. A letter such as yours is worth 100 admonitions from Ann Landers. I hope St. Pete and others will heed your advice.

Dear Ann Landers: I was burned up by that letter from the woman who signed off with, "Nuts To You." After all, nobody is putting a gun to her head and forcing her to read your column. The fact that she and her husband fight over who is going to read it first was pretty interesting.

Doesn't that indicate understand that people write to you because they want your advice? If they don't want to know what you think, why do they write?—Sign Me—Nuts to Her

Dear N.T.H.: Some readers don't know whether or not they want my advice until they get it. These people aren't looking for guidance, honey. They just want someone to reinforce their prejudices. If I don't bark them up, then it's nuts to me. So what? I win a few and I lose a few. But don't we all?

Dear Ann Landers: I just read something that might cet millions of women off cigarettes. The person that told me about the indisputable link between cigarettes and lung cancer didn't mention a word about it. But now a doctor in California has evidence that cigarettes smoking can cause premature wrinkles—that's something women will pay attention to!

I saw you up close when you spoke in Lubbock, Texas. Now I know why you have such nice skin! That's your secret, isn't it?—New Hope

Dear Hope: I have never smoked, and if it helped my skin, so be it. Actually I believe a couple of other factors were more important. First, I picked a mother who had lovely skin and second, a dermatologist in Washington, D.C., told me 10 years ago to stay out of the sun—and I listened.

Doris Clark

Group Work Can Build Character

How do we build character and good social attitudes in children? Teachers know some of the ways. They involve groups of children in working together in a game, or getting on a play, or in producing a papier mache display — among other things.

If one child is too aggressive he or she is helped to simmer down a little and to give someone else a chance." If another youngster is too shy, he or she is given a responsibility to carry out by himself, or an executive position in an organized club.

Children need to see why they are doing things; and they need to realize that their part in what is being created deserves respect — theirs as well as everybody else's.

Dear Doris: I love my husband very much, but he doesn't seem to love me. He always seems to be mad at me. He works shifts and a good deal of overtime, so I find myself alone with the kids a lot.

I drink a lot, and cry a lot. I'm feeling very fat, too, but when I diet I get so depressed. Please help me it and set me life.

Help!

Dear Help: You do need help, and right away. First trip is to see a family counsellor to point out all your troubles. Just talking about it will help; and a trained counsellor can help you see that the indulgence in eating is directly related to your loneliness. A diet routine comes next, and some level-headed talks with your thoughtless mate.

You've got to pull yourself together — and do it now.

Dear Doris: I am 26 and still a virgin. My sister, brother-in-law and brother are always teasing me about it. I feel as though I am the only virgin in the world. They also have a friend whom I like very much. I'm so afraid they'll tell him I'm a virgin, and I will be very embarrassed.

Sometimes I feel like going out and going to bed with a guy just to lose my innocence. My sister lost her virginity at 14.

Andy.

Dear Andy: Don't do it. Being a virgin is disgrace. Being a virgin! Something tells me your sister is a wee bit jealous, and the men-folk goad her along.

The next time the tease you, just say that you're proud to be a virgin, and when the right man comes along, he'll be proud, too. Walk away with your head in the air, and don't let their jibes bother you a bit. It's only because they can upset you that they keep teasing.

City Facing Zero Vacancy Rate

Restrictive legislation and high mortgage rates have led to a zero vacancy rate in Belleville rental accommodation, says Gerry Joyce, past president of the Quinte District Real Estate Board and current vice-president of the Ontario Real Estate Association.

A zero vacancy rate means that virtually every rental accommodation in the city is occupied.

"From my own experience (as a realtor) this is the case and it is discouraging some people from joining the community," said Mr. Joyce.

No surveys have been undertaken to precisely gauge the rental situation, but, said Mr. Joyce, "it would just confirm what we already know".

The lack of multi-family unit construction hinges on the tight economy and the freezing wage council applied to the city three years ago.

At that time when interest rates were low enough to make apartment construction attractive to developers — council froze high rise development from most areas of the city.

"Council said at the time it would bear submissions from developers, but that takes too much time and aggravation," said Mr. Joyce.

"With current mortgage interest rates, it's not economically feasible to build apartments," he said. "Incomes in Belleville couldn't afford the rent."

Apartment residents in Belleville are not likely to feel the pinch of the law of supply and demand for this reason.

But, said Mr. Joyce, "there's a limit to just how much people can afford," and Belleville landlords are aware of this.

"Any rent increases passed by the landlord are to cover increasing costs such as labor in maintaining the building and energy supply for heating and lighting."

It is because people can only afford so much, "rents haven't followed grocery cart prices," said Mr. Joyce.

"Something has to be done," he said, remarking on the lack of rental accommodation. "The present situation is not in the best interests of the city."

LIP Program Wins Economist's Praise

LONDON (CP) — A government-commissioned study asserts that real unemployment in Britain is far higher than commonly believed and recommends that Britain look to a Canadian experiment to help alleviate the situation.

The 10-page book, There's Work To Be Done, is the work of Santosh Mukherjee, Oxford University lecturer on labor economics. He reports drawing on the success of the Canadian pioneering project called Local Initiatives Program (LIP), initiated in 1971 with a budget of $40 million. Because it is good response, he writes, another $50 million was added and in the spring $40 million more was put into the program so projects could be maintained through the summer.

Although Mukherjee describes similar plans in a number of countries, he singles out LIP for particular praise because it has as its objective "the creation of jobs for unemployed Canadians as well as the improvement of the quality of life."

He argues that while other countries, including Britain, are prepared to subsidize employment in goods-producing, private industries such as ship-building, they generally are unwilling to put taxpayers' money in support of jobs in services and municipal community activities as Canada has done.

While Britain basks in the popular belief that its unemployment is comparatively low—the "official" rate hovers around three per cent compared with about six per cent in Canada—Mukherjee argues that this is deceptive, due to different methods of calculation.

"If unemployment statistics for different countries are looked at on a comparable basis then the rate of joblessness in Britain is close to that in Canada and the United States."

If in 1975, Britain does top one million unemployed as some experts believe likely, then the rate will be even higher than Canada's, which is the highest of any advanced country, he says.

The study was commissioned by the Manpower Services Commission, which now is studying it.

One potential drawback in plans such as LIP is that while workers' pay is more than unemployment benefits it generally is lower than regular pay. This raises the "cheap labor" spectre but a commission spokesman says that so far none of the union representatives on the commission have raised objections on these grounds.

Devoting a whole chapter to the Canadian project, the author says it seems probable that between 70 and 90 per cent of the projects involved work that would not have been undertaken without LIP money. Another finding is that about 35 per cent of projects continued to operate with othir resources after LIP grants had ceased.

Projects have included local community centres, parks, ski runs and beach developments as well as day care centres and clinics, all ideas put forward by the unemployed and their community.

The advantage is that the government-sponsored program can pinpoint employment opportunities in communities where unemployment is above the national average.

From a psychological point of view, Mukherjee argues, the participation "drawn largely from the unemployed and the unemployable, no longer feel they are on the scrap-heap. On the contrary, they are doing a useful and needed job for the wider community."

In essence, the plan turns the problem of winter unemployment over to the unemployed themselves, reversing the usually passive role of unemployed people simply waiting for work to turn up.

Mukherjee says studies show that about 75 per cent of work done was considered to be either value for money or "a bargain." Eighty-seven per cent of those involved were satisfied with the sense of achievement given by the projects.

Vicar Saves Fuel

IRTHINGTON, England (AP) — Anglican church services this winter in this Cumberland village (population 670) are being held in the house of the vicar, Rev. Peter Canham, instead of the church. He said it would cost too much to heat the church for only three or four people at Evensong services.

DESIGN R3-622
1,377 Sq. Ft.

The house illustrated was designed primarily as a year-round vacation home but it could equally as a suburban cottage or retirement home. Depending upon these circumstances the floor plan could be reversed from back to front. There is a good closet at the present back door and any builder could build the basement stairs with a railing instead of the wall on the kitchen side to add a feeling of openness to the entrance foyer.

The living room shows exposed ceiling beams built into the fireplace wall, an the separate dining room is unusually spacious for the size of the house. The sleeping area can be totally shut off from the more active areas by the hall door, and the three bedrooms have high windows affording a certain amount of privacy. This home has a full basement with utilities and heating appliances and roughed - in powder room which can be put in anytime.

The living room beams extend outside under the roof overhang adding charm and protection to the front entrance. Vertical and horizontal siding, with brick trim are used for the exterior of this appealing little cottage.

Plans for Design R3-622 cost $25 for the first set, $11 each additional set and are supplied by return mail.

Survey Shows Mortgage Rates on Way Back Up

Interest rates on mortgage financing are on the upswing, figures in a recent A.E. LePage financial survey show.

By last December interest rates reached the top of the curve at 12.5 per cent and then began dropping at the start of January.

The decline continued until March when home mortgaging was available in the 10½ to 10¾ per cent range.

The survey taken at mid March shows all areas of financing holding their rates or increasing.

In pre-sold and re-sale houses, the February rates ranged from 10½ to 10¾ per cent. This month's figures show 10¾ to 11 per cent.

Builder loans have remained steady at 10¾ per cent while industrial rates are up one per cent. Commercial mortgaging is up ½ per percentage point.

The only drop recorded is in funds for apartment and town house construction where the rate fell from about 11¼ to 10¾ per cent more.

Gerry Joyce, a vice-president of the Ontario Real Estate Association and past president of the local real estate association, said that with current mortgage rates, "there is very little buyer resistance."

An increase in buyers will not affect the interest rates on mortgaging, said Mr. Joyce.

"Interest rates and where they are set is purely a political decision made by the federal government and the Bank of Canada."

1974 City Surplus May Ease Expected Property Tax Hike

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Two contributions to the city treasury could help lighten the increase in city taxes expected this year — indicated Mayor Robin Jeffrey.

The mayor says the city now has:

(1). Nearly $400,000 in an expected surplus as yet unaudited — surplus from 1974.

(2). An increase of $140,000 in new assessment.

They are two credits which hopefully can be used to ease a tax hike in what is seen as a foreboding year for local government budgeting.

Last week Kingston became one of the first Ontario cities to strike its budget. The result: A tax increase of nearly 13 per cent — close to the national 1974 cost-of-living index rise.

(In Belleville last year a 14-per-cent increase — returning mill rates to par with 1971 — meant an additional $40 for the typical householder with a home assessment.)

Kingston's $21.9 million budget was up $1.6 million in city spending. But only $267,000 was marked for extra expenditures. The remaining $1.25 million was linked to inflationary-created costs — higher salaries, more expensive supplies and services.

"We're going to be in a very similar position to Kingston. There's no doubt about it," said Mayor Jeffrey. "Our wages and the costs of materials have increased too."

However, she didn't know if Kingston's budget was offset by increased assessment or a hike granted by provincial government funding.

She said she learned at a recent meeting of the Association of Ontario Municipalities (AOM) that increased provincial revenues do not necessarily mean higher grants from the senior governments to the municipalities. Ontario Treasurer Darcy McKeough has told AOM officials such increases could be passed along to the local public sector depending on provincial grants — including school boards and police commissions, said Mayor Jeffrey.

"We just won't know about any increases until Mr. McKeough comes down with that budget," said the mayor.

Meantime, budgets from city departments and the various boards and commissions needing city financing, are being assembled into an overall budget, reflecting the total demand on municipal funds for 1975.

City manager Wilbur Purcell hopes to have the preliminary budget estimates for assessment by council during the last week in April, said Mayor Jeffrey.

After that councillors will begin wrestling and slashing their way through to the final budget — expected in mid-May.

"But we're going to have an increase (in taxes)" predicts, although "the size of it, I don't know".

Humane Society Plans Campaign for Support

By JIM SMELLIE
Staff Reporter

The Quinte Branch of the Ontario Humane Society is planning to take it case to the people of Belleville on whether it should run the animal shelter on Avonlough Rd., instead of the city as has been proposed.

A brief has been prepared and depending on the outcome of a presentation by local OHS officials to city council today, will be distributed to all householders in Belleville.

During Monday's night annual meeting of the society branch at the shelter attended by about 60 persons, a financial report was presented that revealed a deficit of $46,267.68 in operating the shelter last year. The Ontario manager of the OHS Tom Hughes mentioned that the figure was subject to audit.

The financial statement of operating income and expenses for the Quinte branch of the OHS revealed total shelter operating income amounting to $54,276 The bulk of this income was derived from municipal contract fees from the city of $25,777.64.

Total operating expenses for the year 1974 came to $100,543.68, with close to $60,000 of that being paid out in salaries and wages.

"And even this," said Mr. Hughes, "is paying the minimum wage. It would be more if a union was involved."

Leaving behind the financial report, the four-page draft of the brief titled Save the Animals, Save the Shelter, Save Tax Dollars was presented.

In it, the society asked to be allowed to provide a complete range of services including operation of the shelter, which it said it could do by "introducing some economies and with an increased "payment from the city."

The brief said the society can provide these above mentioned services for the city for a contract fee of $1 per capita from Jan. 1, 1975, $1.10 from July 1, 1975 and $1.25 from Jan. 1, 1976.

The city has offered a flat contract fee of $1 per capita for six months. Mr. Hughes said that many communities have a per capita contract fee of $2 and even with that don't provide all the services we'll be doing".

The brief states: "These increased fees are not sufficient to meet the total cost. It is would still continue to subsidize the city but the amount would be less than in the past and we hope it would be reduced to the point we could carry it by producing funds from alternative sources including charitable fund raising, special projects and donations.

In 1974, the humane society received over $25,000 in contract fees. In 1973 the brief said a negative figure of $26,522.60 was paid to society from the city while in 1976, the cost of providing complete service to the city would be $42,515.

By contrast Mr. Hughes mentioned that if the city took the task of operating the shelter, taking into account interest rates built up over the years from the new building it proposes to construct, total operating costs would then amount to about $62,500.

The brief mentions that the city plans to build a new shelter costing from about 15,000 to 120,000 figures which Mr. Hughes calls unrealistic when taking its account president-day construction costs He said that a range from $50,000 to $100,000 would be more in line.

"Anything less would mean an inadequate building which would inevitably lead to criticism, complaints and eventually some form of legal action would have to be taken against the city to force it to meet its responsibility and comply with the law."

Rolled Steel on 401

Damage was estimated at $40,000 when this truckload of steel rolled on Highway 401 just east of Shannonville Gravel Road overpass early today.

The driver, from Toronto, was released from hospital after treatment for minor injuries.

Truck Rolls, Spilling Steel Cargo

SHANNONVILLE — A 27-year-old Toronto man was slightly injured and damage was estimated at $40,000 to a tractor-trailer and its load of steel when the vehicle overturned early today on Highway 401 just east of this village located about eight miles east of Belleville

Ontario Provincial Police at Belleville said Terrance Sager was treated and released for minor cuts and abrasions from Belleville General Hospital following the accident which occurred during an overnight snowfall on snowcovered pavement.

Investigating Constable Jim Wilson said the 4:15 a.m. mishap was caused when the trailer portion went out of control, forcing the unit into the median where it overturned spilling some of its load of steel rolls.

He said cranes were to begin unloading the steel onto other vehicles some time later today and will probably slow traffic somewhat for several hours. The unit is owned by Makatel Industries of Rexdale.

Ellis to Head Party Caucus

Jack Ellis, MP Hastings, has been appointed co-chairman of the three-day Conservative party's Atlantic caucus

The caucus — scheduled for June 6-8 in Halifax — is aimed at improving communications between the Conservative organization in Ottawa and its local associations in the four Atlantic provinces.

Federal Cost Overruns Concern Hastings MP

Costs of bureaucracy and executive posts are a major contributing factor to soaring inflation hitting federal public works estimates, Jack Ellis, MP Hastings, says.

Mr. Ellis, Conservative public works critic, told the Commons recently the government was becoming its own architect and designer of inflation.

The public works department is "one of the worst offenders" he said.

Almost everywhere he cited of cost increases over estimates:

A parking garage in Hull, Que. — up 71 per cent;

renovations to the new urban affairs ministry building — up 70 per cent; Halifax mail processing plant — up 186 per cent; the post office's new Montreal centre — up 300 per cent.

The total public works budget has increased by 23 per cent, he charged.

While inflation is "rampant" the government cannot expect to blame it for such increases, said Mr. Ellis.

More Forms Returned

A story in Saturday's Intelligencer reported that only two per cent of 400 questionnaires were returned from construction, industrial and service companies.

The story should have said 20 per cent of the questionnaires had been returned to the Belleville and District Employment Committee for tabulation.

20-year-old Charged After Weekend Mishap

A 20-year-old Belleville youth has been charged with impaired driving, careless driving and driving while under suspension following an incident at the corner of Emily and Station streets late Saturday.

Deputy Chief Harold Reid of city police identified the man late Monday as Kenneth Atkinson of 97 Stanley St.

He said the accident involved a car owned by Harry Bosma of 340 Stevenson Rd., in Oshawa and a vehicle owned and operated by Carol Fortia, 20, of 44 Village Dr.

Both vehicles were travelling east on Station St. and the Fortia car was making a right-hand turn onto Emily St., when the accident occurred, said Deputy-Chief Reid.

Both Fortia and a passenger in the other vehicle were treated and released for minor injuries at Belleville General Hospital, he said.

Damage was estimated at $1,200 to the Bosma car and $500 to the Fortia vehicle in the 6:22 p.m. mishap, he said.

McKee Wins Top Prize

Most of the money won in the Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund March draw remained in the Quinte area, although the $10,000 top prize was picked off by a Port Colborne woman, Bev McKee.

Trout St. barber Graham Seeley sold Jack Barrett of Belleville the winning $6,000 ticket. Keitha Rice, Belleville, won $3,000 and another Belleville resident, Maude Holly, picked up $2,500. Trentonian D. Palladino won $2,500 and Doug Reid of Kingston is $1,500 richer.

Ice Leaves On Schedule

Ice in the Bay of Quinte has again performed on schedule, bowing out on the Easter weekend.

Veteran commercial fisherman Jack Alyea, of Bay of Quinte Fisheries, says "you can pretty well count on the ice going out of the bay by Easter". This, he says, has been true in his memory and that goes back more than 50 years.

"The earliest I can remember the ice going out was March 17 — St. Patrick's Day — and that was at least 30 years ago.

"This isn't a real early year, but most of the ice is out now and there's a lot of open water."

Kinsmen Donate $2,000 To Three Area Projects

The Kinsmen Club of Belleville proved their generous spirit Monday when regular meeting Monday night by donating a total of $2,000 to three city projects.

In response to a plea from Alderman Ben Corke, who appeared at the group's last meeting, $1,000 was donated to the YMCA Building Fund.

Also, a rose garden will be built at Hastings Manor by the Kinsmen. A total of $500 has been donted towards this project. And the Easter Seal campaign is $500 richer thanks to the Kinsmen.

Monday night, besides being a night for donations was also admission night for Kinsmen members. The best presentation was Simon Gordon of representing Bill's Custom Auto Trim (Century Glass) who brought in a customized car.

Upcoming events for the city Kinsmen include a trip to Tweed this Friday for the children of the Tweed group by the Belleville Kinsmen.

For the first time, the Kinsmen will sponsor a K-40 club for those members under the age of 40. A special charter night will take place April 12 at Sir Georges Vanier School.

Two-year-old Improves

TRENTON — The condition of the two-year-old boy who is believed to have fallen from the sixth - floor balcony of the Trojo Boulevard Highrise Friday has improved.

A Kingston General Hospital spokesman said today Steven Whiting is in satisfactory condition with head injuries. He has been taken out of the intensive care unit where he was earlier listed in serious condition.

A Rusnell ambulance spokesman said today it is not certain if the boy climbed over the balcony railing. He said that he was found lying on the ground close to the balconies of the building.

Police are conducting an investigation.

Understanding Goal Of Loyalist Open House

The Loyalist College open house celebrations, to be held Wednesday from 6:30-9:30 p.m. in both Kente and Pioneer buildings, are both a source of pride for college administration, faculty and student body and a means of better understanding for Quinte area residents, says Brian Young, Loyalist president.

"It is a lot of work to prepare for it," he noted in an interview today. "Nobody gets extra pay that work."

A contribution is made to the relationship between the college and area people "by opening the doors," he remarked. "By letting them see the college, they should be able to understand it better."

He pointed out the college is financed by provincial taxpayers "and we like the chance to show the taxpayers what we've done".

Mr. Young pointed out the event gives potential students and parents a chance to look over the college in a relaxed atmosphere.

Teachers Stress Need For Compulsory Subjects

Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation (OSSTF) representatives from Hastings County unanimously supported the establishment of a minimum core of compulsory subjects for secondary school students.

The Hastings OSSTF delegation attended the annual assembly of the federation last weekend in Toronto when members voted overwhelmingly to promote a return to more compulsory subjects.

Hastings OSSTF president Judie Carty, representing about 530 secondary school teachers in the county, said "the move is a definite reaction against HSI" HSI was a curriculum guide which gave secondary school students a free selection in course subjects.

Mrs. Carty interpreted the federation move as a statement "more OSSTF input should be involved in course curriculum". She said there were emotional appeals made by teachers at the assembly who felt strongly about the lack of compulsory subjects.

A revised HSI policy last year ordered secondary school students to take four English credits and two Canadian study credits in order to graduate with a secondary school diploma. However there has been disagreement over what constitutes a course in Canadian study.

A report, initiated at last year's assembly, was presented to the delegates. It also recommended regional exams. The report said there is a concern across the province about the standard of education.

Society Handled 5,045 Calls for Aid in 1974

In 1974, the Quinte Branch of the Ontario Humane Society dealt with 5,045 calls for assistance from the public. Of these 648 were emergency calls (after 9 p.m.) and 4,397 routine.

The shelter, it was revealed during the annual meeting of the society here Monday received 5,455 animals including 412 which were impounded, 3,838 released to owners and 1,265 picked up as 'stray animals'.

The society was able to find homes for 2,791 animals of which 456 were returned to their original owners, Under Ontario law, any impounded dog must be kept in the pound for a minimum of three days excluding the day the dog is picked up and holidays. This includes Sundays.

Balancing Act

Stacked park picnic tables that were an obstacle course to Queen Elizabeth School students Mike Hutchison, 13, Monday are nothing but a memory for him today. Along with other students in Trenton, he returned to school today after the mid-winter break. It was his last balancing act in more than one sense— the picnic tables will be moved to town parks shortly.

It's Unchanged!

While Canada publicly switched temperature scale from Fahrenheit to Celsius today, readings taken at city filtration plant since 1919 remain unchanged . . . for now. Alf Rodgers, assistant plant superintendent, makes check of temperatures with Fahrenheit thermometer which won't be changed for at least two years, when federal government expects to have completed instrumentation switchover at all local observatory stations.

Pressure Cooker Days Appear Over for Guy

MONTREAL (CP) — Four seasons of intense National Hockey League pressure blended have eased somewhat for right winger Guy Lafleur of Montreal Canadiens.

The 23-year-old native of Thurso, Que., picked No. 1 overall I in the 1971 amateur draft and immediately labled as the great Jean Beliveau, blew the lid from his own pressure cooker when he broke the 50-goal barrier on the weekend—a target that had eluded him in his three previous seasons.

When he scored his 51st season goal against the Bruins in Boston Sunday, Lafleur broke one of the oldest club records in the NHL—a mark that had lasted for 36 years and 12 days.

Lafleur's goal against the Bruins put his name in the club record book in place M Maurice (Rocket) Richard, who was also a 23-year-old left winger for Montreal when he scored 50 goals in the 50-game, 194-40 season.

Richard's 50-goal mark was tied by another Montreal right winger—Bernie Geoffrion—in 1960-61 when the league had expanded its schedule to 70 games. Geoffrion played 64 games that season. Lafleur got his 50th goal here Saturday against the Kansas City Scouts and was immediately congra ulated by both Richard and Geoffrion for equalling their mark.

While Lafleur now owns the mark for most goals in a season by a member of the Canadiens, Richard's performance will not be forgotten, despite the fact 10 players have since recorded a total of 50 goals-or-better seasons.

And there remains the strong possibility of that number increasing during this final week of the current season.

Lafleur's weekend performance made him the second player to pass the 50-goal mark this season.

Centre Phil Esposito of Boston, who has been the league's leading goal-scorer in each of the last five seasons, is again the leader with 59 goals.

Two more players stand an excellent chance of reaching the 50-goal mark by next Sunday.

Jennings, Buckland Honored

TORONTO (CP) — Membership in the Hockey Hall of Fame swelled past the 200 mark Monday with the addition of William M. Jennings of New York Rangers and veteran administrator Frank Buckland of Peterborough, Ont.

Their induction brings to 201 the members in the Hockey Hall of Fame, including 142 players, 36 builders and 11 referees.

Player candidates for induction will be considered by the selection committee at its annual meeting June 16.

Jennings, 55, has been president of the National Hockey League Rangers since 1962 and involved in league activities for more than 15 years.

Buckland, 73, has been associated with Canadian amateur hockey since 1927, is a former president of the Ontario Hockey Association and treasurer of the OHA during the last 13 years.

Opener To Flyers

BARRIE, Ont. (CP) — Barrie Flyers, who finished first in regular season play, opened their Ontario Hockey Association Senior A playoff series against Brantford Foresters Monday with a 3-1 win.

Captain Corby Adams led the Flyers with two goals and defenceman Jim Thompson scored the other. Jim Lebar scored for Brantford.

Brantford led 1-0 after the first period. Barrie took a 2-1 lead after the second period and added a goal in the third.

Barrie outshot Brantford 37-26.

Location and date of the next game has not been announced.

It's a Scramble For Positions

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (CP) — Seattle had 75 goals in 74 games, six teams are separated by a mere four points in the World Hockey Association playoff berth scramble and vindication is fast approaching the four million mark according to league statistics Monday night.

The only certainties after 317 games of the WHA's third season are that Houston Aeros and New England Whalers are again Western and Eastern division champions, respectively, and that the Aeros (ninety points) will face Cleveland Crusaders (least number of points) in the opening round of playoff action.

The remaining three in-both teams pairings, along with the WHA scoring championship and Canadian division winner, may not be decided until the final night of the season.

Hull continued his assault on Gordie Howe's all-time goal-scoring mark with 75, one shy of equaling the major league record of 76 owned by Boston Bruins Phil Esposito in the National Hockey League.

In his bid for the scoring crown, however, Hull's lead over Andre Lacroix of San Diego narrowed to five points, 105-100. Lacroix, leading the league in assists with 94, had a nine point week as the Mariners extended their winning streak to six games.

Houston's Larry Lund became the fifth player this season to reach the 100-point plateau, joining Winnipeg's Bobby Hull, Serge Bernier of Quebec, Lacroix and Hull.

Hull's three goals against New England in a 9-3 romp represented his sixth hat trick game of the season. He's the only WHA career leader with 14.

Everton Noses Back in Front

LONDON (AP) — A goal by Martin Dobson sent Everton nosing ahead of local rivals Liverpool again Monday in the jostling race for the English soccer championship.

Everton gained a 1-0 victory over Coventry while Stoke, another strong challenger, downed Liverpool 2-1.

That left Everton leading the standings with 46 points and five games to go. Liverpool and Stoke were tied for second place with 45, but both have only four games remaining.

Derby moved into third by beating Burnley and was fourth with 44 points. But Derby has six games left and is well placed to overhaul the other teams.

Everton 1 Coventry 0

Everton dominated the mid-field but lacked their usual fluency in attack. The goal came one minute before half-time. Dobson took a short pass from Mike Buckley and crashed the ball into the net from 25 yards.

Stoke 2 Liverpool 0

Stoke went ahead with a penalty by Terry Conroy in the minute after John Mahoney had been tripped. Liverpool had had back. A shot by Peter Cormack hit defender Alan Dodd on the line and rebounded to safety. Liverpool had a half-dozen shots last cleared the crossbar. Conroy made it 2-0 for Stoke in the second half, bringing his total to seven goals in four games.

Burnley 2 Derby 3

Bruce Rioch scored for Derby after 45 minutes. Roy Hamlet headed an equalizer in the 11th minute, but David Nish chipped a free kick over goalkeeper Alan Stevenson's head and Peter Davies made it 3-1 for Derby before half-time. Kevin Hector scored twice for Derby in the second half.

Chelsea 0 Ipswich 0

Ipswich, playing its fourth game in seven days, held Chelsea goalless. Only Charlie Cooke looked capable of creating for Ipswich and came but from two of his openings Steve Kember and Marvin Hinton headed wide.

Leeds 3 Leicester 2

Leeds, semi-finalists in the European Cup of Champions, had to take a half-time lead when Alan Clarke shot home with a fortunate appealing for offside. Johnny Giles made it 2-0 but Leicester, struggling near the drop to the Second Division, hit back with goals by Bobby Lee and Jeff Blockley.

Arsenal 1 Sheffield United 0

Alan Ridd won the game for Arsenal with his 19th goal of the season, but it was a lucky effort. His free kicking the 20th minute bounced inside the post off Sandy Ellis. Ian Brown apparently unsighted.

Francis—Answer Sunday

NHL Races Going Right to the Wire

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Rangers coach Emile Francis considered the upcoming Stanley Cup playoffs and said: "Well, we'll know who's playing come Sunday . . . I think."

Sunday, April 6, marks the end of the National Hockey League's regular season. By some accounts, this last evening's point standings will be final and every team that makes the playoffs will know who their opposition will be.

That doesn't include Philadelphia Flyers or Buffalo Sabres, who have clinched crowns in the Patrick and Adams divisions, respectively. They earn a spot past the first round, as do the other two division winners, yet to be decided.

In the Norris Division, Montreal Canadiens are one point away from ruining Los Angeles Kings' first-place hopes. The Canadiens could clinch the title Wednesday night when they play host to Pittsburgh Penguins.

The Smythe Division crown remains up in the air with Vancouver Canucks, St. Louis Blues and Chicago Black Hawks separated by a mere two points entering tonight's action.

Atlanta Flames, facing virtual elimination from a playoff berth in the Patrick Division, visit New York Islanders tonight.

"We'll have to go for broke," said Flames goalie Dan Bouchard after Atlanta tied the Islanders 3-3 Sunday and remained five points behind with four games remaining. A loss tonight would put them seven points behind the Islanders and New York Rangers with three games to play and would hasten the start of summer vacations.

The Kings, still clinging to a hope of overtaking Montreal, visit Kansas City Scouts. The Scouts were blasted for 59 shots on goal in an 8-2 loss to the Rangers Sunday night which gifted the Rangers into a second-place tie with the Islanders.

Three teams from each division can make the playoffs. The spots have been decided in the Adams Division where Buffalo has clinched first, Boston second and Toronto third.

In the Norris Division, the Canadiens, Kings and Pittsburgh Penguins are guaranteed post-season action. Likewise the Smythe Division, although it is far from certain where St. Louis, Chicago and Vancouver will finish. The Blues play Minnesota North Stars and the Canucks take on California Seals tonight.

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The top three teams in each of the four NHL divisions qualify for the Stanley Cup playoffs. Division winners receive a bye into the second round; the other eight teams enter a best-of-three quarter-final series. Pairings are determined by points. The team with most points meets the team with the fewest points, the team with second-most points meets the team with second fewest points, and so on.

Today, the following teams would be in the playoffs (a—division leaders, first-round bye):

xPhiladelphia Flyers 108 points
xBuffalo Sabres 107 points
Montreal Canadiens 107 points
Los Angeles Kings 100 points
Boston Bruins 93 points
Pittsburgh Penguins 87 points
New York Islanders 85 points
New York Rangers 85 points
xVancouver Canucks 80 points
Chicago Black Hawks 78 points
St. Louis Blues 78 points
Toronto Maple Leafs 77 points

Atlanta, with 80 points, is the only other team which could still qualify for a playoff berth, should it overtake Islanders or Rangers in the Patrick Division in this final week of the season.

WHA Wild Card Berth So Near Yet So Far

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Winnipeg Jets keep winning but their goal of a World Hockey Association playoff berth doesn't seem to get any closer.

The Jets, whose strongest hope for the playoffs is to win a wild-card berth, beat Indianapolis Racers 4-1 Monday night to run their points-total to 80.

Going into Monday's action, Minnesota Fighting Saints and San Diego Mariners, each with 78 points, were the two teams Winnipeg had to catch to qualify for a wild-card berth.

But in Monday's only other game, San Diego beat Edmonton Oilers 5-3 and moved up to second place in the Western Division, leaving Phoenix Roadrunners, who have 84 points and three games left, as the other wild-card favorite along with Minnesota, which has five games remaining.

The Jets now have four games remaining and are four points behind Toronto Toros who hold second place in the Canadian Division. The Toros have three games remaining, all at home. Winnipeg has two at home and two on the road—at Toronto on Friday and Quebec on Sunday.

"We're going to have to win every game from now on," said Jets left winger Bobby Hull who failed to add to his season's goal total of 72.

"We could even win the rest of our games and still be low man on the totem pole."

The Jets have been winless three to five points of the wild-card berth leaders for the last two weeks despite winning nine of their last 10 games.

"It's getting tougher each game and it's frustrating to keep winning and not get any closer to the wild-card berth," said Jets defenceman Alain Beaule, who made individual records to set for most assists, goals by Veli Kotela in the second period and Anders Hedberg in the third period.

Indianapolis sent Nic Harbaruk to Winnipeg for Monday's game and the Jets stunned Indianapolis on their one goal. Hull is within one goal of matching the professional major-league season record of 76 goals scored by Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins in the 1970-71 National Hockey League season.

Winnipeg coach Rudy Pilous praised the work of Harbaruk checking Hull, calling Harbaruk an excellent defensive player and a very good skater but Hull was unhappy about the attention.

The top two teams in each of the four WHA divisions qualify for the playoffs, plus the two other wild-card teams with the highest point totals. Pairings for the best-of-seven quarter-final playoffs are determined on points, regardless of division standings. The team finishing with the most points in the league meets the team with fewest points; the team with second-most points meets the team with second fewest points, and so on.

Today, the following teams would be in the playoffs (a—division leaders):

aHouston Aeros 100 points
New England Whalers 87 points
Quebec Nordiques 86 points
San Diego Mariners 85 points
Toronto Toros 84 points
xPhoenix codrunners 84 points
xMinnesota Fighting Saints 84 points
Cleveland Crusaders 71 points
Winnipeg, with 80 points, is the only other team which could still qualify for a playoff berth, should it overtake either of the wild-card teams in this final week of the season.

Four Area Teams Get Shot at OMHA Crowns

The Bay of Quinte area is getting to be downright pushy when it comes to monopolizing berths in Ontario Minor Hockey Association (OMHA) final playoffs.

And it says plenty for the power hockey associations in communities like Wellington, Picton, Brighton and Trenton.

The players on these Ontario finalist squads, their coaches and managers and yes, the parents, also deserve commendation.

Wellington has long been a producer of first-rate minor hockey teams. The village has its share of OMHA championships to its credit.

This time around Loyalist Coach Lionel Peewees will be aiming to add the C title to that string of honors.

Tonight in Wellington, the squad opens the title set with Cayuga. Game times are 8 p.m. Dates of remaining games in the series have not been announced.

The Coach Lines skaters have chalked up an enviable record this season, losing only once in 38 league and playoff contests.

That loss setback came in quarter-final play with Haliburton. A 4-3 loss, it deadlocked the series at 1-1 but Wellington came on to take the next two matches and move to the semi-final with Oro.

Wellington moved past Oro in three straight games.

Coached by Bill Greer, the Loyalist team has Ralph Mountney handling managers duties.

The club defeated Marmora 3-0 in games to win the Trent Valley League crown and then scored 8-2 and 8-3 wins over Keene to qualify for provincial quarter-finals.

Picton and Brighton are new to OMHA final playoff competition, according to spokesmen for the teams.

The Picton Kiwanis entry will be shooting for the Bantam B title in a best-of-seven matchup with Exeter.

Games 1 and 2 are scheduled for Exeter Saturday and Saunday with the teams meeting in Picton, April 12 and 13.

Coach Ken Ireland, and the manager, Vern Armstrong.

Advancing to the final showdown Picton sidelined Campbellford, Stouffville, and Bracebridge.

Brighton makes its debut in OMHA finals after getting by Port Henry Hiaths, Bancroft, Uxbridge, and Schomberg.

Coach Elgie Currie and manager Bernie Cline will lead the Ontario Provincial Police, Brighton detachment - sponsored team in the hunt for the Peewee C crown.

MORE

The OPP team had to work to get by Schomberg in the semi-final. Brighton had the home ice advantage in the best-of-five series and made it pay off with three wins. But Schomberg was in command on its ice, winning a pair in what club publicity man OPP Corporal Ray Noble describes as a "home ice series".

Mitchell will be in Brighton Saturday to open the best-of-five championship series. Game time is 1:30 p.m.

Second and third games are in Mitchell, April 12 and 13 with Game 4, if it is necessary, set for Brighton, April 19.

In Trenton, Birt's Handy Stand is making its third straight appearance in the Juvenile AA final.

Coached by Charlie Drake when it captured the top honors in 1973 and again in 1974, the Birt's team could become the first club to take the AA title three years in a row.

And there's still a Drake at the controls. Charlie's son Roger took over as coach this year and is getting plenty of production from his squad as the Birt's aggregation closes in on a championship hattrick.

It's Trenton and Oakridge Village in the final. The same two teams met for the title last year with Birt's the winner in seven games.

Oakridge gets the home ice for the first two games, Saturday and Sunday, with the teams shifting to Trenton for Games 3 and 4, April 12 and 13.

Now all that is necessary is for these area teams to be blessed with good officiating. Intelligent followers, the same sound leadership that has carried them this far, and continued good fortune on the ice. That could add up to four championships.

SLICES — If you've been a little slow to volunteer to take in a couple of young hockey players who will be visiting the city for the annual Shrine Peewee Hockey Tournament this Friday-Saturday-Sunday, now is the time to act.

Contact Jean Reid (968-7468) or Doreen Meagher (968-6516).

That should be an entertaining show when police and firefighters play it strictly for laughs in a benefit hockey game at Trenton Community Gardens, Wednesday night. The fun starts at 8 p.m.

Don Foster's Clown Troupe will be adding to the hijinks.

Proceeds go to the Trenton Minor Hockey Association.

They'll Be Back April 12

Bep Guidolin, whose Kansas City Scouts have surprised a few National Hockey League charter members, and John McLellan, Toronto Maple Leaf assistant manager have confirmed that they will be here April 12 for the Flort Georgan Memorial Night.

No, Guidolin hasn't brought Scouts home in a playoff berth in the club's first season in the NHL, the team is last in the Smythe Division. But Bep's troops have made things interesting if not downright embarrassing for established squads, more than once.

McLellan, of course, moved from his position as coach with Leafs to his present place in the scheme of things with the Toronto club, when Red Kelly took over the coaching reins.

Both men, since putting in part of their hockey careers in Belleville with the championship McFarland teams of the late 1950s, have moved to the top and stayed.

Other former McFarlands who have signified that they will be here, April 12, are Don Barclay of Bramalea; Joe Lepine, Ottawa; Minie Menard, Des Moines, Iowa; Keith Montgomery, Lindsay; Goose Gosselin and Bo Bo Bobonele, North Bay and Pete Conacher, Toronto.

JOHN McLELLAN

Greg Currie, a scout with Toronto Toros of the World Hockey Association; Don Hogan who played his junior hockey here, and Rags Raglan, an NHLer with Chicago Black Hawks and Detroit Red Wings during his playing days, will also attend.

Jack McBride, publicity chairman for the Georgan Night, expects more Macs will make their intentions known in the near future.

Stanley Takes A 3-2 Squeaker

Stanley Structures, the Gas House Hockey League pennant winners, opened the league's

Junior Girls Tie

Two Belleville Junior Girls' Hockey House League teams battled to a 1-1 tie, Sunday.

Beth Baker shot the goal for the Belles, converting a pass from Kim McFarland.

Looking after Canadian Legion's scoring was Sue Moher who finished off a play with Janet Bennett.

Sherry Towns was in goal for the Legion team. Handling the goaltending for the Belles was Bonnie Hanshah.

final series Monday night with a hard-earned 3-2 win over Belleville Generals.

Stanley finished first after the regular season with 23 wins in 34 starts. Their only loss was an early season one to the Generals, who finished second with 17 wins, five losses and a pair of ties.

Ray Sumerville led the Stanley attack with a pair of markers and Russ Harrington added the other. Bob Windyka drew two assists.

For the Generals, Bob Dolan and Bill Van Soelen did the scoring.

The second game in the best-of-seven series is scheduled for Wednesday night, 8:30 at the Memorial Arena.

Rangers' Pitcher, 31 Makes Impressive Bid

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Baseball has known Jackie Brown a few curves over the years, and this year, and now things are beginning to change on both sides.

After spending most of his adult life in the minor leagues, the 31-year-old right-hander is making the most of his third shot at a major-league role.

He pitched five scoreless innings Monday in Texas Rangers' 5-1 exhibition win over Atlanta Braves, allowing only one hit. In fact, manager Billy Martin calls Brown his best pitcher this spring and that includes 25-game winner Fergie Jenkins and 19-game Jim Bibby.

Elsewhere, there were a number of shutouts—Kansas City Royals 3 Baltimore Orioles 0; Pittsburgh Pirates 4 New York Mets 0; Cincinnati Reds 4 Philadelphia Phillies 0; Minnesota Twins 3 New York Yankees 0; Cleveland Indians 2 Chicago Cubs 0.

Other scores: Montreal Expos 7 Houston Astros 1; St. Louis Cardinals 8 Boston Red Sox 3; Detroit Tigers 5 Chicago White Sox 1; Milwaukee Brewers 10 Oakland A's 1; San Diego Padres 10 California Angels 8; [illegible] Kerrigan of Cleveland Indians, the 20-year-old Texas League's strikeout king of 1974, held the Cubs hitless in three innings, fanning three and thoroughly impressed manager Frank Robinson.

"I've been very much impressed by Eckersley despite his limited experience," Robinson said. "It's possible, though right now I wouldn't say probable, that a kid like Eckersley could move into Tom Buskey's spot." Buskey is the Indians' short relief man.

Nelson Briles, bidding for the fourth starting spot in Kansas City's rotation, buried six innings of three-hit shutout ball to help the Royals blank Baltimore.

Bruce Kison, Dave Giusti and Ramon Hernandez combined for a five-hitter as the Pirates blanked the Mets and Jack Billingham pitched a six-hitter as Cincinnati downed Philadelphia in a game shortened to six innings by rain. Minnesota's Joe Decker and Bill Butler blanked the Yankees on four hits.

Doubles by Larry Lintz and Pete Mackanin highlighted a five-run Montreal first inning against Houston. Montreal starter Dennis Blair allowed six hits and one run through 7 2-3 innings.

FITZGIBBON — In loving memory of a dear husband and father Everett Fitzgibbon who passed away March 27, 1968.
Sadly and suddenly parting at last
His weary trials and troubles are past.
In silence he suffered, in patience bore
Till God called him home to suffer no more.
—Sadly missed and never forgotten by wife Jean and daughters Donna and Sandra, son-in-law Douglas and children.

C. (SKIPPY) L. SNIDER — Who passed away April 1st, 1971, in Dow Jones cars, when I've said good-bye.
To the one, I have loved so dearly,
Who died in a heart attack, will I ever know why.
I know my Savior cares,
Behind are all the brown and plains
All shattered aimed to be.
Ahead is a land of green and rain,
And Heaven's gate will give sweet
A little farther on.
When up the last steep hill I go,
And see the valley all below,
My! then we feel and see and
The better farther on.
Through sandy depths, toils and snares,
We may already come.
We guess that through us safely through.
And grace will lead us home.
—Lovingly remembered and sadly missed by his wife Marjorie (nee) Cranston and family.

ROME (AP)—Actress Sophia Loren and her husband, producer Carlo Ponti, have their marriage is on the rocks and they're planning to divorce.

In a statement issued here Friday by Ponti's headquarters, the couple denied the persistent reports. They said: "We are presently with our children in Switzerland for the Easter holidays and we shall return immediately afterward to Paris, where we have our residence."

The Pontis used to live in a fashionable villa near Rome. They recently moved to Paris, and reports said they feared they or their children might be involved in the current wave of kidnappings in Italy.

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—Television talk show host Johnny Carson has filed a $10-million civil suit against Paramount Pictures, alleging breach of contract, a spokesman said Sunday.

In 1973, Paramount and the host of the Tonight show on NBC television formed Carson Paramount Productions Inc. Under terms of the agreement, the suit says Carson was to seek out talent to produce television specials and films in connection with Paramount.

The suit says Paramount failed to live up to the agreement. Paramount is accused of cutting executive salaries and failing to adequately fund Carson-Paramount to keep it afloat.

Paramount officials could not immediately be reached for comment.

Carson is seeking $30 million in punitive damages and $8.5 million in general damages.

LONDON (AP)—Actress Britt Ekland says she is in love with pop singer Rod Stewart. "We've signed a pact to be faithful to each other."

The 31-year-old Swedish blonde, former wife of comedian Peter Sellers, told London reporters Sunday: "It's too early to talk about marriage, but Rod and I see our love as a permanent relationship."

Stewart, 30, said: "I have been looking for someone like Britt for years. I'm in heaven. I have promised to be faithful."

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)—A Lincoln bank and a travel agency have agreed to pay entertainer Johnny Carson $1 plus "other good and valuable consideration" for falsely using his name in a tour promotion.

The Lincoln Chamber of Commerce and Travel Unlimited Inc. agreed to the payment to settle a lawsuit filed by Carson in 1972.

Carson claimed the bank and travel agency falsely represented a trip from Lincoln to Las Vegas by using his name and photograph. Carson was once a Nebraska resident.

Lawyers for both sides signed the agreement, which said the $1 and other consideration fully settled "all claims and causes of action arising out of the travel promotion."

Win at Bridge

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

Bridge is a game full of subterfuge, second hand low; third hand high; "cover an honor with an honor"; "aces are made to take kings"; "lead from longest and strongest". They all form a lining that makes a Gregorian chant seem brief. One of the standard admonitions for declarers is to attack your best suit.

But just as good declarers yearn to postpone finesses until other avenues of play are exhausted; they should also be loth to abandon their weaker suits should be attacked first in the play of a hand.

Today's declarer was a firm believer in adages and standard admonitions. He won the king of spades; played a club to the king and a club to the ace. When that still failed to split, he tried the diamond finesse. The result—down one.

Since he was always going to make the hand if clubs split, declarer should have given himself an extra chance by FIRST playing the heart suit. With a three-three division, the ninth trick would be assured. The extra dividend occurred here. With the queen and jack falling in the East hand the play of the third round of the heart toward the nine in dummy will produce the game-going trick.

Compulsive Gamblers Likened to Alcoholics

By JACK TRACY
The Canadian Press

Adrian Wallner makes compulsive gambling seem as virulent and ruinous as alcoholism in his new book, The Gamblers.

He follows a group of gamblers to their meetings of Gamblers Anonymous in the basement of St. Kevin's Roman Catholic Church in Montreal.

He lets them—he-se-players and high-rollers with names like Little Brucie, Gloves and the Mouse—tell their stories of wrecked families, lost careers, deprivation and the violence of loan-sharks.

Gamblers Anonymous, like its counterpart Alcoholics Anonymous, tries to help compulsive gamblers abandon their addiction.

Wallner, who went out with a tape-recorder in the fall of 1973, started by talking with gamblers in their homes. His aim was to present an honest survey of gambling in Canada with special focus upon the kind of gambler who cannot stop his wagering.

He did not play with the players themselves but to offset the charge the Montreal vice squad to sweepstakes officials, psychologists and newspaper men. The locales of his reporting range from a Montreal bookie joint to the Las Vegas Hilton with the world's biggest casino.

While Wallner offers no moral judgments, he sets out to show the gambler always loses in the long run—the odds are against him.

The Gamblers, Adrian Wallner, $8.50; 172 pages; Clarke, Irwin.

Drugs Can Bring Strange Tastes

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 75 years old. I had a slight heart attack six years ago, and have been taking pills for shortness of breath. I have this metal taste in my mouth. Can you tell me what causes this?—R. J.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can you tell me any reason why I should have a cyst in my tongue or mouth? I have a cyst in the throat, also a tedtal stub. I wonder if there is any connection? I have a hernia, high blood pressure, also arthritis, but I can't see that they have anything to do with a salty taste.—Mrs. D. E.

This matter of perversion of taste is an interesting thing. It can be caused by a variety of phenomena, some of which both of you hint at in your letters.

A metallic taste can result from the use of iron compounds or compounds of iodine. Your medication R. J. mentions taking is diuretic and can also cause this sensation.

Compounds with an alkaline base can produce the salty taste, and one of the medications being taken by Mrs. D. E. E. could be causing her unpleasantness. Her doctor can quickly tell her if any of the drugs he is prescribing for her ailments can produce such a taste. In fact, I suspect that many of the similar complaints reported to me by readers can be just as readily explained.

But taste and taste abnormality is quite complex. For example, the tonsil tag or sore throat cyst could be factors complicating things in Mrs. D. E. E.'s case. Any disorder that disturbs the nerves which supply the tongue (where the taste buds are), or even a minor stroke, can cause abnormal taste phenomena.

Often the sense of smell enters the picture, because most of us associate taste with smell to some extent as part of a single sensation. We know that, with children especially, even sight and touch become an apparent part of this. Actually, we are separate sensations and senses.

But a severe head cold that interferes with nasal passages and olfactory cells can distort the sense of smell which seems to at least play a role in anticipating the appropriate taste.

So, while the questions asked by both of you may have a simple answer, as simple as the medication you are taking, it also can be complicated by these other factors. Age must also be taken into account, for there is little doubt that in this kind of disturbance the years exact their toll.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Why would a woman's hair fall out after surgery? I've had five operations and have lost most of my hair. I am 58 years old. Is there anything that can be done to stop the falling and make my hair grow again?—Mrs. P. M.

It's not uncommon for women to lose some of their hair following surgery, anesthesia, or pregnancy, he exact cause of this is not clear, and anyone who understood the physiology of it could reverse the process and become an instant millionaire.

We do know that hair grows in, cycles and there is evidence that the "resting phase" of the cycle can be prolonged in some manner. When this phase is prolonged, the natural dying phase two lose hair naturally all sur livesi continues. The imbalance soon shows up as bald spots.

Women of your age, too, begin to lose hair at slightly increased rates as surgery or a long illness can contribute to the deficit. Hair lost under such conditions usually grows back in time, and yet back into adjustment. In the meantime, be extra careful in combing and brushing to avoid any more loss than necessary from these mechanisms.

I know of no way under the sun to stimulate actual hair growth, but mysteriously, a lot of folks over the centuries have made considerable amounts of money promising to accomplish it.

Moncton Murder Case Goes to Jury Today

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — The jury will begin considering its verdict this afternoon in the trial of two men charged with the murder last December of two Moncton city policemen.

Mr. Justice David M. Dickson of the New Brunswick Supreme Court will give his instructions to the jury after the Crown and defence complete their summations this morning.

The Crown ended its case Monday afternoon after calling its 74th witness in the trial, which began March 17. The defence called no witnesses.

James Hutchison, 47, and Richard Ambrose, 26, are charged with murder punishable by death in the shooting of Moncton policemen Aurele Bourgeois and Michael O'Leary, who disappeared while investigating a kidnapping last Dec. 13.

Raymond Stein, 14, the kidnap victim, was released unhurt after his father paid a $15,000 ransom.

Cpl. Dale Swansburg, the final witness for the Crown, told how he and another RCMP member arrested Ambrose on the morning of Dec. 13 near Moncton and recovered $5,402 from his pockets, all of it in $10 bills, except one $2 bill.

Testimony during the trial showed that Cy Stein, father of the kidnapped boy, paid the ransom in packets of $10 bills. The bank which provided the money made a record of most of the serial numbers.

Cpl. Swansburg said 146 of the $10 bills recovered from Ambrose had serial numbers coinciding with the numbers on the bank list.

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids . . . and stop painful itch.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and greatly relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bioflex) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H helps them remain shrunken. Anything less painful, it helps prevent infection which is a stated cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Courier Mislays Fortune in Gems

BURLEY, Idaho (AP) — About $200,000 worth of gems have been returned to their owner after a courier from New York left them on a table of a Burley pizza parlor.

The gems included more than 3,000 diamonds, sapphires, rubies and emeralds from Thailand and India. A seven-carat ruby worth $15,000 was the most-expensive single stone, authorities said.

Deadline Refused

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Supreme Court rejected Monday a request by three midwestern states and some environmental groups that it set a two-year deadline for an end to pollution of Lake Superior by Reserve Mining Co.

Reserve discharges taconite waste containing asbestos fibres, identified as a possible cause of cancer, from its iron ore processing plant at Silver Bay, Minn., 130 miles southwest of Thunder Bay, Ont.

The court let stand a U.S. circuit court order, giving Reserve a "reasonable time" to switch to dumping the waste on land.

Film Scarce

ORILLIA, Ont. (CP) — A member of the National Film Board predicted Monday that film makers may become more selective in the future because of a shortage of film.

Guy Glover told an Ontario Film Association seminar that film will become scarce because of world oil and energy shortages.

The gems were in a small bag, noticed on the table at the Grizzly Bear Pizza Parlor by two customers. The identified customers turned the bag over to Chris Brower, 19, assistant manager of the establishment, who notified police.

FBI agents in Twin Falls and New York helped locate the gem company that owned the gems.

Police refused to disclose the identities of the courier or the company, because of security reasons. The incident happened last week but police did not release the details until Monday.

PORT HOPE, Ont. (CP) — Hourly-rated workers at the Cherrefino Canada Ltd. plant say the company laid them off last Thursday without advance notice to vote by having employees collect unemployment insurance, a union spokesman said Monday.

Why experts feed lawns now

John Bradshaw

Grass starts to grow in early spring: sooner than most people realize. Once the soil temperature reaches 32°F (0°C) the plants are growing, and in immediate need of nitrogen. Any left over from last year is not released to the grass plants until the soil temperature reaches 55°F (13°C) and the bacteria start working: usually in early May.

That's why I feed my lawn as soon as the snow is gone, and the ground firm. The best lawn food is CIL Golfgreen. It not only supplies nitrogen at once, to get the grass started, but goes on feeding your lawn for weeks. CIL Golfgreen, high in the long-lasting nitrogen your lawn so badly needs, also has trace elements to build lawn health and color.

Spread CIL Golfgreen at 20 lb./1000 sq. ft. as soon as the snow is gone and the ground is firm. It's a giant step towards your perfect lawn this year. For the full story on lawn and garden care, pick up a free copy of the 1975 CIL Lawn and Garden Guide at your CIL Lawns and Garden Products dealer. It's packed with useful information. It takes energy to make hot water.

Let's not waste it.

Whatever kind of water heater you have, it makes good sense to use hot water carefully, to conserve energy. Here are a few tips which may help to avoid waste.

You'll use less hot water in the laundry if you wash only full loads. If your washing machine has a water level selector, choose the right amount for the size of the load.

If you have a dishwasher, don't use it until it's fully loaded.

A dripping tap or shower head wastes a surprising amount of hot water, and they're both easy to fix.

Long runs of exposed hot water pipe should be insulated.

Cascade

While the Cascade water heater is designed to use electricity efficiently, it's up to you to use it wisely, not wastefully.

Saigon Senate Critical

Five More Cities Given up to Reds

SAIGON (AP) — The South Vietnamese Senate called unanimously today for "a new leadership" as President Nguyen Van Thieu's government yielded the last of its enclaves in the central part of the country to Communist-led forces without a fight.

Anarchy and panic gripped five cities in the region, including Cam Ranh, now among the three-quarters of South Vietnam under North Vietnamese and Viet Cong control.

In its first open break with Thieu, the previously pro-government Senate charged the president with "counting exclusively on a military solution in solving a war with many political characteristics." It said he was guilty of "an abuse of power, corruption and social injustice."

The five South Vietnamese cities yielded within 24 hours of Phan Rang, Phan Thiet, Dalat and Cam Ranh, the latter with its big military base and deep water port that U.S. forces established. Military and administrative authorities simply fled.

The latest retreat of the Saigon government's demoralized forces brought the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong holdings to three-fourths of South Vietnam, including total control of 17 of the 44 provinces and a third of the 244 district capitals. Their zone along the coast now extends to within 150 miles of here, although their forces are considerably closer inland to the north and northwest of the city.

Vietnamese officials said four U.S. cargo ships trying to evacuate refugees from the Communist advance will be stationed off the abandoned cities in hopes some of those left behind could get out in the ships.

President Nguyen Van Thieu summoned Premier Tran Thien Khiem, his cabinet and the top military commanders to a meeting and there was speculation that a new cabinet would be announced.

U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger was reported to be asking other countries to urge Hanoi to live up to the 1973 peace agreements which Kissinger negotiated. Ambassador John Scali asked UN Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim to appeal to the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong not to interfere with the evacuation of South Vietnamese refugees. But Waldheim refused to go beyond a general appeal he made Monday on behalf of "innocent persons, including those who have been displaced."

The Saigon command said radio contact was lost with Tuy Hoa and telephone communications had been lost with Dalat, the hill resort and vegetable-growing centre in the lower central highlands 150 miles northeast of here.

Telephone communications also were lost with Nha Trang and the air base there was closed, a spokesman for the command said.

The Viet Cong delegation in Saigon said its forces had taken over Tuy Hoa and Qui Nhon but they made no mention of Nha Trang, which was abandoned Tuesday with Qui Nhon, or of Dalat, Dalat, Phan Rang or Phan Thiet.

Saigon May Fall Before Summer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Many key U.S. military officers believe South Vietnam may go down the drain in 60 to 120 days if the North Vietnamese army sustains its momentum.

They believe the North Vietnamese could gather sufficient strength in that length of time to strike the final blow in the Saigon region.

However, these officers hold out the possibility that the North Vietnamese may have been surprised at the rapid collapse of South Vietnam's resistance in two-thirds of the country and may be unprepared to move into the final attack for some time.

"We don't yet know whether Hanoi or the Vietnamese have the mobility and the logistic support to exploit their advantage fully," said one general.

The North Vietnamese also are faced with the new problem of administering those places they have overrun.

Mine Will Reopen

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

BANCROFT — Long-awaited federal approvals to put an expected $100 million uranium export deal into production near here have finally come through.

Needed government permission to reactivate the Faraday mine and mill was announced Tuesday night by Jack Ellis, MP Hastings.

The mine will be in full production later next year and is expected to create about 200 jobs.

The announcement ended weeks of speculation on the fate of the proposed export of uranium from here to Italy. At one point, government concern about the need for domestic reserves had cast doubt on the project.

It was not immediately known what reserve stipulations — if any — could have been imposed on the volume of exports.

Mr. Ellis said that federal agencies had approved the plans of Federal Resources Corporation and Consolidated Faraday for sale of uranium to the Italian state energy agency, Ente Nazionale.

(Federal Resources — in the United States — owns 51 per cent interest in the operation and the Canadian company 49 per cent).

Plans for the project had been approved by the Atomic Energy Board and the ministries of trade and commerce, national energy, mines and resources, said Mr. Ellis.

He said he had been advised by Nels W. Stalheim, Federal Resources chairman, that work now will begin immediately at the mine site, east of here off Highway 28.

Mr. Stalheim said production of uranium valued up to $100 million was expected from the site, said the MP.

Plans call for the 1,500-ton-daily processing mill to be renovated and put back in operation with production starting in "begin the latter part of 1977."

Mr. Stalheim and Faraday president W. Clarke Campbell estimated more than 200 people will be employed when the project is in peak operation, said the MP.

AGIP will advance nearly $6 million to Federal and Faraday between now and October. An additional $1.5 million may be available for a search for additional reserves when the need arises.

A new company, Madawaska Mines Ltd., has been formed by Federal and Faraday to operate the site.

D. R. (Del) Wilson, mining consultant long associated with the Faraday enterprise, will be vice-president of Madawaska and will manage the mine.

The Faraday property has been inactive since the early 1960s. It ceased operation after uranium oxide contracts for more than six million pounds of concentrate had been filled.

Quiet Campaign Raises $87,000 for Y Mortgage

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

An unpublicized campaign during the past year has raised more than $87,000 to reduce the $100,000 mortgage on Belleville's YMCA, says campaign chairman Ben Corke.

Mr. Corke, a city alderman, said about eight campaigners were "selective" in the businessmen they approached and that by last June, the campaign had gathered more than $60,000 after six months of operation.

"Funds" collected have immediately been applied against the mortgage and are not to be confused with operating funds," he said. "Contributors' names will be kept confidential."

The fund drive stopped for the summer, "so as not to interfere with the United Way campaign in October," said Ald. Corke. Another $27,000 has been collected since February, he said.

Fund raisers will "definitely meet the target of wiping out the mortgage by the time the campaign closes at the end of April," said Ald. Corke.

"Nothing would have been served by publicizing the campaign . . . we don't want any big fanfare at the end of April," he said.

News of the campaign became public record Tuesday night at a meeting of the Quinte District Labor Council where it came under heavy criticism.

Carson McLauchlan interrupted a report by the council on the board of the United Community Services, told labor delegates he was having difficulty gathering information about the campaign.

He said campaign organizers had not required the presidents of the Financial Appeals Review Board before soliciting funds.

Ald Corke answered this morning, "we have the approval of the community services board".

Campaign details drew hot reaction from labor council vice-president Ian Reilly who said, "the YMCA should withdraw from the United Way campaign if the organization has this kind of fund-raising ability."

In addition to more than $20,000 from the fund campaign, the YMCA also receives a city grant in excess of $10,000 annually.

"We should go on record opposing this campaign," said Mr. Reilly. "The YMCA should receive no more operating funds from the United Way until this money is spent."

Mr. McLauchlan interrupted to say, "the special campaign is not to provide operating funds (such as those provided through the United Way) but to erase the mortgage."

The labor council took no action on Mr. McLauchlan's report, allowing him additional time to meet with fund-raisers and gather more information.

Last Mekong Post Falls To 'Rouges'

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — The Cambodian government lost its last outpost on the Mekong River below Phnom Penh today, and insurgent forces were reported on the doorstep of the country's second largest city, Battambang, in the northwest rice bowl.

From Peking, Prince Norodom Sihanouk ruled out negotiations with the Phnom Penh government despite the departure from the country Tuesday of President Lon Nol. But sources in Bangkok said Premier Long Boret, who accompanied Lon Nol to the island of Bali, in Indonesia, was expected there Thursday to look into the possibility of peace talks.

Military sources said Khmer Rouge forces Tuesday afternoon overran the Mekong river town and naval base at Neak Leung and nearby Banam, 32 miles southeast of Phnom Penh.

Ding Dong, Bells May Chime But Tooting Horn Is No-no

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Even if you're just married, it's not legal to bong your horn in Belleville.

But you can have wedding bells.

City council made the discovery Tuesday night as it briefly scrutinized a 1949 bylaw regulating "unusual noises" in city streets.

Among the sounds prohibited are shouting, blowing horns and discharging any gun "or fowling piece" that can be deemed a public inconvenience.

While you can't ring a bell in the street, this doesn't apply to a church bells — or fire bells.

"Does this mean we're going out and arrest everybody that gets married — and blows his car's horn? . . . It's a common thing," when people get married, said Ald. Stu Meeks.

The bylaw came in for brief scrutiny because of a request from a city food service for permission to use foodspeakers.

Two Men Sentenced To Death

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — Two men convicted in the murders of two Moncton police officers were sentenced Tuesday to be hanged Friday, June 13, six months to the day after the officers disappeared while investigating a kidnapping.

James Hutchison, 47, and Richard Ambrose, 26, were each convicted of two counts of murder punishable by death by a Supreme Court jury and sentenced to hang June 13. The jury of eight men and four women deliberated for two hours and 40 minutes and made no recommendation regarding clemency.

Higher Grants May Ease City's Share of Budget

New provincial legislation may ease the weight of municipal financial support for Children's Aid Societies, city council heard Tuesday night.

The legislature has given third reading to a bill increasing the provincial grants to 80 per cent from around 60 per cent, said Ald. Brian Knudsen.

When processed through the grants structure — and the money starts coming in — this might mean Belleville will pay less toward local CAS costs than last year, estimated city manager Jack Ellis.

The possibilities were learning news as Ald. Knudsen answered a series of queries from council colleagues. The legislation — on 1975 estimated for the Family and Children's Services of Hastings County — delayed approval of the budget proposals two weeks ago.

The amount of money triggered by the fact Belleville's share of 1975 agency estimates is up 34.1 per cent.

A major reason for the increase was a carryover of charges from last year because of an unexpectedly high volume of city juveniles committed to agency care by the courts.

In 1974, explained Ald. Knudsen, the agency had budgeted to receive 44-45 Belleville juveniles. Instead — with the courts turning more to CAS care facilities — it found a sharp climb in demand. This year the agency has budgeted Belleville for 55 cases.

Council, after Ald. Knudsen's explanations, approved the estimates.

Car Rolls, Two Hurt

TRENTON — Two Quinte area residents were treated and released from Trenton Memorial Hospital for cuts and bruises received in a one car accident late Tuesday on 62D Rd., about 1½-miles north of Highway 2 just east of here.

Ontario Provincial Police at Belleville said today the two persons were the driver, Allan Covey, 186 Ann St., Belleville and his passenger, Sheila Doreen Stephens, Glen Miller.

A damage estimate was unavailable on the 1969 Chevrolet station wagon which rolled over about 10 p.m.

Museum Seeking Higher Grant from City Council

The Hastings County Museum — centred on Belleville's Glanmore House — is seeking higher grants from local governments this year.

Belleville city council Tuesday night referred a museum request for $15,085 grant to the city manager's office for consideration in budget debates starting later this month.

The museum is seeking a matching grant from Hastings County council.

Last year, each council contributed $12,000 to Glanmore House operation, run by the Hastings County Historical Society — which showed a deficit of $527 in 1974, its auditors' report shows.

In total, the society received $36,946 and spent $37,473 the report states.

This year's proposed budget estimates for Glanmore total $44,120. In 1974, estimates were $34,750 but the actual budget was reduced to $31,977.

Admission fees during the year brought in $2,200.

New Budget Means More Flying at CFB Trenton

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — A $3.5-million increase in the 1975-76 operating budget for CFB Trenton will mean a slight lessening of tightened belts the armed forces experienced last fiscal year when inflation cut deeply into spending power.

April 1, the start of the federal government's fiscal year, saw the Trenton base with $19.4-million in the kitty.

The increased budget will enable aircraft to log more flying time per month. Some training flights will be resumed as well as one additional trans-Canada flight.

Capt. Bob Burke, base information officer, said Tuesday, CFB Trenton will get nothing new as a result of the increase: "It (the increase) will take care of inflation."

Flying times and use of aircraft were cut substantially in late 1974 after fuel costs jumped 400 per cent.

At that time, one of three European Boeing 707 weekly flights was dropped. One of the three cross-country flights each week was also discontinued.

Last year, the five 427 Squadron Boeing 707s logged 900 hours a month before fuel cost increases forced hours to fall to 600.

NEW Take 2

Capt. Burke said flight hours will increase, but he wouldn't estimate by how much.

The 900 hours as far as Boeings are concerned "is what we'd like to aim for and I would assume it will creep up there," he said.

In summer, when more flights will be needed to carry freight and armed forces personnel returning from tours of duty in Europe, flying hours for Trenton planes will likely reach or surpass the 900-hours mark.

Brochure Highlights Trenton Facilities

TRENTON — A brochure promoting Trenton as an attractive location for industry will soon go out to various Ontario and federal government agencies as part of a program to lure new industry to Trenton.

The glossy, multi-page brochure, was recently returned to the town by the printer, at an estimated 75-cents per copy.

Town clerk Aubrey Sharp said Tuesday while the brochure is primarily aimed at industry, attracting tourist dollars and acquainting new town residents with services offered in Trenton are two other goals.

The first copies, he said, will go to the provincial industry and tourism ministry, where industries looking for new locations go first for information.

Mr. Sharp added that industrial representatives can now be given the brochure, entitled The Quality of Life, when they inevitably ask at the town hall for information about Trenton.

The brochure, which includes health, education, power and water cost information, was about six months in the making.

English Night Planned

PICTON — The Leicester Squares will lend a civic song during A Night in England to be held at St Andrew's Presbyterian Church Sunday, April 6.

Sponsored by Club Kolonola, this ethnic night is one in a continued series. Also on the program is a film depicting England and its traditions.

In the Money

TRENTON — A single telephone call Tuesday evening made a Trenton resident $185 richer. Helen Morgan of 33 Crown St. won the money during Belleville radio station CJBQ's cash call contest.

Horse of a Different Color

PICTON — Quinte area horsemen familiar with horse-trader John recently chuckled at a typographical error in an Intelligencer "Horses for Sale" ad.

The horse being adver tised, apparently was a sorrel, but letters accidentally were substituted and the animal was proclaimed "sorrow with white marking."

Fashions on Display

Quinte Point Once Hub of Activity

By TERRY SPRAGUE
Staff Correspondent

BIG ISLAND — According to reliable reports, Quinte Point, at Big Island's extreme east end, was once bustling with activity. Early post cards depict numerous cottages, a wharf, wienerroast and dance hall.

One of Big Island's long time residents, Albert (Al) Reinholdt, whose father purchased property at Quinte Point in 1925, says steamers by and from the neighboring community of Northport, would often churn their way to Quinte Point to take on Passengers.

Mr. Reinholdt, a retired warrant officer with the air-force estimates the peak of activity to be somewhere in the 1800's since the area was largely deserted when his father bought the property in 1925

Today much of Quinte Point, including an additional one mile of water frontage along the north shore is commencing to bustle once again as the area takes on the appearance of a small town.

Where once there was only a handful of summer cottages, the area now abounds in cottages and permanent homes. It also enjoys school bus and postal service.

The Reinholdts decided to retire at the site of their former cottage because it is "a refreshing change from the city"

"We are at a location now permanently where we can enjoy fishing, golfing and watching wildlife, and "there are no black flies down here," laughs Mrs. Reinholdt.

Good Ole Days

At Reinholdt, a long-time resident of Big Island, gazes out over the Bay of Quinte from his home at Quinte Point, remembering the days when the area was largely deserted when his father bought the property in 1925 and steamers used to churn their way to Quinte Point from Northport to take on passengers.

Walls Tumble

Coad Construction Ltd. workman Bill Lawson tears down wall as part of $20,700 contract aimed at enlarging by just less than half workroom facilities at Trenton. The expansion, to be complete May 9, will give Manpower offices room for a new job information centre and bigger testing facilities for job seekers.

Two Hurt In Crash

SMITHFIELD — A Brighton woman and her 13-year-old daughter remain in Trenton hospital in satisfactory condition today following a three-car collision on Highway 2 west of here Tuesday.

In hospital are driver Sheila Cater, 33, and her daughter, Leslie, who suffered a fractured jaw in the collision. A hospital spokesman said Mrs. Cater is under observation for possible internal injuries.

Brighton provincial police say both were injured when their eastbound car was in collision with a westbound car driven by Harold Van Slyke, 30, of R 7 Brighton. A third vehicle, driven by George Goodwin, 30, of Rt 4 Trenton, was struck by one of the other vehicles and sustained $50 damage.

Damage to the Slyke vehicle was estimated at $2,000. The Cater vehicle was described as a write-off.

Labor Reps Defend Strike Action as Bargaining Tool

The image of Canadian trade unions and the right to strike were the topics of discussion at a labor seminar sponsored by the public relations class of Loyalist College Tuesday.

Speaking on behalf of labor were International negotiator Ian Reilly of the Boot and Shoe Workers Union, Reg Loader, president of the International Jewellery Workers Union and Jack Thomas, secretary treasurer of the Quinte District Labor Council.

All three men said the news media favor management and "never give unions a fair break".

Mr. Reilly said reporters are gager to print stories of strikes but only print stories on settlements "if it will make the union look bad".

He said not enough union funds are spent on a public relations campaign that would explain the trade union movement.

Figures quoted during the seminar showed little more than 25 per cent of working Canadians are union members.

Mrs. Thomas said if the situation was reversed and that 65 per cent of working Canadians were unionized, "we'd probably have a more progressive country".

As Mr. Reilly mentioned the trend of management giving unions a black eye, one student retorted, "management doesn't have to do that . . . the union does it for itself".

"It's all handy dandy for you as a student to say that sitting in the back row of a lecture theatre but wait until your job is on the line It will be a lot harder to make that statement then."

When audience members began asking questions concerning the aspects of strike action, Mr. Thomas answered "to outlaw strikes (through legislation) will be like outlawing rain on holiday Mondays".

"Without the right to strike, serious bargaining between management and employees cannot take place," he said.

"It's a myth to believe that management is so enlightened that the right to strike is not needed," said Mr. Thomas.

2,000 Trees Goal Of County Scouts

PICTON — Boy Scouts in Prince Edward County this spring will plant 2,000 trees at Beaver Meadow, a Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority site, as part of the Trees For Canada project.

The project offers all Canadian Scouts the opportunity to actively display concern for their country, says Douglas Baker, president of Prince Edward District Council, Boy Scouts of Canada. Approximately two million trees will be planted nation-wide through this program.

Trees For Canada also raises funds for scouting in Prince Edward as all participants will seek pledges in the community for the trees they expect to plant.

Some of the money is used to further local scouting while part of it is saved to support Operation Amigo, an international program of Canadian Scouting planned to help five South American countries adapt scouting to their needs.

Helen Duggan, secretary for the Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority said the trees to be planted at Beaver Meadow, a site on East Lake Rd., are conifers.

In 1974, county scouts planted 2,000 trees at the Macaulay Mountain Conservation site.

Museum Curator Plans More Rotating Exhibits

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — The Prince Edward County Museum is a potential community centre where students can explore the past and discover crafts, says new curator James Gooding.

Mr. Gooding, former museum advisor for the province of Ontario and from 1963 to 1968 head of the museum section of the National Historic Parks Commission, started work Tuesday at the county museum in Picton.

He described the museum as unique because of its facilities and their potential for development.

Exhibits now are displayed in the Old Church of St. Mary Magdalene renovated as a showcase for early Prince Edward. The church is surrounded by a small burial ground where the Rev. William Macaulay is interred.

Adjoining the church yard are the sweeping grounds of the rectory, also part of the museum property.

Mr. Gooding observed the museum this summer will feature a series of changing exhibits in addition to a number of permanent exhibits.

The second floor of the building will be used for a special exhibit gallery.

Mr. Gooding said no official opening date has been set for the 1975 summer season but it is likely visitors will be welcomed in mid-May.

The curator will be assisted by museum employee Donald MacDermaid and a number of volunteers who will provide craft demonstrations.

A former teacher of museum technology at Algonquin College in Ontario, Mr. Gooding expects to work with two people here this summer in restoration of some of the original church furnishings found in the museum.

He observed restoration of the rectory will be a long-term project requiring from four to six years for completion.

This year it is hoped the brick in the old home can be re-pointed and a verandah removed and replaced by a copy of the original porch. This work is described as phase one.

Phase two involves work inside the rectory where an office and a library will eventually be set up. Workshops are needed for museum operations will be established and teaching series and special exhibit areas will be introduced.

The grounds of the rectory will be restored as closely as possible to their appearance in the days of Rev. Macaulay.

The Old Church of St. Mary Magdalene was given to Prince Edward County in 1970 and subsequently renovated as a museum. It was officially opened in 1973.

The rectory and adjoining grounds were purchased by the county more than a year ago but no renovations have been made as yet.

"I know of no other facilities like this," remarked Mr. Gooding about the county museum and the rectory.

South Vietnam and Cambodia Near Collapse

Renewed Despair at Earlier Loss of U.S. Lives as Red Tide Advances

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The Communist hope of an indochinese triumph, held off for most of the post-war decades first by French arms, then by international diplomacy, then by massive American firepower of the Vietnam War, is coming after all.

In hundreds of thousands of American homes where men's lives were wasted, shortened or ended, there must be renewed despair and anger that Americans young men were sent to Asia to fight in what has become a futile cause.

Only last month, Gen. Westmoreland, retired Vietnam commander who had the most firepower and manpower of all U.S. Viet commanders-in-chief and failed to win the war was at it again. Overwhelming firepower would win the war he was still sure.

Again, the futile, brutal and callous "bomb the bastards back into the stone age" was heard in America. Generals simply cannot learn lessons and too often must be tamed.

The semi-final blow for the American effort has been the news of the fall of Da Nang, so shortly ago the hub and centre of the huge U.S. military presence in South Vietnam.

It was the largest supply base the Americans had built in Asia since the Second World War and you will remember was defended with much loss of American young manhood against Viet Cong rockets and night attacks.

Along with its loss goes desperately-needed crack troops of the South Vietnamese armed forces, trained and supplied with weapons by the Americans, to say nothing of tremendous loss of face.

The final blow will be the fall of Saigon, if that ever comes. It could be precluded by the flight of the hapless Premier Thieu, determined to hold his crumbling republic together by authoritarianism not unknown to the communist people's republic in the north.

If he goes, he will not be the only Indochinese leader to fall. Rumors abound that the unpopular Gen. Lon Nol, the president of nearby and beleaguered Cambodia, will leave his surrounded capital of Phnom Penh, most certainly never to return.

Indochina before the end of 1975 and the years after the late Ho Chi Minh started the struggle for release from colonial powers in the spring of 1945, will be mainly in the hands of the Communists.

"People's republics" along the line of that established in Hanoi in 1954 will probably emerge in both the present Cambodia and South Vietnam. American hawkish politicians, military leaders and commentators will see "the long night descend" and perhaps more ominously look for scapegoats as they did with the failure to help China stay free of Communism.

The "China Lobby" of the 1940s which helped throw America into a paroxysm of anti-Communism and false accusations of many hapless specialists, recalls one of the most paranoiac eras in U.S. public opinion.

Will it all happen again over Vietnam? It's unlikely. The anti-Vietnam War protests of the late 60s has done its work and millions of Americans were already totally disenchanted with the war and the justification of its losses, about 100,000 of them strongly enough to flee or desert rather than fight Asian.

The abject futility of Indochina's staggering loss of life, struggling to support desperate causes which were doomed can be seen in our current attitudes to the People's Republic of China.

We accept, live with, work with the worlds largest Communist state and view it as a wave of the future. The future and blood and face lost in Indochina must make this acceptance forever impossible in America.

Young Folk Want Jobs

There are young people in Belleville who want jobs but are having difficulty finding anything.

The pattern of their day is one of dressing up and presenting themselves at various establishments, only to run into a blank wall as it were.

Where to Write

The Intelligencer has been taken to task in a letter from Mrs H. R. Gibson for not giving the equivalent Canadian addresses in Ann Landers columns for the donation of eyes and kidneys.

"It is possible — and very probable," says Mrs. Gibson, "that you do not read Ann Landers' column.

As a matter of face we do read Ann Landers. However, the burden of Mrs. Gibson's letter is those addresses, and she lists them as follows: for eye donations —Canadian National Institute for the Blind, 1929 Bayview Ave, Toronto; similarly for kidney donations — The Kidney Foundation of Canada, 1430 Yonge St., Suite 220B, Toronto.

Mrs. Gibson's parting thrust is that "we are not a subsidiary of the United States and we have our Canadian foundations."

She may be interested to know that on March 4, we published a letter from Reader's Digest editor Ralph Hanna, which had originally appeared in The Montreal Gazette, in which he listed the Montreal addresses of the above organizations.

That, from a young woman, who explains the situation as she finds it in Belleville: "I have been in search of a job since I moved back to Belleville in December and haven't even come close to getting one. I'm always shot with the usual, 'sorry you have no experience; we aren't taking any applications; we'll give you a call etc.'"

And she adds, in her neat handwriting and grammatical style (a distinct asset to any employer these days): "This isn't good, not good at all. You see, I have no income at all and I am not able to live at home. Some friends of mine have been supporting me which puts a bigger hole in their pockets and makes me feel very uncomfortable."

Uncomfortable, for instance, when it comes to relaxing over a beer afterwards. And don't knock it, for who wants to sit home all day?

The writer enclosses with her preamble a poem. As has been explained on a number of occasions The Intelligencer does not print poems as a matter of course, lest it open the floodgates.

It's a good effort though and it expresses, poignantly, the plight of many young people today who want to work, but for one reason or another, they can't land a job.

She points out that there is no money even to go to some other place, for another try, and concludes her poetic plea thus: "Please help us with our problem; And don't be such a fuss; For a job doing something . . . Would be so good for us."

Private Schools Today

Loyalist College English instructor Doug Barnett's appointment as headmaster of Rosseau School focuses attention on the private school education which this Muskoka area institution offers, and of others here and abroad.

Belleville's Albert College has a fine tradition in this field and there are others in Ontario and across Canada which continue to flourish while similar establishments abroad are feeling the pinch economically.

Mention has been made of Britain's exclusive Eton College where students are being asked to sweep up, scrub floors and wash dishes in an economy move. And of Prince Philip's Scots alma mater, Gordonstoun, where the living is disciplined and the education among the best.

In Northern Ireland the Enniskillen-based Portora Royal School — a 300-year-old pile whose student population has included such notables as Henry Francis Lyte, Oscar Wilde, and Samuel Beckett — the current boarder enrollment is down to 100 from the 300 or so it housed in happier times.

The school's vice-principal, English-born George Andrews, says that "southerners" (southern Ireland) "do not send their sons here (as in the past) because they believe the media and think that Ulster is a universal battlefield (even though I tell them I have lived here throughout it all and never seen a shot fired in anger. . .").

Andrews has been on the staff for 40 years and will retire shortly to a cottage in the heart of the County Fermanagh lake country. His decision compounds the irony of many Britons in another situation in Ulster; members of the military, they like the region enough to take up residence there when their service is completed.

Meanwhile, in the United States, Christian Science Monitor education editor Cynthia Parsons reports on a fluctuating situation in New England where many of the country's private schools are concentrated.

She says that since 1960 more than 15 New England independent schools have had to close their doors. However, in the same period of time more than 20 new private schools in the six-state region have been established.

Private school education remains a strong influence in society. If it were otherwise — if circumstances of social change or whatever were to militate against its continuance" — it would be the country's loss.

'MR. SPEAKER...WOULD YOU PLEASE HAVE THE OPPOSITION REFRAIN FROM IMPLYING THAT THIS GOVERNMENT IS INVOLVED IN SOME KIND OF COVER UP!'

Conflicting Role of Committees

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service

TORONTO — They who speak shall not be heard.

If Confucius had happened to say this or something like it, he could have been forecasting the situation regarding committees of this particular seat of government.

What, in other words, could be described as probably the most ridiculous situation in many situations which surround this government.

The situation is that members at the house spend hours and hours and hours, and even more hours, down-stairs in committees rooms and practically nobody knows about it and what they are doing.

Most of the time they are doing reasonably important things and more often than not quite important things.

For if changes in bills are made they tend to be made in standing committees.

And practically no record at all is made of the proceedings of these committees.

No Hansard is kept of their debates (Except when they are examining the estimates of a department) and only the brief text of reports are made to the main house.

What does this mean?

Well for one thing it means that actual changes in law are made in committees. And some years later when this point of law comes before a court a judge will say that he interprets the feeling of the legislature to have been such and such.

But he really won't be able to know just what that feeling really was because he will have no record to tell him what the reasoning was that led to the particular piece of law.

The government's position on committees has been contrary.

On the one hand it has encouraged them. Principally, probably, because it gives its own back benchers something to do.

But on the other hand it has resisted any record being made of them.

And again it has kept them restricted by confining them to matters which are referred to them by the legislature. Which effectively means matters that are delegated by the government.

The opposition parties have contended that committees should be able to go into any subject matter they desire.

And though certain controls should probably be kept they are right. They could then go into such questions, for one, as strikes.

But also they could provide a forum at which the public could appear and express its views.

And today when lack of communication between government and the public is at such a low point that, in itself, could seem to be enough to justify them.

President May Soft 'Pedal Issue of Domino Theory'

By BRUCE LEVETT

WASHINGTON (CP) — The Ford administration, concerned that domino pronouncements may have damaged the United States image on an international scale, may be preparing to blunt one of the weapons it has been using to keep Congress in line.

President Ford has scheduled a major policy address to Congress for next week.

Speculators here is that he will try to convince that body—and the world in general—that U.S. credibility remains unimpaired. And to do that may require unprecedented peace overtures to Congress.

Annual crunch tactical manoeuvres may be a strategic withdrawal from the use of the "domino theory," which maintains that damage to American security interests in one country produces a chain reaction on others like a row of toppling dominoes.

Ford has used the theory, borrowed from past administrations, to engender a feeling of guilt within Congress, forcing congressional reluctance is one area he encountered waves of frustration and disorder in others.

Insiders say privately that the administration may have gone too far in the matter.

They point out that warnings of global consequences of the congressional decision not to vote emergency aid to South Vietnam and Cambodia were followed swiftly by the unexpected military chaos in South Vietnam.

International critics are pointing to this as an inability on the part of the U.S. administration to win support at home for policies enunciated abroad, raising the question of just how sound are U.S. promises.

State Secretary Henry Kissinger has said:

"Foreign governments, when they deal with the United States, make a bet on their dealings on the constancy of American policy and on the ability of the United States to carry through on whatever it is we promise, or fail to promise, or threaten."

As an example of the "domino theory," Kissinger has blamed congressional cut-off of aid to Turkey—against other misgivings—for weakening his ability to negotiate between the Arabs and Israelis.

Some congressmen, however, feel there is a growing tendency on the part of the administration to, over-dramatize setbacks to U.S. foreign policy in an attempt to force Congress to tred softly in the area of diplomacy.

Their reaction has been to say, in effect, that the administration should be fashioning foreign policy in close cooperation with Congress and not making promises that Congress finds itself unable to.

In any case, this domestic bickering leads itself—approaching the stage of becoming an international issue and observers here feel that it will be to this that Ford will address himself when he goes before Congress.

Southeast Asia Debacle

Employment in Belleville and area is slowly making a comeback after the peak employment period reached late in February, it was stated today by H.H. Plow, manager of the local employment service office. A total of 1575 persons in Belleville and the area served by the local office were receiving benefits from claims. The peak period was the week ending February 26 when the total on Claim was 2091.

A keen interest in rehabilitation problems of the post-war era insofar as they affect men of their own calling and those desirous of taking up their their work as a life vocation has prompted several young men of the Trenton Air Station personnel to inaugurate an organization known as the RCAF Sales and Advertising Club. Sanctioned by headquarters at Ottawa and with the approval of the station commanding officer Group Captain A.D. Bell-Irving, the newly formed club has adopted as its aims and objects assistance for repatriated and ex-service R.C.A.F. personnel who have decided to turn to the sales and advertising field for their life work. The club and its activities are creating widespread interest at the air station.

There is a possibility of the formation of a Ku Klux Klan branch in the city. A report that was current last evening that 20 Belleville resident had been approached in the usual manner regarding membership was found on inquiry to be unfounded, however, the opinion prevails that there will be a branch here shortly.

'Walled City' Has Two Sides

Editor,

The Intelligencer:

The article concerning "local hiring only" is a rather interesting proposition. In these times with nationalism and isolationist feelings on the rise, why not expect such feelings on a local level ? I think the attitude was strongest during the Middle Ages when cities were walled to protect their citizens. However, the threat today is not the fear of attacks by reighboring cities; rather, it is the crisis threat of social mobility.

Nevertheless, the practices of mediaeval times has some application today.

However, isolationism is a two-way street. If Belleville feels that it should protect its citizens from us, maybe we should protect ourselves from Belleville's citizens. Once this symbolical wall is built and Belleville has its citizens fully employed, then we'll have to lobby to get the Unemployment Insurance Commission and Canada Manpower offices to move out of the city where their real work lies.

Continuing along this line, maybe we should have laws that prohibit the businesses of Belleville from working outside the city, so that we can help develope our own businesses and our own jobs. Then there are those people who live in Belleville but work out of town and that would have to be fired.

All kidding aside, Belleville has established itself over the years as the cultural, social and commercial centre of the Quinte area. Now it must live up to that role. The attitudes of some local politicians makes me feel that the city is willing to participate in the role of commercial profiteering — but Quinte will sincerely hope that a sense of responsibility to the Quinte community will prevail, and that the city-state attitudes will be left buried where they belong — back in the Middle Ages.

Beam Condition Vital To Renovation Scheme

MARMORA — After considering various options, a joint meeting of councils is proceeding with an investigation to ascertain the feasibility of bringing the padlocked Marmora arena up to standards and operating it next winter.

Last week there was a meeting held by Marmora, Deloro, and Marmora and Lake townships. The chairman of this committee is Gordon Bennett.

Tuesday afternoon, Mr. Bennett announced he had just talked with an engineer and made was that Marmora "has a huge debt but not an unhealthy one."

A letter from an engineering firm said the cost for reinforcing the truss timbers, if they were sound was $28,000. Mr. Shannon said that if the idea of revamping the arena was pursued, the total cost would come to around $60,000. Including the $28,000 mentioned.

Mr. Sihannon said the engineers felt the life of the structure would depend upon how well the trusses were protected from moisture penetration due to a leaky roof.

"There is generally thought not to be much damage done," the clerk said. "The steel has to be taken off in places. There could be further expense if we have to replace the roof.

"Everything considered, this is the thing to do and the combined council is very desirous in obtaining the support of the people," Mr. Shannon said.

Arena Repair Plan Support Sought

MARMORA — The combined councils of Marmora, Deloro, and Marmora and Lake townships want the support of the people in their scheme to repair the Marmora arena if it is feasible, Marmora clerk William A. Shannon said Tuesday.

"There was unofficial talk after the meeting of the councils last week of enlarging the surface and revamping the interior. Further talk was made on setting up a fund-raising program to build a new arena sometime in the future," Mr. Shannon said.

"There were all kinds of thoughts. Some people questioned spending any money on an old arena compared with the cost of a new steel-clad, steel-supported arena, but everything considered, without going into the ramifications of financing and costs, the feeling is it is too good a building to abandon," the clerk noted.

One observation the clerk way we could raise that kind of money," Mr. Bennett said.

"A winter works program is not being considered at this time to build a conventional new arena as this would have meant being without an arena for another winter," Mr. Bennett added.

"But until we are actually into a contract with somebody, we are not committed to anything," the joint council chairman pointed out.

Asked if the bubble dome that was talked of several months ago was a serious proposal, Mr. Bennett said that in his mind it was. He said he had looked at a couple but other members of the joint council were reluctant to accept it, as they felt it was susceptible to vandalism.

The chairman said that already the joint council has quote on replacing the arena with a steel structure, and on Monday another type of quote will be made on replacing the roof with a quonset-type roof.

"It will be up to the joint council to decide what will be quick and economical," Mr. Bennett said.

$700 Damage in Collision

TWEED — A tractor trailer and car collision on Highway 37 near here Monday has resulted in a total of $700 damage to the vehicles.

Madoc OPP said the tractor trailer, driven by Rheal Lapoche, 22, of Quebec, and the late model car, driven by Harold Morton, 78, of Thomasburg, were both southbound on Highway 37 near Thomasburg when the mishap occurred.

Police said the car made a left turn off the highway and tractor traffic, behind the vehicle, jackknifed. The trailer slidded into the car causing $200 damage while the cab of the truck had $500 damage.

Madoc OPP have laid charges in the incident. There were no injuries.

Warkworth Prisoner at Large

WARKWORTH — A warrant for the arrest of a Tarkworth Medium Security Institute inmate who failed to return here a week ago today is still outstanding, according to a prison spokesman.

Still at large is Edward Stephen Piercy, 20 formerly of Bramalea, who was to have returned to the prison after a three-day temporary absence last Wednesday.

Pierrey was serving a three-year sentence for possession of stolen goods, fraud and theft.

Ready to Race

Paul Burris, 20, of Madoc, took a three-day, $300 course to learn to handle Formula Ford racing cars at Mosport. Now he might try go-kart racing if a track operates at Shannonville this summer. He works in Ray's Sport Shop in Madoc.

Course in Race Driving Memorable Experience

By CHIS ALMEY
Staff Correspondent

MADOC — Paul Burris, 20, of Madoc says at this time his plans are open and he is playing things by ear. Last year he spent $500 on a three-day course to handle Formula Fords at Mosport Racing School. However, with the machines costing $8,000 he is considering go-kart racing and is hoping this might take place at Shannonville this summer.

Telling about the course in an interview, Paul said he started out at 3,000 r.p.m., about 60 miles an hour on a pylon course on the pit straight.

"The idea is, after classroom instruction, to get used to downshifting, the brakes and the feel of the car. It is so responsive and quick handling for a guy who has never been in a race car before," he noted.

The Formula Fords are 1600 cc Pintos or Cortinas with four-cylinder engines and are capable of 180 mph.

Graduating to the fast Mosport track, racing students go up to 10 m.p.h. faster. On the last day drivers start at 4,500 r.p.m. and go up to 6,000 r.p.m.

Paul didn't get to the ton r.p.m. but still was zipping around the track at 125 m.p.h. The reason was he said he was handling developed timing chain problems and he had to switch to another car, which he had to learn to handle all over again.

"I felt about two inches high," Paul said about the course in general. "You go in with this big ego, figuring you would be the world's best driver, and make all these mistakes. You have to forget everything you ever did in a road car. There were only four gears, but I missed gears. It was a modified racing gear box and not synchromeshed."

Paul said one good thing about the course was it made him more aware for highway driving. He said coming out of Toronto recently he saw people looking all around as they drove, and just missing things like rear end collisions. He pointed out you have to be really defensive driving, and said to watch out for somebody tailgating you.

The Madoc sportsman said that corners on Mosport that could probably be taken at 60 in a road car, were taken at 100 plus in the Formula Ford.

"It's a funny thing screaming into a corner at Mosport. Most people get the idea that at that speed everything gets blurred. At one point going downhill I entered a left hand curve at 100 and had to brake down to make a sharp right uphill curve at 60, all the while watching a photographer advancing the film in his camera with his thumb . . . and concentrating at 100 mph . . . all this seemed like slow motion

"Your mind digests everything so quick it makes it seem in slow motion. Everybody that drove it experienced the same thing. But if your rear end breaks out everything seems super fast. I ran off the track once. It seemed like I was going a million miles an hour. The trees came by pretty quick," Paul observed. . . .

Why did he spend $500 to take the course which consisted of two morning in the classroom, two afternoons and one full day of driving?

"There is no use laying out $5,000 bucks for a car for a season and not liking it or not being good enough and having to sell the car for $2,500 or $3,000. Also, if you crash it, it is your own money to fix it. You can't get insurance," Paul said.

He said he would be glad to talk to anybody about racing, and if they were considering taking the course at Mosport, he would tell where he went wrong.

Tourist Operators Wary Of New Association Ties

BANCROFT — The Bancroft and District Chamber of Commerce and the Highlands of Hastings Tourist Council are both displeased with Bancroft's forced association with the Eastern Ontario Travel Association instead of with the Highlands of Hastings.

In the past, the northern portion of Hastings County has been aligned with the Haliburton Valley Regional Tourist Council through direction from the provincial ministry of tourism.

In the recent reshuffle of that ministry, the 32 provincial tourist councils were reduced to 12 travel associations and Bancroft and area suddenly found itself in a group with Ottawa," the Ottawa Valley, Kinnston, Gananoque and Upper Canada Village.

Although several protests were lodged with Claude Bennett, minister of industry and tourism, there has been no change in the arrangement.

The president of the Highlands of Hastings Tourist Council, Vera McMurray said recently "all of Hastings County should be in the same association."

"It's still a democratic country" said Mr. McMurray "There's no reason for Bancroft to be separate."

Mr. McMurray indicated his' organization, which is loosely affiliated with the Central Ontario Travel Association, works hard to promote Bancroft even though there is no formal agreement.

"At the sportsman show last week, I gave out two thousand brochures on Bancroft and on the Gemboree," said Mr. McMurray.

The Bancroft and District Chamber of Commerce is still expressing its displeasure at the present tourist set-up.

At the moment there are no funds coming to the Bancroft group for tourist promotion even though the EOTA receives about $45,000 from the province for promotion of the entire area.

According to a letter written to Mr. Bennett, by Bancroft Chamber President Ivor Macleod, "In a winter sports brochure that was produced by the staff of the EOTA, Bancroft was not mentioned anyway."

Funding Approved

BANCROFT — A cheque for $11,526.44 was presented to the Hastings County Board of Education last week by Hastings MPP Clarke T Rollins.

The money, which was a grant from the provincial ministry of community and social services, is to be used by the board for the development of athletic fields at six county schools.

The minister of community an social Services, Rene Brunelle said in a letter to E.E. Trumman of the Hastings board the money had been granted under the Community Centres Act and that, "This ministry has a sincere interest in the development of recreational facilities in your community. As such, I am pleased to provide financial assistance to participate in your projects."

The grant will be used as follows: $2,000 to Ormsby and Stirling School, $927.75 to Hermon school in North Hastings, $820.25 to Coe Hill School, $1,987.50 to Tweed-Hungerford, $1,496.45 to Belleville's Earl Prentice School and $1,292.50 to Deseronto School.

How Can Waiting Wife Face Life While Hubby Is Running Around?

Dear Ann Landers: I've read many times your advice to women who discover their husbands are running around: "Wait it out."

After being married for more than 25 years I learned my husband is seeing a much younger woman. While I wait, how do I keep from losing my mind? How do I accept an appetite so I can eat? How can I keep smiling in front of the children and other relatives when my heart is breaking? How do I hold back the tears until I'm alone so I can cry my eyes out? How do I drive thoughts of suicide out of my mind because I cannot face life without him?

And finally . . . how long does it take for him to come back?—Alone And Waiting

Dear Alone: First, how long have you been waiting? A month? Six months. a year? Does he know YOU know about the other woman? Has he asked for a divorce? There are many unanswered questions in your letter.

This I can tell you: No man is worth killing yourself over. And you can face life without him. You'd have to if he were hit by a truck.

You need counselling and I urge you to get it. The pent-up emotions you describe can make you physically ill if you don't find a release. Ventilation can be immensely helpful. Get going.

Dear Ann Landers: This is not a problem. It's a suggestion. After listening for years to women refer to themselves as "just a housewife" (always with a tone of apology, as if it's something to be ashamed of), I decided there should be a more dignified job-description which suggests status. The term I invented is "Domestic Engineer."

Will you please print my letter and get the word to America's homemakers? I am sick and tired of "just a housewife" and I'll bet a brand new vacuum sweeper that millions of others are, too.—Domestic Engineer Of Six

Dear Dome: "What's in a name? . . . A rose by any other name would smell as sweet." But if you think "Domestic Engineer" smells better than "housewife," I'll buy it. Can't hurt. Might help. Thanks for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: This letter is a rebuttal to the one signed Mrs. Nobody. She wrote about being "roundly snubbed" by a woman she'd been acquainted with for several years. They had even served on several committees together.

Your reply was that if the acquaintance is over 50, chances are the ol' eyes aren't as good as they once were and she walked right by without recognizing her.

Listen, Ann, maybe her eyes aren't so good, but her ears should be O.K. I am over 50 and I can't see very well, but if someone says a pleasant "hello" I can't imagine walking right on without responding.

We have a few of those snobs in our town and everyone knows who they are. Nothing is wrong with their eyes or their ears, but plenty is wrong with their sense of importance. They just think they are too good to talk to ordinary people. Every community has its stuck-up ladies, so please, Ann, don't make excuses for them.—You Know Who You Are

Dear You Know: I'm sure you have a point, but such people are so beyond my comprehension that I have trouble acknowledging their existence. They are more to be pitied than censured.

Doris Clark

Open Your Mind to New Things

Aristotle, son of a physician at the court of King Philip of Macedon, organized the first scientific inquiry in the world. He was so curious about nature that he had a thousand men collecting material for his natural history.

What would happen if Canada if every person started collecting specimens and asking questions about things that they have up to now taken for granted? These two activities led to the great advances in scientific discovery and understanding. The twilight zone between what we know and the vast range of what we do not know presents us with innumerable frontiers for exploration.

To be a good scientist you need to have a tidy mind that keeps thoughts and facts in their proper place; you have to pay attention to small details in your research to prevent something vital from slipping away unnoticed; you need to keep an eye on what your neighbors are doing in the way of finding out and doing new things.

Royal Bank Letter.

— In other words, keep observing, noticing, asking questions. Get into the swim — and get with it when it comes to opening up that mind of yours to what is new.

Blind Social Worker Wins Acceptance

OTTAWA (CP) — While still in high school Claudette Laycock lost her remaining vision, which had steadily decreased due to a series of eye infections. Determined that her useful life was not over, she moved to Ottawa from Sudbury, Ont., and enrolled in social work at St. Patrick's College.

There she met her husband David, with whom she moved to Toronto and received a university degree in psychology. Now she is employed with the Ottawa-Carleton welfare department as a social worker.

It took her almost three years to find a position.

"There seem to be certain prejudices," she said. "Many people feel that because a person cannot see, she has other handicaps as well." A blind person must prove herself.

Being blind has not stopped Mrs. Laycock from having a busy life as wife, mother and career-woman.

Like many couples today, she and her husband work on a partnership basis. For example, he helps with the shopping and selects food for daily meals. She is an accomplished cook and that is her territory.

Her domestic interests extend beyond cooking and caring for her child. She is learning to crochet, having already proven her hand at knitting and pottery.

Like many other blind persons, Mrs. Laycock has been aided by the Canadian National Institute for the Blind. While attending university, CNIB readers helped her with her studies.

Claudette Laycock is a young mother and social worker. She is also blind. Shown here changing her baby son Evan, she says a blind person has to prove herself to win acceptance in the career world Mrs. Laycock is employed with the Ottawa Carleton welfare department and it took her almost three years to find that position (CP Photo)

Make Breakfast a Special Family Time

In the life of the modern family there are precious few relaxing times together. If you're feeling the stress of a too—busy schedule, create a special space for family talk and prepare a fabulous breakfast once a week.

Make it Sunday morning (traditional) or mid-week (get everybody up a half-hour early) but make it special with treats and no cold cereal in sight. If early rising just isn't your style, we're including some brunch-type recipes for 11 a.m. relaxing.

APPLE MUFFINS

½ cup sugar
three tbsp. fat, melted one cup ginger ale one egg, beaten
two cups flour
½ tsp. salt
three tbsp. dry milk (optional)
three tsp. baking powder
½ teaspoon soda
one cup raw apple, peeled and chopped

Add sugar, fat and ginger ale to egg. Sift together flour, salt, dry milk baking powder, soda. Combine with egg mixture; add apple, stir only until all dry ingredients are moistened. Fill greased muffin cups two-three full. Sprinkle small amount of topping mixture over each. Bake at 375 F., about 20 minutes. Serve hot.

Makes two dozen 2½-inch muffins.

Topping: Mix 2 tsp. sugar and ¼ tsp. cinnamon.

BLUEBERRY NUT KUCHEN

½ cup soft butter
¾ cup sugar
one egg
one tsp vanilla
¾ cup undiluted evaporated milk
two tsp lemon juice
1½ cups sifted flour
two tsp baking powder
½ tsp. salt
½ cup chopped walnuts
1 cup fresh or frozen blueberries two tbsp. brown sugar one tsp. grated lemon peel
one tsp. cinnamon
Glaze (optional)

Cream butter and sugar until light and fluffy. Beat in egg and vanilla. Stir in evaporated milk and lemon juice. Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Stir into egg mixture. Beat at low speed just until smooth. Stir in walnuts. Pour into buttered 8 x 8 x 2-inch baking dish. Top with blueberries and sprinkle with brown sugar, lemon peel and cinnamon. Bake in a moderate oven (350° F) 40 to 45 minutes. Drizzle with Glaze if desired. Glaze: Mix until smooth ¾ cup icing sugar, ½ teaspoon vanilla and 2 teaspoons water.

MAPLE OATMEAL MUFFINS

1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
¼ cup sugar
one tbsp. baking powder
¼ tsp. salt
¼ cup shortening
¾ cup uncooked quick rolled oats
one beaten egg
two-thirds cup undiluted evaporated milk
½ cup maple syrup

Sift flour, sugar, baking powder and salt together. Cut in shortening until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Stirs in oats. Add beaten egg, evaporated milk and maple syrup. Stir until dry ingredients are just moistened. Fill buttered muffin cups two-third full. Bake in hot oven (400F.) 20 to 25 minutes. Loosen immediately with spatula and serve warm.

CORNMEAL MUFFINS

one cup cornmeal
one cup flour
three tsp. baking powder
¼ cup sugar
one egg
one-third cup vegetable oil
one cup milk

Combine dry ingredients. Beat egg slightly with milk and vegetable oil. Stir quickly into dry ingredients. Lumps don't affect muffins. Bake at 425 for 15 to 20 minutes or until golden.

BANANA BREAD

½ cup butter
one cup white sugar
one egg
three tsp. milk
one cup mashed banana
1½ cups flour
one tsp. soda
one tsp. baking powder pinch salt
walnuts

Mix well in the order given. Bake at 350 for 55 minutes; reduce temperature to 300 degrees and bake 35 additional minutes.

QUICK COFFEE CAKE

1½ cups sugar
two cups flour
¼ cup butter
two tsp. baking powder
two eggs
¾ cup milk
fruit (see note)

Mix flour, sugar and butter in a bowl with pastry cutter or two knives until crumbly. Reserve ½ cup of mixture. Add baking powder, two eggs and milk to mixture and mix well. Pour batter into a greased 8 x 12 inch pan. Top with fruit of your choice. Add ¼ tsp. cinnamon to reserved crumbs and sprinkle over fruit. Bake at 375 for 30 minutes.

Note: Drained pie cherries, diced fresh apple, drained pineapple or any canned fruit is suitable for topping this cake. Cake can also be successfully prepared without fruit: top with nuts and brown sugar or raisins or nutmeg at all.

BREAKFAST SHORTCAKE

½ cup butter
¼ cup sugar
1½ tbsp. brown sugar
one beaten egg
½ cup flour
¼ tsp. vanilla

Melt butter slowly, do not brown. Add to sugar. When cool, add egg. Add remaining ingredients. Bake on hot waffle iron ten second, then turn. Top with sweetened strawberries or raspberries and four or sweet cream.

PEACH CHEESE BLINTZES

canned peach slices
one cup cottage cheese
two large eggs
½ cup flour
pinch salt
one cup milk

Break eggs into small mixing bowl. Add flour and beat very slowly until well blended. Add salt and milk, beating slowly. Let batter rest 10 minutes. Heat an eight-inch skillet and grease slightly. Pour ¼ cup batter into pan and swirl quickly to coat pan. Loosen and turn almost immediately. Cook a few more minutes. Turn onto warm platter. These may be made a little while ahead and kept warm in the oven or made well ahead and refrigerated, reheating in the oven. Wrap around cottage cheese and top with cold sliced peaches.

CREAM CHEESE OMELET

two eggs
two tbsp. water
¼ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
one tsp. chopped chives
one tsp. butter or margarine
two tbsp. whipped cream cheese

Mix eggs, water, salt, pepper and chives with a fork. Heat fat in skillet (about 8 inches) until just hot enough to sizzle a drop of water. Pour in egg mixture. It should set at edges at once. Reduce heat slightly but cook eggs quickly. As the mixture at the edges thickens, draw these portions with a fork toward the center so that the uncooked portions flow to the bottom. Tilt the skillet as it is necessary to hasten flow of uncooked portion. Shake skillet to keep omelet sliding freely. Keep mixture as level as possible. When eggs are set and surface is still moist, increase heat to brown bottom quickly. Spread the whipped cream cheese on one half of omelet, fold in half and slide onto serving plate.

Not when you're talking about Canadian potatoes, now only a little over 1 cent a serving.

Retain greatest nourishment by baking or boiling them in their skins. Serve as soon as they're tender, and eat skin and all unless otherwise directed by your doctor. Don't be afraid to increase their use at the expense of other higher-priced foods, so long as the overall day's meals meet nutritional needs. An average potato contains only 50 calories.

Welfare Awarded

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Appeal Court Tuesday upheld a lower court decision that although a Toronto woman lived with a man, she was not his spouse.

Allan McChesney, a welfare rights lawyer who argued the case of June Proc, said Tuesday his client is entitled to $1,850 in retroactive provincial family benefit payments and a monthly allowance of $70.

Mr. Justice David Henry of the Divisional Court ruled earlier that although Mrs. Proc and Howard Moquin lived together, in the borough of Scarborough, they did not share the same last name, property, debts, bedroom or bank account, and therefore were not spouses.

He said the board of review, which rejected the woman's application to receive family benefits, placed too much emphasis on the couple's sexual relationship.

The Ontario ministry of community and social services appealed the divisional court ruling. Thomas Wickett, the ministry lawyer, said he does not know if the decision will be appealed to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Mrs. Proc is permanently unemployable because of cyclamate poisoning and other severe health problems. Unemployable persons are entitled to receive $170 a month in family benefits.

Mrs. Proc, a divorcee, was turned down by the family benefits department, and later the review board, when she applied for benefits.

The reason given was that she was living with a man and that women with spouses are not entitled to benefits.

Wagons Slow

NOBLETON, Ont. (CP) — The first day of the Canadian Wagon Train's 2,000-mile journey to Alberta was described Tuesday as "disheartening" by wagonmaster Gordon Roberts.

The 10 covered wagons went about six miles Tuesday—the 38 participants hope to travel about 20 miles a day.

Deadline Met

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Cyanamide of Canada Ltd. has met its first of three deadlines set by the Ontario ministry of environment to clean up the yellow emission from its plant here, the ministry says.

Plumbers' Pay Up

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — About 400 plumbers have ratified a contract agreement which, when it expires, will give them a total of $12.22 an hour—believed to be the highest hourly rate for plumbers in Canada.

Boy Insane

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Mark Roland Parris, 16, of London was found not guilty by reason of insanity Tuesday in connection with the murder of Stephanie Dawn McQueen, 10, also of London, last Nov. 2.

The trial, before Mr. Justice Edson Haines in Ontario Supreme Court, lasted only 80 minutes and the jury reached its verdict without leaving its box.

OUT OUR WAY by Neg Cochran

Whelan to Talk With Butz on Beef

OTTAWA (CP) — The continuing dispute over beef trading is expected to highlight Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan's visit to Washington today for talks with Earl Butz, his American counterpart.

Mr. Whelan is heading a trade mission to the U.S., accompanied by trade, finance and external affairs officials.

The talks are seen as a follow-up to Prime Minister Trudeau's visit to Ford last December. Although Mr. Trudeau warned that reprisals can lead to trade wars, he said afterward that he did not expect a trade war to develop between Canada and the U.S.

The beef situation has been a source of complaint for several years. It was heightened last April when Canada prohibited the import of American beef fattened with the chemical diethylstilbestrol (DES), a synthetic growth hormone that has caused cancer in laboratory test animals.

Higher Beef Prices Are Said Essential

CALGARY (CP) — The president of the Canadian Cattlemen's Association (CCA) said Tuesday that beef retail prices "must be dramatically increased" to keep beef producers in business.

But Gordon Parke of Cache Creek, B.C., told the federal commission on beef marketing that cattlemen do not want unnecessary government intervention in marketing.

Mr. Parke and Charles Gracey, CCA general manager in Toronto, said that to break even, producers need an average price of 55 cents a pound of live animal—or $1.81 when sold on the retail counter.

Pressure Mounts To Open Schools

OTTAWA (CP) — As pressures mount for a quick end to a strike by 1,600 high school teachers here, both sides are taking a breather from negotiates to survey strategy.

The strike by Ottawa Board of Education teachers which has left 26,000 students out of school began Feb. 27, but because of March holidays today is only the 18th day off.

But the parties to the dispute remain far apart and the breakdown of mediation talks last weekend brought fears of a lengthy impasse which could be settled by intervention by the Ontario government.

Indeed the Ontario cabinet is meeting this week to consider possible solutions to the strike. The absence of Education Minister Tom Wells, holidaying in Florida, however, likely would delay the possibility of direct action by government.

Some parents of the students affected by the strike have begun steps they hope will lead to an end to the dispute.

A deputation of parents met Eric Winkler, chairman of the Ontario cabinet management board, earlier this week. They came away with a statement from Mr. Winkler that he would make a "strong recommendation" to cabinet. He declined to elaborate.

Lucien Bradet, chief school board negotiator, said Tuesday that his team is under pressure from parents to hold the line against the teachers' demands. The parents are also urging back-to-work legislation, he added.

PC Vote Heavy

EDMONTON (CP) — A tabulation Tuesday by The Canadian Press of returns from all polls in the March 26 Alberta general election showed that the Progressive Conservatives got 62 per cent of the vote in winning 69 of the 75 seats. Social Credit won four; Independent Social Credit one, and the New Democratic Party one.

Plane Crew Members Refuse to Testify

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — Key witnesses at an inquest into the deaths of 32 men killed in a plane crash last October have refused to testify.

A six-man jury was told Tuesday that David Hatton and Gary Weyman have decided not to testify before Coroner Walter England.

Mr. Hatton was co-pilot of the Panarctic Oils Ltd.-owned Lockheed Electra which crashed Oct. 30 while carrying drilling crews to Rae Point, N.W.T., 1,600 miles north of Edmonton, and Mr. Weyman was the flight engineer. They cannot be compelled to testify because they live outside the jurisdiction of the territorial coroner.

Nor did Roderick Brooks, radio operator at Rae Point on the night of the crash, or two other Panarctic employees appear at the inquest when witnesses were called.

Mr. England, a Yellowknife hardware merchant, and Ed Brogden, a lawyer representing the Crown, explained to the jury that unless witnesses live in the Northwest Territories the coroner has no authority to compel them to testify.

Donald Brenner of Vancouver, lawyer for Panarctic, offered no explanation to the inquest as to why the witnesses decided not to appear, saying only that the decision was made by the men themselves.

McKeough Warns Taxes On Property Will Rise

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Treasurer Darcy McKeough warned Tuesday of more rapid Increases this year in property taxes in Ontario.

"Municipal councils will likely find it impossible this year to avoid mill-rate increases more substantial than taxpayers have been accustomed to in the past few years."

The treasurer said he believes government leaders should set an example in pay increases to discourage others from seeking inflationary increases which weaken the economy and erode savings.

As well as rising rates of pay and inflation, Mr. McKeough said he is concerned about housing, energy prices and trade following talks with many persons in preparation for the April 7 provincial budget.

Text of his speech was released in advance.

Toronto Parking Firms Oppose Higher Rates

TORONTO (CP) — City Parking Outlets Ltd. and 600 others, including the city's largest commercial car-parking operators, claim they will go out of business if city council carries through its threat to raise parking rates to as high as $10 a day.

The city has asked the Ontario legislature to approve a private bill giving the city control over licences and fees charged on parking lots.

Queue To Save Astons

LONDON (CP) — Businessmen are queueing in a bid to get control of the cash-stricken Aston Martin car company.

First in line is a consortium of British, Canadian and United States businessmen whose $20,000 ($1.7 million) offer was turned down. They have come back with an increased bid but there are four other bidders in line.

Painting Stolen

LONDON (CP) — A Van Gogh painting was stolen from the O'Hana Gallery in Mayfair while customers were admiring Impressionist paintings for sale. "We think it was an inside job," said the gallery's owner, Mrs. Eugenie O'Hana. The Van Gogh was valued at $20,000 ($20,000).

Alderman Fails in Bid To Restrict City Hiring

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

A city councillor's controversial proposal to limit future hiring of Belleville's civic workforce to city residency, ended as a one-man fight late Tuesday night.

Ald. Joe Cox found himself casting the sole vote for his resolution after coming under fire from council colleagues — and organized labor.

The Cox proposal rallied council to fresh vitality as it came at the end of a marathon city hall meeting lasting more than five hours.

Ald. Ben Corke called the move a "backward step."

Ald. Stu Meeks said if every municipality were to pass such a law, it would "condemn" everyone to living and working in their own communities.

Hours before, the resolution came under sharp protest before council by a spokesman for city workers organized by the Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE).

Robert Cook, president of CUPE Local 949, and a public works employee who lives in Sidney Township, said the resolution "hardly seems fair."

Himself an active participant for years in organizing city minor sports, he asked if such a restriction could also come to mean those living outside the city could no longer volunteer for civic committees and organizations.

Ald. Cox said his resolution did not involve present city workers.

He later told council his motion was to basically establish a hiring policy and set some direction in city hall's personnel department.

He told council that about 22 per cent of the civic workforce live outside the city.

"How can we . . . close our eyes to the fact that one in every three employees . . . lives beyond the boundaries of this municipality."

The result, he said, is such women don't have a real "stake" in the city when it comes to paying taxes and civic bills.

Among other results of emphasizing city residency — his proposal allowed for hiring from elsewhere if suitable employees were not available within Belleville boundaries — would be more "concern" during contract talks for "the tax dollar" workers would be negotiating for."

"I'm trying to jealously guard the people of the city of Belleville. If it means I'm blamed for the citizens of Belleville then I'm blamed," said Ald. Cox.

"All things being equal we do hire from the city of Belleville and I understand that is our present city policy," Ald. Paul Russell said.

Therefore, the ministry recommended re-submission of the Belleville document as a amendment to the "existing official plan for the Belleville section of the Belleville and Suburban Planning Area".

Alarm Box

Belleville firefighters responded to the following calls during a seven-day period ending at 8 a.m. today.

Tuesday, April 1, 2:15 p.m. — space heater malfunction at 15 Victoria Street. No damage.

Tuesday, April 1, 6:17 p.m. — Cleanup of fuel spilled from tractor-trailer at 15 Albion St.

Gas on Sunday Hard to Find

Except in warm weather, the number of Belleville service stations open late and on Sundays is well below the number permitted by city ordinance.

And city councillor Jack Ireland wonders if the regulations governing gasoline sales are not now out of date.

Mr. Purcell reported to council Tuesday that service station operators mutually agree to a yearly schedule for off-hours opening and this is circulated by the city clerk's office.

There are 29 service stations on this year's schedule — which means maximum of seven are permitted to open extra hours by by-law.

But this year's list provides for only one stations to open late up to May and two to four stations from the end of November to next January.

Ald. Ireland proposed the city manager conduct another poll—this time to ascertain what in-town service station operators want to do.

Juveniles Face 34 Charges

Ontario Provincial Police at Belleville have so far laid 34 charges against three Quinte area juveniles in connection with a rash of break-ins during March of 12 cottages along the Trent River north of Frankford.

A provincial police spokesman said Tuesday most of the property has been recovered in the investigation being conducted by Constables Alan Armstrong and Larry Farrar.

The spokesman said considerable damage was done to the cottages but a damage estimate has not been made as yet. In addition, an estimate on the total value of stolen property has yet to be determined.

Standards Bylaw Gets Hearing

Belleville's draft property standards bylaw will come in for public hearings before city council approves the measure.

Council Tuesday decided to step up the input into the proposed ordinance.

As recommended by Ald. Joe Cox, the plan will first go to city council's subdivisers'-liaison committee; come back to council for discussion; be forwarded to the Subordinate Planning Advisory Committee and then to public meetings.

After that it will return for final shaping by city council.

City manager Wilbur Purcell said the draft bylaw — which already has come in for some criticism — had "been blown up out of proportion." He said he prepared it as a working document from similar bylaw already in force in a larger municipality and can stand legal tests.

The city manager's remarks followed a suggestion by Ald. Ben Corke that council could have "avoided a lot of trouble" if the draft bylaw had been drawn by a city solicitor.

Cars Collide

City police investigated a minor traffic accident which occurred on Dundas St. W. Monday.

Deputy-Chief Harold Reid said Tuesday the mishap involved a rear-end collision between cars driven by Evelyn Marks, 41, of 21A Regina Cres., Trenton and David Fisher, 22, 128 Dundas St. W. Both vehicles were eastbound.

He said damage was estimated at $700 to the Fisher car and $550 to the Marks vehicle in the 3:55 p.m. incident.

Knee Deep in Experiment

Four Loyalist College students spent Tuesday afternoon in a nearby creek fishing for specimens to be used in lab experiments. Jim Stoll (foreground) said the water management course is trying to determine at what point toxic elements in water cause irreparable damage to wildlife.

Animal Control Costs Main Factor in Debate

City council was warned Tuesday plans to operate its own animal control service might not be as financially viable as it seems.

The new service could also create adverse public reaction, warned Tom Hughes, manager of the Ontario Humane Society (OHS) — the agency whose control service council has decided not to renew after seven years.

Instead, council decided a month ago to build its own shelter and contract out the control services.

Mr. Hughes questioned the comparative economics involved.

"We're very concerned with the city plans," he told council. "We believe quite sincerely that this is impossible."

Nonetheless, council did not immediately react to cautionary words of Mr. Hughes — who headed a delegation from the OHS Quinte branch.

A report from city manager Wilbur Purcell had informed council to anticipate a deputation. Council later voted to have it receive the city manager's report.

Mr. Hughes came under some close questioning as he explained the OHS need for more funds — and how a deficit forced it to cancel its contract with the city and seek a new agreement. The current contract with the OHS — which provides control services centres on its Avonlough Rd. shelter just west of Belleville — runs out at the end of the month.

The new contract proposed boosts the current 75-cent per capita fee paid by the city to $1; then to $1.10 by July and $1.25 by 1976. (With its present population, the city would pay about $53,100 on the $1 per capita charge.)

As an alternative, the city proposes a shelter based on provincial government plans for a "typical" pound with 20 pens — costing $15,000-$20,000 if built on a city-owned site.

But, claimed Mr. Hughes, the building suggested for the city service is more suited to a rural municipality. Not only would it not be feasible for Belleville's size, it would create "adverse public reaction" to the service provided.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey pointed out that a major worry that had prompted the city's move was the reduction of the contract's notice of termination clause from six months to 90 days.

Mr. Hughes said such a term was standard but if it were such concern "I think we would be willing to drop it and go back to the six months".

The mayor also wanted to know if the city would have to provide a "substantial grant" in the event a replacement were needed for the Avonlough Rd. shelter.

Mr. Hughes said that other communities give construction grants.

Unaudited figures presented council showed the OHS Quinte branch this year may have a deficit approaching $55,000.

Council Briefs

Station Life Extended

There's a local group interested in purchasing the old CP Rail Station on East Dundas St.

With that revelation city council Tuesday night hurriedly reversed itself in approving demolition of the building.

The CPR needs the city's approval before asking the Railway Transport Committee to authorize the demolition.

Council first favored the move.

Ald Arthur Keegan said there was a group in the city that has applied to the CPR's Marathon Realty to purchase the building.

This prompted the mayor to move a rescinding motion and instead wait two weeks for further information before considering the CPR request.

Council Backs Project

An ambitiously-proposed outdoors recreation project centred in Hastings County Tuesday was city council's backing Tuesday night.

Council endorsed the proposal — made to last February's conference of resources cabinet ministers in Belleville — for a 200,000-acre recreation area across central Hastings and Lennox and Addington counties.

The proposal came from the Highlands of Hastings and Land O' Lakes tourist councils.

Funding Requests Studied

Several requests for city hall grants have been referred to the city manager's office for scrutiny.

Requests before city council Tuesday night included an allocation of $12,000 — unchanged from last year — suggested by the United Community Services.

The Highlands of Hastings Tourist Region also requested a grant of $1,000.

The Quinte Arts Council has requested $1,000 toward its budget.

Board to Study Rail Lines

City council Tuesday decided to formally request the Quinte Planning Board to act as its agent in obtaining information on railroad relocation.

The information is available as a package from provincial government authorities.

Relocation of parts of Quinte shoreline tracks has been a lingering issue for years in Belleville.

Official Plan Gets New Name

City council unhesitatingly passed a new bylaw, hurriedly retitling its official plan, now up for provincial government approval.

The new ordinance was requested to avoid confusion at the senior government level.

City manager Wilbur Purcell reported at the beginning of the study it had been agreed between planners and housing ministry staff that the plan be titled the Belleville section of the Quinte Planning Area (QPA).

However, current ministry policy is not to accept title of an area's overall plan — unless there already is an official study completed for entire planning region.

After the Debate

City councillors Joe Cox and Paul Russell chat after lively debate in council chambers on resolution linking city hall hiring to residency requirements. Ald. Cox cast the lone vote supporting his proposal which was quashed by council.

Board to Close Centenary School

Skyrocketing renovation costs have forced the Hastings County Board of Education to close one of its elementary schools in the county.

Effective June 30, Centenary Public School will be closed and its 43 students will attend nearby Sir John A. Macdonald Public School next September.

The 31-year-old school, consisting of two classrooms and a general purpose room, is located on 3.4 acres of land on Wallbridge Rd.

Acting director of education L. F. Reid said the estimated costs of renovations for the school are between $25,000 and $30,000. The building itself is in need of masonry work, new heating system and a complete replacement of windows. Two hill is inoperative at certain times of the year.

One grade five class from Centenary has already been shifted to Sir John A. Macdonald. Mr. Reid said the students will have access to a library, gymnasium and special education classes at Sir John A Macdonald. The plan calls for the two teachers at Centenary to move to the new school located about five miles away.

Hospital Gets Go-ahead For New Parking Lot

Belleville General Hospital finally has city council approval for the rezoning it needs for its new 220-car parking lot.

But even if all goes smoothly from now on, the project has already been delayed long enough to put it "dangerously close" to the construction deadline for this year, Ralph Joy, BGH director of hospital services, told council.

At issue has been needed rezoning of two residential lots on First St. required to complete the site for the parking project.

Approval was delayed after First St. resident Roland Belanger protested the hospital was using the "placeholder" rezoning that was depressing purchasers of the homes in the area.

Mr. Belanger brought a lengthy outline of BGH procedures for property acquisition of its extra holdings.

He addition to written explanations from hospital executive director Philip Rickard, Mr. Joy presented a long brief to council covering Mr. Belanger's charges.

"We feel that our situation there has not depressed market values," Mr. Joy told council.

Without any further delays, it still will take 22 weeks to complete the new parking lot — advancing its completion close to the October deadline for paving.

Teachers Establish Fund for Undefined Political Activity

By RON CARSON
Staff reporter

County secondary school teachs a should be prepared to fight for their rights in teacher negotiations, says Judie Carty, Hastings president for the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation.

Mrs. Carty, a teacher at Centennial Secondary School, made the statement in response to the Ontario Teachers Federation (OTF) urging the province's 100,000 teachers to contribute time and money for a "political action" machine now gearing up for the next provincial election.

The OTF, the parent body of five Ontario teacher groups, has earmarked $100,00 for political activity not yet defined. Millions more could be available later because the province's 34,000 high school teachers each have signed a $600 promissory notes to be used if needed.

Mrs. Carty said the Hastings-OSSTF district, representing about 550 teachers, believes the OTF should have money for political activities but that it should not necessarily be used to bring down the government.

However, Mrs. Carty did say the OSSTF political activity rests largely with the outcome of the government's proposed legislation prohibiting strikes and forcing teachers into arbitration.

"In the meantime we are trying to encourage teachers to take a leadership role on the executives of all provincial party ridings in Hastings," explained Mrs. Carty. Apparently, the three ridings have teacher representatives on their executives this year.

She said the OSSTF wants teachers actively involved in all decision processes in the province that may affect education or teacher negotiations. The External Policy Implementation Committee of OSSTF has established special workshops to instruct teachers how to have more influence in the community.

Mrs. Carty said "at the present time there is a lot of speculation about OSSTF's role in the next election — much will demand on the OSSTF position in the government's legislation."

Neil Doherty of the Ontario English Catholic Teachers Association lists four reasons why teachers have become more interested in politics. They are:

— The provincial government's education ceilings. They have forced many school boards to revise their programs in a bid to cut costs;

— The threat of legislation that could limit teachers in salary negotiations;

— The lack of a strong voice in curriculum planning;

— And, a feeling that government policies have led to a deterioration in the standard of education being provided in the province.

Some teacher groups have been unhappy with their present salaries and are seeking increases in the neighborhood of 40 per cent. Mr. Davis has called this irresponsible and unreasonable.

153 Dogs Removed From Cambridge Home

By JIM SMELLIE
Staff Reporter

The canine population at the Quinte branch of the Ontario Humane Society's animal shelter increased by 94 Tuesday after dogs were brought to Belleville following a raid the same day on a Cambridge house.

A total of 153 dogs belonging to Marianne Trusser were found in the kitchen of the three-bedroom house occupied by Mrs. Trusser, her husband, Daniel, their daughter and a boarder.

Of the 153 dogs found inside the house, 39 had to be destroyed for reasons of malnutrition, emaciation and various eye defects. The rest were taken to veterinarians and after some were tranquilized put in cages taken by truck to Belleville.

The inspector said the dogs were brought to Belleville because the animal shelter here has the largest shelter area where animals can be taken and contained if they have any diseases or infections.

Harry Brown, local manager of the shelter here, said the dogs would probably be here for about two weeks before deciding what to do with them.

Chief Inspector Hepworth said it wasn't certain if charges would be laid against the Cambridge woman. The hearing for her to face was having the dogs taken away.

Look Out, Weeds!

More than 125 district farmers gathered at the Four Seasons last night to hear about the latest techniques for keeping weeds under control in their corn fields. Organized by United Co-operatives of Ontario, sales reps of various companies explained the properties of their products. Let's Give Referees A Chance to Improve

What gripes me most at minor hockey league games?

Glad you asked.

Many parents in attendance are a pain in the clavicle to me and are probably more so to their youngsters.

Some coaches and managers need to be drummed out of the service.

But more annoying, is the apparent lack of qualified game officials in the area.

I understand that about the guys in the striped shirts doing their best.

Too often, their best is far from good enough.

Oh, yes, then there's the one about the officials being excused because they have to get experience somehow.

I'll buy that, to a degree.

But why put two inexperienced officials together and then complain about hockey violence?

It seems to me the ideal plan would be to put an experienced man with a greenhorn.

HERB LATCHFORD

You say the experienced man is too busy working games where the pay is higher.

I see.

Well, take it for what it's worth.

Coaches, managers, parents, the players have all been blamed for violence in hockey. But it won't improve until we get qualified officials to handle proceedings on the ice.

I'll be the way one of our Belleville products has advanced along the road to becoming a first rate official.

And just because the guy happens to agree with some of my observations has nothing to do with it.

I am interested with the way in which Herb Latchford has progressed.

A good referee?

Don't expect me to say "yes".

I may not have seen the man at work.

But that doesn't mean I haven't.

Confusing?

Let me explain.

The very fact that I'm not sure I've seen Latchford at work, is a point in his favor.

I always make it a point to find out who the game officials are in the cases where they are making a travesty of the game.

And honestly, I am tolerant.

That is the price qualified officials pay. When they are doing their job and doing it well, they remain anonymous to me.

If I don't notice who they are, the fellows are doing an excellent job, more often than not.

Probably Latchford falls into that category.

After reviewing his progress through the ranks, I'm sure he must be qualified.

A 23-year-old, Latchford hopes to move up to Ontario Hockey Association Junior ranks next season. He's been invited to attend an OHA clinic in Toronto, in September.

Did he do it on his own?

Not according to Herb.

He points to the valuable experience he gained while working as a linesman in Gas House League games. And he emphasizes the part people like Blake Maynes, John Emerson, Tod Hartt, Frank Lloyd, Bernie Howe, Les Williams and Robert Bogle played in his education.

A player himself (Quinte Hockey League, Gas House, Loyalist College) Herb began his stint as a carded Ontario Minor Hockey Association official in the 1973-74 season.

And now, it's a chance to show his stuff to OHA people.

It might interest you to know, he frowns on stickwork.

He need go no further on that subject. Herb's okay.

He's one young man who is trying to make a contribution to the game of hockey. And he'd like more young people to get involved.

Although they are not up to date here are the most recent standings in the Molson Cup sweepstakes, Toronto Maple Leaf division.

Defend leader at last count was Darryl Sittler with 66 points. 12 more than Borje Salming, last season's winner.

Dave Taveit had 32 points; Ron Ellis, George Ferguson and Errol Thompson, 29 each; Lanny McDonald, 21 and Norm Ullman, 24.

Slanting took too honors in January and February rections, promoting teammate Brian Glennie to snip, the Molson people should call it the Schmoe Cup, declare Borje ineligible and give some of the rest of us a chance to win it.

But Sittler has been turning it on of late and has been a regular at post game three-star selection introductions. And he now has the points to prove it.

Terry, Rick Meagher Capture Hockey Laurels

By MIKE BRADSHAW
Sports Staff

With hockey teams closing out their seasons, this is the time of year that coaches and managers sit down and begin to assess their talent for the upcoming year... For coach Jack Parker, at Boston University (BU) there'll be two players who'll be in next year's lineup for sure.

Rick and Terry Meagher, former Belleville Bobcats, are shoo-ins to catch spots on the 1975-76 edition of the Terriers.

In only his second year at BU, both with the varsity squad, Rick earned one of the highest honors bestowed to United States College players. He was selected to the first team all-America squad.

The 19-year-old finished third on his team's scoring list with 53 points, including 25 goals. He set a new single season record with five shorthanded goals and an unbelievable record for the two fastest shorthanded goals.

In a game against Princeton he tallied back-to-back markers nine seconds apart. Rick was also selected to the all-New England and the ECAC all-star squad.

Boston was its second consecutive ECAC championship team with the Meagher's spearheading the attack. The Terriers finished with a 28-5-1 record.

Terry feels the Terriers can improve on their record next year. He'll be looked to for leadership more than any of the other returnees. Next season will be his fourth in hockey at BU and at the end of this regular season the players elected him co-captain of the '75-76 squad.

For the second straight year Terry was awarded the Bennet McInnis Trophy as the player who best typifies the spirit of a Boston University hockey player. To win the award one must exhibit admirable qualities on and off the ice and do well in academic endeavors.

Terry finished the year with 25 goals and 30 assists. He was one goal shy of the team leader in that department. He scored 15 of those goals in the last 14 games of the year.

The 22-year-old twice scored hat tricks, one of which came against Harvard in the NCAA Tournament (national championship).

Next year BU will be rebuilding. They will lose several veterans through graduation. With Terry and Rick Meagher returning however, they'll have a solid foundation for another ECAC championship squad.

Wellington Takes Opener 4-1

WELLINGTON (Special) — Erupting for three unanswered goals in the third period, Wellington Loyalist Coach Lloyd Peewees took the first game of the Ontario Minor Hockey Association 2 Final with Cayuga, 4-1 here, Tuesday night.

There was little to choose between the two teams in the first two frames.

Cayuga broke in front with the only goal of the first period and the home side evened things with the second period's lone counter.

Dick Mountney scored the winning goal when he teamed up with Glenn McQuaid and Don Macdonald to get Loyalist's third period rally on the way.

McQuaid followed with his second goal of the night to make it 3-1 and Kevin Dolson wrapped it up, finding the open net after Cayuga removed the goalie in favor of an extra attacker, in the late go-ing.

Macdonald was in on three of the winners' goals with single assists going to McQuaid and John Jackson.

Lone marksman for the visitors was Chris McGorley.

The best of five series shifts to Cayuga, Thursday night, with the teams returning to Wellington for Game 3, Sunday, at 1 p.m.

Should the series go the distance, the fifth game will be played in Wellington.

McInroy-Maines .500

BRIGHTON (Special) — Belleville McInroy-Maines minor bantams closed out their 1974-75 season here on the weekend, blanking the home side 8-0.

A solid team effort paid off for the visitors as Bob Hedge recorded the shutout, his third of the season.

Billy Rowe and Darrell Colman each fired a pair of goals, with singles for Clarence Brockema, Greg Sproul, Shawn Mulroney and Jeff Sussman.

The Ted Soule-coached McInroy-Maines skaters finished the season with a .500 mark. In 16 games, the club won 25, lost 25 and tied eight, outscoring the opposition in league and exhibition games 299-255.

Donny Cook added a pair of shutouts to the trio chalked up by Hedge.

Mark Crawford was the club's top point-getter with 53 goals and 48 assists, for 101. Next in line was Brockema who was the leading scorer with 56 goals. He added 43 helpers for 99 points.

London Entry A Busy Team

If experience has anything to do with it, London should walk away with top honors at the Belleville Peewee Shrine Tournament. They have five tournaments behind them already this season and played in two leagues — the Western Counties AAA Ontario Minor Hockey Association group and the Greater London League.

On the other hand, their first round opponent on Friday, April 4 is Cornwall. This club plays in no league. They have played in five tournaments however, and won the title at Gatineau and the Grand championship at St. Isadore.

Of the 52 games they have played to date this season they have won 35. Cornwall plays London at the Memorial Arena at 9:15 p.m.

Meanwhile, at the Dick Ellis at 9:15, Windsor takes on Kingston Centre 70. Kingston was their four team league in which Trenton, Napanee and Gananoque participate. They also took top honors at Trenton's Peewee Shrine Tournament and were runners-up in the Lindsay Tournament.

Neither Kingston 70's nor Windsor have ever won a championship at the Belleville Tournament, but both have been strong contenders.

Detroit Roster Trimmed

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Detroit Tigers of baseball's American League trimmed their roster to the opening-day limit of 25 players Tuesday by dropping two pitchers and a catcher.

Ordered to report to the Tigers' minor league camp were pitchers Fred Holdsworth and Tom Makowski and catcher John Wockenfuss.

The Tigers leave here Sunday—after their final spring training exhibition game against New York Mets—for Detroit, where they open their 78th American League schedule Tuesday against Baltimore Orioles.

The club's opening-day roster will include 11 players not on the team a year ago. They include first baseman Nate Colbert, acquired from San Diego Padres; catcher Terry Humphrey and pitcher Tom—Walker, from Montreal Expos, and utility infielder Gene Michael, from New York Yankees.

Graduating from the club's farm system are shortstop Tom Veryzer, outfielders Dan Meyer, Art James, Ron LeFlore and Leon Roberts and pitchers Dave Lemanczyk and Vern Ruhle. Most of the minor league graduates were with the Tigers for part of last season.

Holdovers include pitchers Joe Coleman, John Hiller, Lerrin LaGrow, Mickey Lolich and Luke Walker, catchers Bill Freehan and Gene Lamont, infielders Gary Sutherland, Aurelio Rodriguez and John Knox and outfielders Gates Brown, Willie Horton, Ben Oglivie and Mickey Stanley.

Carter Powers Expos

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Rookie Gary Carter drove in three runs with a home run and double as Montreal Expos defeated Minnesota Twins 9-5 Tuesday in exhibition baseball.

Montreal scored five runs in the third inning off Vic Albury. Carter doubled in a run in the first inning and he hit a two-run homer in the decisive third. Pete Mackanin had a third-inning two-run double following Carter's homer.

Minnesota scored four runs in the bottom of the third on Larry Hisle's two-run homer, Bob Darwin's solo homer and Steve Braun's double off Don Carrithers.

Hal Breeden doubled in a run for Montreal and team-mates Jose Morales and Tim Foli singled in runs in the late innings. Lyman Bostock singled in the Twins' final run in the eighth.

Ipswich Regains The Lead

LONDON (Reuter) — Ipswich Town regained leadership of the English League First Division as the bottleneck at the top remained tighter than ever Tuesday night.

With a seemingly inexhaustible supply of young reserve talent, Ipswich played without five regulars as it defeated Birmingham 3-2. A leading London bookmaker made it the 4-to-4 favorite to win the league.

But Derby County continued its late drive towards the top and alongside idle Everton and Ipswich with 46 points. Ipswich, however, leads on goal average.

Liverpool and Stoke City, neither of whom played Tuesday night, both have 45 points.

Ipswich and Birmingham are both in the Football Association Cup semi-finals and their battle, a possible forerunner of the Cup final, was a stirring spectacle. Ipswich got goals from Ian Collard, Clive Woods and Brick Lambert. Ken Burns and Bob Hatton replied for Birmingham.

Derby County, after scoring five goals in each of two weekend victories, scaled down the attack but still took a 2-1 triumph against Manchester City Bruce Rioch got goals in the 6th and 3rd minutes.

Derby has another advantage in the struggle for the championship, having played one less game than Ipswich.

Oakland Doesn't Miss Catfish — Yet

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Maybe Oakland A's can get along without Jim (Catfish) Hunter after all.

Hunter, the baseball pitcher A's owner Charles Finley let get away, sparked again Tuesday for New York Yankees even though the Yanks suffered a 4-1 loss to Atlanta Braves in an exhibition baseball game.

But the pitching the A's were getting against Milwaukee was even more dazzling than Hunter's. Rookie Mike Norris, Rollie Fingers and John (Blue Moon) Odom combined to limit the Brewers to one hit. And Reggie Jackson slammed four hits to pace the A's to a 9-1 win.

Hunter has pitched 33 innings this spring, posting an earned-run average of 1.64. The only run Atlanta scored against him Tuesday was Unearned.

He gave up four hits and struck out five in his seven-inning stint against the Braves.

Atlanta won the game in the eighth inning when Dusty Baker slammed a three-run double with two outs.

In other games, Cincinnati Reds beat New York Mets 9-2, Houston Astros edged St. Louis Cardinals 3-2, Montreal Expos stopped Minnesota Twins 9-5, Baltimore Orioles stopped Texas Rangers 4-2, Los Angeles Dodgers beat San Francisco Giants 11-7, San Diego Padres defeated Chicago Cubs 4-3, Boston Red Sox crushed Detroit Tigers 9-0, and Chicago White Sox and Pittsburgh Pirates split a doubleheader, Chicago winning the first game 4-1 and the Pirates taking the nightcap 6-3.

University of Arizona shocked Cleveland Indians when sophomore Pete Van Lorne lined a bases-loaded double in the ninth to give the Wildcats a 6-5 victory.

Home runs by Ed Armbrister and Tony Perez powered Cincinnati's 19-hit assault against the Mets. Houston edged the Cardinals as Jose Cruz hit a two-run homer in the seventh to knot the score.

A hit batter, a single in centre and a bad-hop single by Bobby Grich gave Baltimore an 11-inning victory over Texas. Two triples by Pepe Lopez, one coming in a three-run third, lifted Los Angeles past San Francisco.

Willie McCovey smashed a two-run homer for the Padres to head the Cubs their ninth defeat in their last 10 games.

Bernie Carbo and Rick Miller blasted three-run homers and three Boston pitchers, Bill Lee, Diego Segui and Dick Pole, fashioned a six-hit shutout, snapping Detroit's four-game winning streak.

MAERTENS injured

SOIGNES, BLEIGUM guillaume of France took Tuesday's third leg of the six-day Tour of Belgium cycle race after Freedy Maertens of Belgium, winner of the earlier two segments, was injured in a spill. Maertens was treated for a facial injury but appeared ready to compete in Wednesday's fourth leg.

Key Game for Pistons

Lanier May Be Missing

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

If Detroit Pistons clinch a National Basketball Association playoff berth tonight, they may have to do it without the help of Bob Lanier, their high-scoring centre.

Lanier said his ailing left knee is "extremely sore" and may keep him out of the lineup for Detroit's game with Chicago Bulls.

One more Detroit victory, or one more loss by Milwaukee Bucks would put the Pistons into the playoffs and eliminate the Bucks for the first time since their expansion season, of 1968-69.

The Bucks kept alive their slim playoff hopes Tuesday night, beating the Pistons 98-91.

Lanier played 35 minutes against the Bucks and led Detroit with 19 points, but he was outscored by Milwaukee centre Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who had 27 points.

In other NBA games Tuesday, Chicago defeated Buffalo Braves 98-92, New York Knicks downed Philadelphia 76ers 99-95, Houston Rockets topped Atlanta Hawks 113-104, Washington Bullets beat New Orleans Jazz 110-105, and Portland Trail Blazers whipped Los Angeles Lakers 134-106.

In the American Basketball Association, San Antonio Spurs defeated San Diego Conquistadors 130-113, the Spirits of St. Louis topped Utah Stars 123-100, Denver Nuggets overcame Indiana Pacers 136-115, and Memphis Sounds defeated Virginia Squires 121-102.

INTRODUCING A NEW BEER

WHO'S GOING TO DRINK IT?

Cool Spring is a new light beer brewed especially for the person who likes the refreshment of a beer but wants a lighter taste. Cool Spring contains less alcohol than other Canadian beers. (For example, most beers offer around 5% alcohol by volume; Cool Spring's content is 3.9%). It's been brewed for the person who enjoys a light beer, now and then. But who is that person? It could be the business executive out at his local. A couple relaxing at home. Or a guy who likes to balance a large sandwich with a light refreshment.

"With my heavy responsibilities I like a light beer...now and then."

"What's a five letter word meaning...to illuminate?"

"My secret? I eat big but I drink light."

Choosing a beer is a personal thing. And there are just as many reasons to drink Cool Spring as there are people who enjoy it. But wherever, whenever, we think that Cool Spring has a unique lightness which will appeal to people who enjoy the refreshment of a light beer. Now and then.

Cool Spring by Labatt's. Maybe it's for you.

St. Louis Zeroes in on First Place

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Both scoring star Garry Unger and coach Garry Young say St. Louis Blues won't settle for anything but first place in the Conn Smythe Division of the National Hockey League.

The trouble is, Vancouver Canucks keep getting in their way.

The Blues were in a first-place tie for a few hours Tuesday night after Unger's two goals helped them whip Minnesota North Stars 7-3 at Bloomington, Minn.

A few hours later the Blues were back in second place when the Canucks trounced California Golden Seals 7-0 in a game that started three hours later.

"We want every game," said Unger. "It's important to us to get first place. We've got the momentum going".

Unger's two goals unleashed a four-goal barrage by St. Louis in the second period as the Blues flattened the North Stars and rookie goalie Peter LaFontaine. Wayne Merrick also scored twice for St. Louis.

"The Unger line is playing great hockey," said Blues coach Garry Young. "We want first place. We won't settle for anything less."

Rookie Ron Sedlbauer, John Gould and Don Lever scored two goals each for the Canucks. Lever's goals brought his season's total to 36.

Ken Lockett, replacing regular netminder Gary Smith, registered his first NHL shutout, stopping 31 shots. The Canucks fired 30 shots in the first period of California goaltender Gilles Meloche and opened up a 3-0 lead.

The Sabres became the first team in NHL history with 50 goal scorers when rookie Danny Gare scored into an empty net in the final minute of Buffalo's victory over Boston.

Gare scored his 49th goal when he pulled goalie Gilles Gilbert for an extra attacker.

Boston lost Ken Hodge, who suffered a cut right ear which required 15 stitches to close, and Terry O'Reilly, who reinjured his right ankle.

The win moved Buffalo back in front of the overall point standings, two points ahead of Montreal Canadiens. The overall leader gets the home-ice advantage in the Stanley Cup playoffs.

The slumping Kings had their chances of overtaking the Western Division-leading Canadiens eroded by the Scouts. Kansas City goalie Dennis Herron had 35 saves, including 16 in the last period.

The Islanders-Atlanta tie tightened the battle for fifth in the Patrick Division, where the Flames are trying to overtake Islanders. Both teams have 56 points, or the Rangers, who have 40 Atlanta has 18 points.

Ed Westfall scored his 21st goal of the season from the slot directly in front of the net during a New York power-play to give the Islanders their tie.

Tonight's NHL schedule has the Flames at Toronto Maple Leafs, Islanders-Penguins at Montreal, Washington Capitals at Detroit Red Wings, the Kings at St. Louis, the Scouts at Chicago and the Canucks at California.

Whalers Give Jets Boost

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

New England gave Winnipeg's playoff hopes a boost by beating Phoenix Roadrunners 5-3 Tuesday night, but the Whalers weren't trying to do the Jets any favors

"We want second place very badly and if we keep playing like we did tonight, we should get it," said interim coach Jack Kelley after the World Hockey Association game.

The win kept the Whalers in second spot in the over-all WHA point standings, which determine playoff pairings and home ice advantage. Houston Aeros have 100 points and the Whalers 89.

The loss left the Roadrunners four points in front of the Jets in the fight for a wild-card playoff spot, making them the easiest team for Winnipeg to catch.

Toronto Toros and Minnesota Fighting Saints all but rid themselves out of the playoff race by winning their games.

The Toros whaped In Indianapolis Racers 7-1 and the Saints defeated Vancouver Blazers 5-2. In other games, Baltimore Blades shaded San Diego Mariners 4-3, Quebec Nordiques beat Edmonton Oilers 5-3 and Chicago Cougars edged Cleveland Crusaders 3-2 in overtime.

This year's playoff format puts the top two finishers in each of the WHA's three divisions in the playoffs, which begin next week. The two also-ran teams with the highest point-totals get wild-card berths.

Tuesday's win by the Toros meant the Jets will have to wait four of their remaining five games, including a Friday night game at Toronto, to displace the Toros as second-place team in the Canadian Division.

That makes Winnipeg's best hope for post-season action a long shot. They would have to overhaul either San Diego or Minnesota, which share second place in the Western Division with 85 points, or Phoenix, which has 84.

The Roadrunners have two regular-season games remaining against Minnesota and Baltimore.

Kelley coached the Whalers to victory Sunday night against the Toronto Toros and about an hour before game time Tuesday announced that he would be handling the team for the rest of the regular season and the playoffs.

He replaces ailing Ron Ryan, who collapsed Sunday morning at Toronto International Airport after an airplane flight from Hartford. Medical tests proved negative, but Kelley said Ryan, 38, was being given the rest of the season off in his own best interests.

Phoenix coach Fred (Sandy) Hucul wasn't dismayed by the defeat.

"We've just about clinched a berth in the playoffs, but we'd like to finish as high up as possible," he said. "The Whalers were really up for this game.

Fred O'Donnell and Mike Byers scored two goals apiece for the Whalers, but it was Dave Blackburn's 16th goal of the season midway through the second period that proved to be the winner.

A third-period goal by Brian McDonald deprived Toronto hockey goalie Les Binkley of a shutout. Regular Gilles Gratton, criticized for his play in a Sunday night loss to New England, was not dressed.

Third-period goals by George Morrison, Don Tannahill and Mike Antonovich gave the Saints their win over the Blazers at St. Paul.

Alton White scored the winning goal for the Blades, who built a 4-0 lead at San Diego. Wayne Rivers reared his 52nd and 53rd goals for the Mariners, who gave him his 41st and 42nd goals of the season in the second period.

Tuesday's schedule has Quebec at Minnesota, Cleveland at Houston and Vancouver at Winnipeg.

The game ended on a sour note when a spectator became involved with St. Catharines coach Paul Emms. No punches were thrown but a crowd gathered around the Black Hawks' bench until police restored order.

Two first-period fights red-lighted Hawks' Willie Pitt and Bob Manno and Fincups' Ron Roscoe and Dave Norris getting game misconducts.

Ontario May Get Central League

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — With the Central Hockey League reported to be folding at the end of the 1974-75 season, plans are afoot to relocate most or all of league teams in Southern Ontario.

Two Oshawa sportsmen are investigating the possibility of putting a pro hockey team in Oshawa within the next year or two.

Tom Beale, owner of two hamburger chain franchises in the Durham region, and Mike Keenan, manager of the Whitby McDonalds of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A entry, have been meeting with Joe Kane, a Toronto lawyer and former president of the CHL.

"What we would be doing is simply picking up the Central Hockey League from the United States and placing it in southern Ontario," Beale said Tuesday.

It has been reported the CHL will fold at the end of the season, leaving several National Hockey League and World Hockey Association teams without developing farm clubs.

Although the idea is still being tossed around, the intention is to have the new franchise serve NHL and WHA teams as a feeder system.

"Our aim is to start a new professional league with eight teams within a close proximity to the south, then a sudden-death game should be held to determine the fourth spot in the South.

New Haven will now meet Virginia Red Wings, first-place finishers in the South, in a seven-game quarter-final series beginning Friday at Norfolk.

Dave Cressman, Al Langlais and Rick Chinnick were the top-goal scorers for New Haven and Rick Nantais and Scott MacPhail added single goals.

Joe Noris had two goals for Syracuse and Luc Simard scored the other.

Tonight, three quarter-final series begin with Springfield Pioneers at Providence, Nova Scotia at Rochester and Hershey at Richmond.

Hawks Get by Eagles

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (CP) — New Haven Nighthawks got two goals each from three different players Tuesday night to defeat Syracuse Eagles 8-5 and qualify for an American Hockey League playoff berth.

New Haven finished the regular-season schedule in fifth place in the Northern Division while Syracuse was fourth in the South.

Baltimore Clippers dropped from the Southern Division midway through the season, leaving only four teams in the division. League directors ruled that should the fifth-place team in the North finish with more points or a better percentage than the fourth-place finisher in

Pyramid Miracles Claimed

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — Bruce Knapp says he recently got his 66th shave from a razor-blade and, with more help from his pyramid, will continue to get smooth shaves from it.

Mr. Knapp, granted the right by Everite Distributors of Toronto to sell model pyramids in Ontario, is one of an increasing number of persons who believe a model pyramid can work mysterious wonders.

He keeps his razor-blade under a model pyramid and said that keeps the blade sharp.

Model-pyramid research in Canada recently has attracted the interest of individuals and private groups, such as the 40 members of the Canadian branch of Huna Research Associates of nearby Lakefield.

Pyramid-power investigators said they know of no Canadian university or scientific agency researching the alleged wide-ranging abilities of pyramids to produce miracles.

Here are a few uses that some persons and groups say they find for the pyramid, constructed of wood, metal or cardboard:

—Model pyramids are hung over house plants in the belief the plants will grow faster and better.

—Pyramid-shaped tents are becoming popular among persons seeking improved meditation sessions.

—Model pyramids can be used to "mummify" dehydrate without rotting) such foods as bread, fish and apples.

—Model pyramids promote faster healing and relieve such illnesses as colds, headaches and arthritis.

—Plants grow better in pyramid-shaped terrariums.

—Pyramids can be used to improve the taste of wines and water from stagnant ponds.

Mr. Knapp said in an interview that his son gave him a model pyramid last Christmas and it has won his respect.

The pyramid entrepreneur said he previously got only four or five shaves out of a razor-blade but his 66-shave blade "is as good as the day I started."

Henry Everite, president of Everite Distributors, said pyramids should not be regarded only as a hobby.

"We need thousands of people to do research with pyramids," Mr. Everite said. "Ten years from now, we may have to know pyramid energy to survive as a species.

"Our food is running short. Our energy is running short. . . . Many may only survive by looking into the next level of energy."

Food Industry Effluent Becomes Food

BIRMINGHAM, England (CP)—A British university research team has discovered a new process to convert effluent from food industries into animal feed.

The process can be used to convert the daily effluent waste from food factories, breweries, maltings, distilleries and vinegar works and other sugar or starch processing industries. A mould is formed by using a fermentation system and then the mould is dried and incorporated in a balanced animal feed.

The process has been pioneered at University of Aston here. The research team is led by Dr. H. N. Greenshields of the department of biological sciences, who first thought of the idea several years ago when he was working in the brewing industry.

In the process the effluent, which contains up to two percent sugar solution, is adjusted by some slight addition of salts and then pumped into the base of a glass fermentation column. Mould is introduced in the form of the common aspergillus niger—the black mould "that sometimes forms on neglected food. By blowing air through the effluent a continuous mould growth is induced to a degree that the mould is carried over the top of the fermenter to pass over with the effluent to a separator vessel and extractor.

The original effluent can be released as waste with no further treatment. The mould is recovered as single-cell protein material with great potential as animal feed additive.

The project still is in the pilot stage of development but edible mould is being produced with a protein value of about 70 per cent. It is being substituted for fishmeal protein and fed to trout for nutritional evaluation.

Mice Can Be Taught New Tricks

LONDON (Reuter)—Can a mouse be taught new tricks—just by an injection?

Yes, say United States researchers. Mice can "borrow" the memory of other mice by an injection of chemicals extilled from crushed mouse-brain.

Some British scientists greeted the claims with suspicion but it is the kind of research that may one day lead to "vibrant learning" pills.

The breakthrough in understanding the complex process by which the brain unscrambles messages and stores information is described in a recent edition of the New Scientist magazine.

The work, by C. J. Radcliffe and J. W. Shelton of Baylor University medical school, Houston, Tex., is likely to renew debate on a subject that has sinister implications but might ultimately help the mentally retarded.

They found that mice injected with extracts from the brains of mice trained in running a maze learned to run the maze faster than untreated mice.

They taught one batch of mice to locate a cup of water in a maze quickly by depriving them of water. The researchers then killed and extracts prepared from their brains.

This "brain juice" was injected into a second batch, who run the maze in 280 sec. onds on average. A batch of control mice took 560 seconds to run the course.

The experiment was based on a theory that the brain acquires information by chemical changes in its nerve cells. These changes occur naturally when we learn to, say, the classroom.

But the theory is that they can be induced artificially if the chemicals in which the learning is "encoded" can be isolated and implanted.

A British scientist who asked that his name not be used is sceptical of the claims.

"It's such an attractive idea that everyone tries to do it," he said. "If you have enough shots, you're bound to get a success. But it doesn't mean anything."

Takes No Chances

LONDON (CP) — Rampton Hospital, a top security hospital, is taking no chance. Administrators are installing extra warning sirens to sound when dangerous patients escape.

Plastic Portable

This is the interior of an experimental plastic school addition being tested in Lancashire, England. The classroom is constructed of fire-resistant plastic tetrabedral panels requiring no framework. Once the foundation was laid, construction of the unit took only four days. (CP Photo)

Fascism Revives In Today's Italy

ROME (Reuter) — Fifty years after Benito Mussolini proclaimed a Fascist state and 30 years after its collapse, Italy is experiencing an upsurge of Fascist activity.

The air is thick with rumors of rightist plots, attempted coups d'etat, bomb threats, even a plan to hijack a plane and free two jailed Fascist leaders.

Much of this is the exaggerated pipe dream of romantics yearning for "strong" government and punctual trains. But it has a serious side—ordinary people are getting hurt.

The Rome suburb of Balduina is a prosperous, mainly middle-class, residential area which has seen a sharp rise in political violence over the last few years.

Last year it reached such proportions that the "democratic" parties in Balduina, from Communists to Christian Democrats, formed an anti-Fascist committee for protection. They reported 20 major episodes of Fascist violence in eight months.

In typical incidents, about 15 Fascists attack a couple of students distributing left-wing literature or raid a shop whose owner is sympathetic to the Communists.

A couple of Fascist youths might approach a passer-by in the street and whisper the word "comrade." If he turns around, they assume he is a Communist and beat him up.

Sometimes victims are lucky to escape with their lives. Last month, a gang ambushed a student, stabbed him several times and smashed his skull. He was on the danger list for several weeks.

A member of the extreme right-wing Italian Social Movement (MSI) is in prison charged with this attack. He is thought to be the only Fascist actually in jail in Balduina on charges of violence, of hundreds denounced to police.

The case raised a national outcry with the report that the accused had earlier attacked a pregnant woman, causing her to lose her baby.

The victim, Giuseppina Mazzarella and her husband run a co-operative store and they have become a target for Fascist attacks. In the last year Bartolo Mazzarella has been physically attacked six times and his shop was broken into twice, presumably because he is one of the leaders of the anti-Fascist committee.

The store's display window is continually plastered with Fascist posters.

Some leftist organizations have reacted to violence with violence. The MSI said a former party secretary, now in hospital, was shot three times by left-wing extremists.

But people in Balduina appear much more afraid of the Fascists than of the Communists.

A fortnight ago, a restaurateur complained of a large Fascist gang which left without paying for a meal. But he withdrew his complaint after a visit from three hefty youths.

Other cases of intimidation are numerous. The anti-Fascist committee says shopkeepers are offered "protection" in return for donations to MSI funds.

The committee complained that the police pay virtually no attention to repeated complaints of attacks by Fascists. When Mrs. Mazzarella was beaten up, the police did not arrive until nearly an hour later.

In reply, police officers cited undermining and an excess of time-consuming secretarial work. Only on rare occasions have they brought charges against Fascists.

Tomaso Mazzoz, a Communist party member who has been physically assaulted many times, said Fascists are using the tactics developed in the 1930s.

"They send in a whole gang of youths trained in gymnasiums to disrupt life in specific areas," he said. "In this way they can turn a minority into a majority."

The gangs are picked from the neighborhood boys, he said. Not completely accepted and trying to show their superiority over workers, they turned to violence.

But if there are similarities between the present situation and the pre-Mussolini era, there are also differences.

Fifty years ago, Fascist attacks were well co-ordinated from above and almost entirely politically motivated. Today, criminologists said there is a large element of juvenile delinquency.

And unlike the political environment of the 1920s, today the vast state propaganda machine is turned on full-blast against fascism.

IN MEMORIAM

COTTRELL — In loving memory of our dear husband and father who passed away April 3, 1974.
Not dead to us who loved him,
Not lost, but gone before
He lives with us in memory,
And loves us evermore.
Sadly missed and remembered by wife and daughter.

CRAWFORD, Ada Louise — What passed away April 3, 1971.
Four years, have passed since that sad day,
Then one we loved was called away.
God took him home, it was His will,
But within our hearts he lives still.
—Lovingly remembered by daughter Dorothy and son-in-law Harold.

POOT, Ruby — In loving memory of our dear mother, who passed away 1 year ago today.
Every day is some sad way,
Memories of you come our way.
Though absent you are ever near,
Still memory lived and always dear.
Sadly missed and fondly remembered by Carol, Ray and Debbie.

ELEGANT CENTURY HOME

Carefully maintained and built by a professional builder more than 120 years ago — A centre hall with a formal dining room one side and living room on the other — the Georgian style fireplace in the living room burns either wood or coal. The master bedroom on the second floor is 18 feet 8 inches long by 12 feet 9 inches wide. The other 3 rooms are equally spacious — there are 2 bathrooms — roomy closets in all rooms.

WANT TO DISCUSS BUSINESS?

We have two profit earning grocery and convenience stores to sell. Both are the "neighborhood" type, need cash and not too close to competition. Both are priced to sell and financing can be discussed.

Hollywood Salutes Canada

LOS ANGELES (AP) — At long last, the Hollywood film community has acknowledged the contributions of Canada.

United States films since their earliest years have been enriched by Canadian talent—Mary Pickford, Mack Sennett, Norma Shearer among the pioneers. Even Louis Mayer came from Minsk, Byelorussia, via Nova Scotia.

Other film figures from Canada include Walter Pidgeon, Yvonne DeCarlo, Lorne Greene, Norman Jewison, Michael Sarrazin, William Shatner, Raymond Burr, Leslie Nielsen, Geneviève Bujold, Arthur Hiller, Charles Jarrott.

Last week the Los Angeles International Film Exposition, the local version of the Cannes Film Festival, offered an "Homage to the National Film Board of Canada." Twenty-seven films produced by the board were shown to an admiring audience.

The chairman of the National Film Board and the Canadian government film commissioner, Sydney Newman, came here to accept the honors, and he explained his operation, which seems unique in the film world.

"We're a government agency founded by an act of Parliament, yet we can make films with utterly no political interference," said Newman.

"We're never stigmatized as a state propaganda agency. Our job is to interpret Canada and Canadians to themselves and to the outside world. The watts are not concealed, and as a result we sometimes come under attack.

"But there is never any pressure from the government to avoid controversial films."

The film board has produced movies about poverty, labor and French-English relationships that have aroused anger but no censorship. The board's films have brought praise as well as controversy. A French-language feature, Mon Oncle Antoine, won an Oscar nomination.

Two animated films from Canada are in Oscar contention this year.

"Our budget for the past year has been $22 million," said Newman. "In addition, we receive revenues when the films are placed in distribution. Last year they earned $4.5 million."

Unlike the United States where film departments within the government operate independently, no department in Canada can spend money on film without going through the board. All film procurement has been centralized. So our budget really amounts to $30 million to $32 million."

The film board has another advantage over the U.S. Movies by the U.S. information service cannot be shown in the U.S. (An exception was made for the agency's account of the assassination of President John Kennedy).

The Canadian Film Board shows its movies in theatres and schools throughout Canada and on prime-time television about 18 times a year, both on English-and French-language channels.

One of the board's features, Cry of the Wild, even found its way to U.S. theatres, earning more than $5 million.

Canadian film-making has been spotlighted lately because of the success of The Apprenticeship of Duddy Kravitz, which was partially financed by the Canadian Film Development Corp. That agency has supported several projects that have brought attention to film-making in Canada.

"About 40 features are made in Canada every year," Newman said, "but only 20 are ever released. The rest are what we call 'station wagon pictures,' made by a few people operating out of a station wagon."

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)— About 60,000 people poured into Kezar Stadium on Sunday for a fund-raising rock concert that ended with a surprise performance by Bob Dylan.

Joan Baez, the Grateful Dead, Tower of Power and Santana also played before the cheering crowd. Actor Marlon Brando came on stage to express his support for the event.

The sea of fans went wild as Dylan, who was not among the announced entertainers, came on stage with the Crosby, Stills and Young band.

The festival, organized by rock impresario Bill Graham, sold about 40,000 tickets at $5. The money was to go to bail out the San Francisco school system, which had cut many popular extracurricular programs.

The Board of Education, meanwhile, disclosed that a $2.1-million windfall had been discovered, tucked away among school finances, which might end the financial crisis.

Graham was reported to be looking around for another way to raise for the money, since apparently the funds raised by the rock event might not be needed.

LONDON (Reuter)—Eton College, England's famous school for the sons of gentlefolk, was reeling after a talk Friday night by a "most outrageous" lecturer — Angela Bowie, wife of pop star David Bowie.

Mrs. Bowie, 25, addressed more than 300 boys in their traditional white ties, black tailcoats and pin-stripe trousers on her life as model, actress and wife of singer David Bowie.

"I've had the most fantastic time with the sweet boys," Mrs. Bowie, dressed in a black and yellow dress slit to the thigh, said later. "I've not had such an unusual evening for years."

The boys agreed.

"She must be the most-outrageous guest of the year," said one. "She is really extrovert and her talk was liberally scattered with swear words. But all the boys thought she was terrific."

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Former film and radio comedienne Cass Daley died to death after she apparently fell on a goblet that shattered and cut her in the neck, police said Sunday.

The body of Miss Daley, 59, was found in her Hollywood apartment Saturday night by her husband, Robert Williamson. The actress' legal name was Catherine Willamson.

Miss Daley played in the 1940s film Duffy's Tavern, and appeared on radio with Bing Crosby, Bob Burns and Frank Morgan. She also had her own radio show, The Flitch Bandwagon.

She was found dead on a sofa. Investigators said a shattered goblet was nearby. They said Miss Daley apparently had stumbled and fallen on the glass, which shattered and drove a small shard into her neck.

An autopsy was scheduled.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Thursday, April 3

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Using pressure to achieve results will not be effective today. Be tactful. You'll catch more flies with honey than vinegar.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're likely to waste much time today trying to fix blame for a blunder. It's far wiser to just correct the mistake.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Don't expect another to do more for you than you're willing to do in return. If you want to dance, you must pay the piper.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your attitude will determine the kind of response you receive from others today. If you're sharp-tongued or cranky, expect a reply in kind.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You don't readily take to suggestions today. You fear others are dictating rather than trying to help.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) An unpleasant social experience can be avoided today if you excuse yourself from the presence of one with whom you've had angry words.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Something you've promised has been neglected. Today you'll be pressured to get the job done by victims of your procrastination.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your first reaction today is to view situations negatively. Remember, they may have a bright side as well.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Someone already indebted to you will try to tap you again if he thinks he can get away with it. If you give in, don't cry about it later.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) On an important matter today, don't saddle yourself with one who can't carry her weight. She's a handicap you can't afford.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) The weight on your shoulder is the heavy hand of neglected responsibility. Resent, but don't try to do what you've let ride all at once.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't let yourself be pressured into doing things against your better judgment. When you say "No," mean it.

Cold Virus Dies Outside of Body

By G. C THOMPSON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: How long do head cold germs live? Would the germ live three hours, six hours, a day? How about a child picking up the handkerchief of a person who has a cold? Could he get the cold?—Mrs. H. K.

Questions about the common cold always intrigue me, and when I get reader mail on the subject I scurry back to the new literature and to my research expert friends.

And you know what? I find that not much more is known about it than was known last year or many years before. But the common cold ha sbeen, and continues to be, the subject of much investigation. And certain facts are known.

There are more than 80 viruses which can be involved, so that should tip you off that no answer to your question is going to be simple. There is no doubt that there are "cold seasons" just as there are "flu seasons," and these tend to be in the winter, although summer colds are not uncommon.

Studies have been conducted to try to answer your question, questions about the transmissibility of colds. Volunteers have been subjected to the infectious material—the sputum and nasal secretion of virus-ridden. Strangely, the majority of the volunteers did not develop any symptoms of a cold.

Yet we know that colds are spread by droplet infection and can follow the sneezing or coughing route from one person to another.

What about temperatures? Coldness has been shown not to be a factor, while humidity has been. It is common to have a prolonged stretch of bitter cold weather and have a noticeable absence of cold incidence. In fact, there is evidence that temperatures lower than that of the body very quickly render a cold virus inactive.

So where do colds come from? Healthy persons, free of cold symptoms, have been shown to harbor cold viruses in their nasal membranes, in the sneeze or kiss from such a person can transmit the virus to another person.

Now to your handkerchief question. I don't think we can measure the virus life in terms of hours, for it is doubtful whether a cold virus can exist outside the body environment that long. Mitutes, perhaps seconds, seems more reasonable.

So very immediate contact seems required. This is why children seem to collect and distribute cold viruses so readily. They are uninhibited in conduct, and this usually brings them into constant and close contact with cold virus carriers. At home, in the evening, a bedtime kiss can easily transfer the germ to parents.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What, is "bird disease," specifically, its proper name, cause, symptoms, treatment and prognosis?—M.

You are probably referring to psittacosis, a virus-caused disease transmitted to man from birds of the psittacine family (perrots, parakeets and lovebirds), and to a lesser extent by pigeons and some poultry.

The commonest means of infection in man is through the breathing of dust from feathers or droppings at the bottom of cages in homes. It can be passed on, though, through bites or scratches from infected birds.

Its disease resembles pneumonia. X-rays of the lungs of infected persons bear strong resemblance to those taken in early stages of pneumonia, and the symptoms are similar—fever, chills, headache, backache and a dry cough. Treatment includes antibiotics and bed rest.

The incidence of the disease became alarmingly high during the 1930s, before strict controls were imposed on importers. Today, there is little danger in purchasing such birds from reliable dealers.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I would like to know if any physical damage can come from taking a teaspoon of cod liver oil every day?—F. L.

No. But if you are watching your weight, you should be advised that there are more than 100 calories in each teaspoonful. It is a rich source of Vitamins A and D. But it need not be taken if you are on capsules or tablets containing those vitamins.

Inflation To Moderate

WASHINGTON (AP) — A top administration economist predicts the moderating trend of inflation will continue in the coming months with further relief in the non-food area. James L. Pate, assistant commerce secretary for economic affairs, gave that report after the labor department's report that consumer prices rose six-tenths of one per cent in February.

Opening lead — 5 ♦

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

Here is a hand from the recent World's championship, where the unfortunate declarer might well fill the roll of the Unlucky Expert.

The bidding is interesting and very very instructive. Look over the cards will show that North and South can collect 13 easy tricks at notrump, spades or hearts. Of course, a suicide spade break would ruin all grand slams but in this case we can see that the spades are going to behave nicely.

Anyway, South found himself a conservative six-heart contract. The five of diamonds was opened and some five minutes later, South had played the deuce from dummy. East, was the trick, led the suit back and watched the slam go to never-never land.

Most of the time we tell people that you can find sympathy in the dictionary somewhere between stupidity and unconsciousness, but this time we do sympathize with poor South.

He had no sound reason to expect a singleton diamond lead and had he played the diamond ace the lead would have collapsed against a four-one spade break. This way, if East had to win the trick with the king or queen he would not have been able to lead the suit back and South could then have handled a 4-1 spade break.

Developer at Ottawa Gives Million for Art

OTTAWA (CP) — The name Harold Shenkman has begun making headlines on the national cultural scene lately as a million-dollar patron of the arts.

Mr. Shenkman says that although the National Gallery is situated here Ottawa must have its own municipal art gallery if local and area artists are to receive the recognition and encouragement they deserve. The Ottawa developer is so convinced that he has donated $1 million towards the establishment of a civic art centre.

Born and raised in Ottawa, Mr. Shenkman is the president of Shenkman Corp. Ltd., a local land development company. He has been gathering art objects himself for more than 20 years but says he did not consciously set out to build a collection.

"It is just that as I went along and saw lovely things I acquired some of them."

He describes his collection as a hodge-podge consisting of "things that I like—things that were chosen for their esthetic rather than investment value."

Mr. Shenkman says he believes that art should be an indispensable part of people's lives.

"A lot of people don't realize what art can do for them. In my opinion its better than drinking. It gives one a lift, a joie de vivre."

He describes his proposed municipal gallery as a place where "people and art can get close together" as well as a place where artists will feel recognized and appreciated. He sees it incorporating workshops and studios for local artists, photographers and artisans as well as exhibition areas.

The National Gallery can provide some impetus to local artists, he says, but its function is to cover the entire Canadian scene, not just Ottawa.

The art centre will cost more than $2 million—but the total cost is uncertain until the size and uses of the building are determined.

The proposed site is a two-acre lot on Wellington Street near the Garden of the Provinces, a few blocks west of Parliament Hill. A new National Gallery is to be built across the street.

There will be an open competition where architects from across Canada are invited to submit designs for the centre. Mayor Lorry Greenberg hopes excavation for the building will start in the spring or early summer of 1976.

Bus Is Back

WASHINGTON (AP) — The humble but handy bus, long eclipsed in commuting supremacy by autos, is making a comeback, says the Road Information Program. One cause of its popularity is a federal program that pays 80 per cent of the purchase costs.

Inventor Develops Rain Shield for Car

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian Patent 957908 will not improve the quality of drive-in movies, but at least it will let you see what is on the screen.

It's the patent number of a rain shield, the most recent invention of Frank Stayles, 37, a teacher of mathematics and computer science at Algonquin College who is also a part-time inventor.

His rain shield is a portable canopy that prevents rain from spattering over the windshield of a parked car. The device is built of 20 feet of plastic stretched across the roof of the car. It is supported by tubing that rests on the hood. Flaps are tucked inside the front-door jamb to anchor the shield.

Mr. Stayles said his invention will stand the test of time.

"There is enough junk on the market without adding to it. Some items collapse before even leaving the store. My invention will last.

"Though it looks fairly simple, building it presented a surprising number of problems. There are times when you think the difficulties are insurmountable but eventually everything is solved".

The rain shield, which he said cost about $1,000 to develop, is being tested in potential markets. Mr. Stayles' brother Harold in London, Ont., handles the marketing. The inventor said this is a difficult task.

"Design determines the worth of a patent. If a design doesn't interest big industry then the patent isn't much good".

Reds Are Poised North of Saigon

SAIGON (AP) — Military officials issued shoot-to-kill orders today to prevent protests and disturbances in Saigon as up to 50,000 Communist-led troops massed 40 to 50 miles to the northwest and northeast of the capital.

Saigon's 10 p.m.-5 a.m. curfew was extended to 9 p.m.-6 a.m.

Despite the orders, Nguyen Van Binh, the Roman Catholic archbishop of Saigon, called for the resignation of President Nguyen Van Thieu, joining growing demands that Thieu step down in the wake of battlefield losses that have cost South Vietnam three-quarters of its territory.

Police stopped a demonstration of about 200 people demanding Thieu's resignation, but no shots were fired.

Opposition to Thieu is growing daily in Saigon, and last week he was threatened by armed military stragglers from the central and southern provinces who are stopping into the city without reporting to the army.

As a result, the local military commander today forbade mass assemblies, demonstrations and the carrying of wiapons without a permit.

"Local authorities have orders to shoot and kill on the spot those whatever who try to resist or flee," a communique said.

The movement of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops toward the capital was immediately detected, but since Communist-led forces control many of the roads around Saigon, an assault on it could be mounted quickly.

The South Vietnamese army, which lost half of its 13 divisions in the debacle that cost it the northern and central parts of the country, concentrated forces in Tay Ninh province to the northwest of Saigon and in Long Khanh province to the northeast.

The government has about 50,000 men in the Saigon area, including three divisions and militia forces, and three more divisions southwest of the capital in the Mekong Delta.

The Viet Cong renewed its offer of peace negotiations if Saigon got rid of President Nguyen Van Thieu and formed a new government. But despite the opposition to him that was mounting in the capital, Thieu gave no indication that he might quit.

Aid Depends On Reaction

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ford administration decisions on the amount of additional military aid to South Vietnam probably will depend on how effectively the Saigon government establishes a new defence perimeter.

People in Saigon Fear Own Troops

SAIGON (AP) — The sound of gunfire, exploding grenades and artillery echoed through the streets of Saigon, capital city of South Vietnam, but no one took any notice.

"It's only government propaganda," a Vietnamese reassured a nervous foreigner and pointed to loudspeakers tied to lamp posts in Lam Don Square.

The speakers blare continuous exhortations for the population to resist the Communists and boast with sound effects of government forces heroically defending Hue and Da Nang.

Everyone knows the army hasn't fought; that Hue, Da Nang and a dozen other cities have been lost, and that the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese are pushing closer to the capital.

Although there have been some signs of fright and flight, most of Saigon's 3½ million people seem to be facing up to the inevitable.

Their greatest fear seems not to be the North Vietnamese and Viet Communist forces less than 50 miles away, it is that armed, defeated, embittered government troops will run amok in the city.

Rules Broken, Children Saved

Fifty-five Vietnamese Orphans Flown from Saigon to Oakland

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Their eyes wide with wonder and showing no ill effects from a 25 hour dash across the Pacific from endangered Saigon, 88 Vietnamese orphans have arrived to a new life in the United States.

A World Airways DC-8 carrying the orphans touched down Wednesday night at Oakland International Airport. Most of the children, including some fathered by U.S. servicemen, already have been adopted.

Two of the orphans were left at the U.S. Air Force base at Yokota, Japan, on the advice of one of the two doctors on board the plane. Gene Hilderbrand of the Seventh Day Adventist Hospital in Saigon.

"They were malnourished and dehydrated and I didn't want to risk them on the long hop across the Pacific to the States," Hilderbrand said. "We'll leave them in Japan a couple of days."

The youngsters brought on to Oakland are the first refugees of the Vietnam war to arrive in the U.S., and immigration officials gave all of them 90-day parole visas. The few children not already adopted were given indefinite parole visas.

The plane's captain was Ken Healy of San Leandro, Calif., who flew refugees in collapsing cities in mainland China in the late 1940's and who says Vietnam today is worse.

Also aboard was an U.S. contractor who said he was convinced Saigon soon would fall into Communist hands.

World Airways also expected some problems from the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) because it broke a lot of federal regulations in carrying the orphans on a seatless cargo jet. Children and adult attendants sat on the floor for the 25-hour journey.

"I don't care if I lose my license," Healy said. "It would be a cheap price to pay to bring these kids from danger to their American families."

Healy flew the last refugee flight out of Da Nang last Saturday, ignoring U.S. officials who warned him not to land there. His Boeing 727 was dunned aged during that rescue when South Vietnamese soldiers, angry because they couldn't get aboard, fired on the plane as it took off. But he managed to make it to Saigon. The plane also was hit by North Vietnamese fire.

The DC-8 left Saigon after a day-long hassle between local authorities and World Airways officials.

One orphanage refused to send the children, and World Airways said the U.S. embassy had advised the orphanage against the flight. The embassy says the orphanage pulled out on its own, because the DC-8 was heatless and not pressurized.

Actually, the plane was warm and pressurized. The only real danger was in landing, takeoffs and occasional turbulence.

Seems Our Spring April Fool's Joke

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

When April 1 arrived, the snow was disappearing and the promise of spring was in the air. But judging by today's weather conditions, that turned out to be a cruel April Fool's joke.

The district office of the provincial ministry of natural resources reported today over five inches of compacted snow fell in Hastings County overnight with that amount combined with freezing rain and sleet in the southern portion.

Ontario Provincial Police at Belleville said roads in their jurisdiction were in "disastrous" condition but only one traffic accident, that of a transport sliding into a ditch on Highway 401, was reported.

Madoc OPP said county roads in their sector were slippery and ice-covered but highways were passable. No traffic mishaps were reported there or in Bancroft, where OPP said roads were "terrible" and there was a heavy snowfall.

A transportation spokesman for the Hastings County Board of Education said 75 per cent of its buses were cancelled, including all buses in the northern half of the county.

22 Orphans Will Be Flown To Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — Expressing his "profound sympathy for the many thousands of persons displaced from their homes in South Vietnam and Cambodia," Immigration Minister Robert Andras said Wednesday that 22 Cambodian orphans will be brought to Canada as soon as transportation arrangements can be made.

Mr. Andras also said in a written statement that his department will co-operate with the United Nations refugees commissioner in any action by the international community that may be necessary to help alleviate human suffering in South Vietnam.

Will Study Livestock Quotas

WASHINGTON (CP) — Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan of Canada came out of a meeting with U.S. Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz here Wednesday and said that livestock quotas between the two countries remain unchanged.

However, Whelan said: "We decided our officials should get together as quick as possible and work out a workable program that is satisfactory to both countries.

"I think the situation is one that we want our producers to know where they're going so that they can plan production."

Butz said that so far as the United States quotas on Canadian beef and pork are concerned—placed in retaliation to Canadian quotas on U.S. beef and sheep—they were instituted by the president and "only the president can change them."

"Working technicians" could only make recommendations to send to the president, he said, adding that the Canadian minister had more power in this regard than did the U.S. secretary.

Khmer Rouge Probes Phnom Penh Outskirts

PHNOM PENH (AP) — The Khmer Rouge drove hundreds troops into disorderly retreat eight miles northwest of Phnom Penh and made probing attacks at Cambodian government towns, field reports said today.

The United States embassy began evacuating "non-essential" members of its staff and persons working for U.S. firms and voluntary agencies. The first plane took 52 persons, most of them South Koreans and Filipinos, to Bangkok.

The embassy said Wednesday it would send about 15 per cent of its staff of about 200 plus an unannounced number of other foreigners to the Thai capital this week.

Mall Development Plan Scaled Down

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Dimensions of a multi-million dollar commercial-residential development centred on Belleville's northend Quinte Mall have had to be scaled down.

Unexpected complications posed by land quality problems have forced Cambridge Leaseholds — developer of the proposed mall-centred complex of hotel, industrial and apartment facilities — to limit its planning details for the present, city council learned Wednesday night.

The news came from city manager Wilbur Purcell, as council debated its 1975 capital works budget, totalling more than $3.5 million.

Mr. Purcell said Cambridge intends going ahead with expansion of the present mall and construction of two apartment towers, totalling 200 living units immediately south of the mall, across Bell Blvd.

But development of an industrial park and motor hotel west of the mall has been deferred.

The unexpected stumbling block was unearthed by engineering studies, said the city manager. They showed land marked for the hotel and industrial site required "a tremendous amount of fill" to prepare it for development.

The problem — with its attendant added financial costs — was not anticipated when Cambridge announced the major expansion plan a year ago.

At that time, estimated investment in the new facilities was $15 million.

The city manager's announcement obviously took council by surprise.

"This is all news to me," observed Mayor Robin Jeffery.

The unforeseen complication caused Cambridge to "lower their sights" on the total plan of expansion, the city manager said after the meeting.

However, the de eloper, while faced with a delay in part of the program, is "anxious to go ahead with mall expansion and apartment buildings," said Mr. Purcell, who has been in contact with Cambridge officials over the situation.

The ambitious scheme was announced April 1974 as the Quinte Mall Neighborhood Development.

All facilities announced at that time would have covered an additional 42 acres — the bulk of the area marked for the industrial park and shopping centre expansion.

The plan calls for adding 15.5 acres to the present shopping centre site — raising its area to 39 acres. It will almost double its store area to 440,000 square feet.

Other land breakdowns: Apartments, 7.8 acres; industrial park, 15 acres; hotel, five acres.

Snow Kites in April ?

Freak winter storms in April might bring out the worst in people but it brought out the best for a couple of youths early today during the height of the sleet and snowfall. Two boys were sighted on their front lawn on Catharine St. flying kites in what could only be termed bad flyin ground-conditions. One boy, to tell the snow to "begone", a robin was seen shivering on Wellington Cres.

Trenton Residents Face Higher Water Rates

TRENTON — After May 1, Trenton residents will be paying 25 per cent more a month, or 3½ cents more per day, for their water.

The jump in the water rate was announced by the utilities commission, Wednesday. It will apply to all town water users.

For the average homeowner, the increase will mean an additional monthly payment of $1.05, to $5.05 from $4.00. The minimum monthly bill will increase $3.45 from $3.75.

Industrial and commercial water users face a proportional, 25 per cent jump. Where it once cost 31 cents each 100 cubic feet for the first 10,000 cu. ft. (approximately 82,300 gallons), it will now cost 39 cents each 100 cu. ft. After the base level, rates move down the higher the consumption.

The last water rate increase came into effect Jan. 1, 1974.

Commission manager Douglas Manlow said Wednesday the rate increase is needed to finance an unprecedented jump in capital expenditures over the last four years.

"In the space of seven per cent of its (commission's) life of 56 years, it's (capital plant) has grown 25 per cent," he said. For the last 25 years, he said, the commission has refrained from major capital work projects."

As examples of the commission's capital expenditures, he sited the $700,000 16-inch water main that is being laid across the river between Mt. Pelion and the Chester St. filtration plant.

The project will enable the town to feed either side of the river from its two water sources — the river and the Murray well field. It is part of $1.6 — million capital works development program undertaken by the commission since 1971. Total worth of water department plant is $6—million.

Such rapid growth has placed "a severe financial strain" on the commission and prompted the rate increase, he said.

An estimated $71,000 will be raised by the increase this year. Most of money will come from the industrial and commercial users who consume about 65 per cent of the town's water.

Based to commission calculations, a householder will pay an additional 3½-cents daily over a month under the new rates. Average annual home use is pegged at about 4,900 gallons, or 182 gallons a day.

Spotted Fever Strikes

Milford farmer Lyle Jenkins is the first five years he has built up a stable of Appaloosa horses because of his pleasure he finds in raising this unusual breed.

County Horseman Has Spotted Fever

By MARG. HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

MILFORD — Milford farmer Lyle Jenkins is a victim of spotted fever with slim hopes for recovery.

First symptom of the disease, prevalent among horse enthusiasts was the impulse to respond to a "For Sale" ad in a farm publication.

A Peterborough country and western magazine had well had offered a number of his Appaloosa and Arabian horses for sale and Mr. Jenkins answered the ad.

His decision to buy an Appaloosa horse was made five years ago and since the acquisition of his brood mare Dixie, he has raised a number of quality colts.

Mr. Jenkins noted he had not considered the Appaloosa before reading the newspaper ad but he quickly developed interest in the breed after visiting the Brockwell stable.

The "App" appeals to Mr. Jenkins because of flashy coloring, even disposition and endurance.

Unlike the leopard, the Appaloosa can and does change its spots. Many of these unusual horses are born of almost solid chestnut, bay or black with only a sprinkling of white on their rumps. Frequently, their black-and-white artists turn almost completely white with little of the original dark coat showing. Foals are mottling is attractive and distinguishing as no two Appaloosas are marked alike.

Horsemen recognize the Appaloosa as falling into one of several basic color patterns.

The Snowflake App is mottled uniformly with white hairs while the blanket App is splashed with white predominantly on his hips and rump.

The Leopard pattern App is white with rear-end markings of black or brown shades.

Mr. Jenkins owns several Snowflakes and is eager to raise a Leopard pattern colt from his breeding stock.

In addition to its unusual coat markings, the Appaloosa is distinguished from other breeds by the Sclera or ring of white circling his eye and by partl-colored hooves. Also, the skin beneath the coat is mottled or speckled and this speckling is most readily detected around the nostrils. Mane and tail hair is commonly coarse.

Mr. Jenkins is primarily concerned with raising colts to promote the Appaloosa breed. He keeps a number of these and enjoys watching them develop and, in addition, finds promising individuals in horsemen interested in pleasure riding and the show ring.

He is one of the few Appaloosa breeders in Prince Edward County and looks forward to showing some of his stock at the Belleville Quinte area horse meets and fairs.

Provincial Task Force Outlines CAS Goals

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Children's Aid Societies across Ontario have examined the Hanson Task Force Report and studied their community services and this reassessment of function has been "a breath of fresh air" says Margaret Farina, assistant executive director of the Ontario Association of Children's Aid Societies.

Mrs. Farina, guest speaker at the annual meeting of the Prince Edward County Children's Aid Society, noted Wednesday she initially considered the Hanson Report "terribly restrictive." After reading it several times she said she then decided it presented, in a government document; a concept of service many have seen at a long-term goal.

"It made that goal clearer and it brought it closer and it put the child back in the family and recognized that families need help in today's world and that communities have a responsibility to provide that help," she observed.

Mrs. Farina quoted the report, commenting that it points out that paradoxically in the child welfare system there are apparently more resources for keeping a child at risk in alternative care facilities than for keeping him at home with his natural family.

The present system is often unable to support the family sufficiently to prevent the child's removal from the home.

Mrs. Farina added the Hanson report stresses the service direction of Children's Aid Societies must be toward greater emphasis on preventive services, on the family and the community.

Communities, says the Hanson report, should have home maker and nursing services, house repair, day care, vacation programs, parent training, household economics training debt and credit counselling and numerous other services.

Mrs. Farina says province-wide Children's Aid Societies are studying their communities and the services offered and there has been a re-identification of goals. Changes in the services societies are offering have resulted as well as changes in the how of service delivery.

Boards of directors are promoted membership drives and urging greater community involvement.

Director Says Society Taking New Direction

PICTON — Many frontline workers and supervisors in Children's Aid Societies are discouraged with "putting on band-aids" and are looking to preventive programs as a better answer observes Margaret Farina, assistant executive director of the Ontario Association of Children's Aid Societies.

Mrs. Farina said these workers grow tired of year after year of "picking up the pieces" after the event.

"Now there is new promise," she remarked.

"There are still pieces to be picked up but through the creative innovative programs that we see developing there is a chance to get at the problems before they develop into crises — to provide poses from falling apart — from becoming cases," she stressed.

Mrs. Farina added it is important, however, for workers to know their community, its pockets of need and its problems.

UIC Shortens Hours With New Picton Office

TRENTON — Unemployment Insurance Commission offices in Trenton will only operate two days a week starting this week as UIC officials make an effort to provide a better service and get closer to those it serves.

Mondays and Wednesdays, UIC staff will man an office in Trenton's Front St. federal building. Hours are set at 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Previously, said Vaughan Storey, UIC District Manager Wednesday, the offices here were open five days a week, but only four hours per day. However, it was found that most inquiries came Mondays and Wednesdays, thus making the five-day schedule unnecessary as well as costly.

The change in service in Trenton co-incides with this week's opening of an UIC office in Picton, Tuesdays and Thursdays.

At Mr. Storey said the new office in Prince Edward County was warranted because UIC officials handle about 1,300 active claimants in the county.

"In view of that, we felt it would be warranted," he said.

In Trenton, the same level of service will be maintained, but will be squeezed into two days. The office will serve as an information centre and neither handle claims nor adjudicate claims for benefits.

Society Changing

Children's Aid Societies across Ontario are re-identifying their goals, says Margaret Farina, assistant to H.H. Dymond, director of the Ontario Association of Children's Aid Societies. Mrs. Farina Wednesday described this shifting emphasis to members of the Prince Edward CAS.

We're a year-round firm. We don't disappear after April 30. Offices are open all year to help you with tax problems.

Are We Facing Facts?

A television announcer unblushingly told an unsuspecting public the other day the story of another of those freaky records.

It had to do with some youth who sat on a toilet seat for X number of hours and thereby he raised a sum of money for some worthy cause.

But spare a moment of embarrassment for both the announcer and the youth — and what's more important, increasing concern for the eccentricities of North American youth.

At a time, let it be known, that whole societies are falling apart in Asia; at a time when here at home there are inequities and hardship and conditions of poverty and sadness and rootlessness and bitterness and loneliness among our own population to be overcome.

Maybe the fellow on the toilet seat had more insight than we know, in the context say of the mystique of an island, to borrow from the musings of a colleague on another subject, the many-from-it-all syndrome. Time to think — and give effect to that concern for some beneficiary.

But are we orientated sufficiently these days to the realities of a tottering spiritual and material universe, to the realities of relative plenty (for how long?) in our own sphere and war, disease, and starvation in another? Easter has passed and in Belleville the churches were filled, but so too were the stores and the restaurants.

One family went out to dinner; and they also sent a donation to CARE at its 63 Sparks St. address in Ottawa.

Back from India with images of the kind of thing Canadians must confront at this time are writers Richard and Janet Lunn of Hillier.

They spent six weeks in the sub-continent and had this to say on their return: "What we saw was almost a warning for the whole of mankind. When you go to India, you can see the shape of the end of the world."

More than 600 million people with about 15 million more being born every year. Families living in railroad stations, whole generations brought up thus. Of course, India is not all like this; there is prosperity of a sort too, and progress in industry and social advances may be noted everywhere. Yet as the Lunns suggest, here and in the other teeming lands of Asia lie the seeds of social and economic upheavals perhaps unreamed of.

Activity In Quinte Area

These early days of April represent an end and a beginning for a number of Quinte area community events.

This evening marks the presentation of the last film of the season in the Kiwanis club's travel and adventure series: Nicol Smith's film on Fiji, Western Samoa, and Tonga.

Today also marks final preparations for the Rotary-sponsored Science Fair and Hobby Show at the Armories which will be a two-day event.

Then Sunday, April 6, sees the opening of the Quinte Arts Council's Artfest '75. Entitled Ballet Antics it is billed as a Quinte Dance Centre presentation also featuring the popular CFB Trenton Sing-Out group and it will take place at Centennial secondary school.

Further activities of the Artsfest will include a Visual Arts display April 10-26, a performance by the Eastern Ontario Concert Orchestra, Barbershop and Brass in concert, and a Theatre Guild production of The Music Man.

It is stated fare, with something for everyone. It is evidence too of the lively interest in the arts in this area.

Sex And Accident Toll

If Women's Lib or its variations had never materialized hitherto, a recent "stag" in Peterborough would surely have inspired someone on the distaff side to remedy that situation.

This was no ordinary stag either. Twenty-five members — a "chuckling handful" according to one report — of the Peterborough area chapter of Certified Technicians and Technologists had come to hear a public relations officer of the OPP.

The officer gave what was described as "an earthy half-hour presentation" outlining sexual and temperamental motivation behind the accident toll. It included slides and hand-sketched drawings of scantily-clad women, reflectors to "sexy short skirts" (much too distracting, apparently, to the eyes of red-blooded Canadian males, although, incidentally, considered safe and comfortable for women drivers), the dire effects of a wife's 'No' the night before, or a run-in with the boss, preoccupation with masculine "power," even an admission from the officer himself that he carries a towel in the car which he insists must cover his wife's knees, so that He will not be distracted; and finally, on the screen, a hand-traced reproduction of a Playboy magazine cartoon . . . as a finale.

In fairness to the OPP man there no doubt was considerable truth in his observations on the link between the machinations of the male psyche and accidents. Moreover, he was basing his remarks on a two-year study of accidents by Northwestern University researchers. Yet if anything reflected the murky thought processes of the North American male more markedly it was this "stag" in Peterborough. Some comments: "Good stuff," said one. "Brings it down to a level, observed the OPP man.

Reaction from the women-folk to the report was swift and incisive; A letter signed by seven members of the local International Women's Year committee expressed incredulity at the presentation of "as crass and tasteless a talk." It was a speech "dominated by contempt for women . . . a degrading and full of sexual scorn."

The letter concluded: "We who are working in status of women activities realize how far we and you and the OPP have to go."

It's a reaction that permits of no answer. As was observed in this space in another context of late, in the context of nationhood and national maturity: "Let's grow up!"

Orillia Fire

Not being from Orillia, it might seem churlish for us to take issue with the Council of that community in its demand for an apology from the CBC for the production of Orillia, Our Town, which was shown on national television recently.

The Council says the film left "much to be desired both from the viewer's interest together with the adverse portrayal of our city."

Apart from the standpoint of an outsider, the film certainly did not leave such an impression. Doubtless, there were aspects of Orillia life that were passed over, and citizens who did not get to have their say, but wouldn't that tend to be the case whatever was shown?

It is too bad Orillians think the film bombed, but it sounds rather as if they want to have their cake and eat it. Council is now asking that the CBC produce a new film stressing more positive aspects of the city.

Over and Above Moonlighting Speechwriters

P.R. Personnel Swell Ranks of Ottawa Bureaucracy

By RICHARD JACKSON,
OTTAWA — Just goes to show you, does it not that even in federal government inner power circles where public enterprise is the chosen instrument, private enterprise — when there is the demand and the price is right — still thrives.

There speaks the Bill Bulging Bureaucracy 500,000 strong, bursting with some 800 public relations types and in the market for another 400 or so — not counting the people of political in the payrolls of the Crown Corporation — but still buying speeches by writers-to-order the moonlighting newsmen.

It is both a satisfaction and reprisal of the lean and hungry private enterprising newshound on the bite and well-fed cats living out of the public trough.

It is a commentary too, that your average $10,000 to $15,000 a year newsman can do something that the $30,000 to $32,000 public relations man can't or won't.

It is all part of what has become the national scandal, of so many overpaid and underworked public servants in federal stenos making a starting $6,500 as against a girl in a law, municipal, or business office noting only an initial $4,800.

So the big-pay public relations types — many, or maybe even most of them fugitives from newspaper and radio newsrooms who could not hack the pressure and the hours — cannot effect out the glorious prose for which their federal bosses pay moonlighters as much as $1,500 a speech.

That is tops, $1,800, according to a cabinet report filed in the House of Commons.

So the speech-writer is loaded to board the speech-writing gravy train for those short well-paid word trips?

Or is it just a another way, how to keep your independence and cut in on the easy money?

Nothing to it.

From one of the more successful practitioners, still a resident of one of the nation's capitals, in the art of moonlighting speeches for as much as $1,800 the copy — herewith the secret.

Give The Man — the Minister or the Deputy or Whoever-in-the-Big-Bureaucracy is ordering the speech — the kind of thing the audience wants to hear.

The fail-safe formula is to play back to that audience its very own thoughts.

They are usually on record.

Especially if the audience is a delegation from a national organization that annually makes submissions to the feds.

And most national groups do just that — set out their positions, their proposals, and demands to a federal department, Minister of the Crown, or if they are big and important enough like the Canadian Chamber of Commerce or the Canadian Labor Council, to the full cabinet itself.

Then the Minister or his executive assistant calls with the word that The Man wants 30-minutes speech for such-and-such a national special interest group.

What to do?

Go to The Man's office.

Secure access to the department files and pull the folder containing all previous speeches about the special interest group for which the speech is to be tailored.

Find what its executives said when the organization last made its representations to the government. Note the points of special pleading, the areas of concern, the fields of suggested government action.

Lift the ideas. Re-work them, relabeling in essence their form. Write the speech touching all these idea banes.

Do it in such a way as to make it sound as if the Minister and the government, if not exactly buying them — as a package, recognize their intrinsic worth as other made in the national interest (what else!) to reach mutually acceptable solutions to the problems.

The group has problems, or it would not be seeing the Minister, or the cabinet, in person, pleading its own special interest and asking for their consideration.

So promise consideration — you commit The Man to nothing, really, and he knows this even as he reads the speech prepared — for "consideration" is one of those federal buz-words that sounds sincere and meaningful and has as much substance as a balloon.

But "consideration" has the promise of serious thinking and possible future action. Fe's is merely an expectant ear, reade nicely to anticipatory eyes.

Speech-writing is really only bubble-blowing.

Robarts as Federal P.C. Leader ?

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

TORONTO — The air here is buzz, buzz, buzz about John Robarts running for the next leadership of the country.

Some people say that he is just bidding off. Others say he is looking for a bit more pressure.

Whatever the reasons they give they are all sure he will be running.

Most impressive of all is that practically everybody, whether they believe he will run or not, thinks he can win the leadership if he wants to.

On this fact there is pretty wide agreement.

If Robarts wanted to run he could with little question take the honors.

He has a solid base of strength in Ontario.

But beyond that he is strong in Quebec and the east, and even if Peter Lougheed was his main opponent he could probably pick up a fair measure of support in the west.

In fact he might even be able to give Pierre Trudeau a jolting.

Actually this is undoubtedly his strongest quality.

He is the one Conservative on the national scene today who might make mince-meat of the prime minister.

And those of his colleagues who aren't actually sure of this sense it. Robarts, they know, has stature. And a stature that the Canadian public will buy.

Having said that one has to predict that there is not one chance in 100 that the former Ontario premier will go for the leadership.

Why?

Well above all reasons one would say it is simply that he is enjoying life too much these days.

He is leading a dream life.

He has perhaps more important directorships than anyone else in the country.

He is making lots of money. And if he needs any more all he has to do is snap his fingers.

He has his weekends off, can go fishing and sailing when he wants to, he has given more than 9 years to public life, 10 of them as premier, so why really should he get back into the rough and tumble.

He might have the potential of being one of our great prime ministers. But personally I don't think we will see it.

North Sea Oil Bonanza Hamstrung by Politics

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

LONDON — Britain's hopes for self-sufficiency in energy are built on North Sea oil.

But, so far at least, the ambitious program to bring that oil from the sea bed to British homes and cars has been beset by accidents, bad weather, late delivery of equipment, skyrocketing costs and the classical clash of political philosophy as to public vs private participation.

The first symbolic delivery of oil from the UK sector of the North Sea, scheduled for last June, still is awaited.

And as time passes, some Britons are beginning to wonder if the great oil crisis of 1973-75—which made North Sea oil seem doubly important to the United Kingdom—might itself be passing.

The Economist, one of the most influential of British periodicals, recently proclaimed the existence of an oil glut on world markets, with sellers trying to produce 20 per cent more oil than consumers want to buy at current prices, and with every country promoting an "energy policy" designed to expand its oil supply still further.

"That is a market in which to be a buyer (like Japan) could be very heaven," said The Economist, "and in which a potential seller like Britain should not bony up its hopes on North Sea bubble."

But Harold Wilson's Labor government obviously clings to the earlier belief that North Sea oil will be a bonanza, especially for Her Majesty's Treasury.

A month ago, after prolonged study, the government announced what it called a 45-per-cent "petroleum revenue" tax (PRT).

Then industry's side there immediately arose a protest that the PRT, going on top of the 11.5-per-cent royalty and 52-per-cent corporation tax, would result in a tax take of about 71 per cent of earnings from North Sea production.

Mr. Wilson's critics on the left, however, are complaining that the government is being far too generous (its tax will not take effect fully for another three-years) and that it should have followed the Norwegian government's lead in skimming off 75 per cent of the take right from the beginning.

But the announcement of the tax policy did let the oil companies know where they stand—at last—and has enabled them to make definite projections and plans for t'e first time.

To aspect'se the whole show, the Labor government is establishing the British National Oil Corp. (BNOC—pronounced beeknock—for short). Its headquarters will be at some place in Scotland, in recognition of the strongly nationalistic Scottish view that the North Sea is their pond.

In time, BNOC is to become fully integrated, with production and marketing operations. This will "strengthen its commercial position in the industry," according to government spokesmen.

Expansion of BNOC to that extent could well be a costly and wasteful gesture. Existing British refineries still operate at only half their capacity this year, and could easily handle North Sea production at the anticipated 1980 flow.

And on the marketing side, there is no shortage of retail outlets here.

The secretary of state for energy, Eric Varley, said recently: "The last thing we want to do is drive the oil companies out of the North Sea."

But the question is whether the doctrinaire socialists of Mr. Wilson's government can be restrained from doing just that, through their zealous meddling in a project whose difficulties could drive even the experts to despair.

Work of Citizens' Bureau

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

Your editorial, "Objectives" in the issue of March 21, screamed for comment. Trying to concern editorial chagrin at the award of $12,000 to the Citizen's Bureau, top management is unwarranted, vicious, and unjustified for diatribe of assumptions and half-truths.

Yes, management. It would be nice to hear of a "specific" project to which it might be applied. Yet your mind at rest, the specific project to which it is being applied, is the continuance of the Citizen's Bureau under its familiar terms of reference. Contrary to what you may believe, this, in itself, is a tremendous accomplishment. I don't believe me, ask some of the thousands the Bureau has helped. If you prefer, contact the federal official who appraised our operation.

Yes, we stand up for the little guy and we do it sometimes for the big guy as well.

Last summer, your editorial writer, with the Citizen's Bureau showed a lack of accountability. Right! Where were you sir? All through the Bureau's diary, and in each week, an itemized financial accounting, staff status report, and weekly diary, sent to C.M.C. Belleville, The U.C.S., C.M.C. Toronto, and, believe it or not, to The Intelligencer.

This was in addition to a brief and a presentation of all books and documents relating to the Bureau and its operation, to City Council, sitting in regular session. Books, records and accounting were always available and open to any member of the public. An audit by Audit Services of Ontario, Toronto, audited the books and found them to be correct to within six cents after spending $20,000 — not bad for amateurs.

The top wage paid under L.I.P. operation was $130 per week in Belleville, and $120 in Trenton. There are no $17,000 or $20,000 executive directors on our staff. For your information, the Bureau, operated from September 1974 until March 1975, on a voluntary basis, with overheads being met by public donations, there were no salaries, in fact, Mr. Gerling myself, went out of my pocket.

WILLIAM C. HOCKLEY,
Editor's Note: — The Intelligencer has never noted "chagrin" at the great deeds of the Citizen's Bureau. The related story was generously applauded by these pages, even when it was felt action by individuals connected with the organization were detrimental to its own objectives.

Radio licenses are due again. Every owner of a radio receiving set is taxed $2 per year to pay for the Radio Commission which has to do with all things relating to our broadcasting in Canada. The government also keeps a staff of "trouble shooters" who go about investigating complaints of man-made interference with radio receiving. Canada has two first-class stations, C.N.R.T. and C.P.R.B. Toronto, but both are placed so near powerful United States stations that they are generally drowned out altogether. If the Radio Commission could get these stations placed in an isolated position where reception would be a clear at night as it is in Buffalo, they would be doing something to justify the expense of the organization.

Fireplace Problems Usually in Chimney

By CHRIS ALMEY
Staff Correspondent

TRENTON — If a fireplace smokes, chances are the chimney is too small. This is according to Laird Morton of Tweed Steel Eastern Ltd. Fireplace research is his department and Tweed Steel makes steel fireplaces.

One reason chimneys might be too small, Mr. Morton said in an interview, is since the flue tile industry which makes vitrified clay liners converted to the modular metric system, builders should use a size larger than they used to and some fail to do this.

"This chart has been changed. Many builders ask for tiles that are eight and one-half inches by 13 but instead get an eight by 12, reducing the internal flue area," Mr. Morton noted.

The first size just mentioned, based on the old measurement, was 80 square inches, whereas the new measure is only 57 square inches. To have the same size opening a tile 12 by 12 under the new modular metric system should be installed, Mr. Morton said.

Previously a 13 by 13 flue tile was 130 square inches, but to get the same effect now, the chimney would need an opening of 13 by 16 to have 125 square inches.

"A fireplace properly designed and installed should smoke only under the very rarest of conditions, such as a temperature inversion," Mr. Morton explained. "Most people have the idea all fireplaces smoke a bit. None should.

"I know people who have 200,000 houses and they don't use their fireplaces. That gets me tired of. They don't use them because they smoke. The answer is 90 times out of a hundred the chimney is too small," Mr. Morton said. "This has become quite common the last three or four years."

Despite a so-called slowdown in the building industry, Mr. Morton said there are lots of houses being built around here and other places, and they cannot produce enough fireplaces to meet the demand. Their products are sold coast to coast.

If the flue is undersized, Mr. Morton said there are two cures. One is to put in a new flue of the right size or reduce the fireplace opening area to match the flue, by laying a few bricks in the bottom. Fire area should be 10 per cent of opening area, but the chimney height is a factor.

He said the company could also provide a screen with a metal band across the top or sides which would also reduce the opening. And then there is also tempered fire glass.

"Lack of air in a tightly sealed house is another cause of smoking fireplaces," Mr. Morton said.

He said he doesn't usually go out to look at problem fireplaces, and can often provide solutions over the phone. He said that anyone with a problem could call Tweed Steel and ask for Laird Morton.

Barn Blaze Beats Madoc Volunteers

MADOC — A fire destroyed a large two-storey frame barn late Wednesday owned by Glen Fleming of Madoc Township just north of this village on County Road 12, commonly known as the Fairgrounds Road.

Deputy-Chief Clayton Martin of Madoc Volunteer Fire Brigade said a quantity of hay and a tractor housed in the building were also destroyed. A number of cattle, usually in the barn, were in the fields at the time.

He said firemen were able to save an older frame barn situated just 30 feet from the blazing structure. By the time firemen arrived on the scene, the roof of the gutted barn had caved in, he said.

A damage estimate was unavailable and origin of the 5.30 p.m. blaze is unknown at present. One pumper and 15 firemen responded to the alarm.

Fun Time

North Hastings Municipal Pound supervisor Dave Talbot always has time for some fun and games with his charges. The pound has been open since December 20 and since then 30 dogs have been placed in new homes. Pups are $2 each and grown dogs $5.

Canine Connoisseurs Like Bancroft Pound

By NAN WHITLAW
Staff Correspondent

BANCROFT — There's a strong suspicion in North Hastings that some dogs are straying away from home just to become residents of the new Bancroft municipal pound.

The pound, which is a joint project of the northern townships of Faraday, Herschel, Wollaston, Cardiff, the Improvement Dsstrict of Bancroft and the village of Bancroft opened in December of 1974 and has been a "pet" project of Bancroft's by-law enforcement officer David Talbot ever since.

Mr. Talbot acts as supervisor of the pound in addition to his many other duties and visits his friendly, noisey clients at least twice each day.

"The dogs are all exercised each day," said Dave, "they're also very well fed and the kennels are completely disinfected daily."

During the conversaion, Mr. Talbot stopped to let two of his canine friends out for a run and cautioned them to be sure to return in five minutes — and they did.

"Both of these dogs are here because they would never stay home," he said." I've never had them run away from here."

The twenty by twenty cement block building is well heated, can accmodate about 11 dogs, and cost a total $2,800 which has been devided on a pro-rata basis to the five municipalities concerned.

Dogs that have been abandoned or turned over to the pound are available for sale for $2. for pups and $5. for adult dogs.

The proceeds from the sales are used to maintain the pound.

Since the opening in early December, about 30 dogs have been placed in new homes.

Designer: Luggage to Maternity Wear

MONTREAL (CP) — Recently friends presented John Warden with a tawny cat to match his hair. He calls it Mademoiselle — with a French accent on the last syllable. It shares his apartment in Old Montreal.

John considers himself a Montreal, but he was born in Niagara Falls, Ont., in 1938.

His family still lives there. But John has become a real Montreal. He speaks fluent French, his wife is a French-Canadian girl, and they enjoy the atmosphere of Old Montreal. His duplex apartment is above a restaurant in one of the handsome restored old grey stone houses.

He first imparts a French-Canadian flavor to the John Warden lines he designs for several firms. At present he is designing luggage and sleepwear for Molyclaire, knits for Knit Syndrome, a maternity line for Shirley Kay, handbags and luggage for Lucadello Belt and Bags, John Warden name scarves for Jarman, and clothes for men for an executive men's store. He recently signed a contract to design tents and action sports wear for another firm.

He has his own ready-to-wear boutique in downtown Montreal. Eaton's has introduced John Warden boutiques in its stores to carry his Molyclaire line and The Bay has John Warden boutiques for ski accessories.

John leads a hectic designing life. His apartment is only a party centre for his friends but it's probably the most commercially photographed locale in Montreal.

John has been forced to charge a fee for its use.

Last January he completely redecorated the apartment himself. It's even now more a Harper's Bazaar-Vogue fashion backdrop across the living-room frontage—.

John covered both couches in black-and-white striped satin. It's a movie set right out of the Roaring Twenties, particularly when the same satin is used in a table cloth under glass on the dining-room table.

John attended the Parsons school of design in New York and went on to work there for a fashion house. Then Auckle Sanft, a Montreal manufacturer, invited him to come up from New York and design a small collection for him. Sanft was the first Canadian to give a Canadian designer a break and the John Warden label went into every garment in Warden's Auckle Sanft collections. He did three before he opened his own boutique for men in 1966. Later he added another for women. He also introduced his trademark of a daisy.

Warden has won many awards and is a favorite Canadian designer with the American fashion press. Last year several Canadian designers showed their lines in New York and the attending fashion writers voted Warden their choice as Canadian Designer of the Year.

Sex After School

TORONTO (CP) — Thirty Grade 6 children are learning about sex after school and their teacher is finding their questions as profound as any she might get from adults.

Once a week, at Oriole Park Junior School, the 11-and-12-year-olds are given instruction by Beatie Bean, a parent and former teacher who is on the board of Planned Parenthood of Toronto.

With the co-operation of parents and authorities at the school eight weekly sessions have been arranged for the children.

Any parental concern expressed had a recurring theme, that a course of this kind might be "giving the child too much said knowledge and is going to make them want to try it," said Marilyanne Ryan, a member of Planned Parenthood's long-range planning committee.

The sessions have brought some interesting questions from the children, she said. At the beginning, they were told straightforwardly that "we've got this body and we've got to live together with it."

One boy asked when he would grow tall. Girls are concerned about the development of their breasts.

"They are at an age when they're very conscious of their body image and whether it's filling out as it should," she said.

Women's News Service Initiated

WINNIPEG (CP) — A group of women has announced the formation of a national news agency to deal with issues and problems facing women.

At a news conference here Monday, the group said the agency will be named the Feminist News Service and will "establish a vehicle for the exchange of women's issues to women across Canada."

Spokesperson Susan Power said the agency is necessary to balance a bias by traditional news services against women's groups and news.

"There is a need among women in Canada to have their own media, their own communications services."

The plan calls for 10 regional representatives stationed across Canada to feed information to the head office in Waterloo Ont., where it will be distributed to various women's groups, women's organizations, established newspapers through periodic news packages.

No fee for the news packages has been determined, but the group hopes to obtain funds through donations and canvassing in preparation for the agency's debut within three months.

Available in both English and French, the proposed news agency's service will be a significant step in easing the problem of geographic, language and cultural isolation.

Ann Landers

'Normal Curiosity' Ruins Health

Dear Ann Landers: Please don't think I am crazy. I need some help. My problem is one of normal curiosity—anyone my spot would do the same thing, but it's ruining my health.

I live in an apartment complex that has a courtyard. A married woman who lives across the way from me entertains a man almost every night—and I do mean entertains. I have a very powerful pair of binoculars and can see everything that goes on.

Sometimes this man stays until 2 o'clock in the morning and I have to get up at six-thirty to go to work. It's horrible when I try to drop off and feel body aches before sunrise sleep.

It might sound awful, but I've been considering writing the woman's husband an anonymous letter, tipping him off. Then perhaps he would spend more and I could get some rest. What do you think?—No Will Power

Dear N.W.P.: I think you ought to give those binoculars to a friend, draw the draperies before the show goes on and get some sleep before you collapse from sheer exhaustion.

Dear Ann Landers: The bumper sticker that reads: WARNING: I BRAKE FOR ANIMALS is incomplete. It should read: I BRAKE FOR ANIMALS AND KILL PEDDLERS.

Scores of lives are lost every year in accidents caused by drivers who foolishly avoid hitting a dumb beast. Is it worth it? What do you say?—Love Animals, Too—But

Dear Love: An alert driver can sometimes glance in his rear-view mirror and see if anyone is behind him. If no one is, he should brake and spare the animal.

If the driver spots traffic on his tail, he should keep going and pray that the cat, dog or chipmunk makes it. A cow, on the other hand, poses a serious problem if there is no coming traffic. The driver has to choose between the hen or the cow. The cow would be my choice. It would cost a lot more to replace a cow than a hen.

Dear Ann Landers: People complain about paying 10 cents for a stamp, yet they won't bother to make certain their letter reaches its destination by checking the zip code to be sure it's right. Nor will they take the extra minute to write their name and return address on the envelope—just in case.

I work in the dead-letter section in a post office in St. Louis. During the holidays it made me sick to see the beautiful cards which could never be received because of illegible handwriting, incorrect zip codes and wrong addresses. If the sender had put down his address he might have received a few cards. I wonder how many people are hurt because they receive no reply to a letter that ended in the dead-letter section of a post office.—A Witness

Dear Witness: Thank you for the reminder.

Doris Clark

Study Slavery

EDMONTON (CP) — The extent to which slavery influenced the abolition of slavery in Britain and the United States is to be studied by a University of Alberta professor. Dr. Leonard Cotnoly, associate professor of English, will visit the British Museum in London this summer in an attempt to prove that a strong link existed between drama and the anti-slavery movement. He will investigate the performance and reception of anti-slavery plays to assess the importance of the drama to social change.

Widows Want to Organize Club

Dear Doris: We are a bunch of unattached women, mostly widows, trying to form a club for both men and women. Safe for we have only one man. Also, we thought we would be bridge club, but some of the ladies never have played bridge.

Can you suggest some solutions to our problems?

Nized Club Organizer.

Dear Nized: Statistically, there are more widows than there are widowers — because men die younger. Just the same, I'd make a bid for getting more men signed up. Ask your single male if he wouldn't like to involve some of his lonely, unattached friends. Just never worry about pairing off!

What your group does may well have much to do with whom people attract. Some people have no card sense. You could have a hilarious time playing other games, involving puzzles or riddles or song-title-guessing. Or putting on playlets. You name it.

I know one humdinger of a group which concentrates on taking turns at serving one delicious dinner a month, followed by conversation — good conversation. Not gossip, but some special topic related, usually, to what is going on in the world.

Dear Doris: I am 27, going out with a guy 39 years old.

Once in a while if he does me a special favor I like to reward him with a very special tender kiss, but lately I've seemed to kiss him as I always have to be the one to say it. Like, "Would you like a kiss goodnight?" or something like that.

But he might think I am strange, although he says he enjoys my kissing and wants more and yet I have to be the one all the time to ask him or make the first approach to him.

Barbie'.

Dear Barbie: It's all right for the girl to take the initiative in kissing once in a while. But if you have to do it frequently, better ease off. Young men like to be the aggressors — and perhaps this one does feel he is a bit too young for you.

Confidential to A Reader: Reproducing a sheet which supplies several addresses for sending Christmas cards, or any material, costs both labor, paper and other equipment.

Reproducing a poem supplied by a reader involves a copyright violation. The use of the duplicating machine and, of course, the use of paper, I answer many, many letters privately and never charge.

Just ask anyone who devotes full time to any kind of business whether they can keep on at it without charge for services or materials.

I think I would have honored your letter more if you had the good manners to identify yourself in writing to me.

A Look at Loyalist

Clown Catherine Cunningham was in play presented by Loyalist drama students.

Do you ever stop in the middle of a conversation and listen to yourself with the sudden feeling that you've all this before?

I mean that dreadful awareness that you're repeating a scene you've been through too many times already ("If I've told you once, I've told you 20 times . . . ").

Human beings do tend to set up patterns for themselves—sometimes intentionally and sometimes unconsciously. Through routine, or need, or as a result of pressure, we find ways of thinking, talking and acting that trap us

Not that repetition is necessarily bad. It's our very predictability that gives us our unique personalities. Because we can be relied upon to react in our usual manner, people know where they're at, and feel secure in their relationships with us.

ALL IN THE FAMILY/Isabel Huggan

Vicious Circles Going Round Will Tie You Up in Knots

But the other side of that coin is the kind of behavior pattern that keeps us, and those around us, hemmed into destructive dilemmas.

Psychiatrist and author R. D. Laing has made a career of investigating the vicious circles that ensnare the mentally ill. And in doing so, he has discovered truths about all of us.

His most popular book is "Knots", a slim volume published in 1971 by Penguin Books. Laing takes what he knows about human behavior and condenses it into sharp, sad, often funny little formulae.

Like an X-ray machine, he exposes the bare bones beneath the conflicts and tensions of our complex daily lives.

What particularly interests Laing about the patterns he finds, is that they keep us going round and round without getting us anywhere. The more we repeat th,' routines, the tighter we pull the ropes that tie us. And soon the knots are so firmly fastened that it seems they can never be unravelled.

So what makes Laing's "Knots" valuable is the chance that by recognizing ourselves we can break free of self-hating little moves and meshes that threaten our happiness.

For a start, look at this "knot", a shorthand formula for chronic dissatisfaction.

I never get what I wanted.
I always get what I did not want
What I want
I shall not get
Therefore, to get it
I must not want it
Since I only get what I don't want . . .
I don't want what I can get because what I can get is what I don't want
I never get what I want
I never want what I get

Here's a knot that keeps a relationship tangled in distrust and despair.

Jill thinks
Jack thinks (she) Jill is stupid
Jack does not think Jill is stupid
but he cannot see why Jill thinks Jack thinks Jill is,
when Jack does not.
Nor can Jill, except that Jack is lying.

And perhaps this little knot that opens the book is the easiest one to see, and the hardest one to undo.

They are playing a game. They are playing at not playing a game. If I show them I see they are, I shall break the rules and they will punish me. I must play their game, of not seeing I see the game.

So get out those scissors and get yourself down to Studio 231. That's where Spring is.

A Summer or Handy-man's Home

That's how Gord Robbin Real Estate is describing this great potential property in picturesque Northport in Prince Edward County. I love this village hamlet and it's truly lovely. This old frame house is structurally sound but needs remodelling inside. The price at which it is being offered though, makes any effort worthwhile. It is a storey and a half, with a steel roof, a bathroom, septic system and well. And it's located right across the road from a public park and is only a half a minute's walk from the water. I said it had potential. Someone home possibilities didn't I? Northport is located about half way between Picton and Belleville, so if you're commuting anyway, here's a way to have a home near the water in the process. Call Gord Robbin at 968-6473.

Some Great Little Pals

Believe it or not, the Tropical Garden Pet Shop at 361½ Front St. is still standing after the big weekend rush. And while they haven't any Easter pets left, they have a lot of good ideas for other little pals for your family, even if they aren't rabbits and chickens. Pals such as hampsterd, gerbils, white mice and colored mice. And I'll have you know that colored mice are very rare. I'd never heard of them before and asked Mrs. Sherwood about them when I talked to her this week. Sound interesting anyway don't they? The Tropical Garden also has a new shipment of fish in from the last time I discussed fish and aquariums with you. So if you didn't go last week, or even if you did, the Tropical Garden is a good place to go and meet some new friends.

Real Warehouse Carpet Sales

If you haven't visited Warehouse Carpet Sales, 361 Pinnacle St. before, I've got a reason that you should . . . 1000 yards of recently-received remnants from 1½ ft. x 12 ft. to 9 x 12 This 1000 yds. comes in all colors, shades, textures and makes and some excellent buys of good quality carpet are included. For example: Great Expectations, a luxurious twist by Caravelle, regularly $22 a sq. yd., now selling for $9 a yd.; some carpet regularly selling at $17.95 a sq. yd., now selling at $4 a yd. That's warehouse selling as it should be. But you can't take advantage of this information by just reading about it; you have to visit Warehouse Carpet Sales. It's open on Friday nights until 9 but closed on Wednesday afternoon. The phone number is 968-3523, if you don't believe what you're reading.

It's Still On

The 10 per cent discount on vinyl-coated aluminum patio doors is still on at Belleview Glass and Mirror, 254 Pinnacle St. Easter weekend has made the end of winter official in my book, despite the dirty trick of Tuesday's snow. But that was sent just to test our patience and give radio announcers a double whammy for us on April Fools' Day. Belleview Glass and Mirror doesn't fool around when it offers to installing quality patio doors, as you'll see when you call them at 968-2711. And don't forget that the glass in these patio doors has been heat-tempered to increase its strength. So one of your objections to having a patio door has been removed, hasn't it? Any other questions you have on patio doors can best be answered by the experts at Belleview Glass.

Now Open Sundays

The Inn On The Bay Tavern in Picton is now operating on its spring and summer schedule and so will be open on Sundays too. Luncheon will be served from noon until 2 p.m., as on every other day of the week and reservations for dinner will be accepted for between the hours of 6 p.m. and 9 p.m. That number to call for reservations is 476-3114. And what a number that is to know! Sunday dining is a lovely family experience and it is enhanced in the surroundings of the Inn On The Bay mansion. If you have Sunday or weekend guests, they will also find the boutique area of the Inn On The Bay interesting too, not to mention the menu. We have many local points of interest of which we can be proud, but not too many good dining rooms. The Inn On The Bay is both. Try it.

Service That's Service

Last week, I told you about the great new warranty policy of Superior TV, 183 Canadian Rd. is now offering on all new Hatachi TV sets sold by them. To explain further, this is Superior TV's OWN warranty and is means that for five years after your purchase of a new Hatachi, you pay absolutely nothing if something should go wrong — neither labor or parts. Not only are you getting a superb TV set to start out with (Superior wouldn't offer that kind of warranty on a set they didn't trust, would they?), but also you're getting the warranty to match. Now that's service in which you can believe don't you think?

Harbringers of Spring

The harbingers of Spring are out . . . . and they aren't all robins. Sidney Ian, 285 Moira St. W. has in a stock of garden seeds, both flowers and vegetables and also stocks of charcoal and lighter fluid. Who says you need June for a picnic? And if that April Fools' Day snow thing it got the better of us and our summer fantasies, it's all wet . . . right? Corny phrases aside, that barbecue or balcony needn't collect cobwebs and dust any longer, even if you can't tend the fire in your bathing trunks or shorts. So get with Spring and have a barbecue. Sidney Ian is open until 11 p.m. every night if you get the urge after ordinary store hours.

You Still Can Save

You can still save on your new car purchase by buying a '74 Datsun from Vader's Car Sales on College St., just around the corner from their former North Front St. location. These brand new '74 carry that '74 price advantage right along with all that great Datsun low gas consumption and great road performance. It's a great way to save on your purchase list. Vader's can help there too, because they have a great selection of small cars right now. And even your own car is good to perform a lot better with a good Spring tune-up. For car repairs or buys, See Vaders.

The Place To Go

One of the great things about W. Wonnacott and Son Jewellers, 247 Front St., is that their advice is always free, and always good. And with the spring and summer bridal seasons coming up, you're going to need good advice about gifts, as well as a resource for those gifts. And Wonnacotts can supply both. Giving a gift is which you have put thought and care means more to you and to the recipient than just any old gift. Wonnacotts don't do business that way anytime. If you're confused they'll help you and what's more, they'll help you without charge. That's why they stay in business: they like their business. And if you're a bride and don't know just what to propose or wise as an attendant gift, Wonnacotts will help you there too. It's the place to go.

Students Receive Special Attention

TRUO, N.S. (CP) — An attempt is being made in central Nova Scotia to help elementary students needing special academic attention.

Colchester Training Services, using $17,810 Local Initiatives Program grant, has been working with 70 such children, 27 of them from foster homes of the Children's Aid Society.

The society which started the service with one of its workers, contributes $1,112.

Four young people, Nancy Holt, Gay Voth, John Murdoch and Blake Burns, are acting as tutors in what they hope is a pilot project for such a service on a larger scale.

Nancy and Blake have teaching experience. Gay has three years of social work study and Joy studied sociology at Dalhousie University.

"Four tutors couldn't begin to cover the number of referrals we could have," said Nancy. "We've gotten a terrific response from the schools."

She said administrators have co-operated in providing time and space for the tutors to work with students.

The tutors started by asking teachers and counsellors about specific problems.

"We wanted to do the things the teacher would like to do but doesn't have time for," said Nancy. The emphasis is on the emotional and personality problems that can show up in academic results.

"In most cases, we can't solve the problems. But we can help solve them. Maybe it just amounts to pointing out what the problem is."

The tutors spend one and perhaps two 50-minute periods a week with their students who range from six to 15 years of age.

"I don't think we help a person as much for academic reasons as for counselling," said Nancy. "We know that academic improvement could help them socially."

Some of the students, especially those from foster homes, have severe emotional problems getting in the way of their progress at school.

"Alcoholism, broken families and constant uprooting are problems commonly seen by many of the children.

In many cases the tutor has to spend the first couple of periods getting to know a student because he will not "open up" until getting what is troubling him off his mind.

In other cases, a student may try to hide his or her work to avoid facing problems.

Churchill Eskimo Museum Is Run by Catholic Church

CHURCHILL, Man. (CP) — A short walk from the icebound shore of Hudson Bay is the Eskimo Museum run by the Roman Catholic Church.

A snarling polar bear and a timber wolf greet visitors at the door of the northern Manitoba museum, which charges no admission and preserves the ancient relics of a changing people.

When the commissioner of the Northwest Territories offered a substantial sum of money for the museum, the Roman Catholic bishop of the diocese refused.

Brother Jacques Volant of the Oblate Order, who has been curator of the museum for the church for 27 years, explained the decision:

"The intention of the Northwest Territories was to split it into four or five parts and the bishop said no. We didn't want that. It is not the money we look at, we look at what the brothers have been doing with the museum for more than 30 years. Its place is here in Churchill."

The museum has often been called the best record in the world of the Canadian Eskimo and his art. Brother Volant said the collection began with the arrival of Father Rasmin in Igloolik, N.W.T., in 1930.

"He was very isolated there, of course, and he began digging as a hobby."

As well as donations from individual missions, the museum received many gifts of art and artifacts from friends, and through a barter system with Eskimos.

"From time to time at the various little missions an Eskimo would come and say, 'Here, I thought of you, and I have some carving here,'" Brother Volant explained.

"These purchases were not commercial, if you like, but rather we made an exchange. We'd ask the Eskimo what he or she was short of and give in goods what we both estimated was fair."

He said that in the early days of the missions in northern settlements much of the art work collected in this way would be given away to benefactors of the diocese.

Visitors from conventional museums in the south have remarked that the sheer volume of material in the Eskimo museum could easily take up twice the room and Brother Volant agreed.

"In 1962 people said this building was too big. I told them they were only building for today. In five years the building was full again."

Besides stuffed animals and carvings the museum holds many artifacts of the Thule and Dorset Eskimo cultures, dating back many hundreds of years.

The creativity and ingenuity of a people are reflected in many hand-carved tools and implements made of what the sea and land gave them. Hand made needles, spearheads and cooking utensils cover the glass cases of the museum.

On shelves running around the wall rest row upon row of carvings, depicting everything in the Eskimo experience from demons and dreams to the first twin-engined aircraft to land in Frobisher Bay.

Brother Volant was unable to say exactly how many people visit the museum each year. With no admission fee, the guest book is the only indication of attendance and many visitors don't bother to sign it.

He faces the future of the museum in the same genial spirit.

"Regardless of whatever new object that comes in, if it shows a new aspect of Eskimo life, I'll keep it. I'll put it in the museum's back room somewhere instead of allowing it to be sold and lost."

Wet Spring

Below normal and near-normal temperature readings are expected for most of the country in the first half of April, according to the 30-day weather outlook of the United States Weather Bureau.

Precipitation is expected to be above-normal for most of the country, with portions of Quebec receiving below-normal. This is not a specific forecast and changes may occur. (CP Newsmap)

Vanier to Attempt To Develop Core

OTTAWA (CP)—The city of Vanier is pushing a new look this year that may make or break this mile-square enclave of 21,325 people situated wholly within the bounds of the city of Ottawa.

Vanier Mayor Bernard Grandmaitre said his city needs revitalizing and that a planned $25-million redevelopment scheme for the commercial core is the best way to bring in needed tax dollars.

Vanier's population has declined almost 15 per cent since 1961. With 76 per cent of local taxes hinged to residential assessment — one of the highest percentages in Ontario—home-owners are feeling the pinch of rapidly increasing municipal costs.

Mayor Grandmaitre said that with commercial redevelopment in the city centre he hopes to reverse the residential-commercial ratio of taxes so that residents will be saddled with only 40 per cent of local tax levies.

"That wouldn't mean a decrease in residential taxes, but at least it would mean we could set a stable rate."

However, repercussions of the development will be felt most by the very people the city has depended on for the bulk of its tax revenue — the home-owners.

With 15 apartment blocks and a wall of 15-storey office towers planned, families living in the central area of Vanier will soon have to move.

Council is looking for homes for at least 253 families to be displaced from the area of Montreal Road, Vanier's main street.

Finding homes for displaced families is not the major obstacle facing the city, however. In order to refashion the appearance of downtown Vanier it is necessary to find developers willing to invest in Vanier's future. To date the response has not been overwhelming.

City officials have put out feelers to 50 firms in Ontario and Quebec and as far away as Italy and California.

Says the mayor: "Right now we have a few interested developers.

. . . I hope to see one of two buildings in the core under way soon. But we can't do it overnight. It takes seven, even eight months to conclude an agreement and get approval for a project."

City officials are pressing several government departments for more federal involvement in Vanier. Only six of the several hundred buildings leased by the federal works department are in Vanier and of the 18,000 acres of land owned by the National Capital Commission in the Ottawa-Hull region, 27 are in Vanier.

"This year we must make good representations to the government to lease or build office space here," said the mayor. "We're hoping to get our fair share."

Vanier's fight for financial survival is a desperate attempt to maintain its francophone character despite the overpowering presence of Ottawa.

The population of Ottawa proper is more than 300,000, 4 times that of Vanier. Whereas only 21 per cent of Ottawa residents list French as their mother tongue, 47 per cent of the residents of Vanier speak French.

Amalgamation with Ottawa has long been discussed as a means of promoting efficiency but has been rejected. Proposals last year to share such services as fire and police protection with Ottawa also were set aside.

Said Mayor Grandmaitre: "At present there is no way Ottawa can provide the same services at the same cost."

Vanier's first name as a settlement was Cummings Island, later Janeville. In 1906 it became the suburban town of Eastview, recognizing its position just east of Ottawa. The city of Vanier came into being in 1969 as part of a municipal reorganization.

LONDON —(CP) — Prince Charles is the new commodore of the Royal Thames Yacht Club which is celebrating its bicentenary. But do not shake it. The prince does the shaking.

GM and Social Justice Body Lock Horns in Heated Debate

TORONTO (CP)—Gerald Vandenende, executive director of the Toronto-based Committee for Justice and Liberty, says General Motors' philosophy is to make as much money as possible regardless of the needs of mankind.

The 49-year-old spokesman for the Christian civil rights movement said a recent meeting that the large corporation has become "preoccupied with profits and economic abundance since they supposedly constitute the good life and human progress.

"This is not how the Lord intended life to be in the beginning when He made it good," Mr. Vandenende said. "Nor is this the way it is intended after Christ came to make all things new."

The committee is a 2,500-member ecumenical group. Mr. Vandenende said he sees General Motors as a highly visible symbol of a ruthless business ethic which had made gods of profit and progress.

Boyd Chenney[1] 43, assistant director of public relations for General Motors of Canada Ltd. and a United Church layman, said in an interview the free enterprise system helps "the rule of Christ in the world."

Mr. Chenney said that, contrary to public belief, GM's profits "are not 30 per cent but closer to five or six per cent of sales."

He said profits were reduced to two per cent during the first nine months of 1974 because of the energy crisis and inflation.

Mr. Vandenende said his speech was meant to launch a continuing battle between the committee and GM. He said he is hoping it will be a revue of David and Goliath.

Mr. Vandenende accused GM of planning obsolescence in automobiles, dehumanizing working conditions, wastefully consuming the world's diminishing resources spending large amounts of money on advertising and making excessive profits.

He said annual model changes in cars use up valuable resources and cars are designed to have short life spans.

"These resources belong to mankind and are needful for its well-being" he said. "They are not the exclusive property of any one person or corporation.

"They cannot even be owned in an absolute sense for they are given by God to man to be used responsibly."

Mr. Vandenende said GM spent $250 million during the 1960s to change its corporate identity signs to "GM-Mark of Excellence" while at the same time spending $15 to $25 million a year to produce pollution-free automobiles. But Mr. Chenney said he has not seen those figures.

Mr. Chenney also said: "There haven't been extensive model changes (in cars) in recent years. For example, the Vega has stayed very much the same for some time.

"However, we are in the business of selling cars and if styling changes are what will sell them, then that's what we'll do. After all, the consumer is the one who determines what he wants."

Mr. Chenney said corporate responsibility means "operating within the laws of the land where you work, paying adequate wages, providing good working conditions and proper pollution controls."

Mr. Vandenende said he is not suggesting General Motors should put itself out of business but "it should be clearly understood that an equitable financial return is an entirely different concept from GM's belief in and pursuit of profit, growth and progress for their own sake and with no regard for the consequences."

Mr. Chenney said what is good for GM is good for Canada and other areas of the world.

"Today we want to achieve standards of public education, health and welfare unknown in history," Mr. Chenney said. "We want to abolish poverty.

"We want to restore and preserve the beauty of our land, water and skies. We want to give every citizen an equal opportunity to fulfil all his or her capabilities."

Definition of Barber Still Plagues Council

A familiar problem — and familiar face — was back before city council this week.

The issue: Barbershop closing hours.

The Face: That of Bill Kuipers, who made with opening restrictions in the barbershop bylaw just back two years, an issue that went to the courts after he sought to evade closing hours by terming himself a hair stylist.

This time the issue may be near resolution — one way or another.

Council made no immediate moves, but now has amendments to the barbershop bylaw. It has to define the word barber.

If it does so, warned city manager Wilbur Purcell in a report, council may have to prosecute "one or two barbers" presently operating "under the guise of hair stylists." These have refused city licensing as barbers, although they are licensed by the province.

The amendment is necessary if council abides by a barbershop poll taken by the city manager which showed 58 per cent of replies favoring no repeal of the bylaw. In all, a total of 88 per cent of barbers canvassed had answered — including Mr. Kuipers.

Mr. Kuipers went before council to surprel since not all barbers had replied to the poll those favoring no repeal should be reduced to 46 per cent.

He said he didn't want to go back to court since "it costs me too much and I don't want to have enemies."

He pleaded for some form of qualification for staying open longer hours — perhaps a shop license for hair stylists.

While licensed as a barber he told Ald. Jean Smith he could also be qualified as a hair stylist. However, he could not make the examinations last time since they were set in Toronto and Kingston on the same day.

City manager Wilbur Purcell said later the bylaw issue would be back before council at its next meeting.

New Line Arrives

Bill Vaughan at the controls of a fork lift truck, pitches in to unload a trailer carrying a score of Springbrook fishing craft, Springbrook, made by Alcan Aluminum, is a new line for Vaughan's Marina and will be displayed at a boat show April 11,12 and 13. Vaughan's Marina is sponsoring the show in the old bowling alley on the north side of Dundas St. East, adjacent to Union Carbide of Canada Ltd.

Zoning Changes Allow Apartment

Council this week passed official plan and zoning amendments sought by a developer for construction of a 20-unit apartment building on Bridge St. West.

The application earlier approved by the Subordinate and Planning Advisory Committee, came from Maurice H. Rollins Construction Ltd. and involved slightly more than three lots known as the Howard Block at 57 West Bridge.

The approval carries a number of stipulations including protection against soil erosion and installation of a fire hydrant.

Meantime, council also denied on a 5-3 vote approval for similar amendments requested by Lewis R. Kline to convert a duplex to four residential units on the east side of MacDonald Ave. just south of Pine St.

Earlier, council heard a protest from Arnold Welch, 329 MacDonald Ave., against the application.

He said he would obtain a neighborhood petition against the application — already recommended for approval from the Quinte Planning Board staff — if council thought it necessary.

Traffic Lights Okayed For Sidney School Site

City council after some debate this week approved installation of traffic signals at a separate school on a busy city street.

The push-button signals to increase safety for youngsters attending Our Lady of Fatima School — fronting a four-lane stretch of Sidney St. near Graham St. — was cleared through council's traffic committee a week ago.

The committee also decided to have city manager Wilbur Purcell investigate land acquisitions for a sidewalk to heighten the safety factor in the area.

Ald. Jean Smith noted Prince Charles Public School also was in the area.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey agreed with other councillors that "there was a tremendous amount" of school children crossing the four-lane street.

The signals approved by council will remain on green until pedestrians activate a stoplight change by button.

Cost of the signals is estimated at $9,500. But, city engineer Joe Angelo has cautioned it may take up to 10 months before they are in operation. "It now takes that long for delivery of the needed control mechanisms.

Housing Study Approved

Belleville is to seek a needs study for more senior citizens' housing in the city.

City council this week agreed to request the Ontario housing ministry to conduct the survey — a necessary preliminary before a request for additional rent-geared-to-income accommodation for the elderly can be considered by the provincial government.

The study suggestion — from the ministry's Ontario Housing Corporation — was prompted by a recent council request for 150 more units to house the city's senior citizens.

Belleville already has 242 senior citizens' units in three projects around the city, while two more building schemes — on East Bridge St. and Wellington Crescent will provide another 160 apartments, local OHC officials report.

Roads Commission Sets 1975 Budget

The Belleville and District Suburban Roads Commission has reported on its 1974 building program — showing a budget over-run of $18,150 on a total spending of $215,250.

The report was received this week by city council — which recently suggested to Ontario cabinet ministers that urban participation in such commissions was outdated.

Major commission project for the year was completion of Wallbridge-Loyalist Rd. This included total reconstruction from Highway 14 to Sidney Township's fourth concession and asphalt surfacing south to highway 401. Total cost, was $187,228.

Property acquisitions still have to be completed for an overpass on the road's Canadian National Railways level crossing — and there are boxes for a start in this year.

The commission also is still dealing with four property owners on its construction plans for linking Sidney St. into Maitland Dr., a boundary road between Sidney and Thurlow townships.

The commission estimated its 1975 budget at $129,400. Belleville's share is figured at $32,300.

The commission is made up of representatives from the city and both townships.

At a session of Ontario resources cabinet ministers in Belleville in mid-February, Belleville asked for repeal of legislation that makes urban centres share the costs of road-building in adjoining rural areas.

Development across municipal lines has made such a policy outmoded, the city complained.

Ad Costs Queried

Civic proclamations cost the city treasury 300 last year.

Three were 29 announcements proclaiming a diversity of events from Boxing Day to Secretaries' Week, city council learned Tuesday.

So far this year, there have been 17 proclamations and publishing costs for seven received so far have totalled $156., city manager Wilbur Purcell reported.

His report followed a query at a recent city council meeting on the costs of such announcements.

Mystery Industry Wooed

The city's industrial commission has an X on its newest prospect.

At least that's the way the anonymous industry was named in city council this week.

On the commission's behalf council agreed to a 60-day option for "Client X" to conduct necessary ground tests at the company's expense.

No further details were revealed.

Labor Rep To Toronto

At least one member of the Quinte District Labor Council will travel to Toronto April 10 to participate in a "mass housing lobby," asking for provincial stimulation to the housing industry.

The labor council Tuesday was told a special bus will be chartered to take local unionists to the rally where the government will be told, "more housing means more jobs," said vice-president Gord Young.

Prices Down

There was a drop, due mainly to falling sugar prices, in the cost of monthly foodbasket, according to a Canadian Press Cross-Canada Survey. Sugar fell 48 cents from February's high of $5.62. The foodbasket, 17 basic food items in the survey — cost $16.29 in March, compared with $16.84 a month earlier. Graph shows national average prices for each item in March, and the average total since January, 1974. (CP Newsmap)

Metro's Teachers Ask $17,300 Average

TORONTO (CP) — Negotiators for Metropolitan Toronto's 12,000 elementary school teachers said Wednesday they are seeking average salary increases of 43.8 per cent in a 13-month agreement.

Negotiator Carl Anderson said the average classroom teacher would make $17,300 for the next school year under the proposal.

The teachers stated their proposals at a news conference.

William Ross, chairman of the Metro Toronto school board, said later that he will respond to the teachers' proposal at a news conference today.

Teacher negotiators also state in a newsletter, to be distributed to teachers today, that the total salary package, including fringe benefits, will increase costs of the school board by more than 50 per cent.

The 43.8-per-cent figure is based on the average proposed increases at each step on the grid of teachers' salaries.

The negotiators say average teacher salaries rose 18.3 per cent from August, 1970, to August, 1974, while the Consumer Price Index in a similar period increased 38.7 per cent. They say average weekly wages paid by Ontario firms with 20 or more employees rose 37.5 per cent.

Chief negotiator Pamela Silcox said the salary proposals "are not demands."

"We expect there will be give and take in the negotiations and we don't expect to get this."

She said teachers believe a final agreement may be worked out without strike threats.

Cabinet Postpones Discussion of Strike

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario cabinet Wednesday postponed any discussion of possible legislation to end the Ottawa teachers' strike.

Eric Winkler, chairman of the cabinet's management board, said developments and possible events in the next 24 hours led him to hope a settlement might be reached. He refused to elaborate.

Owen Shime, mediator in the talks between school board and teacher representatives, refused to confirm or deny rumors that he was about to resume talks.

Discussions signed at ending the 35-day strike by 1,600 Ottawa high school teachers broke off last weekend. The strike affects 26,000 students.

Dressed as a keystone cop, Trenton pee wee hockey player, Dave Ferguson, 11, looks like he means business as he playfully jabs convict John Livingstone in the ribs. In the mock arrest, one thing was overlooked. Convict Livingstone — a volunteer fireman — was on the same team as the youngster during the fire and police departments benefit game for the Trenton Minor Hockey Association Wednesday. Needless to say, charges weren't pressed and the two went out on the ice before a crowd filled Trenton Community Gardens to tie the game 8-8.

Transit Strike Vote Tonight

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Belleville Transit Commission employees will vote tonight whether to take strike action to back up union wage demands.

Union negotiators began requesting $1.48 an hour increases across the board but subsequently compromised to $1 raises.

Commission negotiators have offered a 75-cent-an hour boost.

Commission chairman Marylea Burtt met with Lawrence St. Pierre of the union, in commission offices Wednesday "for a meeting of minds."

Neither side would comment in detail about the meeting.

A final negotiating meeting has been arranged for today. Neither side would disclose if they were ready to compromise their stand on wages.

In a telephone interview with The Intelligencer, Mr. St. Pierre said, "Thursday's meeting will be a make or break situation."

"If there is no meaningful negotiation, we (the union) will have no alternative but to strike if the requested raise isn't agreed to," said Mr. St. Pierre.

The negotiating teams will begin talks at 6:30 p.m.

Following these discussions, a general meeting of the union has been called for 9 p.m. to vote on any proposal.

If the proposal proves unacceptable, the men will also have to conduct a strike vote.

Though a conciliation "no board" report has been in union hands for three weeks giving legal permission for strike action, the union has yet to conduct a strike vote.

"I want to see them (staff) vote on the contract," said Mrs. Burtt.

She said four drivers will be on routes at the time of the meeting adding "union officials will have to poll their votes."

"They will not be able to leave their buses to attend the meeting," she said.

Industrial Park Main Project in Works Budget

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

City council learned Wednesday night its indebtedness is well within acceptable official limits.

The reassurance came as council approved a 1975 capital works budget of $3,327,800 — with servicing of the city's northeast industrial park one of its major spending thrusts.

The budget was approved unchanged from the draft prepared for council's scrutiny by city hall administrative officials.

But since such capital works are underwritten by debenture issues, councillors wanted to know the state of the city's debt structure.

At the end of 1974, Belleville had accumulated $18 million in debenture debts still to be retired over future years, reported city manager Wilbur Purcell.

Frank Morrell, city treasurer, reported Belleville now had a debt ratio of 40-45 per cent of what is officially deemed financially feasible for its size.

The budget quota — which must now go to the Ontario Municipal Board for sanction — will be put to work next year. The debt charges it incurs won't start showing up in the mill rate until 1977.

The budget includes various projects from parks development to new fire and transit equipment and is up about $12,000 from last year.

But the largest single area of expenditure is tied to pushed roads, sewer and water services up towards the industrial park north between the Hillcrest area and Highway 401.

These account for about $1,628,500 of the more than $3.5 quota.

In all, the budget calls for $772,000 to retire Belleville's initial phase of the industrial park servicing — costing $460,000 — this includes Dundas East to Bleecker reconstruction ($100,000) and the balance of funds for the Pinnacle St. extension ($192,000).

A total of $279,800 is marked under local improvements. The projects include — Victoria Ave., William St. to MacDonald Ave. ($222,000). Sanitary sewers — Maple Drive-Gilbert St. ($87,800). Sidewalks — not allocated ($100,000). Watermains — Cumilton Road-Sidney St. ($70,000).

Belleville Utilities Commission is allocated $179,000 for system extensions and improvements.

Other projects: Two transit buses ($27,500 — the balance covered by grants); Parks improvement ($100,000); Parking Authority ($100,000); fire pumper ($50,000); police radio system ($30,000); city centennial project ($100,000).

Re-surfacing Not Enough For Many Older City Streets

Rehabilitation of many of Belleville's older neighborhood streets have erroded beyond than may appear, city hall officials indicated Wednesday.

The problem: The bases on many of the old residential streets have eroded beyond recovery. Only total reconstruction can solve the problem.

The opinions came in city council as Ald. Brian Knudsen tried to pry about $50,000 out of the $3.5 million 1975 capital works budget for road resurfacing.

Such a sum, he felt, would "go a long way" to adequately resurfacing problem streets "and not just filling potholes."

Mayor Robin Jeffrey said city officials had found that now when streets in the city's older neighborhoods must be repaired they have to be rebuilt down to the base.

Because of this, added city engineer Joe Angelo simple resurfacing would disappear in several years.

"I just feel it would be a waste of money to put this (expenditure) on some of these streets," he added.

Rape Suspect Surrenders To Tweed Police Constables

A 26-year-old Smiths Falls man charged with rape, who did not appear in court as scheduled during Ontario Supreme Court spring assizes here in March, has surrendered to two officers of the Tweed Police Department.

A department spokesman said today Gerald Alan Gibertson turned himself over to Constables Tom Andrews and Barry Wallace at 9:30 a.m. Monday at Malton Airport near Toronto.

He is being held in custody at the Quinte Regional Detention Centre in Napanee awaiting a decision by the Crown attorney's office here on either a special Supreme Court sitting or to hold the case over to the fall assizes.

Police said Gibertson, originally from Decatur, Ill., was persuaded to surrender by his brother, an Illinois state trooper. Gibertson had allegedly returned to his home state shortly before his spring trial.

In addition to the rape charge, Gibertson has been charged with failing to appear in court and with being unlawfully at large.

He was first charged with the rape of a 17-year-old Toronto area girl last July 30. The alleged incident occurred at about 11.30 p.m. on Colborne St. in Tweed.

Modern Teaching Methods Have Role in Church Work

EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the third of a series featuring county educators. The personality sketches include teachers, administrators and trustees.

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

Roger Heidt, a 26-year-old resource technician with the Hastings County Board of Education, says it's time churches used audio-visual techniques to communicate their message.

It's not olden educators in the public school system talk about the church, his Bible and his wife. Heather, a kindergarten teacher, have a dream. They plan to be missionaries with the Fellowship of Evangelical Baptist Church, a fundamental branch of the Baptist Church.

A graduate of Quinte Secondary School, Roger spent three years at the Ontario Bible College in Toronto. However, he abandoned this study in favor of a communications studio techniques course at Loyalist College. Upon graduation, he joined the school board as a technician in charge of the graphic arts photography section.

In this capacity Roger does all of the still photography, both prints and slides, the darkroom processing as well as layout and design for the board's printing department at the Education Centre.

He takes about 1,000 slides a month for elementary presentations and curriculum development programs. A native of Belleville, he often accompanies a class field trip to take photographs which are used later for further classroom discussions.

He is also called upon to teach students and teachers the fundamentals of photography as well as general knowledge about graphic arts and its role in education.

"I feel that what I have learned here can be a great use to the church . . . the church must start to use and teach with visual aids . . . they can identify with young people much better than traditional methods," explained Roger, who said he wants to return to Bible College to complete his last year. .

Roger said he feels his particular talents are needed by the church in the field of missionary work. "We are now considering work in Colombia, South America, as a mission post," he added.

He said developing countries are in great need of people who can teach their teachers how to use graphics as classroom aids as well as photography. He said he is interested in the new philosophy of missionary work whereby missionaries impart their knowledge to the foreign teachers.

A Plan for Education

Roger Heidt, a graphic arts photographer with the Hastings County Board of Education, spends time at the drawing board designing covers, albums and layout work for the board's printing department. The 26-year-old Loyalist graduate has sights set on missionary work.

Oil Expert Stresses Energy Conservation

By JIM SMELLIE
Staff Reporter

A senior oil executive said Wednesday there is still an important need to conserve energy supplies in Canada, especially if we hope o remain self-sufficient in the future.

The message delivered to Belleville manufacturers and industry officials Wednesday by Maurice W. Crompton, Ontario public affairs advisor for Imperial Oil Ltd.

Mr. Crompton was keynote speaker for the first Salute to the Manufacturing Industry in Belleville, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Crompton spoke to about 40 people at the Four Seasons Hotel including representatives from about 20 city industries.

He said if Canada is to maintain its position of being the only industrialized country in the non-Communist world able to produce more oil than it consumes, certain measures are going to have to be taken to preserve that supply.

"First, energy is becoming an increasingly precious commodity and should be treated accordingly. Second, the major programs already underway will have to be speeded up to develop our new energy resources," said Mr. Crompton.

Mr. Crompton mentioned two areas of abundant fuel supply in Canada that will serve the key to maintaining our energy position in the world in the future.

"There is the Athabasca Tar Sands in Alberta, the largest proved oil reserve in Canada which has reserves equal to all the world's known conventional reserves.

"Another energy sources lies in the frontier areas — the Arctic and the Continental Shelf off Canada's east coast. The potential oil reserves in these regions total about eight times all the discoveries in Alberta made to date.

"But it must be discovered. Canada's energy transportation facilities installed in the next ten years will estimate the petroleum industry is going to have to spend some $50 billion towards this. Primarily, this money will come from industry earning and from outside investment, all contingent on the financial health of the industry."

"Energy self sufficiency is still a viable objective and opportunity for Canada. If we lose this, the alternative is increasing dependence upon foreign energy supplies," said Mr. Crompton.

Grant Approved

PICTON — A provincial government grant of $4,500 toward the purchase of 314 acres of land to expand the Macaulay Mountain conservation area was announced Wednesday.

News of the grant to the Prince Edward Region Conservation authority was released from the Queen's Park office of James Taylor MLA Prince Edward-Lennox.

An office spokesman says total estimated cost of the additional property is $9,000.

The land to be acquired is part of a property parcel originally purchased from the department of national defence by the provincial government for $1 million. It now is being turned over to the PERCA at a low cost.

The Macaulay Mountain Conservation Area now includes an education and recreational shelter, a ski slope operated by a local club, snowmobile trails, hiking trails and a small pond enjoyed by youngsters as a summer swimming hole.

Candidate Sought

The Ontario Social Credit Party is seeking a candidate to contest the Hastings-Peterborough riding in the next provincial election.

A meeting has been set for April 12 to choose a contestant, Floyd Ewing, president of ville-area farmer and Social candidate in Hastings in the last federal election, said recently.

It is the first candidatory announcement by a provincial political party in the new proposed riding. The constituency — joining 10 municipalities in Peterborough County to Hastings — is among electoral boundary changes still to be approved by the legislature.

Mr. Hawley said he will act as campaign manager for the Socred contestant.

Industry On Display

The manufacturing industry in Belleville will be in the spotlight for the next three days at Quinte Mall.

Belleville firefighters responded to the following call for assistance during a 24-hour period which ended at 8 a.m. today.

King Finds a Fan

Tabitha Mullins had her first interview with royalty at Loyalist Open House Wednesday night, and was absolutely enhanced. Playing the part of a monarch in a play presented by Ted Bairstow's drama students, Frank Creamer charmed the young lady into believing that he's a king off-stage as well.

Open House Attracts Crowd Despite Storm

Loyalist College probably enjoyed its best open house ever Wednesday, says Ray Cunnington, open house committee chairman.

"It would seem there were at least as many people this year as last year," he said in an interview today. About 6,000 Quinte area residents attended last year's event, he added.

"We are extremely grateful and pleased that most people did brave the impending evening storm," commented Mr. Cunnington.

He said the indicators of increased attendance were a fuller parking lot and larger consumption of refreshments. He noted both the Pioneer and Keene buildings had good turnouts and there was a wide circulation of visitors throughout the complex. "The circulation of people was better than most years," he said.

Industrial Belleville

The manufacturing industry in Belleville was spotlighted Wednesday night as the Chamber of Commerce - sponsored Salute to the Manufacturing Industry was kicked off with a dinner at the Four Seasons. Guest speaker, Maurice Crompton, Ohtario Public Affairs Advisor with Imperial Oil Ltd., left, watches as Mayor Robin Jeffrey signs book presented to him. Chamber of Commerce director, Harold Edey, looks on.

On the Run for Funds

TRENTON — Just before the weather turned foul Wednesday, members of the Trenton High School track club raised $1810 in a run-a-thon to cover club transportation costs and entry fees to various outside Quinte area track meets.

Of the 60 students, both boys and girls, who ran, the majority completed the six-mile course, 25 laps at the school's outside track.

Club coach Peter Hall, said today the fund raising event was needed because the Hastings County Board of Education only pays costs of attending local meets (Bay of Quinte, COSSA and OFSAA) and not those incurred at other meets the club attends.

He said the club accepts frequent invitations from outside the Quinte area "in order to keep our competitive edge."

During the one hour run Wednesday, Bayside Secondary School student Carrie Richards raised $180, while Bob Archer and Tim Larry, both of Trenton, raised $104 and $94, respectively. Coach Hall did his share as well — raising $313 in pledges.

Olympics' New Coach Puts Accent on Youth

Late last week, the Belleville Olympics, of the Premier Soccer League, selected their new coach for the 1975 season Manuel Montes was their choice.

Montes played for the Olympics in 1974 and is aware of the problems that face him in whipping the team into a contender this year.

"We just weren't in shape last year," said the new coach. "We lost most of our games in the final 10 minutes of the second half."

The Olympics got off to an incredible start, winning five of their first six games. Then the roof fell in. The second half of the season was disastrous. They never won another game. The squad went from first place to seventh place in the eight team loop.

"Another reason for the poor finish was not enough match practice," said Montes. "Our game a week just isn't enough to keep the edge on a team."

This year, the Olympics are planning to play in the Premier League and in the Bay of Quinte Soccer League.

This season though, conditioning won't be the greatest factor in a winning or a losing year. What will hurt the Olympics the most is the boom in soccer in the area.

The Greek Community in the Bay of Quinte area is planning on entering a team in the Premier Soccer League Therefore, several players from last year's Olympics will jump to the new, Trenton based squad. The Italians from around the district have entered a team in the Bay of Quinte Soccer League, so several more players have switched to that team.

Their starting goalkeeper, Zoltan Vigh, has moved to Toronto, Peter Hiller has left the area, and Stu Mitton has retired. Bob Kitcher is still at college so he is a question mark as is Charlie Nesterovski. Gary Donovan, the junior Olympic starting goalie isn't sure where he will play yet.

Of 19 players with last year's squad, only nine are returning for sure and two of those were regulars with the junior Olympics and only called up on occasion.

Montes, a former junior national player in Portugal, hopes to remedy the player shortage problem by utilizing the youth of the area. He wants his team to go with mainly young players.

Flames Hold Leafs in Check

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Atlanta Flames are still talking about overtaking New York Rangers for a National Hockey League playoff spot but they admit they could use some help from Philadelphia Flyers tonight.

The Flames scored a hard-fought 3-0 win Tuesday night over Toronto Maple Leafs and pulled to within two points of the Rangers in their bid for the third and final playoff berth in the Patrick Division.

"Don't count us out," said goalie Dan Bouchard, who made 45 saves, including 26 in the third period, to shut out the Leafs.

"We have a real good chance at making the playoffs," Bouchard said, but he admits "we have to have some help from Philadelphia," beating the Rangers tonight.

The Flames play host to the Rangers on Friday night and Atlanta completes the season Sunday at Philadelphia. The Rangers' last game is Sunday at home against New York Islanders.

The Islanders, one point ahead of the Rangers and three in front of Atlanta, also have a game at home Saturday against Philadelphia.

There were two other shutouts in NHL action Wednesday, with Vancouver Canucks beating California Seals 3-0 and Montreal Canadiens blanking Pittsburgh Penguins 6-0. Elsewhere, Los Angeles Kings beat St. Louis Blues 5-3 and Detroit Red Wings whipped Washington Capitals 8-5.

The Kansas City at Chicago game was postponed because of a snow storm.

The Flames' close checking kept Toronto disorganized for most of the first two periods while Bob Gainey scored in the first period, Tom Lysiak in the second and Tim Ecclestone in the third.

At Montreal, goalie Ken Dryden made only eight saves in the first two periods and 22 in all for his fourth shutout of the season.

After a scoreless first period, the Canadiens opened up with five goals in the second period with Guy Lafleur's 52nd goal of the season starting them off.

The win put Montreal into a tie with Buffalo Sabres for the over-all leadership in points. Each has 109.

Vancouver pulled four points clear of St. Louis and five ahead of the idle Black Hawks in the unsettled Smythe Division race. The Canucks now lead the division on 84 points with one game remaining. St. Louis has 80 points with two games to go and Chicago has 78 and three games.

Vancouver goalie Ken Lockett scored his second shutout in as many nights against California, Tuesday, he performed in a 7-0 Vancouver win over the Seals.

Lockett made 31 saves while the Canucks managed only 21 shots at the Seals net. Paulin Bordeleau, Leon Rochefort and Bobby Lalonde each scored his 17th goal of the season.

Frank St. Marseille scored twice and Bob Nevin scored his 30th goal of the season to tie a Los Angeles club record in the win over St. Louis.

Nevin's goal gave him 70 points for the season, tying the Kings record held by Juha Widing.

Left winger Danny Grant led Detroit with his 49th and 50th goals of the season and became only the second Red Wing player to reach the 50 mark. Right winger Mickey Redmond scored 51 goals last season for Detroit.

The top three teams in each of the four NHL divisions qualify for the Stanley Cup playoffs. Division winners receive a bye into the second round; the other eight teams enter a best-of-three first-round series. Pairings are determined by points. The team with most points meets the team with the fewest points, the team with second-most points meets the team with second fewest, and so on.

Today, the following teams would be in the playoffs (division leaders, first-round byes):

xBuffalo	109 points
xMontreal	109 points
xPhiladelphia	108 points
Los Angeles	102 points
Boston	93 points
Pittsburgh	87 points
NY Islanders	86 points
NY Rangers	85 points
xVancouver	84 points
St. Louis	80 points
Chicago	78 points
Toronto	77 points

Atlanta, with 83 points, is the only other team which still could qualify for a playoff berth, should it overtake the Islanders or Rangers in the Patrick Division in this final week of the season.

Pistons in — Bucks Out

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Detroit Pistons have qualified for the National Basketball Association playoffs while Milwaukee Bucks have dropped out.

The Pistons beat Chicago Bulls 87-89 Wednesday night to clinch a wild-card berth in the Western Conference while eliminating the Bucks, finalists last season, from playoff competition.

Elsewhere in the NBA, Seattle SuperSonics beat Kansas City-Omaha Kings 99-96, Washington Bullets beat Houston Rockets 113-85, Boston Celtics defeated Buffalo Braves 95-92 and Phoenix Suns beat Los Angeles Lakers 108-106.

In the American Basketball Association, Kentucky beat Virginia 88-81, New York defeated Memphis 119-97, Utah defeated Indiana 119-113 and St. Louis beat San Diego 134-110.

Detroit used Bob Lanier's 26 points and a balanced attack to defeat Chicago. Curtis Rowe, Tom Henderson and Howard Porter added 18 points each, with Porter coming off the bench in the first quarter.

Lanier grabbed seven rebounds to become Detroit's all-time leading rebounder, surpassing the 4,966 amassed by Walter Dukes in six seasons.

Seattle's Spencer Haywood scored 25 points, including two clinching free throws with 1:13 left to play. The Kings' Nate Archibald also had 25 points.

KC-Omaha thus remained two games behind Chicago in the Midwest Division.

Elvin Hayes scored 35 points and grabbed 14 rebounds as Washington Bullets improved their record to 58-21 and maintained their half-game edge over Boston in the race for the best record in the NBA.

Bob McAdoo paced the Braves with 35 points while Downs and Havlicek shared scoring honors for Boston with 23 points each.

Reds and Voyageurs Score

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Providence Reds and Nova Scotia Voyageurs each took two victories Wednesday night as the American Hockey League opened its quarter-final playoff schedule.

The Reds, behind Bob MacMillan's two goals, downed Springfield Indians 5-4. Providence finished in first place in the Northern Division while Springfield was fourth.

At Rochester, N.Y., Ron Ansdruff's goal early in the third period gave the Voyageurs a 3-2 win over the Americans and a 1-0 lead in their best-of-seven series. Nova Scotia was third-place finisher in the North and Rochester was second.

Tonight, Springfield and the Reds return to action at Providence and Hershey Bears and Richmond Robins open their quarter-final series.

Friday, Nova Scotia and the Americans play their second game at Rochester, and New Haven Nighthawks and Virginia Red Wings play the first game of their quarter-final.

Larry O'Connor, Hartland Monahan and Jerry Holland scored the Reds' other goals and Dennis Abgrall, Mike Usiatik, Bob Poffenroth and Lorne Stamler replied for Springfield.

Doug Gibson and Barry Merrell gave the Americans a 2-0 lead in the first period with a pair of power-play goals. But the Voyageurs stormed back in the second period, getting goals at 3:49 from Guy DeSpont and at 10:48 from Glenn Goldup to tie the game.

Rochester had a man advantage for four minutes in the second period when a Voyageur was sent off with a pair of minor penalties but the Americans failed to get a shot off in that amount of time.

Jets' Hopes Fading

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

When the World Hockey Association started its third season last fall with a new divisional alignment, the new Canadian Division was expected to be the strongest with at least three and perhaps four of its teams qualifying for the playoffs.

With the playoffs a week away, it appears more likely the Canadians will qualify only

SERGE BERNIER

Playoff Picture

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The top two teams in each of the three WHA divisions qualify for the playoffs, along with two other wild-card teams with the highest point totals. Pairings for the best-of-seven quarter final playoffs are determined on points, regardless of division standings. The team finishing with the most points in the league meets the team with fewest points; the team with second-most points meets the team with second-fewest points, and so on.

Today, the following teams would be in the playoffs ... would qually as wild-card teams!:

Houston	102 points
Quebec	99 points
New England	89 points
Toronto	86 points
San Diego	85 points
xMinnesota	85 points
xPhoenix	84 points
Cleveland	71 points

Winnipeg, with 80 points, is the only other team which could still qualify for a playoff berth, should it overtake either of the wild-card teams or Toronto Toros in this final week of the season.

the minimum two teams—Quebec Nordiques who clinched the division title Wednesday night, and Toronto Toros.

Winnipeg Jets, the only other Canadian squad with a mathematical chance of making it, lost 8-4 Wednesday night to Vancouver Blazers and now face elimination should they lose to the Toros in Toronto on Friday night.

The Nordiques clinched the title with a 5-3 win over Minnesota Fighting Saints while, in Wednesday's only other game, Houston Aeros defeated Cleveland 7-4.

The Western Division, led by Houston with 102 points, appears now to have the best chance of qualifying four teams. The division winner and the second-place finisher in each division qualify plus the two other teams with the highest point-totals.

San Diego Mariners and Minnesota are tied for second spot in the West with 85 points each while Phoenix Roadrunners—an expansion team—are right behind with 84. One of those teams will qualify for the playoffs as the second-place finisher in the West while the other two will likely qualify as the wild-card teams.

Winnipeg has been trying to catch up in the wild-card race but its loss Wednesday left the team with 80 points and only three games remaining.

"Mathematically our hopes are slim but while you're still in the race, you have a chance to win," said Jets coach Rudy Pilous.

While the Jets' playoff hopes fade, Bobby Hull is also running out of time to extend his season's goal total of 75.

He failed to score again Wednesday with Vancouver's Danny Lawson, Larry Israelson and Bryan Campbell as the checking line to keep Hull off the scoresheet.

But the Blazers checking line also found time to score five goals—three by Lawson and two by Israelson.

"We've always played a line against Bobby," said Vancouver coach Joe Crozier. "Naturally I put my best forwards against him because he is the best and we'll see who's going to score the most goals."

On Monday, Hull complained that he couldn't understand why teams throw checking lines at him when it tended to reduce the scoring effectiveness of the checkers.

In Minnesota, the Saints took a 3-0 lead and then allowed the Nordiques to rally in the last half.

Serge Bernier's 53rd goal of the season started the Quebec comeback in the second period and Marc Tardif, with his 49th of the season, scored the winning goal late in the third period.

Houston almost gave away its game as well but recovered with late goals by Don Larway and Mark Howe.

The Aeros had a 5-1 lead early in the second period but Cleveland came back to tie the score in the third period.

"We had such a lead there, then we got sloppy," said Houston coach Bill Dineen. "Our defence got caught on the two goals in the second period then got caught again when they tied it."

Ottawa May Be Back

OTTAWA (CP) — A group of businessmen interested in bringing professional hockey back to Ottawa saw they will make formal application to the World Hockey Association (WHA) for a franchise within a few days.

The group—the Founders Club—say they have been in contact with a number of WHA trustees. The application is primarily a means of soliciting 70 from the WHA conditions for the possible return of hockey to Ottawa as a prospect.

"Until we've got a target to shoot for, we're groping in the dark," a spokesman said at a meeting of the club Tuesday night.

Some members complained that it has been difficult to get "hard and fast answers" from the WHA as to what might be necessary, particularly in terms of money.

A seven-member board of directors has been elected from 70 businessmen who attended the meeting and pledged to invest in the project, the spokesman said.

Fincups Sweep Quarter-final Set

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hamilton Fincups wrapped up their quarter-final series with St. Catharines Wednesday defeating the Hawks 7-3 and sweeping the series in four straight games.

The Fincups unseated last year's defending champions in the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A playoffs, winning the three previous games by scores of 10-1, 8-2 and 5-1.

Hamilton now meets Peterborough Petes, who ended their semi-final series with Oshawa Generals Tuesday night on the other eight-point round, Stratford Hamilton goaltender Greg Redquest was replaced midway in the first period by Mike Clarke after he was hit with a hard shot in the mouth. Hamilton outshot the Hawks 44-22.

In the second period, Hamilton's Tony Horvath and Hawks' Willie Platt received majors and misconducts, with Horvath making several obscene gestures to the fans and Hawk goaltender Bill Cheropita swinging his stick at one of the Hamilton spectators.

In the third period, Selling was given a game misconduct for obscene gestures.

Gibson Says He's Ready

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

National League hitters, be on guard; Bob Gibson says he's ready.

"Yeah, I'm ready for the season," said the veteran right hander, who will pitch the baseball opener for St. Louis Cardinals next Monday.

"I'm always ready," he said. "Sometimes the hitting isn't quite sharp. And, when I lose a few close games, they say I'm not ready."

The Cardinals' winningest pitcher, who says he's retiring after this, his 16th full season in the majors, warmed up for the opener by limiting Houston Astros to six hits in an exhibition game Wednesday. But he gave up two runs in the third inning and was charged with the 2-1 defeat.

"You pitch differently" when the season begins, the 39-year-old Gibson said.

In other games Wednesday, Kansas City Royals defeated Chicago White Sox 5-2, New York Yankees defeated Texas 6-2, Baltimore edged Atlanta 1-0, Philadelphia out-slugged Boston 13-10, Montreal nipped Cincinnati 6-5, Cleveland beat Oakland 11-3, Milwaukee defeated San Diego 5-1, San Francisco beat California 4-1, Chicago Cubs defeated Los Angeles 9-5 and Pittsburgh blanked Detroit 8-0.

Pitchers Jerry Reuss and Sam McDowell limited Detroit to one hit as Pittsburgh Pirates handed the Tigers their second consecutive shutout.

Hank Aaron hit his first home run of the spring and teammates John Briggs and Gorman Thomas also homered to lead Milwaukee past San Diego.

Grand-slam home runs by veteran Ellie Brown and rookie Alan Bannister in successive innings rallied Philadelphia over Boston. Tony Conigliaro, making a comeback after being out of baseball for 3½ years, batted in for runs with a double and a three-run homer.

Don Baylor scored on Tim Nordbrook's suicide squeeze in the 11th inning as Baltimore edged Atlanta.

Steve Busby's pitching and a two-run homer by Hal McRae led the Royals to victory over the Chicago White Sox.

Rick Monday hit two home runs to lead the Cubs over the Dodgers. And Larry Parrish doubled with one out in the eighth, then scored on Tony Scott's triple in the Expos' win over Cincinnati.

Foreman "Show" Gets Okay

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Athletic Commission has granted permission for former world heavyweight champ George Foreman to box five consecutive opponents at Maple Leaf Gardens April 26.

Commissioner Merv McKenzie said Wednesday night permission has been granted for Foreman to box three five-minute rounds against each of the five men.

McKenzie said Ontario rules state a boxer could not have more than one contest or exhibition in a day but there was some doubt about the word exhibition. He said lawyers for the promoters argued that the word exhibition could be interpreted in the plural form and the commission's lawyer agreed.

"Contests or contests were expected to be announced today in New York.

Bunny Favors Open Tourney

MUNICH, Germany (AP) — John P. (Bunny) Ahearne, British president of the International Ice Hockey Federation, said Wednesday he favors an "open world tournament" for national teams composed of professionals as well as amateurs.

Ahearne said he will officially propose opening the world ice hockey competition to professionals at a meeting of the International Olympic Committee (IOC) next July in Lausanne, Switzerland.

"If the Olympic Congress accepts my proposal, then open tournaments can begin," he said on the eve of the 1975 Group A championships.

However, observers doubted that the IOC would alter its strict stand on amateurism to accommodate such countries as Canada and Sweden, which want pros in their lineups.

The Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia, co-favorites in the 14-day tournament, are strongly opposed to Western teams with professionals. Teams critical of the Soviet bloc teams are made up of full-time paid players whose amateur status cannot officially be disproved.

Ahearne acknowledged that the six-team Group A tournament was a failure because four entrants—the Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia, Sweden and Finland—have far outstripped other ice-hockey countries, including the remaining two entrants, the United States and Poland.

LOS ANGELES (Reuter) — Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Inc. filed a lawsuit in United States Superior Court here Friday seeking $1 million in damages against the Associated Television Network of England and the Independent Television Corp. of Maryland.

MGM alleges that the two companies are planning a television science fiction series entitled Space: 1999 and that the title is similar to MGM's award-winning film 2001: A Space Odyssey, and constitutes misappropriation of property rights.

The company said it had spent $8 million advertising the space film and that it planned to produce a television series of its own based on the movie.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Academy Award-winning director William Friedkin has filed a $2.5-million suit against Warner Bros. ... he says is due to him for The Exorcist.

Friedkin, who won an Oscar for The French Connection, filed the suit in United States Superior Court Thursday, alleging breach of contract and fiduciary duty, fraud and usury.

The suit says the movie has grossed $90 million to date and netted $40 million. Friedkin said his contract called for a fee of $125,000 and 10 per cent of the film's net profits.

He contended the $2.5-million figure is conservative because a full accounting might put the claim higher.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet cellist Mstislav Rostropovich will become music director and conductor of the National Symphony Orchestra beginning with its 1977-78 season.

David Lloyd Kreeger, president of the National Symphony Association, announced Friday that Rostropovich will succeed Antal Dorati, who may remain with the orchestra as principal guest conductor.

"The entire board of the National Symphony, as well as the members of the orchestra, are thrilled that our negotiations came to a satisfactory conclusion," Kreeger said.

Rostropovich, 48, came to the West six months ago along with his wife, opera singer Galina Vishnevskaya, in protest over lack of artistic freedoms in the Soviet Union.

"The press run was 500,000 copies," he said. "We expect to be selling between three and four million in two years."

While rain lashed the roof of his Silver Shadow Rolls Royce waiting in the driveway below, he contemplated a photo of his 48-foot Thames cruiser, Veste Demitie.

"It means 'Take your clothes off in Latin,' he laughed through a crescent of black moustache and beard. "I had the name translate it for me."

London visitors recognize Raymond's name from the Raymond Revuebar: a lavish Soho strip club. Currently packing them in three shows a night at $10 a head is an act called The Climax, featuring a quartet of French beefcake and cheesecake unaided by the wardrobe department in a frenzy of pulsating music and exploding strobe lights.

"I'm an entertainer, not a pornographer," said the 48-year-old millionaire. "I cater to your average bloke who wants a bit of fantasy on his night out."

Besides the Revuebar and the two British girlie publications, Men Only and Club International, he holds long leases on three West End theatres including the famous Windmill, dear to British memories as the theatre that never closed and for its nudes that never moved.

Raymond rescued the run-down house from the oblivion of Swedish sex films and instalel his great and good friend Fiona Richmond in a sex farce with a provocatively unpintable title.

Even so, most London newspapers saw fit to print the title in advertisements while their critics dismissed it as "mindless," "witless," "boring and vulgar beyond belief."

Miss Richmond, whose gorgeously contoured coastline is on display in the show, recently was named the other woman in a $700,000 divorce settlement made to Raymond's ex-wife, Jean, after a sensational trial.

Daughter of a West Country vicar, Miss Richmond writes a monthly column for Men Only describing her sexual adventures about the globe.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Friday, April 3

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A last-minute switch in tactics will deprive you of the brass ring you could have grabbed if things went as planned.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be careful today you don't slight an old friend to make points with a new one whose worth is yet unknown.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Someone is going to give you important information to pass on. Write it down or you may not relay it accurately.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If yours using equipment or tools today that belongs to another, be sure you know how they work before you throw the switch.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your mate is going to be irritated by your actions today when you do the exact opposite of what you agreed to.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your most productive time is early in the day. Toward evening you tend to be more careless than usual with tasks or assignments.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) If you're going out with friends tonight, decide how much you want to spend. Undisciplined fun and games will be too expensive.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Don't spring unexpected guests in your mate today or you're likely to find the welcome mat pulled from under your feet.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're apt to make some changes in social plans that will inconvenience others more than you think. They'll let you know about it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) When you draw funds for the weekend, take a little extra to be prepared for anything unexpected.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Don't depend on an influential acquaintance you've met recently. He's not prepared to do as much for you as you'd hoped.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Think before you speak today or you may unwittingly leave another with a very poor impression. You have a tendency to put your foot in your mouth.

Then he would lead his jack of hearts. If East ducked he would win with dummy's ace, lead a diamond and give up on seven tricks. But if East covered South would score his extra trick.

He would start Operation Extra Trick by running spades so as to discard one diamond. Then he would overtake dummy's five of trumps with his six, cash his last trump and discard dummy's diamond.

West would have been squeezed with his ace of diamonds and long hearts; and South would have scored the extra 20 points.

A rubber bridge player would waste no time with today's hand. He would be delighted with his club slam. After drawing trumps he would concede a diamond trick and go on to the next rubber after scoring 1,370 points.

A duplicate player would not risk his slam, but would undoubtedly give himself a chance to score an overtrick that would be worth an extra match point or two.

He would rise with the ace of spades at trick one. Then he would draw trumps with three leads while leaving the five spot

Blood Test Shows Marijuana Users

By G. C. THOMPSON

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is there a test that tells whether or not a person has been smoking marijuana? I heard that there is, but my girlfriend says no.—J. E. Y.

Yes, there is such a test. In fact, it is discussed in a recent report from the Journal of the American Medical Association. Researchers report on development of a test based on the presence of certain antibodies in the bodies of smokers. These antibodies are produced in response to cannabis metabolites.

The test was discovered quite by accident in treatment of a patient with a blood disease known as autoimmune hemolytic anemia. The patient had suffered a sudden and severe attack of this disease.

Doctors asked him to list everything he had eaten, drunk, or smoked just prior to his attack. He admitted to smoking marijuana, and told the doctor that, come to think of it, he had had previous attacks when he smoked it.

He was given a blood test to see if he had developed such bodies to marijuana. He had. Tests were run on 17 volunteers who were also users. All had antibodies to the marijuana metabolites.

Researchers say the test is so sensitive that even a whiff of smoke breathed as one passes a room in which people are smoking marijuana can trigger a positive finding. As far as I know, the test is still only in experimental use.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 38 and just had a hysterectomy. I feel weak, get cold easily and feel lazy most of the time. The doctor told me that after my full recovery I would need hormones. Do I really need those shots?—Mrs. G. E. C.

Normally, a hysterectomy (removal of the uterus only) wouldn't cause more than the temporary weakness associated with any major abdominal surgery. But if the ovaries were removed at the same time, which seems to be the case with you, you would enter what is called "surgical menopause." Persistent symptoms of fatigue and changes in body temperature are common in this.

The hormones would make up for those formerly produced in the now-removed ovaries. The sudden loss of the natural hormone supply is what causes the symptoms you describe.

If these symptoms persist you should certainly take the hormones, either by injection or orally.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can you tell me if, when a person is operated on for tumor of the bowel, that is called transverse colectomy or splenectomy?—H. B.

A transverse colectomy would be excision of a portion of the large intestine, the portion that runs from right to left at about the middle of the abdomen. Beginning at the appendix in the lower right portion of the abdomen, the colon makes three sides of a square—up, across and down. The portion running across is the transverse section.

A splenectomy is removal of the spleen, and this has nothing to do with a colectomy, although both procedures can be performed in the same surgery.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I would like to know if man ever develops breast cancer?

Also, is it possible for a man to nurse a baby? I heard somewhere that in some foreign country, when a woman dies in childbirth, the husband nurses the baby. Is it true?—Mrs. F.

Cancer in the male breast is extremely rare. Men do develop lumps in their breasts, but these lumps are almost always nonmalignant.

As to your second question, the answer is no. Men have breast tissue, but they lack the hormonal machinery to produce milk.

Electronic Blackboard Is Useful

MILTON KEYNES, England (CP) — A remote blackboard which can transmit writing and drawings over a telephone line to be picked up on an ordinary television set, has been developed by Britain's Open University.

Students will be able to look at diagrams, graphs and formulas drawn over the phone by their tutor and immediately discuss with him what has been drawn.

The Open University, based in this southern England community, offers degree courses to those who would not normally have the chance of higher education because of full-time employment or family responsibilities. Much of the teaching is done by correspondence, supplemented by television and radio.

The university hopes the blackboard will enable tutorials will improve contact between the tutor and students who are scattered throughout the United Kingdom.

The blackboard uses an electronically-wired pen and sketch pad, so that the movement of the pen across the paper is digited into sounds. These are transmitted and received by telephone. At the receiving end a device decodes the sounds to positions on a television screen.

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Hydro and the 12,000-member Local 1000, Canadian Union of Public Employees, have negotiated an agreement giving hourly-rated employees a nine-per-cent salary increase this year and salaried employees increases ranging from six to seven per cent.

If ratified, it would make the maximum rate for tradesmen $7.78 an hour from April 1 of this year and the minimum $6.09 in 1976.

The settlement gives a group of salaried staff including clerk stenographers and keypunch operators $320.71 a week from April 1 of this year and a 8½-per-cent increase by April 1, 1976.

Want Money

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — Chief Dossmin Nebenhopai says the Whitefish Lake Indian reserve wants the $200,000 out-of-court settlement it received last year from the International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd. (Inco).

The money, awarded for damage caused by sulphur dioxide fumes from Inco's smelting operations, is in a trust fund in Ottawa.

Trip Flops

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — After barely making the first two miles of a 500-mile attempt to get to the North Pole by motorcycle from his base camp in the North-west Territories, a 20-year-old Brampton man has been forced to abandon the trip, the camp radio operator said Wednesday.

Paul Ross of Toronto, the radio operator, said that Jim Taylor, who believed a motorcycle could succeed better than dog sleds or snowmobiles on such a trip, found snowdrifts near his camp on the tip of Ellesmere Island too deep for the vehicle.

Lewis Seeks Profit

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario NDP leader Stephen Lewis is trying to sell his house in the borough of Scarborough for $159,500—more than double what he and his wife paid for it five years ago.

No Compensation

ALLISTON, Ont. (CP) — The Ontario government has no plans to compensate farmers whose land is permanently zoned for agricultural use, Robert Eaton, parliamentary assistant to Agriculture Minister William Stewart, said Tuesday.

"We are committed to preserving agriculture in this province, but we are not committed to sustain any speculative potential in farm land," Mr. Eaton said.

Ban Urged on Strikes Affecting Food Industry

ALLISTON, Ont. (CP) — A ban on strikes affecting the food distribution industry has been advocated by the legislative assistant to Ontario's agriculture minister.

Robert Eaton, Conservative member of the legislature for Middlesex South, told a meeting of Allinton-area service clubs Tuesday that farmers need a guarantee they are not going to lose their shirts" when strikes stop the delivery of food.

"Any labor contract in the food distribution system should not be allowed to run out unless a settlement is reached," he said.

"If a negotiated settlement is not reached before the deadline, strikes should be ruled out, and the matter referred to compulsory arbitration."

Alliston is about 20 miles southwest of Barrie.

Rate to Fall

WINNIPEG (CP) — The chief economist of the Royal Bank of Canada said Wednesday that prime lending rates in Canada likely will continue to decline over the next few months, reaching a low in the range of 7% to eight per cent.

Ralph Sultan of Montreal said the decline can be expected to continue to run parallel to the situation in the United States, where the prime lending rate has dipped sharply in the last four months.

Plan Plant

OTTAWA (CP) — Shell Canada Ltd. said Wednesday it still hopes to have a plant built by 1982 to extract synthetic crude from the Alberta oil sands.

Japanese Fling

EDINBURGH (CP) — Schoolteacher William Clement, 51, has been chosen for a two-week trip to Japan to instruct folk dancers in Scottish country dancing. The Japanese group, which has been studying Scottish dancing for years, wants to be sure everything is letter-perfect for a state visit by the Queen and Prince Philip in May.

Feels His Oats

SELBY, England (CP) — Arab stallion Silvadoris was given champagne on his 21st birthday recently, to celebrate his amazing virility. He mates with 60 mares a season—twice the average of younger stallions. "The secret is in his oats," says farmer John Williamson, of Selby, Yorkshire.

Mounties List 355 Crime Bosses

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says that an RCMP official said organized crime in some form has reached all parts of Canada and that the RCMP has listed 355 people it feels can be classified as major organized crime figures.

The newspaper quotes Supt. Jack Routledge, head of the RCMP's national crime intelligence branch, as saying "there are certain individuals within Canadian society that do in fact have connections with widely-publicized criminals."

"In the last two to three years, we have developed intelligence which led to the conviction of 51 of these 355 subjects," The Globe and Mail quotes him as saying in a recent briefing for some senior employees of the federal government.

The newspaper says Supt. Thomas Flanagan of the Ottawa police said a Montreal criminal organization has tried to move in on illegal gambling in Ottawa and has tried to get interests in local entertainment spots.

He said the organization is supplying vending machines and such food as meat and cheese to local restaurants, the newspaper says.

Karpov Is Awarded World Chess Crown

AMSTERDAM (AP) — The International Chess Federation failed to send word he would chess crown to the young Soviet grandmaster Anatoly Karpov by default today after Fischer failed to send word he would play the Russian challenger under rules voted by the federation.

The action by FIDE (Federation Internationale des Echecs) was expected. Fischer's acceptance or rejection of the rules was due in Amsterdam by midnight Tuesday, but FIDE President Max Euwe of the Netherlands extended the deadline for 24 hours on the slight chance that the eccentric American would not pass up his chance to win $3,375,000.

However, Euwe announced Wednesday that if the second deadline passed and Fischer did not accept, the title would go to Karpov.

Fischer has kept away from reporters for some time and his whereabouts are a mystery. But a chess expert close to him said Tuesday that Fischer felt his principles were at stake and he would not relent.

Cut Taxes or Sell More Shell Recommendation

OTTAWA (CP) — A major oil company suggested Wednesday lessen royalties and taxes on the industry or abandon plans to reduce exports to the United States.

Shell Canada Ltd. said federal taxes and provincial royalties draw off funds that could be used for exploration in the North or development of the Alberta oil sands.

"A restriction of exports by formula or any other means imposes a third drain on the industry's resources for reinvestment," the company said in a brief to the National Energy Board.

But Shell said improving prices and easing the tax and royalty levies on the companies would "work to offset the deleterious aspects of the export restriction." The company said this would "have disadvantages."

She described the new-found respectability as "a terrible thing that happened to the board about six months ago.

"It raises the possibility . . . that our work will start to be treated with the same benign respect, and neglect, that is accorded the reports of so many government agencies and commissions."

It would be regrettable "because there remain a number of important issues relating to food production, distribution and consumption which we wish to bring to the attention of the public before our mandate expires and we close shop on Dec. 31."

Ford Has New Code On Ethics Drafted

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford has had a new ethical code drawn up for all White House employees and they have been asked to attend 90-minute briefing sessions to make sure they understand it.

The eight-page code spells out ethical concepts and legal restrictions in such areas as conflicts of interests, acceptance of gifts, political activities and contact with regulatory agencies.

After the code and a packet of federal statutes were distributed to White House employees, staffers were asked to attend one of several 90-minute briefings initiated by chief of staff Donald Rumsfeld and the White House counsel's office.

Most of the 600 White House staffers have attended one of the briefings, Jerry [illegible], staff assistant to Ford, said. Another briefing will be held for the rest, about 100, he said.

Jones said that there has always been a written standard of conduct for White House staffers, but that many portions of it were vague and had to be rewritten.

"Everyone" is terribly concerned about this, given what we've gone through in the last three years," Jones said in a reference to the Watergate scandal during the administration of Richard Nixon.

Plumptre Is Worried, Board Respectable

OTTAWA (CP) — Beryl Plumptre, chairman of the food prices review board said Wednesday that she is worried because the board has become respectable.

"The months of being under attack in the media and in the [illegible] of Commons, we suddenly began to receive bouquets instead of bricks," Mrs. Plumptre said in a speech prepared for delivery to the Ottawa Board of Trade.

"This transition was certainly a pleasant change of pace," she said. "But respectability can have disadvantages."

Columnist Predicts Davis Will Call Election This Spring

TORONTO — The Belleville Intelligencer learned today Davis will probably have a general election this spring.

Writing his Queen's Park column, Don O'Hearn of the The Davis government will defy Ottawa by putting in a system of off-track betting.

Previously, most observers have been looking for a vote this fall or even next spring.

Insiders now say it will be held by mid-June at the latest.

Developments this week triggered speculation.

One was the announcement of the starting date of the new Ontario lottery.

Second was the announcement by Health Minister Frank Miller of a $650,000 program aimed at problem drinkers.

They are the type of action that is looked for from a government in advance of an election.

Since these announcements, sources close to the premier and the government have confirmed that a spring vote is now probable.

They add that Ontario can expect an announcement on off-track betting any day now, possibly in Monday's budget speech.

Ontario has been pressing to start these betting shops for more than two years—but the federal government has refused to date to amend the Criminal Code to make them legal.

From time to time the province has hinted that it may go ahead on its own, challenging Ottawa's jurisdiction over how sex has apparently decided to do so.

In choosing a spring date election, the premier appears to have much more to gain than to lose.

Both civil servants and school teachers have been trying to mount campaigns against him but would have little time for preparation before a spring election.

Also, opposition parties are really not in shape for an early vote.

By waiting through this summer, the premier risks lose momentum and give his opponents opportunity to organize.

Well, Skiing Is Fine

By NAN WHITLAW
Staff Correspondent

BANCROFT — Greg Hilton has mixed emotions about the current weather turnabout.

The manager of the Mount Madawaska Ski Hill, 40 miles north of here, was set to close for the season Wednesday.

But today Mr. Hilton is encouraging skiers to take advantage of the eight inches of fresh snow that has fallen on his six ski runs.

There is, Mr. Hilton admits, one problem for anyone wanting to polish their skiing form at Mount Madawaska — getting there.

The Bancroft OPP detachment reports all North Hastings roads are heavily snow-covered, and are advising against all but the most essential traffic.

JIM ROBBIN

This Is April?

Now that Fahrenheit has become Celsius and mile will soon become a kilometre, could it be that our April this year is really March or even January. You'd think so judging by the 10 inches of snow that is blanketing the city. Loyalist student, Peter Vanderhaden voices the thoughts of many residents wondering if perhaps the calendars are just a bit mixed up.

What Happened to Rush-hour?

Noon rush-hour on Belleville's Front St. was wiped out Thursday as worst storm of the year in Southern Ontario swept into city, obscuring visibility and slowing what traffic there was to a crawl. All available public works crews worked around the clock in efforts to keep city streets unplugged. But storm swept back in this morning and by 8 a.m. the filtration plant estimated a total 10 inches of snow had fallen on the city.

138 Orphans Die In Flaming Plane

SAIGON (AP) — The world's largest plane, carrying 243 Vietnamese orphans on a merry flight ordered by U.S. President Ford, crashed in flames shortly after take-off from Saigon today.

United States officials said the air force C-5A Galaxy transport was carrying 290 persons and that 105 orphans and 19 U.S. Air Force personnel survived.

Hospital officials said at least 72 persons were known dead, including 40 orphans, 25 women and eight men. They said 20 others still were trapped in the bottom of the plane.

The pilot said the crash was due to decompression problems caused by a malfunction in the rear loading door.

The headquarters of the 13th Air Force in the Philippines refused to comment on reports that the plane's departure from Manila earlier today had been delayed by mechanical trouble.

U.S. officials in Washington said it was the first fatal crash of a C-5A which the Air Force has been flying since 1970.

An embassy spokesman said the plane was carrying 243 orphans, 43 persons escorting the children, and an air force crew of 19.

He said most of the escorts were Americans, relatives of defence department employees attached to the embassy.

The plane, the biggest in the world, was rushed to Saigon today from Clark air force base in the Philippines to inaugurate a U.S. government airlift of 2,000 Vietnamese war orphans to the United States.

The plane took off from Saigon's Tan Son Nhut air base at 4:10 p.m. and was 18 miles northeast of Saigon when the pilot reported that he has having decompression problems and would return to Tan Son Nhut.

As he was coming in, the embassy said, he left wing caught fire and exploded and the plane crashed a mile and a half short of the air base at 4:45 p.m.

Helicopters from Air America, the U.S. charter airline, and the South Vietnamese air force picked up the survivors and rushed them to the Seventh-day Adventist hospital in Saigon.

The children aboard the first flight were reported to be six to 12 months old. Most of them came from an orphanage operated by the Friends for All Children agency, which has headquarters in Boulder, Colo.

The babies were packed into the plane—19 of them in seats that normally accommodate three adults on the upper passenger deck; strapped to the floor on the lower cargo deck.

Saigon and Viet Cong Seek Aid

Two Canadian Flights To Rescue 500 Children

By GEORGES KOLESNIKOVS
The Canadian Press

Canada has joined the worldwide rescue effort to evacuate thousands of war orphans out of embattled South Vietnam.

Three hundred families in Ontario and 100 in Nova Scotia indicated their desire to adopt children within hours of the announcement Thursday that 500 orphans will be brought to Canada.

The Quebec government has said it will arrange adoption for about 160 orphans. Other provinces also are expected to participate.

At least two flights from Canada to South Vietnam are planned immediately with each to bring back 250 infants and young children. The first was expected to leave for Saigon today.

More flights may be arranged if more Canadians express interest in adopting children from the war-torn Southeast Asia country.

The Canadian rescue effort was initiated by groups of private citizens with the key liaison role being played by a young woman who wishes to remain unidentified.

The federal and Ontario governments agreed Thursday to provide funds for the airlift.

The Canadian action comes as similar rescue efforts are being made by the United States and other countries.

U.S. President Ford said Thursday that $2 million will be diverted from a special children's fund to fly 2,000 orphans to the U.S. West Coast in air force airplanes.

Australian Prime Minister Gough Whitlam announced today that his government has chartered a jumbo jet to evacuate about 250 Vietnamese orphans destined for adoption by Australians.

In Britain, the government Thursday donated $237 million to help refugees, especially children, while London Daily Mail said it was chartering a plane to fly 150 orphans out of South Vietnam.

More than 6,000 Britons were reported to have offered to take in Vietnamese orphans.

The Norwegian government said it would donate $1.9 million for refugee relief in South Vietnam.

In Geneva, the United Nations Children Fund called for all government to contribute funds to help the suffering children in areas controlled by both Saigon and the Viet Cong.

A UN spokesman said Saigon has asked for emergency assistance for one million children while the Viet Cong sought aid for two million.

Cambodian Regime Throws in Reserves

PNNOM PENH (AP) — The Cambodian government gathered 1,000 ill-assorted troops and rushed them to an area of rice fields six miles northwest of the centre of Phnom Penh today in an attempt to blunt a Khmer Rouge drive that threatened to march through to the city's northern outskirts.

Field reports said the government also launched an airlift of Kompong Seila, 75 miles southwest of Phnom Penh, and evacuated thousands of troops, their families and other civilians to the capital by helicopter and C-123 transport planes.

Army sources said the situation was critical.

They also reported airable Khmer Rouge forces moving outside Phnom Penh's defence perimeter toward the airport on the edge of the city and toward the town of Prek Phnou to the north.

High Winds, Heavy Snow Pile Drifts on Area Roads

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

Winds between 25 and 40 m.p.h. swirled across county roads and highways today piling snow into four-foot drifts in some areas. All OPP detachments in both Hastings and Prince Edward Counties are advising motorists to stay off highways as work crews struggled to clear roads.

Snowfalls in Hastings and Prince Edward Counties and Lennox and Addington Counties ranged from 7½ inches in Picton to 24 inches in Kaladar. Belleville received about 10 inches, Trenton 8.6 inches, Tweed about 18 inches and Bancroft 14 inches.

A spokesman from CFB Trenton weather station said today the three-day storm is probably the worstever to hit this area during April. He said the previous snowfall record for April was 4.5 inches at Trenton.

Most county secondary and elementary students went back on temporary Easter holidays as a majority of buses were not running in Prince Edward and Hastings. All separate schools were closed today in both counties while the Hastings County Board of Education was offering classes today for those student who could make it.

Most meeting and activities in Belleville were cancelled today. But the annual three day Shrine Preview Hockey tournament, which begins today, and involves 32 teams from Windsor to Ottawa, has not been cancelled. Tournament director Don Cavey said it's definitely going on.

The Trenton weatherman said the snow is expected to end today but that high winds will continue through the night. Skies should be sunny for Saturday.

Testimony Sought

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — Legal action was ordered Thursday in an attempt to get testimony from reluctant witnesses for an inquest into the Oct. 20 crash of a Punaritic Ont. Ltd. Lockheed Electra which claimed 22 lives. The plane's co-pilot David Hutton and flight engineer Garry Weyman, the only survivors, live outside the North West Territories beyond the jurisdiction of the inquest and have refused to appear voluntarily. Thursday, Coroner Walter England instructed Crown lawyer Ed Brunden to ask supreme courts in British Columbia, Alberta and Saskatchewan, the provinces where the witness reside, to establish commissions to hear relevant testimony.

Saigon's Prospects Seem Dim

WASHINGTON (AP) — The North Vietnamese command is pouring more than 1,000 fresh troops a day into South Vietnam in an apparent buildup for a final blow, United States intelligence sources report.

Unlike President Ford, intelligence specialists are pessimistic about South Vietnam's prospects. They also are doubtful the Cambodian capital of Phnom Penh can long withstand the assault by the Khmer Rouge.

Ford said Thursday that "at the moment, I do not anticipate the fall of South Vietnam. I am an optimist despite the sad and tragic events we are unfolding."

Maritimes Hit After Storm Sweeps Ontario and Quebec

By The Canadian Press

A violent winter storm that rampaged across Ontario and Quebec Thursday slammed into the Maritimes today with near hurricane force winds and heavy snow.

...ough mostly clear, cold weather was forecast for Central Canada today, more than a foot of snow was expected in parts of the Maritimes.

Strong winds battered Nova Scotia and heavy snow was falling in New Brunswick with up to 10 inches already recorded in some parts of the province. Heavy snow was also reported falling in Prince Edward Island.

In Halifax, the winds topped several trees and branches littered city streets. A fully-laden gypsum carrier with 40 persons aboard was forced aground on a beach in Halifax harbor early today. Tugs were standing by and rescue officials said the crew was in no immediate danger.

Fredericton reported 12 inches of snow by early this morning and all schools in the Moncton area were closed.

At least five persons died in storm-related traffic accidents in Ontario Thursday as the storm lashed communities in Central Canada with between six and 12 inches of snow.

Winds gusting up to 50 miles an hour whipped up snowdrifts closing schools, snarling traffic and cutting electrical power.

The Welland canal was blocked when the 720-foot bulk carrier, J. W. McGiffin, owned by Canada Steamship Lines Ltd., became lodged in the rocky east bank at Allenburg, Ont., in high winds.

St. Lawrence Seaway Authority officials said the ship was taking water in two ballast forward tanks and was to be taken to a wharf for a full inspection.

The Montreal area received 12 inches of snow as well as freezing rain. Many drivers were forced to abandon their cars.

In the West, Winnipeg was bright and sunny with more of the same expected today. In Saskatchewan, snow already on the ground was whipped into high drifts by winds gusting to 37 m.p.h., with temperatures near the freezing mark. Similar conditions were expected today.

Alberta reported some scattered snowflurries and overnight lows of —15 C. British Columbia was mainly cloudy Thursday with showers on the coast and sunny skies elsewhere.

Montreal International Airport managed to keep one runway open during the day, but Air Canada cancelled all flights.

Toronto International Airport shut down at 4:30 p.m. EST. Air Canada ran into problems because of a lack of glycol—a chemical used to prevent icing on plane wings—when trucks with additional supplies from Sarnia, Ont., were delayed by snow-clogged highways.

Acadian Culture Is Facing Crisis

CHURCH POINT, N.S. (CP) — Culture of a distinctive culture: A French-speaking priest, assigned to Acadian parishes in southwestern Nova Scotia, finds he has to give sermons in English because the English-speaking parishioners have trouble following him in French.

French speaking teachers teach French-speaking students—in English.

A fisherman in a local tavern pauses during a sentence in French. "Thank you," he says, automatically, to the French speaking waiter bringing another round.

In the Acadian community grouped in a series of trim villages along the shores of the Bay of Fundy, a culture preserved over more than 300 years is visibly rending.

Leaders of the community, encompassing 15 in the municipality of Clare, say that what is happening here is an index to stresses on Acadian language and traditions throughout the province.

Over the last few years, a sense of a culture under siege many of the municipality's 9,000 residents has begun to rediscover and protect their heritage.

It is a concern that touches more than 30,000 other French-speaking persons in Nova Scotia, Acadians, largely grouped in four municipalities, comprise 40 per cent of the province's population of 800,000.

"The tragedy is," said Bryan Empson, an assistant history professor at Collège Sainte-Anne and a French-speaking native of Manitoba, "not many people know how threatened the Acadian culture is—how quickly the language is vanishing."

College Sainte-Anne is the rallying point in the battle for Acadian self-fulfilment. A small bilingual university, it has been the touchstone of tradition in the area from its founding by Jesuit priests in 1890.

Since Louis Comeau took over as president in 1971, the college has been providing Acadians into a new awareness of their past, and through an array of technical and professional courses, is offering them new areas of growth.

The institution once was on the brink of closing and Mr. Comeau does not hesitate to say what the consequences would have been.

"I'm as convinced as I'm sitting on this chair that if the college had folded—or if it had not maintained its hilltop character—the whole Acadian culture of the region would disappear in a very short time."

It is not hard to find agreement. Oliver Martin, warden of surrounding Clare municipality who also is the chief administrative vice-president, said if the college had closed, the Acadian culture would soon have been completely submerged by English language and customs."

A priority in buttressing the Acadian way of life, Mr. Comeau said, is to revive the current situation in the four local Acadian high schools, which academically are for some programs as English-language schools.

English remains, the prime language of instruction, despite the fact students and most teachers are French-speaking.

Gerard D'Entremont, a former warden of Clare and chairman of the local school board, said the board is reluctant to replace the status of English in instruction. "They think somehow it will make the courses deficient."

Contributing problems are a shortage of local qualified French teachers and a lack of textbooks in French. What books are of potential use are from—France or Quebec, which Mr. Comeau said often are not compatible with texts in English-language schools in the province and sometimes of little relevance to Maritimers.

The Acadian youth, speaking French at home and English at school, currently is trapped between two cultures.

Not confident of their written or spoken French, nor of their English, the students tend not to aim for higher education" he said.

The most recent statistics available show that for the four years between 1964 and 1968, only 30 per cent of Acadian boys in Clare completed high school, compared with 42 per cent of English-speaking boys in the neighbouring municipality of Yarmouth. The figure for Acadian girls was 43 per cent, compared with 65 per cent in Yarmouth.

"I'm convinced language is the reason," Mr. Comeau said. "The situation is bad because these people cannot really develop their full potential. It is a fact that the young people in a way are neither French nor English."

Mr. Comeau said the figures are what convinced him to "move swiftly on the teacher education program. Because this will really have an effect."

The process of reinforcing the French of Acadian students at the college is not an easy one.

Dominique Aucouturier, in her second year of lecturing at the college after arriving from France, said she sees early feelings was frustration.

"When I first came here, the Acadians kept asking me to teach them in English—because they didn't understand me but because they are used to being taught in English." She kept teaching in French.

Mr. Comeau said the college stresses international French.

"We have a lot of old expressions. They're good words but they're words that are not necessarily used nowadays, say in France or Quebec. And there's a lot of English mixture in the language.

"What the college is doing is simply correcting that kind of thing."

Jobs Awaiting Holders of BA

ANTIGONISH, N.S. (CP) — The employment prospects of students who will bachelor's degrees in education are excellent this year, says Dr. Sydney Mifflen, chairman of the education department of St. Francis Xavier University.

Dr. Mifflen based his prediction on the number of school boards that have visited the campus to talk with prospective graduates or have sent requests for meetings with students.

He said some members of the 1974-75 graduating class had already been hired by schools outside the Atlantic provinces and many others had been offered contracts.

Break in the Action

More Resource Centres Planned for Schools

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

Funds for the development of learning resource centres in county schools will top last year's figure of about $125,000, says director of education Eric Runacres.

He speculated the figure may reach $175,000 of which 85 per cent will be provincial grants. The exact amount will not be known until the board hands down and approves its 1975 budget, expected later this month.

In 1974 there were 19 centres built in schools. The centres, which are specialized libraries, are used by students and teachers for research purposes.

The concept of these resource centres developed five years ago when boards of education were faced with a declining enrolment in the elementary schools. The drastic reduction in student population produced empty classrooms and in some areas empty schools.

Rather than close classrooms down or close schools, said Mr. Runacres, the board decided to renovate rooms for resource centres and other instructional facilities. Elementary school enrolment will continue to decline until 1980 when it is expected to level off.

In some cases the Hastings County Board of Education has been forced to close older, outdated schools. This week the board decided to close Centenary Public School effective June 30. Mr. Runacres said he doubts whether further school closings will take place.

Mr. Runacres also said some of the empty rooms have been converted to special education centres which have been lacking in past years. Another step has been to bring two schools under the wing of one principal.

This week the Etobicoke Board of Education announced it would close about 150 of its classrooms for an estimated saving of $665,000 to the taxpayers. The classrooms will be empty mainly because Etobicoke's enrolment is expected to drop about 20 per cent.

Mr. Runacres said the Hastings board will not close any classrooms because of declining enrolment. He said the over-all plan to renovate empty rooms for needed resource centres will compensate for the available space.

Board officials predict that Hastings student population will decline from a high of 24,200 in 1970 to a low of 19,000 in 1984. The current figure is about 22,000 students.

The ministry of education is reluctant to let school boards sell buildings or property because there is indication the student population will increase after 1981. The board has 70 buildings or 65 school sites.

Local Teachers Reject Media Workshop Plan

The Hastings District of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation (OSSTF) will not hold workshops in "how to cultivate the media."

The OSSTF held a series of political workshops last December prior to municipal elections to encourage and teach teachers how to have more influence in the community.

Due to the pending provincial election the OSSTF has revitalized these workshopt and is planning to sponsor 15 more across the province. The teachers who attend these seminars, are in turn expected to go back to their districts and pass the information along.

Judie Carty, president of the Hastings district OSSTF, said teachers are now more aware of the need for this area.

The workshops urged teachers to cultivate local hotline radio moderators as well as reporters and editors. They also encouraged teachers to take an active role in various community organizations.

Cowboy Boots Made Of Various Leathers

EDMONTON (CP) — When most people think of leather for boots we shoes, they think of young steer hide. Not so Peter Po-ron and his partner Mr. Parayko.

Mr. Parayko thinks in terms of kangaroo, crocodile, ostrich and eater, sea turtle, python, lizard and others.

Mr. Parayko runs Western Boots Boots Ltd., a firm that sells shoes, their daughter and son. Aside from western hats and belts, the store deals in exclusively in cowboy boots.

Exotic boots, selling for as much as 600 a pair, are a great drawing card, but most customers pay the average price of $80 to $90 a pair with about 10 pairs moving out of the 600 in a warehouse.

"We've got boots nobody else has," Mr. Parayko said in an Interview.

"We've got more than 200 styles to choose from in this line, he said.

Mr. Parayko, 47, who has been in the shoe business for 21 years, admits he's a bit of a gambler.

About four years ago he started importing some of the exotic boots because he loves the work and because he saw a potential market. Business has been up and down but the overall trend is upward.

"Boots became a fad and people discovered that the Western boots are a lasting investment and they are coming back in style," he said.

With a store full of boots he has only two in his own collection which he wears every day as he for closer scrutiny. Phase 3 is pursues his particular hobby — making boots. He even keeps a bedroll in his office should he get caught in a snowstorm overnight.

It's not the money, he said. He already owns a 5,000-square-foot, five-level home and says he could retire whenever he wants to.

But he enjoys selling boots, which really sell themselves because the customer knows what he wants before he comes in, and he enjoys travelling to boot manufacturers in the United States and Canada, buying stock and getting ideas for new styles. He is often with his own trademark, Bata Diablo.

Design, said the cigar-smoking owner who favors western suits and ranch a cowboy hat in his office, is limited only by imagination. The combinations of different colored leathers and exotic skins, various cuts around the top, contrasting toes and uppers, heel heights and stitching are endless.

While his cheapest boot runs around $50, the price may climb as high as $2,000 for a pair of custom-made boots decorated with rhinestones, gold and silver or whatever, he said.

In business since "insane" is the word he uses, with customers buying boots for conversation, footwear, boots looking for specialty items and young men, 18 to 19, with their 21st birthday, looking for a good pair to keep up with the fad.

He stocks sizes from 5½ to 14 and says he sells boots for children as young as 1½ and claims "no shoe size. Not so Peter Po-ron and his partner Mr. Parayko.

"I'm ready for anything."

British Airways Has Advanced Security System

LONDON (CP) — What is said to be one of the most advanced security systems in the world has been adopted by British Airways at Heathrow Airport. It does away with the need for 95 per cent of physical checking of passengers and baggage.

Heathrow, the new three-phase system developed by the airlines to choose from in this line, detects metal and explosives and x-rays baggage, all in one operation.

The equipment has been developed so that airports or airlines can use only part of the three phases of the system.

At the heart is a metal detector gateway the size of an ordinary doorway. Passengers walk along with and through it along side registers the presence of any metal objects.

Phase 2 is an x-ray unit. Hand-held baggage is determined by a lead-lined compartment and the contents of the bag are displayed on a television screen. Any area of the bag which is suspicious can be zoomed in on for closer scrutiny. Phase 3 is the complete system and Intersonic's parent corporation is exploring gas-proof detection.

British Airways plans to operate the equipment at several points on its worldwide network if trials being carried out at Heathrow are successful.

Murray Councillor Balks At Fire Hall Site Cost

By CHRIS ALMEY
Staff Correspondent

WOOLER — Progress on the creation of Murray Township's own fire department slowed down this week, with two members of council absent from the meeting.

The three remaining members did pass a resolution authorizing Clerk Ron Rose to enter into an agreement with Frankford to provide fire protection for almost half of the township.

However, councillor Clifford Wannamaker refused to sit as chairman so a resolution to get an offer to purchase a piece of land on the York Road west of Trenton for fire hall could be passed.

Deputy-reeve James Quinn was acting reeve, and he could not second the motion by councillor Angus McFee. The two men asked councillor Wannamaker to take the chair to enable the resolution to be passed, but he refused. He explained that the 99.500 for the 177 by 110 feet lot was too high and cheaper land could be obtained further up the road.

Reeve Harry Lafferty was attending a convention of counties and reeves in Toronto, and councillor Bill Ellis, on Loyalist College staff, was attending open house of the institution.

The town of Trenton wanted $30,000 to provide fire protection for Murray Township this year, and the Ontario Fire Marshall suggested it was beyond Trenton's ability to protect the north end of Murray. These two factors prompted Reeve Lafferty to want Murray to have some fire department of its own housed on the York Road.

Frankford and Murray have met privately recently, and Frankford will charge Murray $8,000 a year to provide protection north of a line running between the fourth and fifth concession. A road runs that part way along this line, Frankford would respond to calls south of the line at 8:00 an hour.

Agreements with Brighton and Ameliasburg have to be signed besides the one with Frankford. Deputy-reeve Quinn said Ameliasburg would do south of the Murray Canal. Councillor Wannamaker said Brighton would come as far east as the overhead bridge on Highway 2. To complete the picture, however, Murray requires its own fire station somewhere in the vicinity, according to the reeve at a previous meeting.

Township to Explore New Patching Method

WOOLER — If Murray Township residents don't think road potholes are being repaired, they may bid patches won't stay in place. Bob McCauley, head of the Murray public works department, told council his men have patched Telephone Rd. three times this spring.

Council instructed Clerk Ken Rose to ask a company to come to the township and demonstrate their product. Applied cold, the substance anchors itself to the bottom of potholes.

Commenting on the current type of patch being applied, Mr. McCauley said "It is just a waste of money. It costs $100 a load and it takes three or four men half a day to apply it. They can use it up quicker, depending upon the size of the potholes."

In other business, councillor Angus McFee said all members of council had a look at and were in agreement to fix a roadway up leading to a home owned by Henry and Gladys Botting in the south end of Murray.

However, clerk Rose said the house is on an unopened road allowance and if council did this it would be setting a precedent. He pointed out residents on one street in a subdivision had agreed to pay $200 each to bring such a roadway up to standards.

Mr. McCauley told council that there would have to be ditches on both sides of a roadway and gravel on the travelled portion before the ministry of transportation and communications would give the township a subsidy. If the township did this work itself it would not get the subsidy clerk Rose added.

It was also pointed out that there had to be a turnaround for snowplows on dead-end roads and the roadway had to be a minimum 66 feet wide, otherwise the subsidy would not be given. Mr. Rose said Highwold requires land owned by the Bottings, who possess it on both sides of the road allowance.

"I get the notion that we are in a bit of a quandary here," councillor McFee noted. "Let's shelve this and let the whole council sit on it two weeks from now."

CAS Says Fewer Children Now Needing Agency Care

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Local director of the Prince Edward Children's Aid Society, Garth Smith, told members this week there has been "remarkable drop" in the number of children in care in 1974 in comparison with former years.

He said at the beginning of 1974 there were 51 children in care and at the end of the year, 47 children in care.

"With fewer children in care of course, we are able to concentrate on working with children in their own homes, with the family unit intact," he said.

"Whether on a brief service level or on an open case level we worked with approximately the same number of families as last year."

"People in the county are turning to the agency as a source of help without some of the fear that sometimes the public can feel towards an agency who they consider to be authoritarian in some ways," he said.

Mr. Smith suggested that this trend has resulted from the approachable attitudes of CAS workers. He noted close working relationships have been maintained with the general public and with people who can refer children in need.

Mr. Smith noted that some families fail to respond to counselling and lack the ability to care adequately for their children. Sometimes it is necessary to remove the child from the home, especially the younger child.

"We rely on the community, friends and neighbors, the school system, the police, welfare and medical profession and so on to bring families and children in need to our attention."

The director observed many teens continue to come to the CAS for help and in some cases do come into care. He stressed the CAS must be sure it can offer a better alternative for the teenager particularly the older ones, than for them to remain at home with CAS counselling between them and their parents.

Mr. Smith said over half of the agencies referrals continue to be self referrals — that is, referrals from a parent of the child, particularly with respect to the older child.

"This is a good sign; it is a sign that the parties are seeing that a problem does exist and this is usually the first step in the helping process."

Showing the Way

Strathcona potter Marguerite Fintlay shows St. Peter's School student collotype construction of a clay jug at Trenton Memorial Library this week. The Napanee area woman was one of two potters who demonstrated the craft Wednesday and Thursday through funding by the Ontario Outreach program. Both hand thrown and wheel construction was displayed.

Trenton Still Waiting For Home Grant Allotment

TRENTON — Town hall officials must wait another week to 10 days for official word from Queen's Park indicating the amount of money it will receive through the Neighborhood Improvement Program (NIP).

A housing ministry official said Thursday the province is still waiting for a master agreement from Ottawa without which NIP money cannot be released to municipalities across Ontario.

Trenton has been waiting for nearly two months for word from the province. In mid-March, it was learned the town had received an allocation. But no indication was seeing that it was for the full $800,000 Trenton requested.

The funds for NIP can be used to upgrade older, deteriorating, and primarily residential areas in Trenton. Once funds are released, council must decide which of five already-designated areas will receive money for upgrading of homes and town services.

"Within the next week or 10 days," said the official. "I think we'll be in a position to make some sort of announcement."

However, he could not estimate how long it would take for the processing of the master agreement, once it is received from Ottawa, at the provincial level.

District at a Glance

Rickard Guest Speaker

PICTON — The Rotary Club will hold its annual Rural-Urban night April 22 in Cherry Valley.

Guest speaker will be Newcastle Mayor Garnet Rickard. Mayor Rickard is a past warden of the United Counties of Durham and Northumberland and past president of the Bowmanville Rotary Club. He is a farmer and is active in a number of farm and municipal organizations.

Bike-a-thon Planned

TRENTON — Trenton Memorial Hospital board of directors has announced plans for its second annual bike-a-thon to be held April 19, weather permitting. The board said it hopes proceeds will reach $10,000 for the purchase of new surgical equipment. Last year's event produced about $8,000 for the acquisition of new x-ray equipment for the radiology department.

Teen Power in Action

WELLINGTON — A group of young people, consisting of young men who have beaten drug addiction and alcoholism, will present a program of testimony at Wellington Pentecostal Church here April 11-12 at 7:30 p.m. Now enrolled in Teen Challenge (Niagara Region), the men will relate their involvement with narcotics and various institutions.

Townships Swap Land

WOOLER — Years ago surveyors placed Murray Township land on the north side of the Trent River where it bends west and runs through what is called Glenn Ross' and Percy Davis's. Similarly, Percy Township received land on the south side of the river.

Some time ago, it was agreed that an exchange would be made. Murray Clerk Ken Rose revealed this week that the final order was passed by the Ontario Municipal Board on January 1 this year.

This week at council Murray passed a "housekeeping bylaw" to get the assessment transferred over.

In the swap, Murray will get the assessment from five properties, but lost the revenue from a 30-home subdivision, a marina, and several other properties. Part of the deal was that Murray would still own 100 acres in Seymour that it had acquired in default of tax payment.

In other business, council was advised that Murray's rate for Northumberland County would see taxpayers contributing $113,167.36, which is up some $27,000 compared with last year.

Conservation Area Ready

CODRINGTON — Early next month, Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority officials will open the Frank Goodrich conservation area south of here. Plans for the approximate 200-acre site on Cold Creek are for retention of its current natra state and its use as a fisherman's haven and hiking area.

It's April?

Winter came back with a vengeance in April and one result was problems and frustrations for city drivers like Heather Tomlinson of Belleville. Every time a car was parked snow began piling on it, and around it as the worst storm of the year struck Thursday.

Ambulance Overturns

MOUNTAIN VIEW — A Picton doctor, passenger in an ambulance enroute to Belleville, received minor injuries early today when the vehicle overturned in a ditch near Mountain View.

Dr. Fred Murphy was treated at Belleville General Hospital for face cuts after the ambulance, driven by Walter Bond, of Picton, slid off Highway 14.

A woman patient suffering post-natal complications and the driver were unhurt.

Damage to the vehicle was estimated at $500 in the mishap which occurred at 5:15 a.m.

Bomb Scare Empties Trenton High School

By AL ZABAS

TRENTON — An anonymous telephone caller who claimed a bomb was planted in Trenton High School forced police and school officials to evacuate students and send them into Thursday's driving snow storm.

The bomb threat proved to be a hoax after an exhaustive search by police, school caretakers and teachers failed to turn up a bomb.

Principal Jack Sisson said Thursday town police ordered the evacuation of students for three hours after the morning telephone call.

He said the call was first taken by a secretary and then transferred to school vice-principal John Milani. At the time, the call was considered "serious" and evacuation measures were taken.

Later in the afternoon, he labelled the call the work of a prankster.

Bomb scares have taken place before, he said and "in most cases, they're taken with a grain of salt."

The bomb was to explode at 11 a.m. Students at the school did not go back in class at 2 p.m., the time police recommended they could return, because only two periods remained in the school day.

Mr. Sisson said transportation problems due to a lack of buses to return students to school for the remainder of the shortened day forced cancellation of classes.

With buses unavailable, some students were forced to walk several miles through the snow storm to their homes.

Phoney Job Offers a Problem for Ottawa

Racial Tension is Rising in Canada: 'The Immigrant's Promised Land'

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Having permitted a rising tide of 250,000 or more illegal immigrants to sweep into Canada, the federal government is finding itself in the same difficulty as confronted King Canute.

It may have stemmed the flood of phoney "visitors" that streamed in by charter jets from Asia and the Caribbean, but the tricks still persist.

It is more than a trickle, too, because the sheer number of blacks in the cities of Ontario, particularly Toronto, and of Asians on the West Coast, especially in Vancouver and its satellite communities, is sparking what State Secretary Hugh Faulkner calls "racial tension."

During the phoney "visitors" caper, anybody could get into Canada.

They would fly in by the jet-load with a little money — but seldom enough, realistically, to cover much more than a short bus ride — with obviously ridiculous claims of wanting to holiday in the Rocky Mountain resorts of Quebec, vacation at Niagara Falls out West, or visit Halifax, Manitoba.

And a lot of the time they would make it through immigration, go "underground" in the big cities, latch onto strictly illegally-held jobs, and blend into the immigrant ghettos.

Immigration Minister Andras long wanted to stop this nonsense, but the bleeding hearts of the Cabinet would not hear of it.

They finally listened when the public protest got loud enough to penetrate the bureaucratic insulation that surrounds this off-the-beaten-track National Capital from the taxpayers in the real world beyond its vast boundaries.

But so many illegal immigrants had made it in by then and sent the good word home that Canada has become the promised land of impoverished thousands more in the Caribbean and Asia.

They can't make it now because recent immigration restrictions require prospective immigrants to have job offer guarantees before arriving in Canada.

But so sweet.

Employment agencies in Port of Spain, Trinidad, where the Canadian diplomatic mission handles all visa applications from the Eastern Caribbean, have set up a new and thriving industry.

It's the fabricating, or the forgery of the "job offer guarantee letter."

For a price — upwards, usually, of $100 — the intended immigrant can buy a letter purportedly from a Canadian employer offering a job in Canada.

Who says so?

Immigration Minister Andras' aides say so, while at the same time claiming to be aware of the racket and in a position to counter it.

Ron Button, an aide in the office of Robert Andras, is on the record as contending that the department is "alert to racket in the Caribbean and other places as well," but concedes that despite all the precautions Immigration and Manpower cooperatively have taken, there has to be some "leakage."

What happens, he relates, is that a letter comes in from say, Joe Smiths' garage in Anytown, Ontario, offering a job to some Joe in Trinidad, Tobago, the Virgins, or any other island in the Eastern Caribbean, or India, Pakistan, or Malaysia.

It is on Joe Smith' letterhead, even. It could be a forgery printed in Port of Spain or Rangoon — or Joe Smith might be on the take for use of his name.

"We check it out," reports Ron Button, "and if Manpower has no Canadian who wants and can do the job, the Joe in Trinidad or wherever gets in to take it.

"But if it's a phoney, sooner or later we catch on. Joe Smith has a three-pump, two-hoist garage and in over a year he hires 16 guys from the Caribbean. A phoney. Obviously a leak. We plug it."

Sure the "leakage" may be small, as Ron Button claims.

But it is big enough that one agency in Trinidad, advertising job offers from "Canadian employers" has a waiting list of clients ready with their $100 that could take a year to fill. And that is only one office in the mushrooming Caribbean "job letter industry."

Robert Andras is beginning to understand Canute's problem.

Shoplifting a Problem

"You people don't understand us kids — that's why."

This was the cry from the heart of a 16-year-old girl, when asked by department store personnel why she stole a sweater.

And this, from a store executive, who perhaps has witnessed such a scene too often for comfort, and now feels impelled to speak out: "It is a sad thing to see a child being forcefully directed to a security room for possible chastising, tear-jerking and confessing, among other horrifying things such as having parents called (a must in their cases), or having the police involved if they become belligerent, closed-mouthed or repeat offenders."

And speaking out, because in a remarkable letter to this newspaper, which we quote in part and discuss, BE INVOLVED (pseudonym) addresses himself compellingly to much that is wrong in our society and in the relationships between parents and children.

BE INVOLVED is concerned about juvenile delinquency on the merchandising scene.

"Juvenile shoplifting — no, let's call it downright 'stealing,' is almost a passive, musical tone that somehow helps to erase the 'guilt of the actual fact of stealing.'

Yes, it is the "innocence of understanding" in these juveniles that the writer says saddens him greatly. "I cannot fully lay a label of 'thief' on many young offenders. Although they are not usually aware of their own motives or the consequences."

There is the "five-finger discounting" which kids get into on a lark or a dare, with its thrill-of-the-chase element as a sort of turn-on. And they can brag to friends and fellow students and about the fun of being "almost" caught.

But then one day, maybe more than once, there is the moment of truth in the office.

Yet there is compassion as the writer addresses himself to what he calls this "difficult problem."

"Parents," he says, "either don't know or don't care who their children are chumming with. Worse is that parents don't care enough where their younger kids are or what they are 'really' up to.

"Broken, quarrelsome, debt-ridden homes all too often are behind subconscious yearnings for help or a false belief of freedom from an unhappy life if caught. There probably is a real need to be wanted, to be understood, to be given attention, to belong, to be loved."

And he speaks of other basic yearnings of the young who "see the beauty of a necklace, tube of lipstick, sweater, record or candy, that they know they cannot have by any other means than to steal it.

As for the 16-year-old in the store office: "She was never so right . . . We stupidly go on from generation to generation letting or even telling our kids to fend for themselves. We leave all the rearing to the professionals from teachers to the police, not understanding or caring when it comes time to get involved with our kids."

And this: "We shut them out too often."

BE INVOLVED warns that society must "become more involved in the criminal dangers that potentially face our younger children."

The letter expresses the right sentiments at the right time. It's a time to care more about the needs of the young and particularly within the context of parents and children and the integrity of the family structure.

Cabbie's Dilemma

Trenton senior citizens — and a lot of them not so senior — are in Doug Ridley's corner.

The town taxi fleet owner has asked Trenton council for permission to discount the metered fares of senior citizens by ten cents. However, that means breaking a town bylaw, an offence for which Mr. Ridley has been twice warned by town police.

In our inflation-riddled era, it's quite an irony when someone breaks the law by offering lower-than-usual prices for any commodity or service.

The Three Rs and Jobs

In the wake of current educational events, it comes as little surprise that a 400-questionnaire survey by the Belleville and District Employment Committee reveals employers in the area feel students they hire are inadequate in such basics as spelling, mathematics and English.

Criticism of a lack of emphasis in the school system of "the three Rs" has even prompted the recent meeting of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation to go on record supporting a "basic core" of compulsory subjects, as opposed to the free-wheeling option system that now exists.

What is most disturbing about the survey, which was studiously and painstakingly undertaken by Belleville Employment Commissioner Fred Bemis in an effort to help BOTH employers and prospective employees, is that only 28 per cent of the employers polled responded.

Although it would be more time-consuming, we agree with the Quinte and District Labor Council's Doug Sword when he said personal interviews rather than mailed questionnaires might have yielded better response.

With education now accounting for half our municipal tax dollars, and who knows how much federal and provincial government support, it hurts to hear local manufacturers saying things like "secondary school students lack understanding of industry."

ANY LIGHT AT THE END OF THE TUNNEL

George Hees and P. M.

'Friends' but Political Enemies

From the Ottawa Bureau Of Thomson News Service

OTTAWA — If one were to ask either George Hees (PC—Prince Edward-Hastings) or Prime Minister Trudeau, they would be almost sure to admit they are really the best of friends.

But when the daily House of Commons question period begins, the uniformed observer could get the impression they are the bitterest of enemies.

Before the House adjourned for the traditional Easter recess, the two squared off again with Mr. Hees accusing the PM of showing little regard for the welfare of Canadians.

"Is it an accident that the prime minister has found it necessary to have both of his limousines bullet-proofed?" asked.

"I do have high regard for the prosperity of the Canadian people and for the welfare of the honorable member," the PM replied. "For that reason I suggest that he remove his head from the bullet-proof vest he shirt that he put on this morning."

The Opposition continued to hammer away at the Hamilton harbor scandal until the day of adjournment and Lincoln Alexander (PC—Hamilton West) asked Mr. Trudeau if he would table a letter the government received from Hamilton Controller Jim Gordon.

Mr. Campbell's letter was marked "confidential", explained the PM.

"After it arrived, Pierre," George Hees shouted across the floor.

Lloyd Francis (L—Ottawa West) may have been wondering what evil deeds were committed behind the doors of hospitals to foul our environment.

"Is the solvent used in hospitals to dilute radioactive wastes before pouring them down the sink highly toxic?" the MP asked on the Commons order paper.

"No. Tap water is the solvent normally used," was the innocent reply from Maurice Foster, parliamentary secretary to Energy Minister Donald Macdonald.

Belleville Public School Board at a special meeting Monday night released the final salary schedule for teachers. In general it entailed an upward revision of $100 in the minimum salary per year and a $200 increase in the maximum schedule. Three requests for fringe benefits were turned down. They were subdivisation of Blue Crosts and Physician Services Inc. payments, accumulation of sick pay to 200 days from a present schedule of 60 days, and a more generous retirement gratuity.

Dance numbers are being presented by Miss Barbara Dimont and Miss Madeline Walker, along with members of their dancing classes. All organizations of the parish are taking part in the activities and it is expected that it will be one of the most successful Spring Festivals St. Michael's has ever had.

Albert College is to function as a boys' and men's school when it opens in September 1925. W.B. Deacon, at a special meeting of the Board of Trustees, said that $339,000 had been spent on the building and that $200,000 more was needed to complete the work and equip the college for use. By a unanimous vote it was decided to complete the new buildings and have them ready for occupancy in the fall of 1926. The resolution to restrict enrolment to boys and men will make available for the students the best rooms and would free other student accommodation for their use.

Paradoxes of the Life And Economy of Britain

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

LONDON — Pianist John Ogdon is leaving Britain for Spain, driven out—he says—by the taxman.

At the same time, tenor saxophonist Bud Freeman, one of the giants of Jazz, has quit New York to make London his future home.

Musicians may not be the best judges of a country's economic prospects. But the fact that two such celebrities could arrive at diametrically opposed conclusions helps to illustrate the paradoxical character of the British economy.

In fact, it's almost impossible to discuss Britain's current economic position for more than a moment without using the phrase, "on the other hand."

One key paradox: Production declined in fourth-quarter 1974, and unemployment rose to nearly 800,000 or 3.5 per cent of the labor force—a high rate by British standards. (Canada's Jobless at last count totalled 839,000 or 8.6 per cent—seasonally unadjusted—of the labor force.)

Yet average British wages in October-December were rising at an annual rate of 47.5 per cent.

For the full year 1974, wages advanced by an average of 28.5 per cent.

Retail prices rose by 19.1 per cent (one has to fight the temptation to say "only 19.1" per cent) last year.

That means that the typical British wage earner is keeping well ahead of inflation—and the statistics on the growth of savings deposits reflect that suggest that money is pouring in faster than much British businessmen are spending it.

But most forecasters are expecting the gap between the rates of wage increases and inflation to narrow significantly this year, because of the numerous cost increases that are already in the pipeline, and the phasing-out of certain important government subsidies to nationalized industries (officially referred to as a return to economic pricing).

The early returns for 1975 bear out that expectation. Retail prices rose 19.9 per cent in January and 19.7 per cent in February, the Paris-based Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development says that Britain still has the highest inflation rate of any industrial country in 1975.

Even Denis Healey, chancellor of the exchequer, can find nothing better to say of 1975's prospects than that it could be a turning point—and that it was reasonable to hope that recovery could begin some time in 1976.

Faced with a combination of soaring inflation, wartime unemployment, declining production, and a mind-boggling 1974 current-account deficit of about $9.2 billion on foreign trade (vs. $1 billion in 1973), Prime Minister Harold Wilson has pushed ahead with a new industrial bill that has made British industry see red.

The bill will establish a National Enterprise Board, ostensibly to promote industrial efficiency and international competitiveness, and to provide, maintain or protect jobs.

Mr. Wilson calls it "the biggest leap forward in economic policy and thinking since the war." The left-leaning London newspaper, The Tribune, hails it as "the people's bill."

But at least some British industrialists see it as the death knell of free enterprise. They fear that decision-making will be entirely in the hands of unions, of big business and of civil servants who are beyond the reach of politicians.

The National Enterprise Board will have the power to direct substantial investment resources where it chooses.

If it uses that power simply to prop up decaying industries, it will be contributing to swelling numbers of workers, it will further weaken the shaky structure of British industry.

But if it provides badly needed capital to strengthen promising growth sectors, then it could be a valuable shot-in-the-arm.

Public Service Disputes And Their Settlement

TORONTO — NDP leader Stephen Lewis has come up with the first proposal in some time dealing with labor relations and government employees.

Mr. Lewis has proposed that there would be a government-appointed board which would recommend settlements for disputes in essential public services.

Most importantly he would have the board comprise people of stature and heavily funded.

The latter is significant for he would have the board engage in intensive research.

And research is both expensive and one of the weaknesses in our labor relations today.

Seldom, if ever do we in the public see accurate figures on what employers are making in industries which are similar to those strikes. This applies particularly in the teaching profession.

Rather, we get inflated, if not semi-fictitious, presentations on what workers make in other industries.

Labor Leader Robert Nixon apparently was in at least partial agreement with Mr. Lewis' suggestion.

But neither he nor the NDP leader are doing the public a service when they encourage strikes among some public services, most notably teachers.

A few years ago there was a trend in labor, quite a strong one, to get away from the strike as the standard approach to settlement.

Men prominent in the field of labor leadership were saying quite frankly that the strike was out-moded and new solutions had to be found.

But when two of the three top political leaders in the province publicly endorse strikes such a movement can hardly make much headway.

Four More Join Ranks Of Bancroft Flyers

BANCROFT — At the annual meeting of the Bancroft Flying Club held this week, four more flying course graduates joined the ranks of local pilots.

According to the 1974 president of the club, Stan Ferguson, "There are 1,200 people in Bancroft and there is a strong suspicion that 1,100 of them are private pilots."

The Bancroft Flying Club was organized in the early sixties and the property for the airport and two runways on Highway 500 West was purchased at the same time.

In the president's report, Mr. Ferguson told members that in 1974 major improvements had been made to both the 1800—dash and 2,400-foot runways, new pumps installed and a flying school had operated on a continuous basis.

At the moment 10 people are taking flying instruction.

Awards presented at the meeting went to new pilots Tim Taft, Ross Card, Dwayne Pitts and Al Dubbelsteis.

A special award was presented to club member Findlay Clarke who flew solo from Bancroft to Vancouver.

Each week, six of the Coe Hill volunteer firemen, the chief Dan McCaw, arrive at the new fire hall to do a complete check of all equipment. Wollaston Township residents are proud of the new hall, dedicated to the memory of Dr. J.B. Hardings and his daughter, Hatie, who gave "a lifetime of service to the Coe Hill area."

Township Proud Of Firefighters

COE HILL — When residents of this small village, 20 miles southwest of Bancroft, start talking about fire insurance rates, it's hard for them to hide their delighted grins when they tell the 45 to 51 per cent savings on premiums as a result of the new Wollaston Township volunteer fire department.

The formally-organized department, which got its start and community sanction at a 1971 ratepayers' meeting, is made up of 24 local men who are well versed in the operation of the brigades fire fighting equipment.

One evening each week six of the men arrive at the new fire hall and do a complete check of hoses, trucks, air packs, pumps and other essential gear.

Fire chief Dan McCaw started the project in 1970 with a petition which was signed by the majority of the local residents.

"After that I got railroaded in as chief," said Mr. McCaw as he explained that in his estimation any community in Ontario can have a volunteer fire department that would be of great benefit not only in the field of saving lives and property but also in the realm of fire insurance.

Wollaston Township has always been aware of the need for some form of fire protection.

"As far as I know the first fire equipment was purchased in the 20's by Charlie Rollins the father of Hastings MPP Charke Rollins," said Mr. McCaw.

"It was two wagon wheels with a 50-gallon drum filled with soda and acid," said Mr. McCaw.

"In the 40's they bought a portable pump which we still use and in 1955 the township bought an army truck with a 450 gallon tank," said the chief.

Now the Wollaston department has a new red fire truck worth $27,000, a fire hall that could not be replaced for $30-400, a tank truck with a portable pump and Scott airpacs.

"I'd guess we've got about a $75,000 project here," said Fireman Jim Graham, "and it should be paid off by next year."

All of the financing of the department and the new hall has been done through fund raising events with the exception of the new truck which was purchased by the municipal council.

At the moment the Wollaston fire department are conducting a survey throughout the township to locate every possible source of water.

A booklet will accompany trucks on all fire calls and will indicate all cisterns, lakes and wells which could be effectively used in fighting fires.

All the problems of fire protection in Wollaston township are not yet sorted but the department feel they are on the right track.

Some Like Weather Up North

By NAN WHITLAW

BANCROFT — Skiers, snowmobilers, and schoolchildren were the only ones delighted to see the ten to 14 inches of snow that was dumped on the North Hastings area in the last two days.

Although ministry of transportation and communication crews were working constantly during the storm, all highways in the district are heavily snow-covered and icy. Some secondary roads were only being opened for traffic today.

Township roads and Bancroft streets were plowed, but gusts of wind up to 50 miles an hour caused heavy drifting.

The Bancroft OPP detachment was advising motorists that only essential road travel should be attempted.

According to Const. Tom Cybulski, the only mishap that occurred in North Hastings was a minor accident at the height of Thursday's storm.

Stirling Businessmen Agree, Industry Desirable for Town

By CHRIS ALMEY
Staff Correspondent

STIRLING — It has been said by some Stirling taxpayers over the last few months that Stirling needs more industry. One obstacle, some say, is that there is no land owned by the village for this purpose and the village should purchase land.

Others feel that the Stirling and District Business Association should purchase this land, so that if there was more industry in Stirling, the tax burden would be spread around more, and taxes would not have to be increased at a higher rate.

Six Stirling businessmen were asked the following two questions — Do you think the village or the businessmen should purchase land and have it serviced to attract industry? Do you think Stirling should have more industry? Their response:

DOUG PATTERSON

"I am not advocating that we go out and buy umpteen acres tomorrow, but it would be desirous that the two groups get together and discuss it and would hopefully investigate the pros and cons", Doug Patterson, 49, proprietor of Patterson Met's Meat Shop.

It is pretty hard to come out and say that the town itself should bear the burden, but I do subscribe to the idea that industrial assessment would ease the burden on the residential taxpayer," said Patterson added.

"I don't think we can afford one big industry. We need a couple of small ones with growth potential — that lets the industry and the town grow together," Mr. Patterson said.

DAVE GLIDDON

"Let's face it: As far as I am concerned we are not going to add a lot more industry to town," insurance agent Dave Gliddon, 30, said.

"We are fighting quite a thing — an industrial park on the 401. That is just like a magnet. A lot figure it is a good place to go because the other fellow is going ther," Mr. Gliddon said.

"A great deal many more people are employed in business in the village than the shoe factory. The last eight months the business community has seemed to gt a spurt. It has seemed to get a spurt. It is trying to appeal to the public more. Commerce is getting acutely aware of changing times, and is getting revitalized," Mr. Gliddon commented.

EUGENE BURRELL

"I tend to feel that businessmen should develop a land bank system," Eugene Burrell, 44, proposed. He is the proprietor of Burrell Jewellers. "We should have it serviced and readily available."

"I am not sure how it is done, but I like the system that was used in Belleville to develop the downtown core. The businesses were assessed an extra levy on their tax and placed in a fund which is administered by representatives of the businessmen and council". Mr. Burrell commented. "I don't lord myself to homeowners having to assume all this although it would benefit them ultimately," Mr. Burrell said.

GEORGE NOBLE

"I agree with both reaily," George Noble, 63, druggist, said. "This has been thought of for years. We have all been trying to promote it in the past. It wasn't really the land. We need a big empty warehouse building.

"These businesses want something big to put their machinery. in and have some tax relief," Mr. Noble added.

"Council is trying to keep taxes in line. To burden council with a purchase of land when it is involved right now with sewage and an arena in the background — how far can you go? They are thinking of their money and our money too", Mr. Noble said.

JOHN RAY

"I know they tried to buy land once but the price was right out of this world. The town would have a better chance if they expropriated There is no doubt about it. We need it. But how do we go about it?" John Ray, 35, pondered. "As far as I am concerned the town should buy serviced land."

"There have been quite a few industries look the area over. We have got to have something to draw them. It has also been said there is not enough labor in the area", Mr. Ray noted.

"There is too much agricultural land being put under asphalt now. They have to be careful where they put industry." Mr. Ray, who is partner in Stirling Machine Shop, said.

BOB HATTON

"I don't think we could accommodate a big industry," Bob Hatton, 52, proprietor of Hatton Hardware said. "I would feel the town should purchase the land and make it available".

"Our taxes are so high here now I don't feel we could afford to go in on any purchase of land. The storeroom above this store was assessed at the residential rate, now it is assessed at the commercial rate which will raise our taxes again. It makes it pretty tough," Mr. Hatton noted.

Mr. Hatton observed that Stirling "has missed industries in the past." He said that "a lot goes under the counter" and that is why some industries go to other municipalities.

Bancroft's first transcontinental flyer, Findlay Clarke, left, was presented with a special award during the Bancroft Flying Club's annual meeting. Mr. Clarke flew his plane, solo, from Bancroft to Vancouver during the summer of 1974. The award was presented by Willy Schulz, the Flying Farmer from Elmira.

Mr. and Mrs. Ceburn Adams

Anniversary Celebrated

AMELIASBURG — A couple formerly from the third concession of Ameliasburg now living in Toronto celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary Sunday at the home of their niece Ruth Peck, RR 1, Carrying Place.

Mr. and Mrs. Ceburn Adams, 43 Robinson Avenue, Scarborough, were married in the Redtersville parsonage by the Rev. T. L. Seymour, Monday, March 30, 1925.

Sunday the couple recalled there were snow squalls and short periods of sunshine almost identical to the weather here on Easter Sunday.

Best man Douglas Williamson drove them to the railroad station at Belleville in a model T Ford to catch a train for Montreal for their honeymoon.

He was among the 60 guests, some from as far as Brockport, New York, who attended the afternoon and evening receptions and luncheon held in their honor.

The couple's daughter Vivian, son Keith and grandson Neil were also present along with Mr. Adams' two sisters, Alta Brown of Picton and Olive White of Belleville.

Many telegrams, flowers and beautiful gifts were received by them for this special occasion.

Golden Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence E. Thompson of 217 Bridge St. East celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary early in March at two family occasions.

March 1 they attended a family dinner in Scarborough, where they stayed with their daughter and son-in-law Lois and Ted Sprackett and their granddaughter Kelly. Two other grandsons, Dan and John Sprackett also attended.

A larger family gathering took place March 2 in Markham, at the home of the Thompson's niece and her husband, Betty and Norm Bennett. Several nieces and nephews and other family members were present for the afternoon.

During the afternoon, Mr. Bennett read a poem he composed about the Thompsons' courtship and marriage. Musical entertainment was provided by Ted and John Sprackett, Sue Bartsch and Holly Bennett, as well as a family choir led by Gord McGregor.

An anniversary cake was cut and served with the tea, which was poured by Cathie Sahlstaig.

Congratulatory messages were received from Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau, Governor - General Jules Leger, Premier William Davis, Jack Ellis, MP, Clarke Rollins, MPP and Richard Potter, MPP, Mayor Robin Jeffrey and many relatives and friends.

Gladys and "Thompy" Thompson were married March 3, 1925, in Toronto. Mrs. Thompson is the daughter of the late John and Margaret Morton of St. Ola, and Mr. Thompson is the son of the late Henry and Charlotte Thompson of New Liskeard.

After his professional hockey career ended in 1928, Mr. Thompson joined Sun Life in Cobourg and later in Barrie. In 1935 the Thompsons moved to St. Ola, where Mr. Thompson was clerk-treasurer-tax collector for 16 years, and a field worker for the Ontario Department of Welfare for another 16 years. Mrs. Thompson was principal of Gilmour Public School for 18 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Longhurst

Longhurst — Redner

Debra Ann Redner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald James Redner, Carrying Place, and Darrell Allen Longhurst, son of Mr. and Mrs. Randal Longhurst, Foxboro, were wed March 15 at Christ Anglican Church.

Rev. J.R. Uttley officiated at the ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and mother. She wore a long white satin gown with high neckline and long full sleeves. Her long veil was held by a crown head piece trimmed with lace. She carried a cascade of red roses.

Shirley La Palm was maid of honor in an aqua floral gown with caped sleeves. A white hat accented her ensemble and she carried orange carnations.

Janice Longhurst, the groom's sister, and Sharon Nash also attended the bride in ensembles similar to the maid of honor.

Grooms man was Stewart Hilchon, assisted by ushers Neal Longhurst, the groom's brother, and Ian Hamilton.

A dinner and dance was held at the Elks Hall, Belleville.

After a short wedding trip the couple took up residence at 220 West Moira St.

Tackling the problem lawn sensibly

John Bradshaw

Most lawns run into trouble now and again; despite the care you lavish on them.

Ants or grubs move in; crabgrass rears its ugly head; broadleaf weeds, such as dandelions pop up everywhere.

Faced with these problems, do as I do. I find the best treatment for the lawn with crabgrass, insect and weed problems is CIL Lawn Doctor®, which not only controls grubs, ants, wireworms, but prevents crabgrass, kills broadleaf weeds and also feeds your lawn a rich, long lasting, non-burning lawn food.

It's just about all you need for a problem lawn. Apply CIL Lawn Doctor early when weeds are in leaf but before the lilac flower buds open. Follow the directions carefully, and you'll get good results. What's more you won't need to feed the lawn again until August: an extra bonus.

Bette Stephenson — Dedicated, Down-to-earth Doctor

TORONTO (CP) — You might call Bette Stephenson an "old-fashioned doctor. If it were not for the fact that she broke the sex barrier to become the first woman president of the Canadian Medical Association and that she is regarded as a fierce adversary of the anti-abortionists.

At the modest farmhouse where she holds surgery in suburban Willowdale, she is a no-nonsense general practitioner and you'd better have something to say when you visit you before you call. She has only sent two pneumonia patients to hospital in 40 years.

Food mother of six, top-notch cook, admired if slightly feared by her patients, Bette Stephenson of Willowdale is a far cry from the image projected publicly by the CMA head, who has been called the white witch with tongue of fire."

She has been beaten around some because when she has something to say she says it, whether she's better Health Minister Marc Lalonde or Solicitor-General Otto Lang for what she regards as his attempts to impose his personal beliefs on the way Canada's abortion law should be administered.

It's not that Dr. Bette Stephenson is an abortionist, she explained in an interview, but that she feels the question of abortion should be a matter between patient and doctor and not one for politicians to be meddling with in this day and age.

As a matter of fact, a good

person could go to jail for handing out birth-control advice.

Dr. Stephenson and some colleagues in a clinic in a hospital here enlisted the help of a kindly old manufacturer of pharmaceuticals and got an unlimited free supply of condoms, which they handed out to patients to help keep them out of what was then known as "trouble."

These days, Dr. Stephenson is a svelte lady of 50—she likes food and has trouble holding her weight down—with a set of warm dark eyes that can either sparkle as she talks about "the Gospel according to St. Mary" or visual a patient that she's her going to hold his hand because he has a case of the sniffles.

She still lives in the rambling farmhouse where she was brought up, with her husband, Dr. Allan Pengelly, who practices family medicine with her. The newer part of their home is only 110 years old. The older section was built in 1810 by a family that owned a travelling acreage in Willowdale, then out in the boondocks north of Toronto.

Now, she has the best of two worlds, just a block off busy Yonge Street but shut in by trees and hedges and with lots of room for the family, poodle Solly and a big old-fashioned kitchen where she can shuck off the antiseptic gown and get down to work at the stove.

Last summer, one of her children was getting married and she threw a big lawn party for scores of neighbors and friends. She flew to Ottawa to make a speech, got back in time to do all the cookery for the party and flew off to Vancouver for another speech.

Others of her family say there'll be no more wedding receptions at the farmhouse unless Mom does the cooking.

Family stuff aside, Dr. Stephenson sees the medical side fell into both practice and into medical politics pretty well by accident.

After her graduation in medicine, she intended to be a radiologist but just at that time a Willowdale doctor who wanted to take two months off asked her to fill in for him. Then he fell off a ladder and broke a hand bone, so she spent six months more as his fill-in.

"By that time," she said, "I didn't want to go back to radiology because I was having too much fun."

Use the CMA in more or eventually become head of the same association put forth, as she tells it, by moving up from one minor elective job to another in miscellaneous doctors' organizations there. In due course, someone suggested she stand for the board of directors of the CMA, an unheard-of idea for a woman in the early 1960s.

"I got blackballed the first year," she laughed. "The nominating committee didn't think it was such a hell of a good idea to have a woman on the board. They thought it would be a terrible shock to the system and mind you it was when I got there in 1967."

Does she find general acceptance now as female president of the staid CMA

"Oh, yeah, though some of the previous incumbents were probably not as progressive as others in terms of human relationships."

Dr. Stephenson said she has got a lot of satisfaction from her one-year term as president one facet of which is that she hopes she may have done something to decrease an "emotional lightness" she sees in Australia

Tomato Sauce Drought Ends

SYDNEY (Reuter) — The great Australian tomato sauce drought has ended.

Tomato sauce — we call it ketchup — revered by Australian children as one of life's great treats, has not returning to supermarket shelves after four months.

Poor tomato crops for three years had pushed up prices more than 50 per cent and supplies to retailers dropped drastically until last December, when the biggest manufacturer simply had none to sell.

The crisis came to an end in February after an unusually good crop season in tomatoes.

Yet outside Australia would understand the cultural shock when the supply of tomato sauce is interrupted.

More than four million gallons of sauce, enough for two sold each year, with most of it making its way into the dinner plates of children. Indeed, if there were no tomato sauce, it is doubtful this Australian children could be persuaded to eat nutritious food at all.

Australian tomato sauce, like the meat pie, is as much part of Australian life as it is a national condiment.

Young mothers swirl it into baby's vegetables, laying the groundwork for what amounts to addiction in later childhood. It is poured by hand over tables, insipid fish or unitasting meat, the juvenile palate is so conditioned, stimulated by the addition of large pools of the stuff.

Its immediate qualities are insistent sharpness, quite vivid redness, with a quite fruitiness and a touch of pepper.

Sauce makers defend their product by pointing to its high levels of vitamin C and other minerals, and say the characteristic flavor comes from the almost pure vegetable makeup.

The product is immutable.

"We can fell as much of the stuff as we can make," said the sales manager of one of the makers of tomato sauce.

Ann Landers

The Richard Cory Story

Dear Ann Landers: The letter about suicide stirred many emotions in me. I identified strongly with the writer because many years ago I se[illegible]ed a successful suicide. Thank God I came to my senses in time.

Every now and then someone we know takes his life or her life and all the relatives, friends and neighbors are shocked. That individual has appeared to be content—so fortunate! He seemed to have everything a person could want or hope for.

Will you please print this poem by Edwin Arlington Robinson? It has a lesson in it for all of us.

Whenever Richard Cory went downtown,
We people on the pavement looked at him:
He was a gentleman from sole to crown,
Clean favored, and imperially slim.
And he always was quietly arrayed,
And he was always human when he talked;
But still he fluttered pulses when he said,
"Good morning," and he glittered when he walked.
And he was rich—yes, richer than a king,
And admirably schooled in every grace:
In fine, we thought that he was everything
To make us wish that we were in his place.
So on we worked, and waited for the light,
And went without the meat, and cursed the bread;
And Richard Cory, one calm, summer night,
Went home and put a bullet through his head.

—A Friend Of Yours

Dear Friend: I first came across that poem when I was a high school freshman. It stopped me dead in my tracks. It did so again 40 years later and I thank you for the enriching experience.

Dear Ann Landers: You've printed several letters about all-girl and all-boy families. You also seem quite neutral. Well, there is no way a couple can maintain the sex of their child. Please check again. It means a lot to us.

My great aunt told me that the left ovary produces girls and the right ovary produces boys. She lost her left ovary at age 20 and had only girls. Her boys after that. Exactly the opposite happened to her younger sister.

My husband and I have three boys and we are dying for a little girl. I'd gladly have my left ovary removed if you told me it would work. Yes or not?—Want A Her

Dear Want: NO — it will not work. Moreover, no ethical surgeon would agree to remove a healthy organ for the reason you mention. Forget it.

Great Persons Don't Boast

Whatever our occupation, it gives us great satisfaction and a feeling of fulfilment to accomplish the best and have it recognized — even if only by ourselves.

In discussing a code of behavior, Dr. Gaynor said just a word about modesty and immodesty. Truly great persons are proud of their work, but when speaking about it, they will never divert attention from the subject or create confusion about its value by pseudo-modest assurances of its unimportance in their eyes. Nevertheless, they do not boast and for various reasons may not especially wish to discuss the value of their accomplishments.

Besides, as Winston Churchill said about one of his ministers who was known for his extraordinary display of modesty: "Ah, yes, but it is easy for him, he has so much to be modest about." — excerpt from "Stress Without Distress" by Hans Selye.

Confidential Secretary's Wife: There must be great anxiety associated with your husband's business, considering that your husband feels a certain inferiority about his lengthy emotional illness.

There may be fear with regard to possible permanency, or it may be that you and he have failed to keep the communication lines cleared between you. What old hurt are you sorrowing over?

If you could talk freely with him, and do your best both of you, to start afresh, you might find that an immediate response to your ability to express yourselves to each other physically. Show confidence and love to him fully as you can, and the response will surprise you.

Dear Doris: Our five-year-old daughter was wetting the bed sometimes twice a night for over two years. We tried not giving her too much to drink after supper. We also tried getting her up at night. It was very tedious but we succeeded.

I had heard about a certain contrivance made by a Canadian company so I phoned them. The representative came around. He asked me, my husband and our daughter questions about her habits and her behavior. Most questions she had to answer herself. She wasn't nervous about it as he was quite a nice man and she liked talking to him.

He came to the conclusion that she was a happy sleeper and told her he'd have her dry after three months (which made her smile happily). They let you have their treatment equipment for the amount of time. (Longer if you need it.)

In our daughter's case she was dry in less than two months. We never saw a powder girl when she got up (those first mornings saying she hadn't wet.

It costs money and you and the child both have to work at it. But well worth it all. The company continues service care as a referral as she did so well.

Dry Girl's Mother.

Dear Mother — Great! It sounds as if this equipment works on the same principle as the one we described in a column last week. Anyone writing to me may have the same and address of the Canadian company which did such a good job for your girl.

British Chauvinists Having a Rough Time

LONDON (CP) — So far, International Women's Year has been a ghastly time for male chauvinists in Britain.

They were able to take in their stride the appointment of a woman, Margaret Thatcher, to the leadership of the Conservative party, they called it a political aberration and said it was probably a self-correcting defect.

But since then a series of blows have fallen on the chauvinists, even affecting one of the last bastions of masculine exclusivity, the gentlemen's clubs of Pall Mall and St. James's Street.

The Carlton, the favorite Tory haunt in clubland, announced it was inviting Mrs. Thatcher to become its first woman member.

She did not jump at the offer. She said she would consider it. A month or so later, she casually signed up.

There was trouble brewing in another unsuspected quarter. The delicatessen buyer girls at the West End Playboy Club were beginning to make militant noises and saying they should be able to join a union to protect them against male exploitation.

The reaction of the chauvinists was explosive. Arnold Richards, writing in The Sun declared solemnly: "I am an unreformed, unrepentant male chauvinist pig and the bunnies are hitting below the belt. This is a blow to our civilization."

The bunnies took to the street in boisterous demonstrations to back their claim to union membership. Male chauvinists were appalled.

Another tabloid carried a letter from a man who wrote that if the Playboy management succumbed to the bunnies' demands it would be a "refloat comparable to Munich."

The girls ended their campaign when the club management told them they would lose such benefits as free hair-do's if they joined the union.

But there was a general belief they would soon resume their action and probably win

Well, I'll tell you what's happened to Mondays . . . Murray Atkinson has happened to Mondays, that's what. And you know Murray when he gets an idea he's going to make something work, then he's going to make something work. And that something happens to be advertising the week specials on Mondays. This means you know what you can get at Murray's Food Market at what price and for how long. It's a marvelous organizer for a spur of shopping and Murray has to get his advertising organized sooner, but he thinks it's a wonderful idea and appreciates the fact that it brings people in the grocery shopping. And the great thing about all this is that it really is. Ever wonder what Murray's next big idea is going to be?

They're All Done

Gibbs and She, the vacuum cleaner specialists at 27 Albion St. in Belleville, have recently renovated their store to make more space for demonstrations of all the fine Proctor-Lewyt, Hoover and Air-Way machines carried by Gibbs and Son. The service is still great but now there's a little more room in which to show it off.

More That's New

Ruddy Electric's Consumer Division, 291 Coleman St. told me this week about the new kitchen light fixtures they now have in stock. They almost always have interesting new items. They have basket types; and colored ones too. They also told me that bathroom swag lamps have really caught on. If you had this lighting idea in mind for your bathroom, you'd better get down to Ruddy Electric fast before everyone else who had the same idea gets their hands on it. And see the kitchen lights while you're at it.

Kind Gaurd Suspended So Quits

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — A Joyceville prison farm guard resigned Wednesday after he was suspended for taking a prisoner into Kingston without permission to visit a woman friend with a heart condition.

Douglas McCallum, 52, a guard for 12 years, was suspended after he was found in a downtown bar with the 73-year-old prisoner, Louis Gallo, a prison spokesman said.

Mr. McCallum said he drove Gallo to see the 59-year-old woman who had asked to see the prisoner because her heart condition had worsened. After the visit, they stopped in the bar.

Because the Joyceville farm annex is a minimum-security prison, Mr. McCallum said, he felt the rules could be bent. "I don't know that I might do it again if I were in the same position."

Will Study Tolls

OTTAWA (CP) — The National Energy Board confirmed Thursday it plans to hold hearings later this year on transportation tolls charged by later-provincial Pipeline Ltd.

Study CIA Role

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (Reuter) — President Ford said Thursday the Rockefeller Commission on the Central Intelligence Agency will examine aspects of the 1963 assassination of president John Kennedy. At a news conference, Ford said the Warren Commission reported finding no evidence of foreign or domestic conspiracy. Recent magazine articles have suggested the CIA might have been involved in Kennedy's murder.

Reserves Fall

QUEBEC (CP) — The reserves of the Quebec Pension Plan QPP will be exhausted by 1994, says a report recently tabled in the Quebec national assembly.

The report, prepared by the Quebec Deposit and Investment Fund, the QPP's investment arm, warned that by 1990 it might be forced to liquidate its assets to pay QPP benefits unless the government acts.

Spending to Rise

OTTAWA (CP) — Capital spending is expected to rise 14 per cent during 1975 from last year to reach about $27 billion, compared with $23.5 billion in 1974, Statistics Canada says.

Payments Record

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment insurance benefits paid out in 1974 hit a record $2.119 billion, Statistics Canada reports in its annual review of the Unemployment Insurance Act. In 1973, benefits were $2.004 billion, about six per cent lower.

Snowbound

NOBLETON, Ont. (CP) — The Ontario Humane Society instructed the organizers of the Canadian Wagon Train to place their horses in a temporary barn Thursday until inspectors are satisfied the horses are properly shod and able to take part in the journey.

The wagon train was snowbound at a campsite three miles south of here—six miles into its 3,000-mile trek to northern Alberta.

The Duck Dies

TORONTO (CP) — A nephew of Imre (The Duck) Oleynik, the man accused by police of the 1973 bludgeoning death of Christine Demeter, says his uncle died last Monday in a hospital in Hungary.

George Olivolgyi, 19, son of Oleynik's sister, said in a telephone interview Thursday that the family was told Oleynik died in hospital of a brain hemorrhage.

Time Asks Aid

OTTAWA (CP) — Time magazine is appealing to its Canadian readers to help save the domestic edition of the publication.

In this week's Time Canada edition, company president Stephen S. Lathe of Toronto asks readers to launch a letter-writing campaign over proposed federal legislation to abolish tax deductions for advertisers in Time and Reader's Digest.

Millhaven Guards Wreck Alarm System

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — The Whig-Standard says that correctional staff members at Millhaven institution have caused about $75,000 damage to prison electronic control systems.

The newspaper says a letter from an Ottawa firm which originally installed the equipment says the destruction was caused by vandalism.

Prison director John Dowsett said in an interview that "it's extremely difficult for me to comment on this kind of thing."

"I won't deny some damage occurred."

However, he told The Whig-Standard the damage occurred soon after the prison opened in 1971, when most of the present staff was not there.

Mr. Dowsett said he had "no reports of such damage" since taking over his post of director in July, 1974.

Edward Woods of Boyd Electric Co. Ltd. of Kingston told the Whig-Standard he put in new signals in the control towers last fall and "everything was working when I was there."

Mr. Dowsett said "lack of

No Protection

OTTAWA (CP) — The provinces cannot be counted on to protect consumers' interests at hearings of federal government regulatory bodies, the Canadian transport commission was told Thursday.

Andrew J. Roman, general counsel for the Consumers' Association of Canada (CAC), said it is a myth that consumers can look to provincial governments for support when federal bodies like the commission consider railway, airline and other rate increase applications.

training, errors in judgment and frustration with lights flashing on and off and buzzers" left guards upset and this contributed to the damage.

Only minor control systems have been affected, he said.

Difficult Journey

HAMILTON (CP) — Three snowplows were needed to clear the way for an ambulance carrying a new-born baby suffering from breathing problems to Hamilton for emergency treatment early Thursday.

The ambulance picked up the baby shortly after midnight at the Bruce County hospital in Walkerton, 25 miles southwest of Owen Sound, to transport her to a McMaster University clinic.

Shortly after leaving Walkerton, the vehicle hit a snow-

Cuba Promises Canada Business

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian trade officials and businessmen received assurances in Cuba recently that U.S. businessmen will not erode Canada's favorable trading position no matter what policy changes occur in Washington.

Trade Minister Alastair Gillespie, government officials, businessmen and unions came away from Cuba with the assurances last month after talks with government officials including Prime Minister Fidel Castro.

Mr. Gillespie led a 55-man trade delegation to Havana and left content that there is a large potential market for Canadian goods in increasingly-prosperous Cuba and that at least for the time being there need be no concern about U.S. competition.

Mr. Gillespie and his party also visited Venezuela where there is another large potential market. But there Canada faces stiff competition from the U.S. and others wanting to trade with the oil-rich country.

In contrast, they saw a potential market in Cuba for sales of between $400 million and $500 million in the next three or four years for Canadian businesses.

Government officials said any change in Cuban relations with the U.S. would be on American—not Cuban—initiative and any thaw would take time. Trade matters would only come after the political atmosphere was cleared.

They also said that because of the improved Cuban economic situation, Cuba has money to spend and is an excellent credit risk.

Canadians said there is a fund of goodwill for Canadians in Cuba because they have refused to participate in the U.S. trade embargo.

Canada is Cuba's third largest trading partner, but a long way behind the Soviet Union and Japan. Last year's export amounted to $144.7 million compared with imports of $76.4 million—$58 million of which was raw sugar.

In 1973 exports were $81.7 million and imports $18.6 million, a reflection of increased sugar prices and quantities.

While Mr. Gillespie was in Cuba it was announced that a $100-million line of credit has been made available for Cuban purchases in Canada. Canada last year made loans totalling about $41 million to assist in purchases of locomotives and ships.

Car Firms Keep Mum On Defects

OTTAWA (CP)—Thousands of car owners are paying to repair basic production defects after normal new-car warranties expire, unaware that major auto companies operate programs to pay some of these costs through their dealers, a Montreal consumer protection group says.

The Automobile Protection Association (APA) calls the auto industry practice "a secret extension of the normal warranty," and wants the government to require companies to disclose publicly any repairs they are prepared to make after a warranty has expired.

The companies term these repairs — authorized orally or by bulletins to dealers—as "gratuitous payments" or part of a "goodwill program." They do not consider them extensions of the usual warranty of 12,000 miles or 12 months, says APA.

With rare exceptions, owners are not directly notified that they can get repairs free or on a part-payment basis with their dealer for specific jobs, even though the basic warranty has expired, says APA.

Oil Consumers Face Price Hike

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumers currently face an increase of 46 per cent.

On the other side are the consuming provinces, with Nova Scotia taking the hardest position so far. Premier Gerald Regan says no increase above $6.50 should be allowed.

Ontario Premier William Davis said his province will not accept "any significant increase" in energy prices and Prince Edward Island says it will argue for gradual price increases.

Other provinces have yet to reveal their positions on the price issue.

In between the two extremes will be the federal government, which sees its role at the conference as a mediator trying to find a compromise price between the proposals of the producing and consuming provinces.

The meeting opens Wednesday morning under the glare of television lights in a former downtown railway station rebuilt as a government conference centre.

Indian Crafts Program Success

EDMONTON (CP) — A few months ago an arts and crafts workshop established here by the department of Indian affairs hummed with the activity of native craftsmen.

Ceramics, silk-screenings and exquisitely sewn parkas were a few of the items being produced by native students who had completed a two-week government training program.

Today the centre is almost deserted, with pottery cluttered in one room and wall-hangings piled up in another—all signs of a grant that ran out.

"For many of us, it was our first chance to express ourselves artistically," said Marcelle Large, a 29-year-old native of the Saddle Lake reserve, about 120 miles northeast of here.

Under the program, sponsored for two years by the Indian affairs department, native from surrounding reserves were paid to receive instruction and pursue the craft of their choice. Their products were marketed exclusively by the department's central marketing agency, until the grant ran out for the second time last fall.

Mrs. Large is optimistic that the program will resume with renewed federal funds, although submissions made so far by the students have drawn little response.

"There's a great demand for authentic native crafts, especially for the tourist trade," she said.

When Mrs. Large set up a booth at a local craft fair last fall she sold $300 worth of wall-hangings in a single day and "cleaned out my entire stock."

The silk-screeners in the group formed the Saddle Lake Printers Association after orders for their wall-hangings "started coming in by the thousands".

"When we received our first cheque, we decided to pool our earnings and form a company."

With savings from their fund the printers were able to maintain their operation for a few months after the grant ran out, but eventually found their earnings weren't sufficient to support families.

Their wall-hangings, composed mainly of striking Cree and Ojibwayan designs against pastel backgrounds, range in price from $3 to $18, depending on size. Each design is original and each hanging hand-made.

Substantial sales were generated when the federal agency published a crafts catalogue, with department stores and specialty Canadiana shops major clients. Mrs. Large said the association grossed about $12,000, although she notes that stores frequently marked up prices several times higher.

In the two years the program was in existence about 20 native students attended orientation classes in ceramics, sewing, batik or silk-screening, picking up the basics they needed to produce marketable goods.

"None of us had any prior artistic training," Mrs. Large said.

"But before long, we were producing our own designs, and many of the articles being made were of exceptional quality."

Although the printers disbanded when federal funds were discontinued, Mrs. Large continues to stockpile wall-hangings in hope the association will begin marketing again.

She also intends to search for local markets, an area she feels the group may not have explored fully when the federal agency assumed marketing responsibility.

Regardless of whether more federal funding is provided, she said, the program has too much potential to be allowed to die so easily.

"It's a valuable way of instilling pride in native culture."

Coal Seen Key To Energy Needs

CALGARY (CP)—Coal must play a key role in meeting Canada's energy requirements over the next 25 years, says Garnet Page, managing director of the Coal Association of Canada.

As supplies of oil and natural gas begin to decline, alternative energy sources—such as nuclear power and oil sands—still require extensive research, massive investments and solutions to environmental problems.

But in order to meet energy demands, Canada's coal industry will have to be mobilized to increase production by 700 per cent over the next quarter-century, said Mr. Page.

Ed Panchysyn, distinguished lecturer for the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy, is even more ambitious. He says the industry must bring new coal production on at the rate of 10 million tons annually—to 285 million tons a year from Canada's current annual production of about 21 million tons—by the turn of the century.

This is the amount needed if the country is to achieve its goal of obtaining 17 per cent of its energy requirements from coal, said Mr. Panchysyn.

He estimated that only about six billion of the 44 billion tons of coal held in Alberta, Saskatchewan and British Columbia would be needed in the next 50 years.

But both mining executives agreed that federal and provincial policies will have to be altered and public attitudes changed if the coal industry is to realize its potential.

A major barrier to development is the "hysterical" reaction of conservationists to surface mining, said Mr. Panchysyn.

Surface mining is the most efficient and safest method of extracting Western Canadian coal, and a maximum of one per cent of the total area of the foothills and mountains would be disturbed, he added.

"If new and unreasonable restrictions on careful and responsible surface mining are enacted, I venture to suggest that Canada could be in very real trouble," said Mr. Page.

"The mining industry today is aware of the need for good corporate citizenship. We know about land reclamation and we are working with governments to solve all problems."

The coal association director said uncertainty about government policy is another "great enemy of economic health" and Alberta's moratorium on coal development in the foothills had slowed down the industry.

Aside from opposition by conservationists and bureaucratic uncertainties, the coal industry was faced with severe problems of manpower.

Mr. Page said coal mining as a vocation has fallen into disrepute, and between now and 1982 the industry will have to find 7,000 to 8,000 new workers for Alberta mines alone.

As a remedy, his association is working with the University of British Columbia and the University of Alberta to develop courses that will graduate specialists in mining exploration and coal preparation.

Hastings Teachers Remaining Silent on Wage Demands

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

Hastings elementary school teachers will be asking for more money than last year's increase of about 13.1 per cent but federation leaders will not say how much more.

"We will keep a close watch on the Toronto situation," said Dave Wilson, chairman of the Hastings County Economic Policy Committee (EPC) representing about 600 women and men elementary teachers in the county.

Mr. Wilson, a teacher at Foxboro Senior Public School, was referring to the announcement this week that Metro Toronto's 12,000 elementary school teachers will ask for salary increases of 42.8 per cent. This would give most of them a $5,000 raise in September.

Mr. Wilson, who represents the collective bargaining unit for both the Federation of Women Teachers Association of Ontario (FWTAO) and the Ontario Public School Men Teachers Federation (OPSMTF), said he could not speculate at this time about the final increase.

If Metro Toronto's teachers get their demands the average salary would be about $17,300. The average secondary school salary in the province last year was about $15,500.

Mr. Wilson said negotiating meetings now are being set up for later this month.

"We expect negotiations to proceed in a co-operative manner," said Mr. Wilson, "and also they have tended to be problem-solving negotiations in the past." In 1973, county teachers received about eight per cent in salary increases. Last year the increase was about 13.1 per cent.

Metro teachers are seeking a cost-of-living clause as well as a request for the board to pay the full cost of hospital and medical plans and provide a dental insurance plan. Metro teachers are also negotiating for a lower number of students per class.

Buses Grind to Halt As Talks Break Down

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Belleville bus service ground to a halt at noon today as transit commission workers walked off their jobs demanding higher pay.

In a final negotiating round at the commission offices Thursday, commission chairman Maryles Burti refused to meet the union's wage demand of a one-dollar-an-hour increase over one year.

In a union meeting which followed, 15 of 21 members of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Transport and General Workers voted to strike in support of their demands.

The transit commission's last offer was a 75-cent-an-hour increase to the 21 employees, effective immediately and a further 30-cent-an-hour raise to take effect in June.

The increases would mean drivers, now earning $4.95 an hour, would make $5.30 by June and mechanics currently earning $4.75 an hour would get $5.00.

Commission negotiators also refused a drug plan, overtime modifications and four weeks of vacation after 12 years.

Mrs. Burti, after hearing of the strike vote, said, "the commission will enter no more negotiations until the men come back to work."

"There's no promise they'll get as much in the next negotiation as we offered in this first set of talks," she said.

"I thought we made a generous, honest offer," she said.

"Why should the commission have to bargain under a strike?"

The commission chairman said there will "definitely be no negotiations this week."

Employees have two weeks pay coming to them, payable next Thursday.

Mrs. Burti said she will "investigate whether the commission has to make out the pay slips and whether the entire shop could be closed down until the men return to work."

"Show or no show we're striking unless the commission rethinks its wage offer," said Lawrence St. Pierre, chief union negotiator.

"We're just coming out of a three-year stretch under one contract and 48 cents of the of the raise is just to catch up to inflation," said Mr. St. Pierre.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey, concerned over the strike action, told The Intelligencer today, she will investigate "what powers if any council has to intervene in the labor action."

"We're not taking any action until we have had time to meet with our lawyers and ponder the situation," said the mayor.

Prior to a meeting with the city manager early today Mayor Jeffrey said, "we have no authority to halt the strike — the men have followed the legal — natural course of action."

City buses were called off routes at 11.15 a.m. — a measure to ensure all vehicles would be in the safety of terminal garages by strike time, said Mrs. Burti.

The union "offered me an ultimatum" that unless buses were called in at that time, they might be stranded on city streets when noon rolled around, she said.

Strikers Prepare

Lawrence St. Pierre (left), chief union negotiator for Belleville Transit Commission employees, ponders over possible strike sign design with local union chief Hugh Kerr. The 23-member union voted 70 per cent in favor of strike action following last minute negotiations Thursday. Management made a final offer of an 85-cent increase after June, the 15 cents below the union's dollar an hour demand.

Police Recover Stolen Van

City police are still investigating the theft of a van here late Wednesday which was recovered after almost two hours, off Marshall Rd. in Sidney Township.

Deputy-Chief Harold Reid said Thursday the 1973 GMC van, owned by Highland Construction of 237 North Front St., was reported stolen by an employee from Elgin St. at 8 p.m.

The van was recovered in a field on Concession One with the only damage being a dented rear bumper.

Fun—For Some

The worst storm of the year to hit Belleville and Southern Ontario was fun for some . . . youngsters like nine-year-old Maria Moura, Ann Street. Shaping giant-size snowballs was easy . . . there was plenty of the stuff around.

Heavy Snow Disrupts Rail Bus, Mail Service

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Public services inevitably were hard-hit as Belleville reeled in the worst storm of the year still pounding Southern Ontario today.

Trains, taxis, mail and other services were operating behind schedule as gusting snow continued to pile into the city and district.

City cabs were swamped with demand as workers left automobiles in plugged driveways. Many walked — it took too long to get a taxi.

"We're just flooded — lawyers, doctors, everybody is calling," said a despatcher at Central Taxi.

By this morning, the company's 50-cab fleet was running up to 90 minutes behind calls, he said.

Although all letter carriers were on the streets, the volume of mail was slim.

A city post office spokesman said at 9.30 a.m. that mail trucks — usually due about 5 a.m. with the bulk of the day's mail from Toronto — had not arrived.

Mail received late Thursday and the small amount still carried by train, was being delivered.

Commerce and other sectors of community activity were being given priority for delivery.

Stalmen on home deliveries would "make as good attempt as they" can to get through snow-laden streets but "it's pretty rough going," the spokesman said.

By Thursday night, buses through the city were running two hours late, reported the Belleville office of Voyageur-Colonial.

A Canadian National Railways spokesman said the overnight train to Montreal — which arrives in the city at 1.50 a.m. — was an hour behind schedule.

Several freights — both local and Montreal-Toronto through freights — had been cancelled, reported the CN despatcher's office.

"If you don't have to go out you might as well stay home today," advised the local transportation and communications ministry office, after highways crews had been grappling with the storm for 24 hours.

The ministry depot at Marysville — responsible for patrolling Highways 401 and 2 from Trenton to Napanee — reported a major problem with drifting and strong winds. The combination repeatedly defeated efforts to keep roads plowed, sanded and salted.

Tire Blows, Car Hits Pole

PICTON — A Picton motorist escaped injury Thursday morning when his car blew a rear tire at the intersection of Mary and York streets and careened into a hydro pole.

Police said George Barsley, 363 Main St., lost control of his vehicle on slippery streets after the blowout, and the car snapped the pole.

Damage to the car was estimated at $200 and damage to the pole at $100.

The accident occurred at 9.45 a.m.

Pileup On No. 2

The Belleville detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police say they have investigated about a dozen minor accidents from about midnight to 11 a.m. today and are warning motorists to stay off the roads during the snowstorm unless absolutely necessary to travel.

The most serious, said an OPP spokesman, was one occurring about 8 a.m. today on Highway 2 just west of the Main Gate at CFB Trenton.

Police said one three-car accident resulted in two or three additional mishaps. The OPP spokesman said about half of about six or seven vehicles were involved, nothing serious. Cause was attributed to traffic congestion or that area at that particular time in the morning.

In other areas of the county, a superintendent in Sidney Township said traffic could be improved if motorists stranded on roads would see to it that their vehicles are removed as quickly as possible.

Highway 401, was reported icy and snow covered and extreme caution is urged.

Lloyd Dennis Guest Speaker

Lloyd Dennis, Leeds and Grenville director of education and co-author of the widly discussed Hall-Dennis Report on education, will speak to area public and separate school board members, principals and administrators here Monday, April 7.

Mr. Dennis will discuss main features of the Future Report, Learning to Be, being prepared for the Ontario Conference of Education to be held at York University in May.

Business as Usual Despite Poor Weather

City merchants are banking on hearty shoppers today as most stores remained open despite the storm. However, many stores closed down Thursday night.

A spokesman from the Quinte Mall said all stores in the mall will remain open all day and this evening. He said traffic through the mall Thursday night and Friday has been low.

In the west end of the city a Towers spokesman said the store will be closed all day Friday. Most downtown Belleville stores will be open today as city crews begin to clear the main streets. More than 10 inches of snow has fallen on Belleville since the storm began Wednesday night.

A spokesman from the Belleville Plaza said he expected most stores in the plaza to be open today. However, he added that most operators expected light business.

The storm, probably a record-breaker for April in Trenril, began about 9 p.m. Wednesday night and pelted the city all day Thursday. Weathermen are predicting the storm will subside tonight followed by sunshine Saturday.

Alarm Box

Belleville firefighters responded to the following calls at the emergency in the 24-hour period ending at 6 a.m. Friday.

Thursday, April 3, 7:56 a.m. — Cumtelligence Carpet Ltd., Dundas St. E., chemical fire of sodium chloride in metal containers, quickly extinguished.

Thursday, April 3, 3:12 p.m. — Bank of Montreal at Quinte Mall, Front to computer unit, no damage.

Roads Top Worry

The worst storm of the year saw every available public works employee called in to man clearance crews to keep Belleville streets open.

Works superintendent John Coolain said his men worked from 5.30 a.m. Thursday to 2.30 a.m. today when the situation seemed under control. They were then sent home for a rest.

"They needed it," said Mr. Coolain.

In the interim the storm began gain strength, driven by gusting winds. However, said the superintendent, there were few complaints received from city residents throughout the storm.

There was one problem for the department. In parts of the city it already had removed snowclearing from open areas. This created drifting conditions on some streets.

"I couldn' tourselves pretty lucky compared to what I hear about other parts of the province," said Mr. Coolain.

Only Key Staff Man Base Posts

TRENTON — Between 60 and 70 per cent of CFB Trenton's 2,500 employees — both civilian and military — were given the day off today, the result of a two-day snow storm that dumped about seven inches of snow on Trenton.

The estimate was made by Col. Jack Henry who issued an adverse weather release earlier today.

He said only essential personnel, as defined by various unit commanders, will be required to work.

Explaining, he said "many personnel have to be manned 24 hours a day." Staff in the control tower, steam plant, duty operations desk, and air movements office will fill their regular jobs.

The base commander said much of the civilian staff will not come in today. Parking for cars, the only way to get to the base, is "impossible."

Air traffic has been drastically curtailed. Since the storm hit the Quinte area, only two planes have left the base — both at about 9 a.m. Thursday.

At the aircraft maintenance development unit (AMDU) some 50 employees of Field Aviation Co. Ltd. contractor working on the base, were told not to come to work today.

The Rotary Annual Science Fair and Hobby Show is on at the Belleville Armory today and Saturday. Besides the approximately 100 science exhibits and 23 hobby displays, there will be demonstrations of karate, dog obedience and Greek dancing.

Meeting Cancelled

Bad weather conditions forced postponement of the regular monthly Loyalist College board of governors meeting Thursday evening. Instead, a committee meeting was scheduled for those members of the immediate Belleville area who were able to travel to the college. A board spokesman said it is unknown at present if a makeup meeting will be held before the regular May meeting.

Lesk, the medical officer of health, who will show films, answer questions and engage in discussion with the participants.

The next meeting of the Belleville Camera Club will be held April 8 at the Senior Citizens' Recreation Centre on Pinnacle St. at 8 p.m. Entry by the north door and proceed upstairs. All photo buffs are welcome to attend.

Follow Mayor

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

Nine Quinte area school and college students have the opportunity this month to view the municipal political scene from the inside as they participate in the Rotary — sponsored Mayors of the Week project.

Each week the students will follow Mayor Robin Jeffrey's city council meetings, meeting each of the municipal department heads, having an interview with each one to learn department duties, visiting the city police department, Hastings County Museum, the fire department, Public Utilities Commission and touring the city hall tower.

All students will attend a Rotary Club meeting at noon, April 28, at Sun Valley Motor Inn, to outline their experiences.

The two students this week are Randy Wardell of Loyalist College and Gail Thompson of Albert College.

The other will be Mike Meagher of Moira and Harold Shield of Bayside Secondary School for April 7-11, Leana Courneya of Nicholson College and Jim Action of Belleville Collegiate and Vocational Institute from April 14-18 and Sandy Alderson of Centennial Secondary School Lorraine McDonald of the Ontario Business College and Peter Wade of Quinte Secondary School for the week April 21-25.

Mr. Wardell, a 20-year-old Waterford, Ont. resident enrolled in a communication studio technique (CST) program, summed up the feelings of the group.

"I sort of like to get into political things. It'll be good experience," he commented.

"I'll get to meet a lot of important people. It's good to get to know these people."

A CST representative on the college student administrative council and former secondary school student councillor, Mr. Wardell added, "sometime I wouldn't mind being on a city council."

Sabres Regain Points Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The National Hockey League heads into the final weekend of its regular schedule tonight with a number of playoff positions still undecided.

Thursday's results did little to clarify the picture.

Buffalo Sabres defeated Boston Bruins 4-2 to regain the overall points leadership in the league but the Sabres could still be overtaken in that department by Montreal Canadiens or Philadelphia Flyers who have two games remaining while Buffalo has only one.

The Sabres have 111 points and Montreal and Philadelphia have 109 each.

The team finishing with most points has the home-ice advantage throughout the playoffs.

Chicago Black Hawks defeated Kansas City Scouts 6-4 to move into a second-place tie with St. Louis Blues in the Smythe Division race. The Hawks and Blues have 80 points, four behind the leading Vancouver Canucks who could clinch the division title tonight when they play host to Minnesota North Stars.

Meanwhile, in Thursday's only other game, New York Rangers improved their playoff chances with a 1-1 tie at Philadelphia. Tonight the Rangers visit Atlanta Flames who must win if they hope to overtake the Rangers or New York Islanders for a playoff spot in the Patrick Division.

The tie pulled the Rangers even with the Islanders, each with 88 points, three ahead of Atlanta.

Rick Martin scored two goals—his 50th and 51st of the season—to lead Buffalo against the Bruins. Rick Dudley added his 31st of the season and Fred Stanfield his 19th.

Phil Esposito opened the scoring for Boston with his 41st of the season and Don Marcotte scored his 30th in the third period.

Martin became the fourth player to reach the 50-goal mark this season. The others are Esposito, Danny Grant of Detroit Red Wings and Guy Lafleur of Montreal Canadiens.

At Chicago, J. P. Bordeleau also scored two second-period goals and assisted on another by defenceman Phil Russell to lead the Hawks. Stan Mikita, Jim Pappin and Grant Mulvey added single goals for the Hawks: Simon Nolet scored twice for Kansas City.

Jean Ratelle scored for the Rangers after only 15 seconds of the game at Philadelphia but Bobby Clarke tied the score for the Flyers later in the first period.

Whalers Ready

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

New England Whalers demonstrated Thursday that they are ready for the World Hockey Association playoffs while San Diego Mariners finally clinched a playoff berth.

The Whalers showed their playoff form in a 4-1 win over Quebec Nordiques while San Diego defeated Baltimore Blades 9-2.

"We're playing playoff hockey right now," said acting coach Jack Kelley of the Whalers who clinched the Eastern Division title last month. "These last few games are just as important as playoff games and we're going all out to win them."

The Whalers scored their third straight victory under Kelley, the team's general manager, since he took over the coaching job from ailing Ron Ryan.

The win moved the Whalers into second place behind Houston Aeros in the over-all point standings, which determine playoff pairings and home ice advantage.

New England is 43-25 for 91 points, while Quebec slipped into third place with a 43-26-0 record and 90 points. The Whalers have two regular season games left, while the Nordiques have one.

"Playoff hockey is positional hockey," Kelley said. "If you get a lead you try and protect it. We built a three-goal advantage in the middle of the second period and were content to play it tight. We never let Quebec back in the game."

Veterans Don Blackburn and Wayne Carleton did most of the damage for the Whalers. Blackburn scored two goals and added an assist and Carleton added one goal and three assists. Tom Webster tallied the other New England goal.

Tom Webster scored the other New England goal while Francois Lacombe got Quebec's only goal in the final period.

At San Diego, the Mariners took over sole possession of second place in the Western Division with 87 points, two ahead of Minnesota Fighting Saints and three ahead of Phoenix Roadrunners.

Norm Ferguson and Ron Plumb each scored two goals while Andre Lacroix had a goal and four assists to take over the league scoring lead with 38 goals and 100 assists. Lacroix now is two points ahead of Bobby Hull of Winnipeg Jets who has 75 goals and 61 assists.

Hull and the Jets visit Toronto Toros tonight with the Jets needing a victory to stay alive in their drive for a playoff spot. Other games have Vancouver at Edmonton, Phoenix at Minnesota and New England at Chicago.

Ali vs. Ron Lyle — Live

NEW YORK (AP) — Heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali will appear in the nation's living rooms in May, but fans probably will have to go to the theatre to watch him perform in September.

"The fight is on, the money is up," Herbert Muhammad, Ali's manager, said Thursday in Chicago about an Ali title defence against Ron Lyle in Las Vegas May 16, which will be shown live on home television by ABC.

"The terms are agreeable and we will sign a contract," said Irwin Rosse, Lyle's manager of record, who added that he had talked with Lyle's business partner, Bill Daniels.

Ali will get $1 million and Lyle $100,000.

The first home telecast of a heavyweight title fight since Joe Frazier stopped Ron Stander May 25, 1972, will be promoted by Don King Productions, Inc., and Video Techniques, Inc., co-promoters of Ali's title winning performance against George Foreman in Africa last Oct. 30 and his defence against Chuck Wepner March 24 at Cleveland.

King also said Thursday that he expects to make the Ali-Lyle fight the second half of a home television doubleheader with middleweight champion Carlos Monzon or lightweight champion Robert Duran.

Then, under questioning, King said he expects the next big fight to be in Egypt in September. Ali would probably meet Foreman or possibly Joe Frazier in a closed-circuit television match in Cairo.

For Lyle, the shot at the title comes after a series of setbacks.

The 35-year-old ex-convict from Denver was all but signed to fight Ali in Madison Square Garden on March 24, but the bout fell through and Ali ended up with Wepner. The Garden still hoped to make an Ali-Lyle fight for June but Lyle then was outpointed by unheralded Jimmy Young.

Then Lyle was arrested on a charge of shooting at his wife. He is out on $2,000 bail on felony menacing and second-degree assault on a complaint filed by his wife.

Bad News for Foes — Ellis Sharp

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Dock Ellis has picked up this spring where he left off last fall and that may be just what the doctor ordered for Pittsburgh Pirates.

Ellis allowed three hits and two unearned runs over the first seven innings Thursday in the Pirates' 3-2 exhibition triumph over Chicago White Sox. In 36 innings this spring he has allowed only one earned tally.

Last July 10 Ellis' record was 38 with a 4.54 earned run average. Starting with a 3-1 triumph over Houston on July 15, he won eight consecutive games and nine of 10. During that 9-1 stretch he pitched seven complete games and went into the ninth inning of two others. His ERA was 1.91.

But his season came to an end Sept. 11 when a line drive off the bat of Philadelphia's Willie Montanez fractured his right wrist.

The Pirates defeated the White Sox when Willie Stargell, who earlier belted a solo homer, singled home the winning run in the eighth inning following Richie Hebner's triple.

Elsewhere on the exhibition trail it was Oakland A's 10, Los Angeles Dodgers 9; San Diego Padres 2, Cleveland Indians 6; Baltimore Orioles 6, Kansas City Royals 4; Cincinnati Reds 3, Detroit Tigers 1; New York Yankees 7, New York Mets 2; St. Louis Cardinals 10, Houston Astros 5; Minnesota Twins 2, Boston Red Sox 1; Montreal Expos 4, Philadelphia Phillies 3; Chicago Cubs 4, Milwaukee Brewers 4; Atlanta Braves 3, Richmond of the International League 2. California Angels and San Francisco Giants were rained out.

Bert Campaneris led off the bottom of the ninth with his second home run of the game and Claudell Washington singled home the winning run as the A's rallied to edge the Dodgers.

The game between the 1974 World Series rivals drew a crowd of 4,824, largest for the A's in their seventyeast of training in Arizona, April.

DOCK ELLIS

San Diego left-handers Randy Jones, Dave Tomlin and Rich Folkers combined to pitch a one-hitter against Cleveland. The lone hit was Rico Carty's single with one out in the fifth inning off Jones, who went the first seven.

Baltimore's Lee May drove in three runs with a homer and double against Kansas City. Cincinnati's sore-shouldered Gary Nolan breezed through his final tune-up, scattering five hits in seven innings against the Tigers. It was Nolan's most impressive outing of the spring.

Larry Gura pitched seven scoreless innings to outduel Tom Seaver, and Alex Johnson, Walt Williams and Lou Piniella drove in two runs apiece, leading the Yankees past the Mets before a record crowd of 8,439 in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

St. Louis reached Houston's Larry Dierker for seven runs in the fourth inning—five unearned—in rallying the Astros. Glenn Borgmann's seventh-inning single enabled Minnesota to beat Boston behind Bert Blyleven, who fanned 10 in seven innings.

Philadelphias Eddie Watt surrendered a bases-loaded walk to Larry Bittner in the eighth inning, capping a three-run rally that lifted Montreal over the Phillies. Jerry Morales' tie-breaking eighth-inning homer paced the Cubs over the Brewers. Dusty Baker's two-run homer in the third inning helped the Braves down their Richmond farm team.

Introducing the new Ontario Lottery

"For a buck a throw, she sure sounds like she's a ring-dang-do of a lottery".

CHARLIE FAROLHARSON
FROM PARRY SOUND

here in Ontario. Things we can all enjoy. So you see, Charlie, with Wintario we're all going to win.

"Support yer sports and yer physical fittings, you say? About the only thing that runs 'round here is my Allis Chalmers".

Well Charlie, it's the same with most of us. So Wintario will help support big sporting events like the Ontario Summer Games. And small events like building a new ball diamond in your town. And coaching clinics so our kids get the best instruction. There'll be something for everyone, everywhere in Ontario.

And more, Charlie. Wintario will help support hundreds of historical projects across Ontario. Places like Ste. Marie Among the Hurons, Nancy Island Museum and Old Fort William. And preserving our past through the work of the Ontario Heritage Foundation, for example.

You were never more right, Charlie. We're going to call it Wintario. And, with a new draw every two weeks for a grand prize of $100,000 tax free and up to 1350 other big cash prizes, it's going to make a whole lot of people all over Ontario very happy.

Price of the tickets? Just $1.00. And they'll be almost everywhere. Places like cigar stores, newsstands, gas stations, milk stores, grocery stores, restaurants–that's right, almost anywhere.

But that's just the beginning. Through the Ministry of Culture and Recreation, the millions of dollars raised by the lottery will help support a wide range of activities and facilities right

And more, Charlie. Lottery dollars will provide huge assistance for groups like the Ontario Arts Council. For visual arts programs like the McMichael Collection in Kleinburg, big art galleries like the Ontario Art Gallery and small local galleries. For grants to local painters, potters and sculptors to continue producing and growing. And for musicians of all ages all over the province, all the way from small town Barbershoppers to big city symphonies. Plus, money to support playhouse theatres, drama societies, modern and ethnic dance troupes. Charlie, they're all important.

"No question, you gotta preserve yer hysterical sights and yer monumental statuatory".

"Say now, reminds me, we'll be needing a new buffoon for the Parry Sound Sympathy Orchestra".

You've got the right idea, Charlie. Now, be sure you get a ticket. First draw is May 15th and tickets go on sale in April. One way or another, we know you're going to win. With Wintario, we all win.

It's our own lottery and we all win

Shrine Tournament Goes On as Scheduled

It all comes together at 6 p.m. tonight at the Memorial Arena. Belleville fans can get another look at some of the best hockey entertainment anywhere when the Belleville Pepsi Shrine Tournament officially opens.

Representatives of the Shrine Club are expecting crowds to exceed last year's record attendance mark since some of the top young players in the province will be battling for the Grand Championship and several individual awards.

No Change In Plans

As of 8 o'clock this morning, the annual Belleville Shine Peewee Hockey Tournament was definitely going ahead as planned this weekend, according to co-director, Don Gavey.

"I've been on the 'phone since 6 a.m. and teams like St. Catharines and Niagara Falls had already left for Belleville," explained Gavey.

"The teams from Cornwall, Ottawa and Nepean may have problems getting here but there is no way we can postpone the tournament," he said.

The tourney official said if weather conditions caused the late arrival of some teams, rescheduling of games may be necessary but he was not expecting problems.

First-round games are on tap tonight beginning at 6 p.m.

In all, 16 teams will go at it tonight and tomorrow, with the best playing off for the title on Sunday. Twenty-three games will be played over the three days for competition. Four games are scheduled at the Dick Ellis and four at the Memorial tonight and the remaining 15 at the Memorial.

Defending A and grand champion Oshawa won't be back this year, unless the club is called in as a late replacement.

The club was originally scheduled to be here but was replaced by a strong Burlington squad when it appeared as if Ontario Minor Hockey association playoff commitments might conflict with tourney dates.

Peterborough, A finalist last year, is rated a pre-tourney favourite again this time around.

The Peterborough squad lost only one game during its OMHA regular season schedule but bowed out in group playoff action to Oshawa.

Kingston looks like another strong entry. B finalists in 1974, the club is back to try and improve on that standing.

Nepean, though they've never taken a title at the Belleville event, have always been highly competitive.

Cornwall, led by goaltender Robbie Lalonde, is an unknown commodity since they did not participate in a league this season. However, they did win 75 per cent of their tournament and exhibition games.

Other teams taking a run at the Grand Championship are Toronto Blues, Brampton, Ottawa Knights, Trenton, Niagara Falls, Whitby, St. Catharines, London, Windsor, Kingston Centre 70 and of course Belleville's own Rollins Peewees.

Finals Go to Overtime

Championship and consolation playoff finals went to sudden death overtime in keenly contested Belleville Minor Hockey Association peewee minor section play this week.

King Bantams overcame a two-goal deficit to force overtime in their championship match with Y's Men's Club and pulled out the title early in the extra period when Tim Marshall connected, to make it 4-3.

Other marksmen for the champs were Allan Derry with a pair, and Rob Walters. Y's Men's Club got a pair from Jim Gray and one by Mike Shandraw. Penguins' Al Thompkins and Y's Men's Adam Weymark put in solid efforts in goal.

Penguins also took first place honors during the regular season.

In the consolation final with Police Association, Bellewood Lumber trailed 3-1 in the third period, but managed to get even terms and won with a little more than five minutes played in the overtime when Bruce Harper picked for his second goal of the game.

Scott Granville had the other two goals for the winners.

Police Association goals were supplied by Steve Bartlett with two and Dave Barriage.

During the sudden death period, Bartlett very nearly pulled it out for Police when he was awarded a penalty shot. Bellewood goalie Jeff Pajek made the important save.

Lucas and Ray Spark Reid's

A five point night by Jim Lucas and a four point effort from Al Ray propelled Reid's Dairy to a win over Cornerstone Builders in the opening game of the best-of-five Quinte Hockey League final series, Thursday night at the Memorial Arena.

Lucas scored twice, including the winner, and drew three assists. Ray posted three goals and assisted on another.

Ray Johnston scored twice for Cornerstone, which finished first in regular season action, and Norm Pope added the third.

The second game in the series will be played Thursday at 8:30 p.m. at the Memorial Arena.

Final Series Stalled

The Ontario Minor Hockey Association Peewee D final series is one of a number of sports activities that has had to be rescheduled because of the impossible travel conditions.

Scheduled for a date in Cayuga, Thursday night, the Wellington Legion Black Lines team made it as far as Oshawa before being forced to turn back.

It wouldn't believe the conditions we ran into," reported a spokesman for the Wellington team.

The OMHA is expected to announce new dates for the series.

Wellington leads the title series 1-0.

YOUR BRAND-NEW CAR HAS ALREADY STARTED TO RUST.

You may not be able to see it, but it's there. Because new cars aren't supposed to resist the corrosive effects of salt, moisture, and pollutants. So it may not be very long before your new car is turned into an eyesore by rust. And until now, there wasn't much you could do about it.

Because until now, there wasn't a rustproofing system available that could work effectively on a car that had already started to rust.

Now there is one. And only one. It belongs to Tuff-Kote. And it's the only rustproofing system in the world that really works — not only on brand-new cars — but on cars that are anywhere from 3 months to 5 years old. What's more, it's guaranteed in writing.

So if you don't give your car the total protection of Tuff-Kote'ing when you first bought it, rush it to your Tuff-Kote dealer. He's the only one who can help you now.

CARROLL CUT

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Pitcher Tom Carroll and first baseman Dave Revering cuts from the Cincinnati Reds' spring training roster.

League baseball club announced Thursday. Their roster, in the minor leagues left the Reds with the major League limit of 25 players. Carroll spent most of the 1974 season with the Reds.

Pitching Staff Strengthened

When the Belleville McDonalds first came on to the fastball scene in the city, general manager Doug Adams knew he would have to latch on to a pitcher who could handle the offers of ball in the Ontario Fastball League.

The two club owners, Adams and Dale Duvall, breathed a sigh of relief when Bob Ethier signed with their team. Ethier was a proven commodity. He had carried Howard and Robert Printing to an Ontario championship and a Quinte Fastball League title. He was a one man show.

Then complications set in. With nine players on the McDonald's roster Ethier decided he wasn't going to pitch for the OFL entry. The McDonalds lost the mainstay of their pitching staff.

Adams kept right on signing players, all the time looking for a third hurler.

"When Ethier left the team we had only two chukers (Scott Reid, Ted Waite)," said Adams, "and we desperately needed a third."

Adams phoned all over the province and finally came up with Jack Leeman's name. The general manager phoned the Kingston resident and made arrangements for him to attend the team workouts.

"It is my feeling that we have more than compensated for our loss of Ethier," said Adams. "Jack has the experience and the ability and, more than that, he has the confidence in himself and us from which we can build a winning club."

A six-footer, the stalky 180-pound right hander has been throwing for Verona for the last six years. Two seasons ago he pitched them to an Ontario intermediate championship.

Leeman, 29-year-old, signed with the McDonald's on Wednesday after working out with them twice. Last year he finished with a 4-6 record averaging 10-13 strikeouts a game. He is also consistent at the plate. In 1974 he batted .85 with three homer runs.

The McDonald's also added 30-year-old Trenton resident Jim Clement on Wednesday. Clement spent the last three years playing centre field for Auger Men's Wear in the Quinte Fastball League.

The six-foot, 10-pound outfielder is well known for his speed in covering his own defensive ground and his running ability on the bases.

Though not really known for carrying a big stick, Clements finished with a .412 average last season.

The two bring the number of players signed to 14. Along with Waite, Reid and Leeman on the mound, the McDonald's also have Paul Gosfielow, Wayne McTaggart, Dwight Rathwell, Brian Garlepy, Duvall, Marvel Stacey, Glen Carleton, Ken Genereaux, Steve Ling, Jack Jury and Clement.

All the players will be on hand tonight at the Parkdale Community Centre for the first annual Meet the McDonald's night. The dance gets under way at 8.30. Season's tickets also go on sale at tonight's event. The tickets are $20 and include the cost of 27 regular season home games and all pre-season exhibition games. Admission to the dance is $3.

ARE YOU GETTING SOMETHING OFF THE PRICE BECAUSE THEY'VE TAKEN SOMETHING OFF THE CAR?

Now that rebates are over, some car manufacturers have found another way to offer you less of a price.

They give you less of a car.

They've taken some of the things that used to be standard equipment and made them options. Some manufacturers have taken away little things like sports mirrors. Others have taken away big things like steel-belted radial tires.

In either case, if you put back the goodies they took away, the price is right back where it started.

At Fiat, we give you a low price without any gimmickry. The things that make the car perform better, as well as the things that make you feel better, are yours at no extra cost.

And the Fiat 128 isn't just economical when you buy it, it's economical when you drive it.

Which means that instead of saving once, you'll save again and again and again.

FIAT
It's where the automobile is going

At a time when other manufacturers are taking off standard equipment we still give you all this.

A Hockey Rarity—Robins Win Playoff Game

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Richmond Robins won their second game in three seasons of post-season play when they beat Hershey Bears 5-3 in the first game of their American Hockey League quarter-final series Thursday night.

The Robins, who have made the playoffs three out of four years since joining the league, have won only one game in two previous years of playoff hockey.

Richmond will try to improve its playoff success Saturday night when the team travels to Hershey for the second game in the best-of-seven series.

In the only other playoff game Thursday night, Springfield Indians shut out Providence Reds 5-0 to even up their best-of-seven quarter-final at one game each.

Richmond's Jean Payette and Randy Wyrozub broke a 2-2 tie with second-period goals to topple the Bears, who finished in third spot behind Richmond in the Southern Division.

Steve Coates, Serge Lajeunesse and Norm Barnes scored the other Richmond goals. Jacques Cosette, Billy Inglis and Larry Bignell scored for Hershey.

Whitby Goalie Takes MVP Award

CAMBRIDGE, Ont. (CP) — Goaltender Bruce Durno of Whitby McDonalds has won the Dave Pinkney Trophy as the most valuable player in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A league, it was announced today.

Durno shaded Paul Regan of Barrie Flyers, the scoring champion, in the voting among he six coaches in the league who weren't allowed to vote for their own players. Durno was the top pick of two coaches and had 16 points.

Regan was also a first choice and recorded a second and third for nine points.

Goalie Grant Cole and right winger Bob Baird of Barrie and Whitby playing coach Dave Nicholishen also drew first-place votes in the balloting in which 14 players were recognized.

Durno succeeds another goalie, Ernie Miller of Barrie as winner of the Pinkney Trophy. Miller turned pro this year, playing with Salt Lake in the Central League.

Durno posted a 4.27 average and one shutout in 23 games with the thirdplace Whitby club.

Long and Short of It

Chris Rutledge, 17, with four years' experience in the Belleville Minor Soccer Association program, has some tips for one of the smaller members of the group. Doug Burley, 7, who is set to start his second season. Minor lacrosse in this area will be the topic of a discussion on Cablevue 4, Monday and Tuesday nights at 8:30 p.m. Host Len Smith will quiz panel members Don Runciman, president of the BMLA, Ray Payne, director of referees, and Ted Soule. Keeping Epilepsy Secret Dangerous

By G. C. THOFTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thoftesson: My daughter, age 16, has epilepsy. It is not the grand mal type but she does get seizures now and then (unknown to others). She doesn't want anyone to know about it because she says they are not educated regarding this.

Is it wise to keep this a secret? Should that be her decision? Would keeping it a secret be psychologically damaging?—H. M.

I don't think your daughter should keep it a secret. Doing so could be psychologically, and perhaps even physically, damaging to her. Psychologically because attempting to go it alone, so to speak, could place great emotional pressures on her, pressures that come with living with any secret. Physically, because the emotional stresses could actually promote attacks. In the end, one effort might build on the other, and she could be the worse for it.

It is more easily said than done, especially for a young girl, but, if possible, she should try to develop a healthy attitude toward her problem, even though secrecy and attitude toward such illnesses is anything but healthy.

I would rather see your daughter begin by informing one or two of her close friends/chums about her problem and of what can be expected in an attack. Her gym or swimming instructor most certainly should be told. Making a clean breast of it in this small way should ease some of the emotional strain she is undergoing daily in school and perhaps help her condition measurably.

Another thing, there are attractive little necklaces available, which she can wear inconspicuously beneath her clothing and will inform strangers that the wearer has epilepsy. Some drugstores carry these, but they can also be obtained from Medic Alert Foundation. She can write for information to Medic Alert Foundation, Inc., P.O. Box 1009, Turlock, California, 95380.

The foundation also has tags to identify medical needs in doctors of other, similar situations.

I hope your daughter is receiving proper medical care for her epilepsy. A recent study revealed that four out of five epileptics in this country are not.

Living with this problem is not easy, and it will require a great deal of patience and understanding on your daughter's part. It is a medical problem in which social attitudes almost invariably impose greater handicaps on the victim than does the disease itself.

Dear Dr. Thoftesson: My doctor says I was going through a false pregnancy. I've been sick in the mornings, my breasts are enlarging, and around the nipple area there is a darkened color.

But there is no milk in my breasts, and I get a period every other month. Is this what happens in a false pregnancy? I am scared, and my doctor hasn't said what he is going to do about this. With this false pregnancy, I am about four and a half months along.—Mrs. M.

This is a situation peculiar to women who have an intense desire to become pregnant. It is called "pseudopregnancy."

Enlargement of the abdomen and breasts occurs, and there may even be twinges that mimic fetal movements. These are usually due to contractions of the abdominal muscles. The breasts persist or are intensified as in your case, and the breasts contain no milk. However, the uterus doesn't enlarge, and other pregnancy symptoms are absent.

There is really not much to be done, except to reassure the woman about her situation and what is happening to her body. In due time the symptoms will disappear with no lasting effects, although in some instances, the women persist in a feeling they are going to give birth, right up until the expected date passes fruitlessly.

Dear Dr. Thoftesson: When a woman has a bladder infection, why would the urine be somewhat pinkish? Also, why the great pain after urinating, and the call to urinate every two or three minutes with only a drop or two being expelled each time? Almost unbearable pain went along with mine.

What causes the pain? Do the kidneys swell up or something?—D. D.

As infection anywhere in the urinary tract will, if not treated promptly, lead to an inflammation of tissues. The pinkish tinge to your urine when you had an infection was probably caused by bleeding from the infection site.

The same applies to the burning sensation during urination and afterward. Irritation of the acid content of the urine or of tiny blood clots irritating damaged tissue. The paucity of the stream can be caused by inadequate liquid intake as well as frequency of urination.

The symptoms you describe have been experienced by me and, having been through all this, I can attest to the fact it can be a perfect nuisance and a quite uncomfortable one, too.

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

In today's hand taken from the qualifying rounds of the World's championship, North and South reached a spade slam after East and West had each put in a nuisance bid. West opened his partner's suit and South wasn't at all happy with the dummy. Still, beggars can't be choosers, so after winning the club he led three rounds of diamonds in order to get rid of his losing club. West ruffed in with the jack of trumps and things were looking up for South.

They looked up even better after South ruffed at a club, dropped West's king of spades, picked up trumps and spread his hand.

At another table North arrived at six diamonds, East opened his partner's heart suit and north had no trouble with that slam.

The hard has a most unusual feature. If West had opened his own heart suit against the spade slam he would have gotten in with the king of spades and given his partner a heart ruff. Then against the diamond slam, if East had opened his own club suit, there would have been no way for declarer to avoid the loss of a spade and a club trick.

There may be a moral here: Don't lead your partner's suit!

Narcotic Check Close in India

By RAM SUNDAR
CP Correspondent

BOMBAY (CP) — New York banker Joseph Farrar recently found it "terribly annoying" to travel from the south Indian city of Madras to neighboring Sri Lanka (formerly Ceylon).

Police and customs officials questioned him at several places. On arrival at Colombo, his luggage was carefully examined.

"It was just taken for granted that I must be transporting narcotics," Farrar said. "Apparently, I looked like a hippie."

Indian and Sri Lanka police are making a special effort to stop smuggling of narcotics like opium and hashish from India into Sri Lanka. Unofficial reports say there has been a marked increase in the traffic in two years.

Foreigners, particularly hippies and Western tourists, are suspected of playing a key role in the smuggling.

A lot of opium is grown in India for medical purposes. Opium and other narcotics are also smuggled into Indian from Pakistan, Burma, Thailand and Vietnam.

Sri Lanka police said a lot of this opium is being smuggled into Colombo and other towns across the narrow stretch of sea between Sri Lanka and India's southern coast.

From Colombo, the narcotics are sent to various countries in the West. London, New York, Paris and other big cities are believed to be supplied by the "clearing house" in Colombo.

A report published in the Madras Hindu, one of the most respected Indian newspapers, quoted Detective Superintendent Langam of Sri Lanka as saying his country might become a new trading post for the traffic of drugs in southeast Asia.

Indian police officials said narcotics supplies to Colombo are also coming from Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia through Japanese and other cargo liners and tankers.

Nearly 200 freighters call at Colombo every month.

An Indian customs official said American and European sailors are "very much in the picture — as much as sailors from Asian nations."

No Move to End Dockers' Strike

MONTREAL (CP) — Officials of the International Longshoremen's Association and the Maritime Employers' Association said Tuesday no moves have been made to resolve a strike by longshoremen since negotiations broke down earlier this week.

"If nobody moves it will be a long strike," said Fernand Boudreault, union secretary-treasurer. He said no new meetings or reassessments of the union position were imminent and the membership "supports us fully."

A spokesman for the National Harbors Board said Thursday several ships in Montreal and Quebec City were unloaded by handlers who were not members of the striking union. Ships requiring loading have been hardest hit by the strike, he said.

The 2,200 dock workers in Montreal, Trois-Rivieres and Quebec City have been on strike since Monday. The strike began over job security proposals which the union called "a step back into slavery."

Morgentaler Decision 'Terrifying Precedent'

MONTREAL (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada's failure to order a retrial for abortionist Dr. Henry Morgentaler has created a "terrifying legal precedent," the Canadian Association for the Repeal of the Abortion Law said Thursday.

In upholding a guilty verdict rendered by the Quebec Court of Appeal, the Supreme Court of Canada has denied the right of the accused to be judged by a jury of his peers, the association said in a statement.

Morgentaler was acquitted by a jury in Quebec Superior Court in 1973 of performing an illegal abortion. The verdict was reversed last year by the Court of Appeal.

Mireille Lafortune, director of the association, said the decision to overturn a jury acquittal without ordering a new trial "constitutes a dictatorial gesture."

Morgentaler began serving an 18 month jail sentence here last week.

It is ironic during International Women's Year that a tribunal of nine men should decide the question of abortion for all Canadian women, the statement said.

Boycott Proposed

NEW YORK (CP) — A coalition of American women will be asked this weekend to boycott Canadian goods and vacations until Dr. Henry Morgentaler of Montreal is released from jail and abortion laws in Canada are "decriminalized."

Merle Goldberg, a founder and executive director of the National Women's Health Coalition, said she expects that adoption of the boycott resolution will be a formality.

The resolution will be presented this weekend to more than 2,000 women delegates representing hundreds of women's groups at the annual Conference on Women and Health being held at the Harvard University medical facilities in Boston.

Would Consider Plea for Leave

OTTAWA (CP) — The case of Dr. Henry Morgentaler will be considered "on its merits" if he applies for temporary prison leave to accept a United States humanist award, the Quebec justice department said Thursday.

"We try to be as humane as possible but we must abide by the rules," said Dr. Maurice Gauthier, director-general of corrections.

Two Trustee Bodies Are Seen as Essential

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario School Trustees Council (OSC) wants to play a dominant role in trustee affairs in excess of its mandate, Chris Asself, executive director of the Ontario Separate School Trustees' Association (OSSA) said Thursday.

In spite of OSSTA protests, he told the group's annual meeting, the Ontario government is going ahead with the OSTC in matters concerning legislation and policy.

"To put it bluntly, we do not believe that there should be one big trustee organization in Ontario, any more than we believe that there should be one big public school system and so other," he said.

Members of the OSTC, formed in 1948 to deal with issues of common concern to all trustee organizations in Ontario, include the Ontario Public School Trustees' Association, Northern Ontario Public and Secondary School Trustees' Association, L'association Franco-ontarienne des conseils scolaires de l'Ontario and the OSSTA, the Roman Catholic Trustees' organization.

In his address, E. J. Brisbois, OSSTA president, said there has been a temptation to delegate authority to a single trustee organization because of "the ominous shadow of a single, powerful teachers' federation."

He said that co-operation between trustees and teachers will lead to a method of dealing "with this annual and abrasive series of encounters."

The Rotary Club Science Fair and Hobby Show is in full swing today until 8 p.m. at the Belleville Armory. Science and Hobby Fair Staged at Armory Here

By JIM SMELLIE
Staff Reporter

The Rotary Club's Annual Science Fair and Hobby Show, running until 8 p.m. tonight at the Armory isn't just for those with scientific minds.

It's also for those who enjoy Greek ethnic dancing karate demonstrations and dog obedience displays. And much more.

The scientific exhibitions through are there in full force, 140 of them put together by close to 240 Quinte area students and ranging in topics from engaging to a model of a tornado.

There are displays relating to one of the five categories, life sciences, physical sciences, earth sciences, environmental sciences and engineering.

Some students were busy from 6 a.m. Friday setting up their displays for the noon opening that day. Other displays were setup Saturday.

The winners of the best exhibits in the fair were chosen Saturday morning. The science fair is open to students from Grade 7 to 13 in Belleville and Quinte area public and high schools including Albert College.

Besides the scientific exhibits about 30 hobbyists had displays and demonstrations for the visitors.

Hobbies of all sorts from bottle collecting to model airplanes to taxidermy were featured. Demonstrations were given in embroidery, dog handling and flower arranging.

And while some of the displays were static, standing on their own without any need for demonstration, some displays were quite lively. A mouse named Snoopy and one named Linus were part of an experiment by Danny Templeton and Scott Tripp of Prince Charles School to explain human behavior by looking at the actions of the mice in a maze.

Hein Hemmersbach of Foxboro Senior School displayed a model of a water-powered sawmill constructed of wood. that took him about 2½ weeks to build.

The grand prize winner of the science fair wins an all-expense paid trip to compete in the Canada-wide Science Fair in Jonquiere, Que.

U.S. Navy Force Assembles For Evacuation from Saigon

SAIGON (AP) — A United States Navy force including four aircraft carriers began assembling in the Western Pacific today for possible evacuation of Americans and South Vietnamese from Saigon.

Official sources said the ships had no orders to move into Vietnam waters but the threat in Saigon was being assessed by the hour.

The aircraft carriers Enterprise, Coral Sea, Midway and Hancock all have attack bombers aboard.

A 1,000-ship, the helicopter carrier Okinawa, is standing by in the Gulf of Thailand off Cambodia for evacuation of Americans from Phnom Penh. It has hundreds of marines aboard.

Meanwhile, the U.S. embassy discounted the possibility of sabotage in the crash Friday of an air force jet carrying Vietnamese war orphans to the United States.

About 200 of the 319 persons aboard were feared killed when the C-5A Galaxy crashed in a rice paddy 1½ miles from Saigon's Tan Son Nhut airport shortly after takeoff.

It was the second-worst aircraft disaster on record.

An embassy spokesman said "everything points to mechanical failure. The pilot's report said the aft (rear) pressure doors blew and went through the aft loading doors. They hit the tail and put the elevators out of action.

"As he was making his approach to Tan Son Nhut for an emergency landing, he realized he was descending too fast. But he could not use the elevators to be applied power. But he didn't make it."

Pentagon sources said they suspected sabotage because the C-5A is built so that controls should not be affected if the doors blow out.

What caused the doors to blow was not clear.

Door failure resulted in the crash of a Turkish Airlines DC-10 near Paris in March, 1974, killing the 346 persons aboard in the worst aviation disaster.

Relief and adoption agencies said 600 orphan children were scheduled to fly to the United States today.

In Washington, U.S. Intelligence sources said North Vietnam was pouring more than 1,000 fresh troops a day into South Vietnam in apparent buildup for an attack on Saigon.

Americans Preparing To Depart

PHNOM PENH (CP) — Insurgent forces attacked government positions six miles north of this besieged Cambodian capital today while the United States embassy made emergency plans to evacuate its personnel.

Authorities, meanwhile, extended the curfew here by one hour to last from 8 p.m. to 5 a.m.

Reliable military sources said insurgent forces bypassed government frontlines north of Phnom Penh during the night and set up mortar-fire positions on both sides of a road six miles away.

Insurgent forces also were reported moving toward Phnom Penh from the northwest and up the Mekong River to the southeast.

Ford Confers With General And Kissinger

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — President Ford is engaged in a series of Vietnam policy-review conferences with State Secretary Henry Kissinger and a United States Army general just back from Vietnam.

Ford was held a meeting with Kissinger Friday night, meets twice today with Kissinger and Gen. Frederick Weyand, the army chief of staff who made a Vietnam fact-finding tour on the president's behalf.

At a news conference Thursday in San Diego, Ford said the military developments in South Vietnam were serious but there was "an opportunity to salvage the situation."

When Kissinger arrived in Palm Springs, he did not embrace Ford's optimistic assessment immediately, saying he wanted to hear from Weyand before making a judgment.

One Plane Leaves Saigon

Airlift of Orphans To Canada Stalled

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Plans for a massive evacuation of Vietnamese orphans to Canada stalled Friday when a federal provincial meeting to decide whether Air Canada should be allowed to conduct the airlift failed to materialize.

Air Canada was reportedly considering sending aircraft to Hong Kong, but needed government approval to fly to Saigon.

Reports from government officials today said the aircraft involved were still on the ground.

A Canadian Forces plane scheduled to evacuate 100 orphans along with a number of Canadian citizens left Saigon "after a very short period" early today, a defence department spokesman said. However, it was not known how many persons were aboard.

A spokesman for the external affairs department said the plane was sent as part of "arrangements made for the protection of Canadians and in response to humanitarian appeals."

Forty seven children, including 35 infants previously removed from Cambodia, left Saigon for Canada Friday.

Evacuation operations were being co-ordinated by the Canadian Embassy in Saigon, with first consideration being given to Canadian citizens. The embassy had suggested earlier that all Canadians in South Vietnam leave as quickly as possible by commercial airlines.

Additional flights have not been ruled out, but the final decision would be made by Ottawa in relation to the success of the Canadian Forces mission, affairs department said.

The external affairs department said it was in "constant touch" with other agencies attempting to organize mercy flights, but no details were available.

Meanwhile, hundreds of Ontario families informed the Ontario ministry and Children's Aid Societies across the province they would be willing to provide homes for orphaned children.

Dorothy Harrison, adoption co-ordinator for the CAS of Metro Toronto, said the society received about 1,000 telephone calls Friday from Torontonians.

Elsewhere in Canada, Sandy Cameron, acting social services minister of Nova Scotia, said that more than 200 Nova Scotians had expressed interest in adopting Vietnamese children.

An official of a Montreal-based group placing Vietnamese children with North American families said she has been inundated with requests to adopt children, but "if you call half these people back in two weeks they will change their minds."

In Ottawa, a spokesman for the local CAS said there had been at least 50 calls in the last two days from couples wanting to adopt these children.

Saskatchewan Health Minister Walter Smishek told the legislature in Regina that his government has agreed to co-operate in the adoption of Vietnamese and Cambodian war orphans.

Ilela Hunley, Alberta minister of health and social development, said the government was willing to "assume responsibility" for orphans arriving in the province from South Vietnam and Cambodia.

A spokesman for the Vancouver resources board said persons in British Columbia wanting to adopt Vietnamese orphans were told Friday that there is already a waiting list of 200 families ready to receive such children.

However, officials in Ottawa expressed concern that an "explosion of emotion" over the plight of Indochina war orphans might raise false hopes.

"It is gratifying that Canadians are concerned, but they have to look at the reality of the situation," an immigration spokesman said.

Orphans cannot be evacuated without the permission of the South Vietnam and Cambodian governments "and we have to be certain they are orphans before we bring them out."

It is believed that the South Vietnamese government has granted exit visas for about 600 orphans bound for Canada, but at this stage it is not all that clear, he said.

In Toronto, Dr. Vivian Abbott, a psychiatrist consulted with the Delicrest Children's Centre for emotionally disturbed children, said she was concerned about reports that the adoption process may be speeded up.

"I'd rather see it done thoroughly rather than rushed, because real care is taken in choosing the adoptive families."

The orphans were not or dinary children with ordinary problems, she said.

"They have been through tremendous trauma already. It's not going to be easy for us to make it up to them. I don't like to see anything into a thing like this too fast."

Validation of Statements

Ray Krock, Belleville General Hospital assistant executive director, made declaration to Robert Sanders after the former social worker levelled charges against hospital management at BGH board meeting Friday. Mayor Robin Jeffrey — commissioner of oaths by virture of civic office — took statement from Mr. Sanders to validate his signature on statements filed with the board.

News Briefs

Patty Not Present

MENLO PARK, Calif. (AP) — An armed raiding party arrested four persons and seized bomb materials in an apartment where fugitive newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst was believed to be hiding, authorities said today. They said Miss Hearst was not in the apartment.

"It is gratifying that Canadians are concerned, but they have to look at the reality of the situation," an immigration spokesman said.

Orphans cannot be evacuated without the permission of the South Vietnam and Cambodian governments "and we have to be certain they are orphans before we bring them out."

It is believed that the South Vietnamese government has granted exit visas for about 600 orphans bound for Canada, but at this stage it is not all that clear, he said.

Co-operation Lacking

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — World Airways President Edward Daly, who flew more than 50 Vietnamese orphans here this week, has accused the army and state department of failing to co-operate with his airline's offer of more assistance.

More Aid Sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford says he will ask Congress to extend until the end of 1976 a supplemental benefits program that entitles most United States workers to as much as 65 weeks of unemployment compensation.

Canadian Head Sought

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada has launched a bid to put one of its own experts at the head of the Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) the central United Nations agency in the world fight against hunger. David Hooper, now president of the International Development Research Centre (IDRC) here, has been suggested as a candidate for FAO director general.

More Working

Hospital Charges Levelled

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

A former Belleville General Hospital social worker Friday called for an investigation into what he termed "mismanagement" at the hospital in the care of elderly patients.

Robert Sanders levelled a number of charges at Friday's regular meeting of the hospital board of governors.

Mr. Sanders, 31, was dismissed last October from the hospital staff. He later protested that his firing was linked to his nomination as New Democratic Party candidate and statements he made during the 1974 federal election campaign in Hastings riding.

His prepared statement was cut short by board vice-chairman John Legate when Mr. Sanders said he did not have written permission from former hospital staff members he quoted as claiming they had complained about problems at the hospital.

In one unread portion of his statement, Mr. Sanders accused The Intelligencer of "co-operating" with hospital administration to "deceive" area residents, Mr. Legate suggested that Mr. Sanders sign all copies of his statement and file them with the board.

Later, Philip Rickard, hospital executive director, said the institution annually is given independent inspection by the Canadian Council on Hospital Accreditation. He said the council rates Belleville General as one of the best hospitals in administration and staffing.

Another Winter Storm from U.S. to Move into Canada Today

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A fierce snow and windstorm that battered Central Canada on Thursday continued to pound its way eastward through Quebec and the Maritimes on Friday, leaving in its wake at least nine persons dead and a heavy blanket of snow from the Manitoba border to New Brunswick.

Snow and blowing snow up to 21 inches deep continued to clog roads in Quebec and Ontario, while widespread wind damage was reported in the Maritimes.

Meanwhile, the weather office was predicting more, bad weather. Another storm centred in Montana was expected to move into Manitoba early to day, bringing more wind and snow. its was forecast to abate somewhat before reaching beleagured Ontario.

Meanwhile, snow was still falling late Friday in parts of Ontario and Quebec where at least eight storm-related deaths have been reported.

A Quebec department spokesman in Montreal said Friday it would take at least 48 hours to clear city streets of up to 14 inches of snow accumulated during the two-day blizzard.

Ontario continued to reel under harsh weather conditions Friday. Snowclearing in many areas was hampered by localized snowstorms and by high winds near the Lake Huron-Georgian Bay shoreline.

Today's weather forecast calls for snowflurries, colder weather and some heavier snowsqualls for most of Lake Erie, Lake Huron, southern Georgian Bay, western Lake Ontario, Peterborough and Lodon.

An official of the Ontario Motor League, who warned motorists Friday not to drive anywhere in southern Ontario until the weather clears, said the worst conditions were in the areas of Stratford, Barrie, Shelburne and Mount Forest. Shelburne is about 50 miles southeast of Owen Sound and Mount Forest about 45 miles south of Owen Sound.

The ministry of transportation and communications reported many highways still closed, including Highway 400 north of Highway 7, Highway 11 north of Toronto to Barrie was near blocked and other stretches of major highways were restricted to one lane traffic.

The ministry said visibility in most areas except for the Windsor-Chatham area was poor to zero.

A spokesman for Gray Coach Lines Ltd. in Toronto said operations were curtailed Friday night. Buses between Toronto and North Bay, Sudbury and Barrie were cancelled. He said buses were operating only to Guelph and Kitchener in the east of Toronto and Oshawa in the west.

Hypertension Topic Of Hospital Seminar

Belleville General Hospital is planning a seminar April 9 on a wide-spread disease not recognized for its true dimensions by Canadians.

It's hypertension.

About 2,000,000 Canadians could be considered subject to hypertension, noted a seminar pamphlet given the hospital board Friday.

If it were an infectious disease such statistics would tag hypertension as an epidemic, says the pamphlet.

Yet only about half of all hypertensives know they have high blood pressure. Of that number only half are under treatment. Of these, only half again are receiving a proper therapy.

The seminar will be held in the afternoon for professional staff and repeated at night starting at 7:30 p.m. — for the public at Education Hall.

Political Fund Poor Proposition

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

If Ontario's secondary school teachers can afford to give $600 each for political action then their pleas for large salary increases, above the inflation rate, are not to be taken seriously.

The 34,000-member Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation (OSSTF) had its hands sign 500 promissory notes in case of a political campaign in the coming provincial election.

The average secondary school teacher's salary is just over $15,000 The $600 represents about four per cent of this wage. Four per cent of anyone's income is a sizable chunk and one which most could not afford.

If a moderate — size company, with annual sales of $15 million, was to donate four per cent of its earnings ($600,000) a royal commission" plus a political witchhunt would be underway over campaign contributions.

Already, the Ontario Teachers Federation (OTF), the parent body of the five Ontario teacher groups, has pledged $100,000 to this loosely linked but massive political machine. With the promissory notes the money is on paper.

To date Governments have not said at whom this political activity is aimed but it doesn't require much imagination to see that a campaign of this size could help bring down the Davis government.

The political activity is obviously a threat directed at the Tories should they introduce legislation prohibiting teacher strikes and imposing compulsory arbitration.

The last major political campaign fought by teachers took place in British Columbia in 1972 when they helped defeat, the government of W.A.C. Bennett. The teachers felt the Socreds were not spending enough money on education. Bennett also threatened to limit teachers' raises to 6.5 per cent if his government was re-elected.

The teachers in B.C. gained some public sympathy because there was an educational issue involved as well as the salary disputes.

Recently, the OSSTF endorsed a resolution for the establishment of compulsory subjects for secondary school students. Their concern is for the quality of education now received by Ontario students.

Apparently, the OSSTF's concern stops short of political activity geared to changing the attitudes of the ministry of education. But, political activity seems warranted over increased salaries and the right to strike.

While the purpose of the OSSTF is to protect teachers and their causes it is doubtful the original founder wished the federation to strip the quality of professionalism from teachers.

If a teacher as an individual, wishes to participate in the provincial election then it is his or her right. But, if the federation insists on toppling a government just for the right to strike and for higher wages, then it does not deserve the support or respect of the public.

Sewage Cost Queried

Belleville General Hospital is to seek legal advice on exemption from the city's sewage disposal charges.

The hospital board decided on the move Friday, but not before Mayor Robin Jeffrey commented she hoped BGH wouldn't press the issue.

Charges are for treatment at the sewage disposal plant run by the province.

City treasurer Frank Morrell said the BGH bill — a regular one-mill cost against city property owners — amounts to about $7,000.

The city pays the province about $500,000 a year for operation of the plant, he said.

Patients Urged To Recruit Blood Donors

A city councillor has proposed Belleville General Hospital institute a volunteer blood donor program.

Ald. Stu Meeks Friday gave a notice of motion to the hospital board he will suggest a volunteer project in which patients receiving blood would seek out donors among friends and relatives.

The project would place patients under no obligation but was aimed at offsetting a current situation in which the Belleville area is receiving much more blood han it donates to the central distributing Red Cross blood bank in the province.

Tall Order

Constable Cecil Farrington has represented "tall order" on the Picton Police force for approximately 15 years.

The popular constable has resigned his job because of ill health and will leave work this month.

Ill Health Forces End Of Picton Police Career

PICTON — The Streets of San Francisco may boast detective Mike Stone but the town of Picton for 15 years has had "Big Cec."

Constable Cecil Farrington, whose career in policing began in 1957, this week is leaving the job because of ill health.

The veteran officer has been the "cop on the corner" to hundreds of Picton residents and is widely known for his good nature.

Constable Farrington stands six for six inches and weighs over 300 pounds but has relied on the "gentle but firm " approach throughout his career.

He served as the town police force from 1957 to 1970, then resigned for a three-year period when he was employed as a guard at the Picton lock-up. He returned to police work in 1974, resigning this year because of ill health.

Chronic Respiratory Cases Aided by New Program

For the last 21 months Belleville General Hospital has been running a preventive program for persons with chronic respiratory disease.

Although adequate statistics are not available, the rapy program — centred on the Queen's Self Care Unit — evidently "is meeting its objectives," Dr. Reginald Anderson, BGH medical director told the hospital board Friday.

The project was launched following a study on the impact of those suffering obstructive lung disease on the hospital's bed utilization.

The study showed a need to prevent such "unfortunate" sufferers from deteriorating between hospital treatments.

Apart from "the misery endured by these patients" their health breakdown accounted for a "really formidable" number of stays in hospital, reported Dr. Anderson.

During 1974 patients accounted for 1,100 individual sessions.

Among those assisted: People with asthma who are taught breathing control and relaxation; those with bronchitis, emphysema and chronic asthma, who learn to increase exercise tolerances and physical fitness.

Poster Contest Stresses Early Job Planning

To stimulate summer employment for students, Canada Manpower Centre (CMC) has launched a poster contest in county secondary schools with total prizes of $250.

Students said the purpose of Peter Fleming, of CMC for Student, said the purpose of the contest is to encourage students to start thinking about summer employment and remind employers to plan for summer jobs.

The contest is open to students in the seven high schools of the county and there will be seven $25 prizes for first place and seven $15 prizes for second place. The contest will close April 30.

The funds for the prizes are being donated by the Belleville and District Employment Committee in co-operation with CMC for Students. This committee strives to solve employment problems in the area.

Mr. Fleming said all posters must contain the words "Canada Manpower Centre for Students." The format of the poster is open. Mr. Fleming said additional information as to where the posters are to be sent will be available soon.

JOHN R. BUSH
R. DOUGLAS RUSHNELL
QUESTION:
Should friends always go to the cemetery?
ANSWER:
It is not always possible for all friends to go to the cemetery particularly in the case of business acquaintances who have taken time off from work to attend the service in the Church or Funeral Chapel — However attendance is important at Christian Burial Service and the family does appreciate the presence of all those who do attend with them at the final interment in the cemetery.
QUESTION:
Why are caskets sometimes left closed?
ANSWER:
Sometimes at the specific request of the deceased or family, in other incidents circumstances make it difficult to recapture the remembered physical likeness.

Heritage Found Both In Past and Present

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — In Prince Edward, frequently dubbed The County, with emphasis on "The" tradition dies hard.

Concern for local indentity was clearly demonstrated when a proposal for one-tier government was introduced in 1974. Many Prince Edward residents questioned the threat a county government could pose to the familiar boundaries of the old municipalities.

Prince Edward County-side is peppered with intriguing road signs such as "Gilead, "Christian Street" and "Jerichy". Each has been retained with its story by a heritage-conscious county fostering its link with the past.

Today, a new trend is showing as public buildings and parks are named for Prince Edward residents who have made recent contributions to their community.

This week it was announced the Milford Public Library will be re-named in memory of South Marysburg Township resident Ann Farwell who died this winter following a lengthy illness.

Miss Farwell was a co-founder of this small book centre and volunteered to take her turn as librarian for 'a number of years.

In 1974, Prince Edward County council voted to name its new home for the aged in memory of Picton's late mayor Harvey J. McFarland.

This decision was forwarded after consideration of the late mayor's concern for senior citizens. For a number of years he provided each resident of the county home with a Christmas gift and shared in their holiday celebrations.

When town foreman Angus LeHeup died about six years ago, Picton councillors agreed Delhi Park should be renamed in his memory. He had been active in planning for this recreation facility and supervised work projects there.

A brief dedication service was held as the Angus Le-Heup Delhi Athletic Field was opened.

The Prince Edward County Board of Education this winter sanctioned a change in name for Wellington Consolidated School.

It now is known as Snider Elementary School in tribute to the late Milton Snider, a Wellington educator who served as its principal for a number of years.

As Prince Edward County residents are honored through the naming of public buildings, libraries and parks, local identity grows even stronger.

A number of Prince Edward's pioneer residents such as the Reverend William Macaulay still are recalled but, in addition, there are new names.

The county is looking not just to the past but also to the present for its heritage.

Utility Increase Not Unexpected

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

So why should a 25-per-cent jump in water costs in Trenton be unusual? It's not really. It falls in line with an increase in electricity rates, in gasoline costs, in the price of nearly everything we eat, smell or touch. With the cost of living index up 12.4 per cent in 1974, and a lower increase, but still an increase expected this year, it's not particularly unusual.

However, a remarkable solution to the jump has been arrived.

During a brief press conference this week, utilities commission manager Douglas Manley suggested a novel way of not feeling the dent in the pocket: On alternate days, four pennies and then three pennies should be dropped into a Mason jar set aside for the purpose.

Thereby, he reasoned, each day one would put up 3½cents — exactly the amount needed daily to offset the $1.05 rise in the monthly bill of an average household.

Interesting, yes? But for me, too reasonable. Another approach to the problem popped into my head. Why not revive the old slogan of the dollar conscious and uninhibited: 'Save water. Shower with a friend.'

Behind the increase is the need to pay for the $1.5-million capital works program of the past four years. Part of that program is the interconnection of the east and west banks of the Trent River by watermain. In part, this will help end the foul taste of water in the east.

Isn't it nice to know the town is spending money to improve your tastes? You easterners luckily, I live out west! won't mind paying for that, will you?

Still on the subject of the dollar, that all consuming passion of ours, I'd like to say: Well done to the owner of Doug's Taxi. He wants council to change one of its bylaws to permit him to charge senior citizens in Trenton less than his meters read.

His initiative may mean the hard pressed dollar of these over 65 on fixed incomes will go a little further. And with a bus service for the town now looking increasingly more remote, any help senior citizens get in alleviating their transportation costs is for the better.

It seems a simple matter to change the town law that now makes the taxi fleet owner a criminal, something he freely admits, because he discounts 10 cents from senior citizens' fares.

Building Structure Important

It's all well and good for a farmer to adopt new building ideas, but if he attempts to transplant a design from the south to the snowbelt without structural changes, he could be in for trouble. An agricultural engineer with the Ontario ministry of agriculture and food, H.E. Bellman, warns farmer not to "get lulled into a sense of security that buildings in use in Ontario's southwest are good for all areas of the province."

"We've had lighter-than-normal snowfall in the past few years, but there's no reason to show that this will continue," he points out.

When designing and locating any type of agricultural structure, the farmer should remember that the carrying capacity of all rafters cannot handle the heaviest snow loads in his area.

Farm Advisory Board Oversees Fertilizer Use

"Farmers who are only carrying out normal farm procedures have nothing to fear from officials of the ministry of the environment", said Ontario environment minister Bill Newman.

Recently, some farmers have expressed concern over their practice of spreading manure over fields and the possible resulting odor. Environment Ontario officials point out that this concern is essentially needless worry. Normal manure spreading and subsequent cultivation is both necessary and beneficial for farm operations. Area residents are asked to show consideration toward this practice.

However, a small percentage of farmers do not follow normal farm procedures and this could lead to a valid complaint by a neighboring resident. Ministry officials will investigate and advise the farmer to correct the situation. In most instances the farmer will follow the advice of the official and the situation is quickly remedied.

For farmers who refuse to accept the advice of the official, an independent body called the Farm Pollution Advisory Committee will be called in. The committee of four farmers — Otto Crone and Harold Eubank of Hagersville, Donald Switzer of Smithville and John K. Peart of Caledonia — was appointed jointly by the Ontario Ministries of Environment and Agriculture and Food in March 1973 to provide an objective assessment of farm environmental situations. These members will visit the site and make recommendations.

If the committee's recommendations are not followed, the ministry of the environment has no alternative but to begin legal action.

"During this action the farmer still has right to appeal his case to the regional director or the Environmental Hearing Board.

If the farmer in question does not appeal or remedy the situation the ministry may initiate court action under the Environmental Protection Act.

Ministry officials report that few farmers are willing to carry their case further than the Farm Pollution Advisory Committee.

"If their peers find them at fault the farmer is usually more than willing to correct the situation," said a ministry official.

Questions about Cremation?

The idea of cremation has been very slow at becoming acceptable to Canadians so that during 1973 less than 4% of all who died were cremated.

Cremation is the ALTERNATIVE to burial in the earth and does not preclude the ordinary Christian Funeral Practices of visiting at the Funeral Home, religious service in the Chapel or Church and the cortege to the cemetery where the crematorium is located.

On occasion funeral directors are asked to provide cremation or burial without religious services or cortege. These wishes are respected.

Whatever your preferences, members of the Ontario Funeral Service Association believe that it is YOUR RESPONSIBILITY to make them known to those you will leave behind.

The Ontario Funeral Service Association respectfully recommends that you meet with a funeral director where these matters can be discussed in confidence and without obligation.

Among the many "offshore financial centres" (or tax havens) of the world, Britain's Channel Islands are unique.

Part of Britain yet with distinctly diffe-ent tax laws, part of the European Economic Community yet with a very special status, the Channel Islands are attracting so many financial institutions that they have had to bar the door.

Fortunes flow back and forth between the islands and the large traditional money markets such as London and Frankfurt with the speed of a Telex message.

But on any given day, in the banks of Jersey alone—largest of the Channel Island group—it is estimated that there is more than $1.4 billion in currency or deposits.

Canada's Royal Trust Co., which has been doing business in the islands for 20 years, has some $42 million in deposits at its headquarters in Jersey, and another $25 million at its newer branch on Guernsey, second-largest island.

The Montreal-based company's operations in the Channel Islands are mainly in the personal-trust field, managing director Gordon Cambie told me.

Much of the money it handles is in the form of short-term securities, maturing in less than one year.

As any lies about 15 miles off the Brittany coast of France. To the north lies picturesque Guernsey, and just off its shores are the tiny island of Sark (still under the feudal system, administered by a seigneur who prohibits cars but allows tractors) and the even tiniier Herm.

Further still to the north, and eight miles from France's Cape de la Hogue, is the third largest island of the group, Alderney.

The islands are unique in a variety of ways—their geographical forms of law and administration that still linger not only on Sa-k but to a certain extent on the other islands as well, the strong French influence that is noticeable in place names and in local dialects that are said to be close to the French spoken in Quebec, the distinction of being the only British territory to have been occupied by Nazi Germany during the Second World War.

But the Channel Islands' most important distinction, to the investor, is surely in their unique position as a tax haven, only an hour's flying time from the most important financial capital of the world—London.

The Channel Islands are certainly not alone in the ranks of "offshore financial centres" (as the money-men call such jurisdictions).

The Bahamas, Bermuda, Cayman Islands, Hong Kong, Netherlands Antilles, New Hebrides, Isle of Man, Liberia, Panama, Luxembourg and Switzerland are all in the same group—except of course, that the last four are not islands.

But some, such as Switzerland and Luxembourg, tend to be "wholesale" financial markets, with little access to individual investors.

Others are remote from the major financial capitals, have unacceptable climates, lack sophisticated professional services, or are politically uncertain.

Increasingly, over the past 10 or 15 years, the Channel Islands have been exploiting their unique combination of attributes, to build up financial services as a balance to their growing but sometimes fickle primary industry—tourism.

Since then, capital has been flowing in from places all over the world. Most investors consider (whether rightly or wrongly) to be politically unstable.

A typical arrangement might look like this:

A British or European investor forms a holding company in Grand Cayman, to be free of U.K. foreign-exchange controls. To be directors of the company, the investor appoints trustees residing in Jersey or Guernsey. They would carry out the investor's wishes, investing his assets in any part of the world.

Income tax rates on Jersey are flat 20 per cent, for individuals and corporations alike. But before you pack up and move there, consider this:

Jersey requires proof that any newcomer will pay income tax of at least $25,000 a year—which means that the newcomer's income must be at least $125,000.

This has been no impediment to a number of wealthy celebrities who have made Jersey their home—such as golfer Tony Jacklin, holiday-camp operator Billy Butlin, and orchestra leader Ray Noble.

If Jersey has the edge in finance, Guernsey has the greater appeal for the pleasure-bound visitor.

A smaller, less hurried and crowded, more scenic and distinctive island, Guernsey has nevertheless lagged beyond its bigger neighbor in attracting hordes of tourists.

But it is beginning to attract financial companies — Royal Trust opened its branch there two years ago—as well as perceptive immigrants. (Canadian composer-conductor-arranger, Robert Farnon, who produced and directed the wartime Canadian Army show, lives there.)

Guernsey does not set a high minimum tax liability, as Jersey does. But it maintains two separate housing markets—low-priced for local people, and high-priced $100,000 and up) for outsiders.

Over the centuries, the Channel Islands have been a sanctuary for well-heeled refugees from political and religious persecution. (The aging Victor Hugo took refuge first in Jersey, then sensibly moved on to Guernsey for the last several years of his long life.)

Today, the wealthy are finding in them a sanctuary from the powerful grasp of the taxman.

Animal Care Essential

Canada still bears many of the marks of a frontier society, a phenomenon reflected by our actions and attitudes.

There are some community problems and responsibilities regarding which we either bury our collective heads or hope that they will go away.

Consider the task of animal care, as carried out by the Ontario Humane Society. This involves everything from the checking of horses, as on that wagon expedition to Alberta, and some have been found unfit for the journey, to probably its most pressing work of looking after dogs and cats.

Far too often the life of a dog in Canada is, yes, a "dog's life," a piece of vernacular that has more truth than we know where canines are concerned. In Belleville the Humane Society has been waging a money-losing battle, in a community where the attitude, common everywhere, ranges from disinterest to one that would deal with the problem in terms of extermination.

In the Yukon for instance they shoot dogs, don't they? That's animal control, frontier-style, by the Mounties, as witnessed by Ontario Humane Society executive director Tom Hughes.

But this is Belleville, by distance, affluence, and more rapid social evolution far removed from such rough justice.

Yet, do we care sufficiently about this problem locally? Care enough to put more money into a responsibility that cannot be shirked, and which, like everything else, is costing more and more.

Examples: an animal shelter for Thunder Bay was established in November 1973 at a cost of $80,000. Chatham got one in July 1974 for $90,000. By November of that year the cost of one in Orillia had gone up to $105,000. And bids for strictly utilitarian no-frills efforts with the cost working out at about $40 per square foot. Brampton has one that cost $200,000.

Animal control costs, according to Mr. Hughes, range from $1.50 to $2.00 per capita, though under a proposed new contract he outlined in recent days, Belleville is being asked for only $1.00 until July 1 when it would increase by a mere dime, then by another 15 cents to $1.25 from Jan. 1, 1976.

Mr. Hughes and the society are concerned about the more than $46,000 deficit of the Quinte branch's operation in 1974. He says if this area could establish something better the society would be "very happy;" but he does not believe this is possible under locally published projections. Instead he suggests continued use of the Avonlough Road shelter, with Belleville providing wardens and vehicles. He suggests further that if the deficit can be brought down to "a reasonable size" — and he mentioned a sum of $15,000 — "we could hang in there."

The executive director has for long been a determined advocate of proper animal care. His is no "mad dogs and Englishmen" image, but rather that of a compassionate man, British-born to be sure, who wants for animals the "basic essentials" at least — food, water, shelter and exercise.

Too often they are deprived of all these, by an uncaring public.

Blood Clinic

The gift of life wasn't in abundance at the March Red Cross blood donor clinic in the city.

Only 103 pints were collected, a far cry from January's record-setting 1,000 donations.

Unfortunately, the latest clinic was scheduled on the day before the Easter weekend holiday, a factor which undoubtedly had an adverse effect on its success.

With city residents' donations currently running at less than a third of our own hospital's requirements, it is to be hoped that the next clinic — Thursday, May 29 — will meet with greater response.

The Everest Legend

For one who called herself a "common garden variety sort of wife — the cabbage kind, not the long-suffering pioneer type," Louise Hillary accomplished much that was in the true spirit of adventure.

Also, Lady Hillary and her 18-year-old youngest daughter, Belinda, were killed in a plane crash in Nepal earlier this week. They were en route to join their husband and father, Sir Edmund Hillary, the conqueror of Everest.

In recent years, Sir Edmund has spent much time supervising construction of schools and hospitals for the Sherpa guides that accompany climbers.

The Hillarys were a close-knit family and Lady Hillary will be remembered for her book, Keep Calm If You Can, an account published in 1964 of a 3-month family trip through U.S. national forests at the request of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, and into the Pacific Northwest and Alaska, testing camping equipment and making a film.

Daughter Belinda was only 3½ years, an older sister 4 and brother 7½; and there are several pictures of her, including one of her in the arms of Tenzing Norgay, the sherpa guide who accompanied Hillary to the summit of Everest.

Now the family has been bereaved, but the Hillary name and the Everest legend remain.

Communist Forces Have More of The Mess

Clearly more has to be said about what now is a totally unexpected North Vietnamese advance into the country of the Republic of South Vietnam left by Premier Thieu.

And although it is the Viet Cong white and blue flag flying over Da Nang, the so-recently impregnable American military base in northern South Vietnam, everyone knows it is the very powerful North Vietnamese regular army which conquered it and really lays claim to the city.

It now is estimated the army of the People's Republic of North Vietnam long since recouped from the end-of-the-war B-52 saturation bombings and during two years of peace, has rebuilt itself in armor and automatic weapon firepower to a degree unknown before.

The famous but nevertheless mysterious crack 420 regiment of North Vietnam is believed to be headquartered in Da Nang resting after serving as the spearhead of the incredibly sudden assault on that city.

On the other side, South Vietnamese units, bolstered before the truce with new squadrons of American jet and piston-driven fighter bombers and with a reorganized Tank-and-Air, are in disarray, their officers fled on the transports with the civilian refugees, undisciplined troops left behind, killing and also trying to escape.

The first answer as to what happened is the crack regiments of North Vietnam, probably every one of them backed up by Russian armor for the first time, were too much for 18 Vietnamese regiments, short on armor and automatic weapons, waiting for new delivery from the Americans which did not come.

Charges of lack of courage on South Vietnamese side are not as justified as they used to be.

The deserting or disillusioned South Vietnamese soldier is not according to the Communist forces from the north, but just giving up in despair.

One must remember the crack regiments of the south like the Marines and the First Division, are as "Americanized" as the North Vietnamese regiments are "Sovietized."

Thousands of South Vietnamese civilians as well as soldiers around Da Nang speak English with the various American twangs of the long-gone Marines. And many thousands of judges of dogs of all breeds on the American continent, is facing a busy season in the showrings of Canada and the U.S. as his services are constantly in demand. He will leave shortly for Vancouver where he will judge all breeds at one of the biggest shows on the west coast.

Whether prisoners will be afforded the solace of tobacco during certain periods of their incarceration under a new ruling permitted through order-in-council amending jail regulations by the Department of Prisons, will depend upon the inspector of prisons, following a visit expected to be made in the near future, it was stated by Governor G.H. French of the jail today.

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

Stewart-Warner Company has been holding a sales and service school this week at Tobe's Country Gardens. Many heating equipment dealers from both Ontario and Quebec were in attendance. The school was followed by open house to inspect the heating equipment Stewart-Warner now is manufacturing Belleville. Outstanding feature of the show was the display of low-pressure oil burners designed to handle the lower grade and lower-priced fuel oils. This oil burner is distributed in Eastern Ontario by the Shiota Heating Limited.

Belleville Chamber of Commerce endorsed a motion that directors of the organization appoint a committee to secure a resolution resolution requesting the Department of Regional Planning and Development of Ontario to make a survey of the Moira River valley. Field. Walter H. Hearn of this city, and one of the best known the same are products of the Catholic Christian culture which is strong in South Vietnam.

These are reasons why southern troops are not going over to the north and why the Viet Cong and North Vietnam's all-conquering army are not exactly building triumphal arches in Da Nang this week.

The proof of all this is how wrong, how incredibly wrong, were American military leaders, one after the other, to think they could teach the North Vietnamese "hack into the stone age."

It is 21 years, an entire generation in time, spanning the life of many American GIs who fought in South East Asia, since the genius of General Guy presided over the total French debacle at Dien Bien Phu and with it another alter-ego of Napoleon's metropolitan politics.

The same aftermath hit the United States in the mid-and late-60s and now has subsided.

There is a terrible yet understandable "fatigue element" in U.S. public life these days to turn off the war, look at no more TV news shots of decrepit, worn American military leaders, one after the other, to think they could teach the North Vietnamese "hack into the stone age."

Everyone's In the Act

TORONTO — There is getting to be what almost comprises a second wing of government in Ontario.

This wing is completely unofficial but it tends to be very noisy and it does have some impact.

This wing is completely unofficial made up of the numerous citizen groups that have been springing up and which have been wielding a growing impact on government.

With a great many of these groups I believe we give them more attention than they deserve.

Not that some of them don't deserve recognition.

But in most cases they don't merit the extent of the recognition they are getting.

There are many of these groups but the best example of what I have in mind is probably Pollution Probe, or the Canadian Environmental Law Association, which seems to have pretty well taken over from Probe.

Few will argue that Pollution Probe has served some useful purpose.

Principally it has focussed strong attention on the state of the environment and incidentally gets a good share of credit for the improvements that have been made.

But from that point it breaks down.

For Pollution Probe was, and insofar as it remains, a crusade and crusaders don't lack too much practicality to be really useful as continuing bodies.

They see only one side, and if that side isn't their cause, whether practical or not, they tend to stifle.

Prime examples are current campaigns of Environment Minister Bill Newman to discourage containers and environmental assessment.

The Environmental Law Association would have all non-returnable bottles, etc. banned right away and they would have the Assessment Act apply immediately to private industry.

For a variety of reasons—one being that about 1,200 people would be put out of work at once in the can industry alone—it isn't practical to approach such programs except on a staged basis.

In response to your editorial on professor-inspired Media Subversion and Bill Newman's life and freedom in South Vietnam, you have received some poignant letters from "Kingston Onlooker" whose connection appears to be along by the truth of your observations.

Unfortunately, "Onlooker's" writing is so obscure and tortuous, that it is impossible to divine his real meaning other than to vaguely surmise that he would rather see improve our system in a way which he is reluctant to be specific of this time.

How about letting us in on your secret "Onlooker" We might find it interesting?

'Company of the Cross' Offers New Life Style

By ALAN ARRUCKLE
GENESEE, Alta. (CP) — For 81 a boy and the necessities of life, those who work for the Company of The Cross offer alternatives to a society they believe needs their bias.

The bias is Christian and the alternatives so far lie in the fields of education and communication.

Keith Bennett, a 36-year-old father of three who spends his working day in a plaid jacket, heads the company in Alberta where it operates St. John's School for Boys and publishes the weekly Edmonton Report.

The magazine, which has been in circulation for about a year, started as a job-printing operation at the school. One of the instructors, Ted Byfield, thought a news magazine should be produced to offer an alternative to the conventional Edmonton media and spread the Christian faith through reports on the community.

Like the magazine staff of about 25, the 14-member staff at the school are members of the Company of The Cross and are paid $1 a day for their labors. They get a $10-a-month clothing allowance, insurance benefits, housing, food and such things as medical and dental costs. Members with families get separate accommodation, single members can't even depend on getting a room to themselves.

The company is associated with the Anglican Church and accepts full members after a two-year initiation period. The three-fold rules of life order are spiritual, requiring regular attention to religious duties, economic, setting down the income of members' and social, outlining codes of behavior one member must follow in dealing with the others.

While the company's latest venture is the magazine—Mr. Bennett said the next one could be a crack at broadcasting off the right people and the money can be found—the boys' school remains the mainstay of the operation.

The Alberta school is the company's second. The first began following a visit by Mr. Man., in 1961 when two Winnipeg men decided they could teach boys to think, not only in an academic sense but about their religion and could give them something of a tradition of physical work which would show them they could meet challenges they normally would have considered impossible.

The schools, Mr. Bennett said, give the boys, ranging in age from 12 to 18, an education, a chance for adventure and an introduction to the harsh realities of life. He said the experience of dealing with these realities gives the boys a chance to mature in a way not possible in a conventional school system based on memory work and minimal experience.

Once a boy's parents have paid the $1,800 first-year tuition (it drops as a boy gets enough training to be able to contribute some skill to the school), he joins about 100 other kids on the remote 15-acre site on the North Saskatchewan River and immediately sets out on a 10-day back-packing expedition in the Rockies.

The 150-mile trip during the usually rainy Alberta fall provides a good shake-down for the newcomer, Mr. Bennett said.

Then it's straight into classes with regular Saturday snowshoe expeditions of 40 miles or so for first-year students. Other boys go on dog-sledding trips over various kinds of terrain and camp out Friday and Saturday nights, leading to a 10-day excursion in February. The academic program ends in May and the boys spend June canoeing as much as 1,500 miles from the Alberta school to the Manitoba campus.

In all cases, Mr. Bennett said, instructors are expected to do as much as the boys and no one has the option of staying in the dormitory.

To keep the boys responding to the school's demands, strict discipline is necessary and Mr. Bennett said instructors carry wooden sticks with which they administer "spankings" that ensure polite, honest and fair-minded graduates.

The school has no uniform but the boys buy their clothes from the school and rugged blue jeans, warm shirts and school sweaters abound on students and teachers alike.

Between 1967 and 1970 the school was feuding with the provincial department of education but since then the two have agreed to disagree about the need for certified teachers and course content and the province merely "tolerates" St. John's boys as out-of-province students, Mr. Bennett said.

The school accepts boys of all denominations and it's not too important whether an incoming student declares himself a Christian. He is required to attend religious classes where teachers seek to jar him into thinking about morality and God and the instructors themselves are expected to set an example with their own behavior, the headmaster said.

Mr. Bennett interviews all boys and their parents before an application is accepted. His idea is to explain just what can be expected at St. John's and to establish whether a boy will stick with the program and meet its challenges.

The school doesn't want boys who don't want to come to it, boys with a record of crime or boys with physical or emotional handicaps which will prevent them from meeting the standards the school demands, he said.

Tuition fees provide the operating expenses of St. John's in Alberta depends on donations by past debts and undertake capital projects, he said. The school gets no money from the Anglican Church and wants none from the province, fearing it will mean interference in its program.

Religion Banned

WELLAND, Ont. (CP) — Religious instruction in schools for trainable retarded children will not be permitted following a decision made by the Niagara South board of education. Catharine Jackson, a Welland trustee and wife of an Anglican minister, said it is a parent's responsibility to provide this instruction.

Problems and Opportunities Faced Today Are Not New

By Dr. Gordon C. Smyth

Each generation cherishes the illusion that its problems and opportunities are radically new. Every age produces persons who decide that all old thoughts and methods must therefore be abandoned.

Thus does each generation seek to crystallize its "unique" place in the flow of history. Thus every age condemns itself to repeat the follies and to have the troubles of the past, simply because it is too proud and too impatient to "read the minutes of the last meeting".

Our generation thinks it has discovered counselling, forgetful of the fact that Moses, a shepherd-prophet, set up a counseling clinic in Israel centuries ago.

Our generation imagines it is the first to realize religion pretends to get where the social action is, forgetful of Hosea's tragic marriage and unmindful of Ezekiel who spoke of sitting among those who were the wretched sat.

In the nineteenth century John Calvin spent laborious hours with a vast amount of correspondence on what some would consider petty matters, but we think the multitude of details concerning our time is new with us.

There is much newness in this age of science, but most of it is external and material. And much that we like to think is new is not new, merely the old, intensified.

For example, our problem of international justice is different from the same problem in the time of Thucydides only in extent and force.

What is new, really new? Selfishness, lust, greed, cruelty: love, friendship, and self-sacrifice — are these new? Are sin, remorse, pardon, and reconciliation new? Are the desires of men and women for peace, for brotherhood, for "a house not made by human hands, eternal and in heaven" — are these desires new?

"The strength of the Bible," says Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, "has always been its appeal to the deep and abiding realm of man's basic experiences, for out of that realm the Bible came."

Well! This just could be a welcome, brand new insight for you.

Homosexuals Seek Place in Churches

By GEORGE CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A steady, often emotional conflict is welling in the churches over an increasing push by homosexuals to gain fuller acceptance in religious life, including admission to the ministry.

The Good News Movement, a conservative group in the United Methodist Church, described it as a "gathering storm, part of a country-wide effort to eliminate the stigma against homosexuality."

In its major denominations, both Protestant and Roman Catholic, "gays" groups have formed in recent years, insisting that persons of their sexual orientation be accorded equal status in church roles.

Most major church bodies have issued special studies as a result. Several denominations have deplored discrimination against homosexuals.

However, in line with the traditional Judeo-Christian position, the churches generally have barred acknowledged homosexuals from ordination and repudiated active homosexual practice.

It departs from "the structure of God's creation," said the Lutheran Church of America. "A grave transgression of the goals of human sexuality" and "consequently contrary to the will of God," say guidelines recently issued by Roman Catholic bishops.

On the other hand, a United Methodist society, in the council on youth ministry, offered a barrage of criticism with a recent statement that homosexuality is one of itself sympathomous with immorality and should not be a barrier to the ministry.

That viewpoint is a "grave new threat to the church," said the Good News group. Theologians would leave Methodism if it accepted acknowledged homosexuals as ministers.

The youth council urged through "dialogue of the spirit in a spirit of mutual respect," and added:

"We suggest that dealing openly and honestly with these issues in a magnitude never before attempted is absolutely basic to overcoming a variety of oppressions and dehumanizations produced by the United Methodist Church."

At a meeting in Chicago of the National Council of Churches, a co-operative organization of most major denominations, "gay" forces pressed for a declaration supporting full civil rights in employment for avowed homosexuals.

However, an expected effort to gain council membership was deferred by a network of independent congregations that has arisen especially to serve homosexuals, the Universal Fellowship of Metropolitan Community Churches.

It has about 23,000 members but encounters harsh, sometimes violent opposition, including arson-started fires that last year destroyed five of its churches.

So far, only one traditional denomination, the United Church of Christ, has ordained an acknowledged homosexual and this happened because of its system allowing local associations to set criteria for ordination.

The San Francisco association in 1972 ordained Rev. William Johnson, who now directs the San Francisco-based Council on Religion and Homosexuality.

Dignity, an organization seeking equal status for homosexuals in Roman Catholicism, reported units in 21 dioceses. It maintained that "gays can express their sexuality in a manner that is consistent with Christ's teaching."

Rev. Richard McCormick, a Catholic moral theologian at Georgetown University, made a distinction between those who overtly practise their homosexuality and those who restrain an inclination for it.

The condition itself is not always freely chosen, he said. But the church should admit to the priesthood those who are homosexual only by inclination and refrain from sexual activity.

Candy Month Means Calories

Do we really need a candy month? A few weeks ago I told you about candy month and the fact that candy manufacturers thought candy for breakfast is a great idea.

I was upset and apparently other people were too.

The Ontario Milk Marketing Board and Canadian Dairies are already overweight. We currently consume 102 pounds of sugar each annually in addition to 19 pounds of candy. It has been well-documented that candy causes tooth cavities that even brushing after every meal won't prevent. And noted doctors — relate sugar to an infinite number of diseases — diabetes, hypoglycemia, kidney stones, intestinal cancer, hormone disorders and heart disease.

The Ontario Milk Marketing Board, in its Nutrition Notes, goes on to criticize sugared cereals, quoting Consumer Reports which found only three of the 44 leading breakfast foods able to support life. It suggests that fortified cereals are not nutritionally useful; according to Nutrition Notes "the nutrients are not in a form that the human body uses." The good stuff is in the milk, it says.

All of this, is in the end, a pitch — legitimate, I think — by the milk marketers to get more people drinking milk and leaving behind sweet and non-nutritional foods and drinks.

The message is: milk is better for you; drink it.

And I'm sure we all would — if we could afford it.

* * *

Before dairy farmers begin getting a bit cross with me, here's the point of the jibe: somewhere between them and us there's a lot of money being made on milk. Ontario's minister of agriculture and food, William Stewart, says this:

Milk, a basic food necessary to good health and nutrition, has undergone several price increases in recent months. The increases have been caused by factors at every level from producer to processor to distributor to retailer. And, of course, the federal government has withdrawn its consumer milk subsidy.

Recent milk price increases at the producer level, incidentally, have been reviewed by the Milk Commission of Ontario and upheld. And the Consumers' Association of Canada has supported these increases. What happens to milk when it leaves the farm? The Milk Commission is going to find out. It will investigate pricing practices and margins between processors, distributors and retailers of milk, look at how these factors vary from company to company, look at how these practices vary in different regions of the province and compare retail margins with those in other provinces.

Belleville residents will have a special interest in the Milk Commission's activities: Robin Jeffrey was appointed consumer representative to the commission in November.

Keith Priest, horticulturalist with the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food suggests that even modern, heated basements can be suitably converted for vegetable storage. All you need is insulation and partitioning which allow you to control the temperature and humidity of your root cellar. Pick a corner of the basement, with a window, for a storage area.

Thirty-five to 40 square feet of area should be plenty; an area six by six or five by eight, for example.

Two walls to enclose the corner should be constructed of 2 x 4 inch studs with insulation between sheathing on either side. If the insulation you choose includes a vapor barrier, it should face the outside of the stud walls. Don't forget to insulate the ceiling!

If your basement does not have a cement floor, pour one for this area. The door into the root cellar should be well insulated and tight fitting.

Screening and covering the window, and a thermometer will complete the storage centre.

To control temperature, simply open and shut the window. To control humidity, just splash water on the cement floor to keep it damp.

Angela Forster, PSI Student

Since 1973, Angela Forster has been a member of the Institute of Applied Metaphysics. And since then, she says, her life has taken on new meaning.

One of a small group of students in Belleville, Mrs. Forster is studying techniques of mind expansion taught by instructors from the PSI Centre near Madoc. She meets weekly with a few other students of various ages and backgrounds.

"I'm a sceptical person," says Mrs. Forster, "but I'm curious too, and not afraid to ask questions.

"The people I saw at the Open House at Queen Elizabeth Public School two years ago projected such vitality. I hoped might rub off. So I decided to find out more about them."

Mrs. Forster has taken two 16-week courses (at $50 each) so far, and is happy about her "new" self.

What the proponents of applied metaphysics teach are the methods of achieving a balance between the physical and metaphysical aspects of human nature. Their term for the latter aspect is "psi", referring to what others might call the soul or spirit of man.

By developing the infinite potential of the psi, students achive better self-awareness, greater mental and emotional sensitivity, and a more comprehensive understanding of their place in the universe, according to institute instructors.

What all this means to students like Angela Forster is that now she is learning to eliminate anxiety and fear, and is more relaxed and content than ever before.

"I'm learning to focus my energies on things that can be done instead of worrying about things I can't change," she says.

The Institute of Applied Metaphysics was until recently called the Bartonian Metaphysical Society, and had a small centre on the foothridge lane in Belleville. Now its member are assuming the facilities at the Madoc centre, so that students like Mrs. Forster can take "total immersion" courses there.

Although she is enthusiastic about how her life has improved, Mrs. Forster says that PSI Centre students aren't missionaries using "hard sell".

"If you're already satisfied with your life, why change?" she says. "But for me, it's been tremendous."

Psychiatrists Welcome Women's Liberation

By MARSHA DUBROW

NEW YORK (Reuter) — Psychiatrists participating in a country-wide poll were overwhelmingly believe that achieving the goals of women's liberation would be beneficial to society.

Some 71 per cent of the psychiatrists polled agreed the general status of women as passive and nurturant "is not a 'natural' state, but a social stereotype." Some 26 per cent disagreed and the rest offered no opinion.

One of every six United States psychiatrists was polled in the survey by the Roche Laboratories, a division of the Hoffmann-La Roche Pharmaceutical Co.

Some 73 per cent of the doctors conceded that "most psychiatrists have a stereotype of the 'normal healthy male' role and the 'normal healthy female role.'"

And 66 per cent said they believe psychiatrists, knowingly or unknowingly, attempt to influence their patients to adjust to the doctors' own stereotypes.

The psychiatrists surveyed believed that "if the goals of the women's liberation movement were to be achieved, the effects on society would be: beneficial—58.3 per cent, detrimental—20.2 per cent, neither—11.6 per cent."

One of the doctors, whose comments were published with the report, said: "The women's liberation movement only threatens those men who have unclear sexual identities. Women's assertiveness will certainly not endanger men who have clear sexual identities and well-defined egos."

The report said other comments on the effect of a liberated society ranged from "desirable" to "disastrous."

Psychiatrists generally thought to be a conservative mainstay of society, said the tendency of the courts to award over-all custody to the mother should be discontinued and that paternity leave from their jobs should be granted for new fathers.

"Children are not prizes or awards of a divorce," one doctor commented. "Their custody belongs to whichever parent could and would provide the child with the most appropriate and meaningful environment."

However, another doctor said, "if I had custody after a divorce, I'd have to find a woman to take care of my children."

Fifty-seven per cent of the doctors approved of adoptions by single women, but 73 per cent disapproved of female homosexual couples adopting a child.

One doctor commented, "a child needs male and female parental figures to stimulate his own gender identification and maturation."

But another psychiatrist said that adoption by a homosexual couple, if a heterosexual couple could not be found, might be more preferable to an o-phanage or a with temporary foster home.

Tired of Darning Socks, She Needs Ann's Advice

Dear Ann Landers: I am a newlywed who is too embarrassed to discuss my problem with anyone who knows me. I hope you will reply and not mention the town I live in.

Problem: My husband's toenails are so long and sharp that I spend hours darning his new socks. He wears them only twice or three times and the toenails cut right through.

At night he scratches my legs to pieces. I used to wear pantyhose to bed but he ruined so many pairs by snagging them that I quit. Do you please tell me how to get my guy to trim his dainty toenails? He says they don't bother him and that I should get off his back.—Clawed In Tennessee

Dear Clawed: You can catch more flies with honey than with vinegar. Buy a little pedicure set and offer to take care of your husband's toenails personally. We find the safest way is to soak the feet and nails in warm water, foot massage and nail cutting clipping trimming. Give your bleeding ankles and torn socks.

Dear Ann Landers: My grandchildren range from three to eight years of age. This last birthday was such a hassle I'm still not over it. I bought the three children the same gift with slight differences such as color and size. They bought the gift for their mothers all three wanted the same gift.

I told my daughter-in-law her children should be taught that a gift is a gift and they should be grateful for what they receive. She informed me in blunt terms, and I quote: "If you can't select a different gift for each child, based on age, sex and personality, then please give them all the same thing and prevent a lot of fighting."

Please help us ignorant, misguided grandparents everywhere. Tell us if gifts presented on the same day should be also different and not identical.—Bewildered In Memphis

Dear Bea: Generally speaking, the age, sex and interest of each child should be considered when selecting a gift. Your grandchildren, however, seem extremely competitive—so, unless you can get some flak from for a lovely what-for. This should not you a new friend.

Holy Land Travelogue

Last month I joined a tour to the Holy Land organized by the United Church of Canada. Twenty people were going from our own church, and they coaxed me. In spite of my overloaded desk, I resisted very little, since I have wanted to go there some time, and especially after reading Malcolm Muggeridge's book "Jesus Rediscovered".

Somebody said, "Why on earth do they call it the Holy Land?"—and I couldn't help taking myself the same question, considering the wars and rumors of wars which involve it constantly.

But it is Holy Land — to more than one religion. Jerusalem is the centre of Jewry and for thousands of years has been the religious capital of Israel. It is also Holy City to the Muslims, who have an ornate and colorful mosque there. To the Christians, I think, it is holiest of all.

It was a 10-day trip and it should have been more like 10 weeks, there was so much to see. For me there were high spots that carried a strong impact.

Israel is full of hillsides and Bethlehem is no exception. Many stables and many hillsides and shepherds were created by literally digging out the earth and rocks from the side of a hill.

Animals were kept in stables, and the Bethlehem Inn was built onto the cave structure where the animals lived. We were shown a part of the mosaic on the inn floor, two feet below the floor on which we stood. Jesus was born in one part of the stable-cave; Mary carried him over to the manger where the food of the animals would give warmth to the baby. Mary had to spent four days in Jerusalem. I defy anyone not to be touched by visits to the fortress where the same Jesus was later imprisoned, scourged by the soldiers and crowned with a crown of thorns. In the same stone-walled and stone-floored room, there was enough room for the small group sat on benches on both sides of this path — still within the fortress — and sang, "Were you there when they crucified my Lord?"

We had communion in The Garden of The Tomb. This is the spot unearthed by General Gordon of Khartoum in 1882. It was a lovely garden outside the walls of the old Jerusalem, and near Herod's Gate. The garden was laid out in uneven terraces — because the whole terrain is hilly — and there were places for chairs to be set out in rows.

On one far sheer wall of rock, there was a hole large enough for a person, somewhat stooped over, to enter the room which may accept as "the tomb! Inside there is a long slab of rough stone about the measurements of a single bed. It looked a lot cold to me—for anybody's body! And then I recalled the words, "He seek ye the living among the dead?"

I emerged into the garden, envisioned Christ revealing himself to the weeping Mary and her enraptured, "Rabboni!"

U of T Women Do Earn Less

TORONTO (CP) — More than three times as many women as men earn less than $10,000 in the groups of clerks, programmers, laboratory technicians and administrative assistants employed by the University of Toronto, says a preliminary report of the study g oup on the status of non-academic women at the university.

The report, released in a recent issue of the University of Toronto Bulletin, says that in 10 groups employing less than 10,000, there are 352 women and 93 men. In seven groups earning more than $10,000, there are 61 women and 104 men, the report says.

It says in the laboratory technician 4 category, no woman is above the mid-point of salary range but 30 per cent of the men are above it.

"A comparison of educational qualifications or of years of experience does not justify this disparity," the report says.

It urges greater emphasis must be given to the concept of remuneration on the basis of value of work performed, rather than nature of work when assigning positions to salary ranges.

In another professions and occupations dominated by women, the work done seems to be undervalued when compared with those dominated by men which require similar degrees of training, the report says.

Nurses May Bring Reform To Trade Union Movement

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's nurses could play a major role in bringing needed reform to the trade union movement, Sylva Gelber, director of the federal women's bureau, said Thursday.

In the last six years, the nurses have progressed from "looking upon themselves as a professional group" to a highly sophisticated trade union, she said.

The more than 100,000 nurses have learned the value of trade unionism and thus may be the "proper body to bring some new views" to the Canadian labor movement.

The women's bureau is an agency of the labor department and collects information on the position of women in the work force.

Miss Gelber told the annual meeting of the Canadian Nurses' Association that there are deficiencies in the collective bargaining system and they affect nurses "probably more than most unions."

Nurses are responsible for the health care and maintenance systems without which none of us can survive." But in a labor dispute, nurses face the dilemma of withholding this service.

Miss Gelber said in a later interview the main reform is to find a way to keep union democratic while improving working conditions through withdrawal of services if necessary.

The principles and practices of the labor movement have been established by men and the nurses' experience will bring different ideas "not because they are wiser but because they are women."

The nurses may also represent "the first step in a greater move by professionals into trade unions."

The Experts Say

Cacti Culture Makes Good Hobby

BURNABY, B.C. (CP) — Grace Rollerson, who edits a publication on cacti and succulents which is distributed throughout Canada and the United States, considers her job a hobby, not a business.

"There have been a lot of dumb-dumb articles written about cactus and now we have a lot of myths that aren't really true," she said.

One myth she doesn't like is that the secret of desert survival is cutting into a cactus for a drink.

"You don't go around cutting into every blinking cactus to find water. For one thing, the liquid would be too thick and bitter to drink. You could suck on a piece of cactus to keep your mouth moist, but that's about all."

Another misconception is that cacti only grow in deserts, which leads people to plant them in sand.

"Some of them come from tropical South American forests," she said. "Often the cactus which grows in the desert is not growing in shifting sand, as the novice might think. It grows in soil that is hard and gravelly."

Mrs. Rollerson also doesn't like the popular advice not to water a cactus more than once or twice a month, then applying fertilizer.

Mrs. Rollerson said people with limited space, such as a balcony, can grow cactus and have something in bloom all the time.

She said cacti and succulents are related closely, with cacti being part of the broader family of succulents.

Her advice for someone starting to grow cacti is to find out where the species originated and what the climate was like, so the plant can be treated accordingly.

She said there are unnamed plants you get in some stores that are labelled as being inaccurate information.

"It's best to buy from someone who knows the plant and can tell you what it is for it."

If prospective growers are considering buying plants from the local supermarket, she advises making sure the plants are fresh and haven't been pet in dark corners or under shelves.

For the adventurous who want to try growing on a larger scale, Mrs. Rollerson suggests plant stands equipped with fluorescent lights, which can be placed anywhere in the home. She said cacti respond well to artificial light placed about a foot from the plants.

French Working Women: Low Pay, Little Status

By JOHN VINOCUR

PARIS (AP) — Lucie Jacobs has a university degree, fluency in Russian and English and a male co-worker whose qualifications are less and whose salary is about $7,000 a year higher.

When she was told that research surveys showed that differences between men's and women's incomes were less in France than anywhere else in the Common Market she burst out laughing.

"Those statistics don't help me much," said Mme. Lacroix, who works for a firm exporting floor tiles.

"If I were a man I would have more responsibility. As it is, I'm a glorified executive secretary. I write letters, but I type other people's too. If I were a man I would have to. If I were a man I would be left on my own more, would have more contact with the clients.

"No matter how well I know the business, and I've been in on all my firm's significant deals, the bosses seem to think people in the international business wouldn't take a woman seriously."

The statistics that Mme. Lacroix—not her real name—thinks are a bit rosy to accurate nonetheless, says women are concentrated in secretary of state for women's affairs, a cabinet-level post created by President Valery Giscard d'Estaing.

She said the hourly salary difference for men and women factory workers in France is only about four per cent in the men's favor, he gap was greater in a richer country like Germany but cause France had a tradition of strong unions going back to the 1936 middle Germany's federal system permitted greater salary spreads.

Mme. Giroud added that the statistics are no great reason for cheer. Women, she noted, were always given the job equivalent of "cleaning up" them the least money.

"And at higher levels there's a great difference in salaries.

The National Institute for Demographic Studies reported that French men's salaries were 15 per cent greater than women's in the 20-to-24 age group and a per cent greater in the 30-to-34 group, 45 per cent in the 40-to-44 group and 65 per cent in the group over 45.

Beyond the factory level, there were marked salary differences for essentially the same jobs.

Instead of ministry statistics from the last available year, the Institute that made engineers had an average yearly salary equivalent to $10,800, while secretaries and typists earning $8,400. The difference was twice as great among men and women in administrative positions.

Jacques P-ench law gives women the right to equal pay. But in spite of the drive for equalities, Mme. Giroud said there is not currently a single case before a court involving a woman suing to have her salary brought up to men's level.

"Mostly I don't care now," said Nathalie de Granville, an executive secretary for a group of management consultants. "I knew I'm blocked where I am just as I know I'm smarter than three-quarters of the guys here. . . here."

Labor Ministry figures show that the disparity in the number of French men and women who run businesses is not great, about 1.3 million men to 750,000 women. But the ministry acknowledged that most of the women seem to be running boutiques or food stores.

Mme. Giroud, publisher of the weekly news magazine L'Express before she went into the government, said that with the presence of four women at cabinet-level posts in the Giscard government there has been positive pressure in the status of women over the last six months.

"To begin and the male-women relations are rather better now," she said. "Men and women like each other. There's not the noticeable separation that you have in the Anglo-Saxon tradition. I also feel there's an effort being made by men, particularly younger men."

This Switchboard Operator Loses Job Over Politics

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — Margaret Dowdall, president of the Sudbury Progressive Conservative Party of Canada, says senior governments from time to time use political activity by their female employees.

Mrs. Dowdall, a widowed mother of two, was elected last April and late last year was told she could no longer be a switchboard operator with the ministry of environment.

She said she was told her position was contrary to existing civil service policy.

Mrs. Dowdall said she would give up her party position if offered a more responsible job and was refused.

Her employment contract expired Dec. 31 and was not renewed.

In December, Mrs. Dowdall went to another government department and was told she would not be accepted as a switchboard operator.

She said she was told by someone she was treated unkindly in the first case and is not sure she understand the demands in the second.

More Doctors Needed To Care for Newborns'

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada needs five times as many medical specialists to handle new-to care for premature babies," says Dr. Alan Murdock, chief of the intensive care unit for newborn babies at the Children's Hospital of Eastern Ontario.

While the Ontario government moved recently to discourage foreign doctors immigrating to the province, the neo-natal field is short of manpower, he said. The main problem is that few students go into neo-natal medicine.

For most cases involving breathing in oxygen or drinking milk are as easy as blinking an eye.

But for the premature infant, weighing as little as 1½ pounds, even the most basic functions are a struggle. As the newborn ward of the Children's Hospital the most modern equipment available is used to help 16 tiny bodies at alive.

Oxygen is fed mechanically into their incubators to assist breathing. Tubes pipe milk down their throats.

Tubes help clear clogged bronchial passages. A mass of machinery monitors their heartbeat, respiratory rate and patterns, body temperature and blood pressure.

The babies are watched every minute of every day they spend in the intensive care unit by specialists in neo-natology—newborn medicine—and by 25 nurses for sudden changes in their condition.

"One in four of these sick children dies," said Dr. Murdock. That makes the work tiring and discouraging for the doctors and nurses who spend their days with little patients so well.

"I get angry if we lose a baby I feel we shouldn't have lost. It's tough—hard on the nurses."

The pressure is increased by the lack of graduate degrees in the field. The are only 20 trained neo-natologists across Canada.

"We're 140 neo-natologists short in Canada now, according to manpower studies," said Dr. Murdock. "Most of us feel we need more help."

Whether the need for neo-natologists is filled depends on how the provinces organize their health services.

In a report published jointly by the Canadian Obstetricians and Gynecologists and the Canadian Pediatric Society the number of regional neo-natal specialists mentioned necessary is based on the number of births in each area. That figure stands at once for every 2,500 deliveries.

In the Ottawa area alone there are about 12,000 babies born every year. Once in 10 of these is estimated to be a high-risk birth.

Dr. Murdock said it will take 25 years to reach the recommended quota of specialists. "We are not very successful encouraging medical students to specialize in neo-natal medicine," he said. Only one or two a year are graduating across Canada.

That training includes six to eight years in medical school, plus two years in pediatrics and a minimum three two years in special neo-natal training. There are several centres across Canada where this training is given, adequate to meet the demand, he said.

Intensive care for the premature infant is expensive. It cost $250 to $300 a day or an estimated $3,000 to $4,000 for each baby's stay.

Dr. Murdock asks, rhetorically, "Can we afford that standard of care?"

Hospitals were being forced by tight budgets to decide just how much to spend on the sick newborn. They were being forced to make a choice between basic scientific research and clinical study, including neonatology, because of cuts in government financing.

With demographic birthrate, people are questioning the worth of expensive equipment and whether it is being used to the fullest, Murdock said he hopes firm recommendations will come within a year from a health and welfare department study about such funding and training.

"It's too early to make solid accusations that we are good at the care we do," he said. The study should produce a model program of facilities to make the field more attractive to doctors, since most hospitals agree that pediatrics is the most difficult area of medicine.

It is also one of the most rewarding. About 90 per cent of the babies at the Ottawa neo-natal unit will grow up to South wasn't proud of his three notrump call, but he had that allergy about being shut out by a preemptive bid. In any event the game was rubber bridge, the hour late and South wanted to get home.

If West opened a heart, South would almost surely have found himself left with an unfinished rubber, but West opened his fourth best club and South counted quickly to nine tricks.

He went right up with dummy's ace of clubs. He needed two ehrtes to dummy and he could not afford a heart shift.

He led a spade at trick two. East ducked and South was in with the king. He led out high diamonds. The queen might drop but South didn't really care. He needed just four diamond tricks and they were certain.

West took his queen of diamonds and shifted to a heart but his bus had left the station. South won with dummy's king, led dummy's last spade toward his own hand and departed for a well-earned night's sleep with nine tricks.

Lazy Eye Result Of Faulty Muscle

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Our three-year-old granddaughter has a "lazy eye." Is this a crossed eye, or strabismus? Her family doctor, after keeping watch over her for a year and a half, has now decided on surgery. They have tried glasses.

The parents are afraid of surgery. How can we be sure it is necessary? They are anxious to do the right thing. Maybe you can help us understand it all better.—Mrs. F. L.

The important thing now is that the parents are doing something about your granddaughter's condition. One of the tragic misunderstandings about crossed eye is that it will right itself without treatment. It will not.

Now, as to your granddaughter's case. You have a minor misunderstanding of the terminology. "Lazy eye" can result from strabismus, or crossed eye. The problem begins when the eye muscles (six in each eye) cannot co-ordinate their activity. The result is that one eye acts more or less independently of the other.

Careful examination is required to determine just which muscles in which eye are causing the problem. It is to adjust muscle imbalance that methods such as covering of the "good eye" to make the "lazy eye" work harder are used.

Two to five per cent of all children develop a lazy eye. Fortunately, about 95 per cent of them can be treated successfully. But if treatment is not begun soon enough, vision in the defective eye will deteriorate rapidly. The longer the wait for definite diagnosis, the smaller the chance for successful corrective treatment. By early I mean as soon as possible, at least before the child is four.

The parents seem to be right on schedule in your granddaughter's case.

Conservative measures usually correct things. The patch therapy is one of the most common treatments, but the patch must be worn at all times during the day. Even a brief period of not wearing it may cancel out the good done in hours of use.

Corrective lenses often bring results. Was the eye-patch therapy tried in your granddaughter's case?

If conservative measures show no results, then surgery remains as the only alternative. The operation, not a difficult one for an experienced eye surgeon, involves correction of one or more of the faulty muscles.

Before surgery, a careful study is made to determine which of the muscles are too weak, or which too strong. Corrective surgery of this kind is successful in about 90 per cent of the cases.

The important point for you and for the parents to remember in making your decision is that crossed eye cannot be corrected later in life. Immediate attention is needed, whether it be surgery, a careful therapeutic or surgical.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Could you please state what the repercussions would be for a hypoglycemia patient who was involved in an accident and received glucose intravenously as an emergency measure prior to arrival at the hospital. This, of course, would pertain to someone who has the disease but does not carry such information on his person, or who might have the disease and not know of it.—T.V.

In the hypothetical circumstances you mention, glucose would probably be given in a salt solution to avoid shock or dehydration—a rather routine emergency precaution.

It would have no deleterious effect, whether the victim had hypoglycemia or didn't. There would be no lasting repercussion.

Highway A Hazard

A six-vehicle pileup Friday on Highway 2 near CFB Trenton caused about $4,5000 damage to the vehicles involved.

No one was seriously injured in the mishap, although three people received cuts and bruises. They were Arthur Tracy, driver of one car, Thelma Tracy, both of Bayview Trailer Park in Trenton and a Thunder Bay resident, Donald Cardinal.

The driver of the other five vehicles were Gregory McDonough, of Toronto, Byron Manion of Toronto, Leonard Owen, of Weston, Michael Forbes of Trenton and Napanee resident, Diana Bartlett.

The Belleville detachement of the Ontario Provincial Police said the accident occurred about 11:10 a.m. under slippery road and blowing snow conditions. All vehicles were westbound on Highway 2, the OPP spokesman said.

The mishap occurred just three hours after a three-vehicle pile-up in the same area, a half-mile west of the six-car incident.

Cold Spell Expected to Continue

Northerly winds of 15 to 20 m.p.h. continue to keep temperatures below normal in the aftermath of a three-day storm that crippled the city Thursday and Friday.

City work crews were called out early Thursday and for the first time since the storm began were called off the streets Friday night about 11 p.m. A city spokesman said crews will be back at work today clearing drifting snow on city streets.

The storm, which began Wednesday about 9 p.m., dropped more than 12 inches of snow on Belleville. Trenton received about eight inches and Bancroft about 14 inches. The storm was accompanied by high winds which caused severe drifting in most areas of the county.

The storm, described as the worst Ontario has seen in the month of April, tapered off Friday. City traffic was further complicated when city buses went on strike at noon.

A spokesman from CFB Trenton weather station said Trenton received a record eight inches of snow in a five hour period for the month of April. The spokesman said the storm was made more severe because people did not expect it.

Belleville OPP report Highway 401 is snow covered with ice patches. Drifting snow is causing poor visibility and police are advising caution on highways.

Weathermen are predicting Saturday will be mostly cloudy with a few flurries. Sunday promises to be mainly sunny and cold.

No Talks Scheduled To End Transit Strike

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

The city transit strike moves into its second day today leaving passengers pondering other ways of getting about the city.

Since talks broke down Thursday night, there has been no negotiation between transit commission employees and management.

Marylea Burtt, commission chairman, said, "she will not negotiate until the men have returned to work."

In a move to cut costs during the strike, Mrs. Burtt said the commission has laid off one of three office employees at the commission's Coleman St. office and garage.

"We're slowing the operation down," said Mrs. Burtt. "There's really nothing for the staff to do."

Mrs. Burtt said the commission is also investigating its obligation to process two weeks pay owing to the men.

"I'm checking into whether we have to pay the men for the last two weeks before they come back from the strike," she said.

At the last bargaining session, the two sides were 15 cents apart on wages — a key issue in the dispute.

Drivers are asking for a one dollar-an-hour increase in a one-year contract while the transit commission has offered a 75-cent-an-hour increase immediately and a further 15 cents an hour in June.

Both sides have remained adamant they will not compromise any further.

Employees were also demanding modifications to present over time regulations, four weeks holiday after 12 years and a drug plan.

All were rejected by the commission, said Lawrence St. Pierre, chief union negotiator.

Pickets Halt Buses

Members of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Transport and General Workers brought Belleville Transit Commission buses to a halt Friday, striking in support of one-dollar-an-hour wage increase. Negotiations broke down Thursday when the commission considered 85 cents the maximum raise allowable. Since the strike was called Friday noon, the commission has laid off one junior office secretary.

Free Land Sought

Belleville General Hospital will ask city council to consider free surrender of two sections of city-owned property required to complete negotiations for its new parking lot.

The city is asking $2,500 for sale of a section of Bayview Park and $7,000 for part of the Bay Dr. street allowance. Both land parcels are required for the planned 230-car lot on BGH's eastern perimeter.

A report before the board Friday noted BGH originally had donated the land to the city.

First Visit

Toni Westerhof, a Grade 10 student at Centennial Secondary School, saw her great-grandmother for the first time during the 18-day Mediterranean cruise sponsored by the Hastings County Board of Education.

Family Ties Strengthened Following Student Cruise

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

Toni Westerhof, a Grade 10 student at Centennial Secondary School, met her 86-year-old great — grandmother for the first time. The two parted 18 hours later with tears.

The meeting took place at Roden, Holland, a small community about a three-hour drive from Amsterdam. It was one of the highlights of the 18-day Mediterranean cruise in which Toni, along with 170 students, visited some of the oldest and strife-torn countries in the world.

The students left Ottawa March 7 and arrived in Amsterdam for a three-day visit before flying to Yugoslavia where they launched their Mediterranean cruise.

Toni, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Westerhof, RR 2, Belleville, spent a day with her fellow students then met a Canadian aunt and uncle, who were also visiting Amsterdam at the same time. They travelled to the great-grandmother's home at Roden.

"The first thing she wanted to know was whether I liked Holland," said Toni, who was making her first visit to Holland, where both her mother and father were born. They stayed almost a day.

Toni's uncle translated for the great-grandmother, who was seeing her first Canadian-born grandchild. Toni had two brothers and two sisters. The language problem proved small as the family reminisced tried to give Toni a flavor of the country and family history.

"Beppa (great-grandmother) gave me an antique doll that has been in the family for many years," explained Toni, who took several pictures of her great-grandmother during the visit. 'Even though we hadn't known each other long we cried when it was time for me to go," she added.

Toni returned to Amsterdam and joined the other students on the journey. "Because of the visit I also saw a great deal of the countryside in Holland," explained 16-year-old Toni.

The students flew to Yugoslavia for a two-day stay before the cruise began. Once started, they visited Israel, Lebanon and Egypt. They later travelled to Greece and Turkey. They returned to Holland before flying back to Canada March 27.

The cruise was organized by the Hastings County Board of Education under the direction of Lloyd Jones.

Young Praises Hospital Effort

A volunteer environmental and persistent critic of Belleville General Hospital Friday was again before the institutions board of governors.

But this time Clarence Young had nothing but praise for the hospital.

"I'm afraid I'm going to lose my image," quipped Mr. Young as he went before the board to congratulate the administration on clearing up drainage problems which — he had claimed — were polluting the nearby Bay of Quinte shoreline.

"I think you deserve a lot of credit," said Mr. Young.

His words won him a round of applause from board members.

OMB Hearing Rejects Nursing Home Plan

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — The Ontario Municipal Board, at a hearing in Picton this week, rejected plans for a proposed addition to an Ontario St. nursing home operated by Kent Fallis.

The hearing was conducted following a neighborhood appeal against the local committee of adjustment's decision to allow the expansion.

If the $250,000 addition had been approved for Kentwood Nursing Homes Ltd. Mr. Fallis would have been permitted to build on land adjacent to the facility he now owns.

The nursing home has 31 patients referred from the Kingston Psychiatric Hospital and the proposed addition would have provided accommodations for 17 more.

A town bylaw permits development of 25 per cent of land for housing. Mr. Fallis told the hearing the proposed expansion would bring density to 41.25 per cent of the property.

Neighbors living close to the nursing home objected to the expansion.

Picton lawyer William Lane, acting for the neighbors, observed town council made the original error when the nursing home was permitted in the first place.

He described it as a nonconforming use of the property and stressed the variance of land being used for the new addition would be major, not minor.

Bed Stay Declines

Lenght of hospital stay shortened in February compared to the same month last year at Belleville General Hospital.

Average length of stay for patients was 8.78 days, medical director Dr. Reginald Anderson, told the hospital board Friday.

This compared with 9.94 for February last year and 10.33 days which was the yearly average in 1974.

BGH Budget Increased

Belleville General Hospital has received slightly more than it asked from the Ontario health ministry for its 1975 budget.

The ministry has approved an operating budget of $12,868,634. This is about $15,500 more than BGH had requested late last year in its budget submissions.

Bulk of the budget is assigned to salaries and wages for the hospital — which employs about 1,000. These are estimated to cost $9.8 million, said BGH financial controller John Campbell.

Out-patient costs are estimated at $1,251,000, while $878,800 — are assigned for the Queen's Self Care Unit.

Medical and surgical supplies are estimated at $465,900 and drugs at $300,700.

City Cabs Booming

Belleville's two taxi companies are running full-till today as a result of the day-old transit strike and the aftermath of a three-day storm.

A spokesman for both companies, Checker Radio Taxi and Central Taxi leasing and sales (Belleville Ltd.; said a fleet of between 25 and 40 cabs are working today to handle the calls. He said 30 cabs would handle a normal day.

He said the taxis have been running only 10 to 15 minutes behind schedule. Most of the business has been shoppers for the Quinte Mall and the downtown area.

The spokesman said the biggest demand came Friday but that business is starting to return to normal late Saturday. The city's bus service ground to halt noon Friday as 75 employees of the transit commission walked off their jobs demanding higher pay.

Most City Residents See Need for Transit Fare Increase

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Belleville's Transit commission has become a street corner topic of conversation with fares increasing and the Friday walkout of drivers and mechanics.

Last week, the commission announced, all fares, with the exception of children's rates, would increase by five cents and that passengers would be required to have the exact change with them before getting on the bus.

Marylea Burtt, chairman of the commission, explained that the city's transit system was suffering increasing annual operating losses and that fare increase are necessary to stem these losses.

Union negotiations broke down this week with the 22 member union local striking for higher wages.

Following are comments from six city residents illustrating their feelings concerning the exact fare and fare increases.

DEL LORIMER

Del Lorimer, a resident of 245 Herchimer, says he's not convinced the commission is losing money and that the fare shouldn't be increased.

"I think exact fare is foolish," said Mr. Lorimer.

"If the city is going to run a busservice, drivers making than e for the customers should be part of that service," he said.

PAT McKAY

"Everything else is going up and nickel isn't really that bad," said Pat McKay.

"Most people have the change in their pocket so exact fare shouldn't be much of a problem."

"If they don't have the change it's easy enough to go into a store and get the change before the bus arrives," she said.

RICK SEXSMITH

"A fare increase at this time is valid . . . and in keeping with increasin costs in other sectors of the community," said Rick Sexsmith.

"Exact fare should not be a regulation," he said. "Any business must provide the service to the customer of making change and the bus should be no different."

ROSEMARY CORBY

Loyalist College graduate Rosemary Cory says 30 cents is "okay and well worth it."

"I think drivers should make change for passengers," she said. "It's not always possible to have the right change in your pocket when you get on the bus."

BILL FYKE

The rate increase will boost revenues and that's good, said Bill Fyke, a resident of Palmer Rd.

"I don't mind having to have the right change and I think others will get used to it."

BONNIE MARTIN

An employee of the Quinte Mall, Miss Bonnie Martin must take the bus to and from work. She says "five cents isn't that much."

Hospital Classes Debated

Evolution of a Queen's University — linked teaching project for medical students in Belleville is still up for discussion.

The scheme, aimed at giving medical students more on-the-job knowledge of community medicine outside a university environment, has been discussed between Queen's and Belleville General Hospital for about a year.

University proposals earlier this year prompted counter suggestions from BGH medical staff.

Philip Rickard, BGH executive director, told the hospital board Friday that yet another meeting a special liason committee — involving Queen's and hospital spokesmen — now is set for May 28.

Jets Hit End of Road

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Winnipeg Jets, like a tired fish on a hook, gave up their struggle Friday night, and were allowed themselves to be hauled out of the World Hockey Association playoff picture.

In the final period, the Jets were faced with having to win every one of their games to retain hope of sinking Hull on the offs and that ended Friday when they dropped a 7-4 loss to Toronto Toros.

"We had to win this one, then win this one, then win this one—it just got to be too much," said a tired Bobby Hull who again failed to score in his bid to overtake Phil Esposito's pro scoring record of 76 goals in a season.

"We got put behind the eight ball. If we hadn't had such a bad month in January it might have been different. It killed us. Everyone went into a bit of a lull."

In other WHA games Friday, Phoenix Roadrunners beat Minnesota Fighting Saints 3-1, Chicago Cougars defeated New England Whalers 5-3 and Edmonton Oilers beat Vancouver Blazers 9-3.

The loss to the Toros meant that the Jets, with two games remaining — tonight at Quebec and Sunday at home to San Diego—need a Toronto loss or victory for the wild-card playoff berths.

And Hull, who has gone scoreless since getting his 75th goal a week ago, has just the two games left in which to pass the record set four years ago in the National Hockey League by Esposito.

Hull admitted he has been under some pressure to break the scoring record.

"Whether you try to play it cool or not, there is excess pressure on you to break the record and it puts pressure not only on yourself but also on your teammates and teammates."

The Toros had no specific player shadowing Hull Friday night but they kept him in close check regardless and he was on the ice for six of the Toros' seven goals.

Peter Marin scored twice for the Toros and Gavin Kirk had four assists, including one on Frank Mahovlich's 37th goal of the season. Tom Simpson closed out the Toros scoring with his 32nd of the season.

The presence of Hull helped draw a record crowd of 14,316 to Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens.

"It really picks up a hockey team when you have a crowd of over 14,000 cheering for you," said coach Bobby Leiter after his Toros had outshot Winnipeg 33-26.

New England outshot Chicago 44-28 but couldn't put one behind Cougars goalie Dave Dryden until midway in the final period by which time Chicago already had scored its three goals.

The only goal Dryden gave up was to Tom Webster—his 39th of the season.

The largest crowd ever for a regular-season WHA game—17,322—showed up at St. Paul, Minn., where goals by Jim Watsamp and Don Borgeson accounted for the Fighting Saints.

At Edmonton, the Oilers scored three goals in the second period for a 4-1 lead and held on to beat the Blazers. Doug Barrie clinched the Edmonton win with a goal late in the third period.

Cinderella Story for Canucks

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Canucks are likely to wake up in the morning and pinch themselves to make sure it isn't all a dream.

What most people thought to be impossible came true Friday as Vancouver, for four years the contender only for last place, became a divisional champion.

Canucks defeated Minnesota North Stars 4-1, but got a lot more than two points from the victory. They are the champions of the National Hockey League's Conn Smythe Division and they're in the Stanley Cup playoffs for the first time.

In fact, their division championship gives them a bye into the second round of the playoffs.

"I just don't believe it; this is the greatest bunch of guys you could ever hope to play with," said Bobby Lalonde, the diminutive forward who has been there through some of the Canucks' lean years.

"I think we started to realize we could win our division around Christmas. Everybody conceded it to Chicago but these guys just didn't give up."

The scene in the Vancouver dressing room was hardly surprising. Champagne was flowing, people were getting thrown into showers and some of the interviews were rihald as the players got carried away during live radio broadcasts.

"I think we turned the whole thing around in Chicago when Ken Lockett came off the bench and won a game for us," forward Chris Oddleifson said.

Oddleifson was speaking of just one of the many crucial games the Canucks were in as they bounced in and out of first place in the last half of the season.

Lockett, an unknown player early in the year, spent much of the season on the bench watching Gary Smith do the majority of the Canucks' goaltending, but when the team needed Lockett he came through.

The backup netminder played in the Canucks' final four regular season games, replacing Smith who had groin problems.

Lockett's first outing in that stretch was a solid performance in a 3-3 tie against the Kings in Los Angeles. Then he came out to shut out California Golden Seals in back-to-back 7-0 and 3-0 games.

Friday, he faced only 10 shots, an NHL league record, and although he was beaten once, didn't seem to mind all that much.

Asked if he would like more work than just to shoto a game, Lockett said: "No way. That's just fine with me. If we can play that kind of hockey and hold them down like that we'll win the Stanley Cup."

Phil Maloney, the Vancouver general-manager coach, dripping from a forced run through the shower, agreed that Lockett's performance in Chicago a little more than a month ago had a lot to do with the championship.

"That's when we started to believe it," he said. "We knew then that we had a shot at the championship.

"We just kept trying to win our own games. We didn't worry about what anybody else was doing."

Garry Monahan, one of the players Maloney brought here after the season had started, summed up the feelings of the ecstatic Canucks.

"What more can you say," he said.

Canadiens Enter Playoffs Without Veteran Captain

MONTREAL (CP) — If Montreal Canadiens win the Stanley Cup this season, it appears likely they will do so without veteran centre and captain Henri Richard.

Richard, 36, in his 20th season with the National Hockey League team, has been out of action since mid-November because of a fractured left ankle.

A member of 11 Cup winners since he joined the Canadiens for the 1956 season, he was and today faces an uncertain future because of the injury.

He had x-rays taken Thursday and was told by Dr. Ted Percy to stay off skates for another 10 days.

Richard was full of optimism last Tuesday after going through his first full-scale scrimmage with the team since November. Richard had been optimistic enough to predict he would return to the lineup for the Wednesday night's game here against Pittsburgh Penguins.

But Richard's ankle was swollen again Wednesday, and he was ordered to report to the doctor again. While Richard has refused to admit it, the possibility exists that he will not be back this season.

"I was ready to play against Pittsburgh—I wanted to play," Richard said. "But then the ankle puffed up . . . I don't know."

The problem has nothing to do with the healing of the ankle bone. The fracture has healed, but apparently Richard suffered some ligament damage at the same time.

Today Richard is talking in terms of returning in time for the Stanley Cup final series. He refuses to speculate as to next season.

"I have to start by trying to finish this season and after that I'll think about next season."

Rangers Clinch Playoff Spot

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

No sooner had New York Rangers clinched a spot in the National Hockey League playoffs than they were talking confidently of their chances of winning the Stanley Cup.

"We're good enough to beat anybody, at any time, any where, under any conditions," said Derek Sanderson, who scored the winning goal which gave the Rangers a 3-2 victory over Atlanta Flames Friday night.

The triumph put both the Rangers and New York Islanders into the playoffs and eliminated Atlanta, which had been struggling to catch the two New York clubs.

In the night's other NHL game, Vancouver Canucks clinched the Smythe Division title by beating Minnesota North Stars 4-1. It's the first season the Canucks have qualified for the playoffs.

The Flames had 2-0 going into the third period but New York scored two quick goals, and Sanderson scored winner with 4:35 left in the game after taking a pass from Walt Tkaczuk, who outmucked a Flame defender to set up the goal.

New York coach Emile Francis was not making any bold predictions.

"I don't know what this club can do," Francis said. "This is the first time we've had them all back from the injuries. It's only in the last week or 10 days that everyone's been back. This is the longest time we've been since Nov. 15."

Over in the Flames dressing room, the players were subdued and philosophical.

"I've not much to say," coach Fred Creighton told reporters. "They were the winners, and we were the loser. It was as simple as that. We started off well, then made some mistakes we shouldn't have."

Tom Lysiak put the Flames on the scoreboard at 9:46 of the first period when he bolted his way past two Rangers and Ranger goaltender Gilles Villemure. Rey Comeau knocked in a rebound later in the period to give Atlanta a 2-0 lead.

Francis said he had his players before the third period that they needed a quick goal and Jean Ratelle responded with a power play goal after only 29 seconds of play. Rick Middleton tied the game less than two minutes later with a 20-foot slapshot past Atlanta's Phil Myre.

At Vancouver, the Canucks, after four years of finishing at or near the bottom of the standings, celebrated with champagne after winning a division title their first full season in the playoffs.

Weather Holds Back Two Clubs

Belleville Teams Lose First Round Matches

Despite the inclement and unprecedented weather, only two teams were unable to make their draws in the first round of the Belleville Pewees Shrine Hockey Tournament, Friday night.

Only Whitby and Cornwall were unable to get to the Friendly City for their scheduled contests. Whitby, however, will be on tap for the second round today. Cornwall is still feeling the effects of the storm and had to withdraw completely.

"We were lucky we only had a couple of teams who couldn't make it," said tournament convenor, Don Gavey. "I was already to cancel the entire thing, but after a few phone calls I found that all the teams wanted to play despite the weather."

Whitby was dropped from the fifth opening round game to the seventh to replace Cornwall. They automatically start into "B" action today. Their contest against London yesterday was defaulted 1-0. Belleville Dixie Lee Minor Peewees replaced Whitby in the fifth game of the first round.

The Dixie Lee's joined Rollins Lumber Major Pewees in representing the city. It is the first time ever that two Belleville clubs have been in the tournament.

Unfortunately, neither team faired well in their first games. Dixie Lee lost to Kingston 7-0 and Rollins dropped a 7-1 decision to a strong Burlington entry.

Belleville really didn't stand a chance against the strong, well-knitted attack of Burlington. Even though the score was a little lop-sided, the game wasn't. Burlington took control of the first period, but the two teams split control of the final two frames.

It took the locals nearly a period and a half to get into the swing of the contest. By that time Burlington was in front 4-0. Contrary to the score, Rollins got standout goaltending from Hugh Norther. The gutsy little goalie was faced with break-away situations on numerous occasions and three times held his ground to rob the oncoming opposition players.

Once, in the first period, he stopped Burlington's Scott Ward cold when the rusher broke in on him. Ward skated from the Belleville end shaking his head. Again in the third period Northey stopped Ward point blank.

Nevertheless, the aggressive forward from Burlington popped a pair of markers and drew two assist to help lead his team to victory. Mike Predo also had two goals and two assists with singles going to Brian Leslie, Dave Benson and Bryant Seaton.

Jamie Robertson replied for Belleville with Tony Parks and Tom Queenel picking up the assists.

Burlington, a replacement squad for Oshawa which is still in Ontario Minor Hockey Association playoffs, advances to the "A" round and both Belleville Rollins and Dixie Lee's go to "B".

In other first round action, pre-tournament favorite Peterborough beat Toronto Blues 4-2, Brampton edged Ottawa Knights 5-4, Trenton upset Niagara Falls 4-2, St. Catharines squeaked past Nepean 3-2 and Kingston Centre 70 surprised everyone with a 3-0 win over Windsor.

In "A" action today, Peterborough meets Brampton, Burlington plays Trenton, Kingston faces St. Catharines and London squares off against Kingston Centre 70. On the "B" side, Toronto goes against Ottawa, Belleville takes on Niagara Falls, Belleville Dixie Lee plays Nepean and Whitby is at Windsor.

Action begins at 7:30 a.m. this morning with tonight's final game scheduled for 9:15 p.m. Sunday, the "B" championship is played at 1.30 p.m. and the "A" game at 3 p.m. The Grand Championship game is Sunday at 5:30 p.m.

Despite the back bending efforts of goalie Hugh Northey and the checking efforts of defenseman Dave Slaughter (left) and Joe Guthrie (right) Burlington's Dave Benson still managed to put the puck through for a goal. It was the second of the game for his team and proved to be the winner as Belleville Rollins Major Peewees dropped their first round contest 7-1. The puck was stopped by Northey on this occasion, but rebided between his pads and he lost sight of it. Benson never got his stick on the puck after his original shot, but still it beat the Belleville goalie. Regardless of the score, Northey was a standout for the local squad. The Belleville Peewee Shrine Tourney continues all day today and tomorrow at the Memorial Arena.

Winning Logo Design Has Belleville Flavor

From Toronto Bureau of The Intelligencer

TORONTO — A Belleville native has designed a symbol for the Ontario Summer and Winter games which the government chose from 180 submissions in a province-wide competition.

Mrs. Vicki Lagodzki, 24, received $500 this week from Culture and Recreation Minister Robert Welch. Her winning logo involves a symbolic figure of youth reaching for two circles which form the initials OG — Ontario Games.

The design was chosen from entries of amateur and professional designers and will be used on flags, brochures and posters for the games which were held last year in Sudbury and Thunder Bay. London has been selected to stage this year's Summer Games.

Mrs. Lagodzki moved from Belleville to Ottawa where she attended secondary school. After studying fashion design at Sheridan College in Oakville, she returned to work for the federal industry, trade and commerce department.

City alderman George Zegouras was on hand at the Memorial Arena Friday night to officially open the 1975 Belleville Pewee Shrine Hockey Tournament. Zegouras dropped the puck between Belleville Rollins captain Tony Parks (right) and Burlington captain Rick Seaton. Other dignitaries at the opening ceremony were Gord McInroy, representing minor hockey (right), Aubrey Haines and Harry Birkenshaw, members of the Belleville Shrine Club (left).

Emms Threatens to Fold

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — Leighton (Hap) Emms, this year's owner of St. Catharines Black Hawks of the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A series, said Friday his team will fold unless it receives more support.

Emms said he will think seriously about either selling or moving the franchise if the present trend towards low attendance continues. He said he will give it another year and "if OHA quarter-final playoffs it is as bad next year as it is — I guarantee we won't be here."

Emms said total attendance dropped more than 12,000 during the 1974-75 season over the total for the previous season.

He said the team also needs more support from city council and the parks and recreation boards.

The Black Hawks were eliminated by Hamilton Fincups in the quarter-final playoffs.

FRESHMEN TO PLAY

ITHACA, N.Y. (CP) — Cornell University announced Friday it will allow freshmen to play on the varsity hockey team for the 1975-76 season and will create a junior variety squad to replace the freshman team. The action follows a March 25 agreement among the eight Ivy League school presidents to permit freshman eligibility in hockey "as a local option for three years."

Capozzi Bids for Lions

VANCOUVER (CP) — A seven-member group called Lions '75 offered Thursday to buy the British Columbia Lions' football club for $600,000.

Herb Capozzi, former general-manager of the club and a Vancouver businessman, made the only bid received by the club before, a 5p.m. PST deadline stipulated when members decided to consider bids for sale earlier this year. Capozzi is the major shareholder of Lions '75.

The bid will be presented to a special meeting of the club's members April 14 and, if accepted by two-thirds of the members present at the meeting, it will be forwarded to the Canadian Football League. Seven of the league's nine clubs including all five in the Western Conference, must accept the sale in order to make it valid.

Capozzi said his bid will remain open until May 15, and will be ex tended if he is satisfied the club is exercising all reasonable efforts to obtain sale approval.

He said getting the club's members to accept the bid would probably be more difficult to get than the league's approval.

Members of the Capozzi group are: Jim Pattison, a Vancouver businessman; Wendy McDonald, president of B.C. Bearing Engineers Ltd.; Peter Webster, executive director of the B.C. Sports Hall of Fame; Jimmy Vernon, a hotel business executive; Sid Welsh, chairman of Premier Cablevision Ltd.; and Denny Veitch, former general-manager of the Lions.

It is the first time in the club's history that the membership will consider a bid to buy the club and change its public-ownership status.

Capozzi's group offered to pay the sale price to the B.C. Lions' Society in six $100,000 payments—one accompanying the bid, one upon acceptance, and one each Jan. 1 for four years. The money would be deposited in a Trust fund for promotion and development of amateur football in B.C.

The group of private owners would annually deposit into the trust fund 10 per cent of any profits before taxes up to $50,000 and 20 per cent of profits over $50,000.

The group would guarantee $400,000 in working capital and would immediately establish a committee to work towards improvement of stadium facilities and eventual expansion, and upgrading to a 50,000-seat, double decker stadium.

If after five years the club has not improved its performance to finish second or better in the league in at least one year, the society has the option of re-purchase for $500,000.

Deaf Ear Helps Celtics

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Only 15 seconds were left in the game when Boston coach Tom Heinsohn pleaded for his Celtics to take a time out.

But John Havlicek, who had the ball, didn't hear him.

Hoefever, instead of resulting in disaster, it turned into an important victory for the Celtics.

Eventually, with four seconds remaining, Dave Cowens took a pass from Havlicek and hit a jump shot from the foul line and the Celtics outlasted Washington Bullets 95-94 Friday night.

The triumph lifted the Celtics' record to 56-22, the best in the National Basketball Association, with only tonight's game at Philadelphia remaining for them in the regular season. Washington dropped to 38-22 with two games to play—at home against Atlanta tonight and against New Orleans Sunday afternoon.

If both teams finish the season with the same record, the Celtics will gain an opening round bye in the playoffs and make the playoff series because of their better record within the Eastern Conference.

Elsewhere in the NBA, Milwaukee defeated New York 109-101, Chicago beat New Orleans 111-87, Buffalo defeated Philadelphia 106-97, Golden State beat Phoenix 128-99, Portland defeated Kansas City-Omaha 116-110 and Seattle beat Los Angeles 111-108.

In the only American Association game, Kentucky beat New York 108-99 in a one-game playoff for the Eastern Division title.

Golfers Overcome Inclement Weather

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Tom Weiskopf reminded everyone that the golf tournament is not over yet.

But, it appeared it might as well be.

"I don't know about catching Tom," Lee Trevino said, "but second money ain't bad."

Weiskopf, again exhibiting the deft touch and controlled power that won him seven tournaments in four countries in 1973, pulled away in a five stroke advantage—within one shot of the largest halfway lead of the year—in Friday's second round of the $225,000 Greater Greensboro Open golf tournament.

And he needed only a round of par 71 to do it.

"In this weather, that's a dynamite round," Johnny Miller said.

The weather was fierce. The temperature was about seven degrees cooler than the Celsius scale. The winds—though diminished from the gale force blasts that reached dangerous levels in Thursday's play—was about 20 miles an hour with higher gusts.

The difficulty of the playing conditions were, but not as severe as the day before—made Weiskopf appreciate his round.

"The more I think of it, the more I think that was the greatest round I've ever played."

The two rounds gave him a seven-under-par total of 135 for two trips over the 6,645-yard Sedgefield Country Club course and left most of the rest of them just playing for second.

Dave Hill, alone in that position after a struggling 73 that included six bogeys, said he wasn't even concerned with that.

"I'm just trying to find me a golf swing," the dedicated perfectionist said. "I'm experimenting on every shot."

Asked if being five shots back of 140 bothered him, Hill replied:

"Not at all. That don't bother me. The only thing that bugs me is my golf swing."

Lee Trevino, Perry Leslie and Bill Zioboy, grouped at 141, were the only others in the field under par after 36 holes. Trevino had a second-round 70, Leslie a 72 and Zioboy a 68.

Miller shot a 70 and headed the group at 142. South African Gary Player, the Masters and British Open title-holder, also had a 70 but remained well back at 146. Arnold Palmer shot 73 and just made the cut for the last two rounds.

George Knudson of Toronto shot another 75 for 150, the qualifying mark for the last two rounds.

Missing the cut were Frank Hommesik of Winnipeg with 75-152, Ben Kern of Toronto, 80-159, and Dan Halldorson of Brandon, Man., 81-160.

RCGA Pulls Punches, Golf Gets 'Blackest Eye'

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—The Royal Canadian Golf Association has pulled the 1976 Canadian Open out of Windsor's Essex Golf and Country Club, leaving angry civic and golf club officials wondering what happened.

The RCGA awarded the Open to Essex last year but announced Friday it was pulling out, citing poor economic conditions in the Windsor area.

"It looks like golf has finally yielded to politics, just as many other sports," said Dave Moore, general manager of the Essex club.

"Maybe there's been pressure from someone who wanted the Open worse than we did. It's never been done before in the history of the event.

"The contracts hadn't been signed but there had been an announcement, a press release and a verbal commitment. It was like a gentleman's word.

"It's taken golf from the level of the Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrew's down to the level of boxing. It's the blackest eye golf could have."

Windsor Mayor Bert Weeks said the RCGA's claim that the area could not support the Open is "totally invalid".

He said the slump in the auto industry has not affected the Windsor's area's economy significantly and the potential audience from the Detroit area is larger than any other Canadian location.

Weeks called for a meeting of all groups involved in the dispute to pull out of Essex to try and find out why the RCGA changed its plans.

The 1976 Canadian Open now appears headed for Toronto.

"The executive committee now feels the tournament should be in the Metropolitan Toronto area," said Bruce Forbes, RCGA executive director.

Likely sites are the National Golf Club or the Board of Trade course atWoodbridge just outside Toronto.

Dick Grimm, RCGA past president, said those two courses would be given first consideration in determining a new site, but he denied any alternative sites had been considered before the decision to pull out of Essex.

"Being selfish human beings, we are concerned with obtaining as much revenue as we can," said Grimm.

"Lately, we have been concerned about the area (Windsor). The situation down there hasn't gotten any better in the last few months. We felt it just couldn't give us or the best club itself enough revenue."

The RCGA has not yet sold television rights for the 1976 tournament and the CBC is already heavily committed to the Montreal Olympics next year.

Forbes said the RCGA is prepared "to go without television next year if necessary but he said this was not a factor in the decision to leave Windsor either.

The 1976 Open was originally scheduled for the rebuilt Glen Abbey course at Oakville, Ont., which eventually is to become the permanent home for the national tournament. But poor growing conditions last year led officials to doubt whether Glen Abbey would be ready for next year.

Forbes said Friday that Glen Abbey still would not be ready for next year "so we'll be looking elsewhere."

Everton Regains Lead

LONDON (CP) — Everton regained the lead in English soccer's First Division while dropping a crucial point in a 1-1 tie at home Friday with Burnley.

Everton's draw brought its season's point total to 47 from 38 matches to go one point clear of Ipswich and Derby County.

Bob Latchford headed Everton in front in the 19th minute and only the superb goaltending of Burnley's Mick Finn prevented them from adding to the lead.

Despite the continued pressure from Everton's offense, Burnley forced the draw as Peter Noble scored the equalizer 13 minutes from the end.

Montreal Faces St. Louis Ace In Monday's Season Opener

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Bob Gibson, trying to make his final season one which produces a pennant for St. Louis Cardinals, pitches Monday night in the opener against Dave McNally and Montreal Expos.

The 39-year-old Gibson, coming off a sub-par 1974 season during which he was hampered by previous knee surgery, has his 10th opening game assignment in a row for the National League baseball team.

Were counting on him heavily," manager Red Schoendienst said. "For us to do anything, we have to have good pitching and be able to play well behind it.

"Gibson's been throwing well, and he pitched more innings in spring training than he did last year. The big thing with him is his knee's been stronger," Schoendienst said in reference to the 2.81 ERA Gibson compiled in 32 innings of spring training.

Shortstop Ed Brinkman and rookie first baseman Keith Hernandez are answers to the Cardinal infield. McNally plus Gary Carter, Tony Scott and Larry Parrish represent changes in the Montreal lineup, and centre fielder Pepe Mangual has played in only 64 major league games.

"If we were ever going to improve our club it was going to have to be with new players," Mauch said. "But we had to wait until we had enough players to do it. The young players we have are just too good to stay in the minors."

Carter, also the club's backup catcher, will be in right field next to Mangual. Scott, a fill-in for ailing Rich Coggins, will be in left. The 21-year-old Parrish will be at third in an infield which has Tim Foli at shortstop, Larry Lintz at second and Mike Jorgensen at first.

A predominantly left-handed hitting Cardinal lineup featuring Lou Brock, Ted Sizemore and Bake McBride in the top three spots will face the 32-year-old McNally, a southpaw the Expos acquired from the American League Baltimore Orioles. That leaves switch-hitter Reggie Smith at cleanup.

"We put McBride higher in the order to get more speed and stay away from the double play," Schoendienst said. "If he and Brock get on base, we'll be tough."

Bob Gibson – Pennant Hopes

Reds Meet Dodgers In First Official Game

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Reds, the team that traditionally opens the major league season, play host to the defending league champions at Riverfront Stadium before an expected sellout crowd of 52,000 including baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

The Reds won National League pennants in 1970 and 1972 and took the World Series title in 1973 before the Dodgers dethroned them last year. The sellout crowd at Riverfront will mark the 10th time that those bitter rivals have played to a capacity crowd and reflects the almost enthusiastic advance ticket sale in baseball history. Half of the 34 major league teams have reported increases in their season's ticket sales.

The game between the West's power teams precedes by hours three more opening games Monday night. In the National League, Montreal Expos will visit St. Louis Cardinals and Houston Astros will play host to Atlanta Braves. California Angels will entertain Kansas City Royals in the American League.

After watching the Dodgers' Don Sutton face the Reds' Don Gullett in Cincinnati, Kuhn will fly to St. Louis for the Expos-Cardinals game. Bob Gibson is scheduled to pitch for St. Louis in that one against Dave McNally, making his National League debut with Montreal.

Houston, celebrating its 10th season in the "Astrodome", sends Larry Dierker against Atlanta's Phil Niekro. The California-Kansas City game features two left-handed throwers, Nolan Ryan for the Angels and Steve Busby for the Royals.

Kuhn will be almost as busy as the teams as the week progresses. After the night game in St. Louis, the commissioner will rush to Cleveland to attend Frank Robinson's debut Tuesday as the major leagues first black manager. Jackie Robinson's widow, Rachael, will throw out the first ball before Cleveland's Gaylord Perry matches pitches with Doc Medich of New York Yankees in the American League game.

Nine other games will be played Tuesday, including seven openers.

Milwaukee Brewers, featuring home run king Hank Aaron, will start Jim Slaton against Luis Tiant of Boston Red Sox. Vida Blue hopes to get the Oakland A's off on the right track toward a fourth straight American League championship, pitching against Wilbur Wood of Chicago White Sox.

Joe Coleman of Detroit faces Jim Palmer of Baltimore and Minnesota will throw Bert Blyleven against Texas' Ferguson Jenkins in the other American League openers.

In the National League, It's Philadelphia at New York Mets, Pittsburgh Pirates at Chicago Cubs and San Francisco Giants at San Diego Padres. Steve Carlton goes for the Phillies against the Mets' Tom Seaver; the Pirates will start Dock Ellis against Chicago's Rick Reuschel and San Francisco will send Jim Barr against San Diego's Randy Johnson.

Twins Beat Expos

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Eric Soderholm and Larry Hisle hit home runs Friday, leading Minnesota Twins to a 7-4 exhibition baseball victory over Montreal Expos.

Soderholm drove in four runs with a double in the first inning and his two-run homer in the seventh. Hisle had a run-scoring single in the first and a solo homer leading off the third.

The Expos scored twice in the second on Pepe Mangual's double and added single runs in the fourth on a bases-loaded walk to Jerry White and in the eighth on Pete Mackanin's single.

The Twins reached Montreal starter Woodie Fryman for five of their runs. Fryman worked five innings, allowing eight hits and walking five batters. Ray Corbin pitched three-hit ball in 4 1/3 innings of relief for Minnesota.

PITCHER RETIRES

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Ron Bryant, veteran San Francisco Giants' pitcher who won 24 games in 1973, announced his retirement Friday from the National League baseball team. The 27-year-old left-hander told a news conference he was retiring because of personal reasons, family and business.

Four Players Get the Axe

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Four players were separated from major league baseball teams Friday—but only one wanted to go.

Ron Bryant of San Francisco Giants announced his retirement while three others were cut—pitchers Claude Osteen of St. Louis Cardinals and Baler Moore of Montreal Expos and infielder Bobby Valentine of California Angels.

The 27-year-old Bryant, a 20 game winner in 1973 who dropped off to a disastrous 5-15 mark last season, told a news conference that he was retiring for personal reasons, family and business.

Bryant has an interest in a restaurant in Flagstaff, Ariz., and is considering going into the ranching business in that area.

Osteen, a 17-year veteran with a 189-179 lifetime record, was placed on waivers by the Cardinals.

BALOR MOORE

Moore, another left-hander, was sent outright to Montreal's Memphis farm club in the International League. Moore, 34, has been troubled by arm problems and had not pitched this spring until last Thursday, when he worked two scoreless innings against Minnesota.

Valentine, at one time considered a mainstay of the Angels, was sent to Charleston of the International League.

In pre-season action on the field, Minnesota beat Montreal Expos 7-4, Cincinnati beat Boston 1-0 in 16 innings, Pittsburgh edged New York Yankees 5-4 in 10 innings, Philadelphia blanked a second Pittsburgh team 4-0, Cleveland beat Oakland 4-3, Milwaukee defeated Chicago Cubs 12-8, Tulsa of the American Association defeated St. Louis 1-0, San Francisco needed 11 innings to get by Santa Clara University 1-0, Baltimore beat Atlanta 6-1, New York Mets beat Detroit 9-1, Houston defeated Texas 8-7 and Los Angeles beat California 9-2.

Gorman Thomas had three hits, including a grand slam home run, and Mike Hegan and John Briggs also homered for Milwaukee.

IN MEMORIAM

BUSH — In loving memory of a dear brother-in-law and uncle Bert Bush, who passed away April 5, 1973.
Forever long our lives may last,
Whatever lands we view,
Whatever joy or grief be ours,
We will always think of you.
—Always remembered by brother Walter Charles Pulver, sister-in-law Stephena.

BEYERS — In loving memory of a dear husband, father, grandfather and great-grandfather, Roscoe Wallace Beyers, who passed away April 5, 1971.
Remembrance is a golden chain.
Death tries to break but all in vain.
The links of love are strong and true
To the greatest, purest and dearest heart.
The years may wipe out many things,
But this they wipe out never.
The memory of those happy days
When we were all together.
—Always remembered by his wife Edith and family.

CARTER — In loving memory of a dear son and brother Brian Taft who passed away April 6, 1971.
No farewells were spoken,
No last words were said,
You were gone before we knew,
And only God knows why.
Our hearts still ache with sadness,
And secret tears still flow,
What we miss in you is boundless,
No one will ever know.
—Always remembered and sadly missed by Mum, Dad and sister Pauline.

THE UNEXPLAINED

by Allen Spraggett

Voodoo on the Island of Haiti

Recently I attended my first voodoo ceremony.

It was some experience! Not simply the ceremony itself, which was wild, exotic and colorful, but the singular and dramatic circumstances surrounding it.

You see, Port-au-Prince, the capital of Haiti, voodoo's homeland was at the time engulfed by a raging fire. The city was spared massive destruction by a shower of rain which the texas described as "miraculous".

The shower came immediately and I do mean (immediately) after the voodoo rites which invoked the rain god!

Thus my introduction to voodoo was a specially memorable one.

On Thursday February 27, 1975, during a Caribbean cruise, our boat, Bolero, put in at Port-au-Prince. My wife was eager to do some shopping; I was eager to do some voodooing. Haiti is the cradle of voodoo, that strange blend of African faith and quasi-Christian symbol which for most people conjures up an image of somebody sticking pins in little dolls of their enemies.

Such practices do exist (I bought a couple of the voodoo dolls to ensure a new reason from my acquaintances) but they are part of "black" voodoo. Anything, say the Haitians, can be set to good or evil use and this includes voodoo. But, the savior goes, he who uses black voodoo against others eventually will suffer his boomerang against himself.

White voodoo is the use of rites and ceremonies to do good — to heal the sick, to break a drought, to bring financial success to a friend.

Anyway, a group of us from the ship had arranged to attend that night what was billed as a voodoo ceremony. Whether it would be the real thing or a phony tourist spectacle we didn't know. But my attitude was that even phony voodoo was better than none. And who knows? It might turn out to be an impressive experience.

It did.

That night, while some of us were standing on the ship's deck talking about the impending voodoo rites, there was a tremendous explosion in Port-au-Prince and flames later described as 20 feet high shot into the air. In moments the sky was lit up by a giant ball of fire.

The flames, fanned by a high wind, were being swept toward the heart of the city. On Haitian radio we could hear the panicky voice of the announcer describing the spreading blaze and the apparent inability of whatever fire fighters there were to cope with it.

While we watched, in a matter of 15 minutes, the flames mushroomed and there were fears expressed that the core of the city might be gutted.

It was at this point that some of us left for the voodoo ceremony. There were a few misgivings. One woman said she didn't fancy "being cremated in Haiti". Others expressed fears that if evacuations from the blazing city grew to mass proportions there might be a stampede of the ships in the harbor.

Anyway, a few brave or foolhardy souls went to the ceremony. It was held on the edge of the water. The voodoo sanctuary was a sort of large open-sided hut. The onlookers sat under a canopied area around it.

The ceremony itself was an invocation of the water god, which with the sky lit up by flames, seemed rather urgently appropriate. The hunge, or high priest, was a handsome young man dressed in a reddish-orange top and white flared trousers. The mambos or high priestess, also young and beautiful, was dressed in a white turban and short white dress.

These were assisted by about 30 devotees, mostly women but a few men, also dressed in all-white or a combination of white and orange.

Accompanied by the hypnotic beat of drums,the devotees began to chant and dance as I have never seen anybody dance before. It couldn't have been choreographed at Radio City Music Hall. The dances were incredibly intricate yet accelerated faster and faster until the devotees were whirling and leaping and chanting in rhythm with the throbbing drums.

It was a scene of religious ecstasy. Yet the "vibes" it gave off were warm, loving, positive.

This was primitive, maybe, but no evil.

Then, one of the men became entranced, "possessed," the voodoo followers say — "by the loa" or god; in this case the water god. The possessed man looked like a zombie — cataleptic, whites of his eyes turned upward, profoundly hypnotized.

Since he represented the god now, he was presented with a white dove as an offering and promptly accepted it by biting its head off.

Then the high priestess sprinkled the bird's blood on the altar. The high priest kneeled and kissed the altar.

A strange, mystic spectacle, half-sublime, half-savage. But it was only a prelude.

Within three minutes, it had started to rain. A heavy shower fell for about 20 minutes, while the sky cleared and once more the quivering stars came out.

The next day, Friday, February 28, the News Bulletin published aboard the cruise ship Bolero headlined this item:

"PORT-AU-PRINCE: A huge fire raged out of control for two hours last night in the northern section of the city. The fire, of unknown origin, started early in the evening, destroying a two-block radius of a residential section. The flames were 50 feet high but a miraculous rain shower controlled the blaze.

"Haiti has had no rain for the past two months."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The nostalgia for Hollywood's past has reached in a new movie trend.

The Great Waldo Pepper portrays Robert Redford as a barnstorming pilot who comes to Hollywood during the 1930 era of great aerial films. Now Peter Bogdanovich is planning Starlight Parade with Ryan O'Neal and Dorit Reynolds as a pair of pioneering film makers in pre First World War times.

Universal has announced two projects about stars of the Golden Era—Gable and Lombard and W. C. Fields. The latter will be directed by Arthur Hiller and is based on the memoirs by the comedian's onetime mistress, Carlotta Monti.

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP) — Maggie Smith, one of the most acclaimed actresses of the decade, will join the 1976 Stratford Festival acting company, artistic director Robin Phillips announced Wednesday.

Miss Smith won an Oscar for her role in the film version of The Prime of Jean Brodie, starred with Sir Laurence Olivier in productions by the National Theatre of Great Britain, and acted in National Theatre's production of Hedda Gabler, directed by Ingmar Bergman.

She now is on Broadway in a limited engagement of Sir Noel Coward's comedy, Private Lives

When Private Lives was touring North America, Miss Smith came to Toronto earlier this winter and visited Stratford for the first time While here, she showed interest in taking part in the festival.

"We are delighted to be able to announce that Miss Smith is joining the company next year," said Mr. Phillips.

"She is not only an international star, whose presence can't help but add lustre to any theatre season anywhere in the world but more important, she is an actress of the highest calibre with whom we will be proud to work," he said.

Although no final decision has been made about possible roles or plays Miss Smith will take part in, it is expected she will appear in more than one production.

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian opera, Louis Riel, will be premiered at Washington's Kennedy Centre following the 1975 season at O'Keefe Centre here.

Herman Geiger-Torel, general director of the Canadian Opera Company, said the Washington appearance of Harry Somers' opera will be sponsored by the department of external affairs and organized by the Touring Office of the Canada Council.

The opera will be part of the Canadian Festival at Kennedy Centre, Oct. 13-26.

Louis Riel had its premiere by the COC in 1967 and was revived by the company in 1968.

Its Washington appearance will be the first outside of Canada.

Canadian baritone Bernard Turgeon will appear in the title role as he did for the original production.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't ask advice from a close companion today unless you're prepared for a candid reply. What you'd hear would likely displease you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Pay particular attention to common sense health practices today. Be moderate physically, and partaking of the good things of life.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Cupid will hit you with a few blunt arrows today, if you're too possessive or demanding of your loved one.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're likely to do more talking and thinking about what should be done at this time instead of doing it. Get off your duff. Act.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Yesterday you were a wise and prudent shopper. Not so today. Be careful. You could buy a pig in a poke.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't be too flirtatious or coy today. It could backfire if someone you were just putting on a bit takes you seriously.

Gas Price Difficult To Settle

By HOWARD COLLINS

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal officials expect the toughest bargaining at next week's national energy conference may be over the pricing of natural gas.

Although they don't underestimate the obstacles of reaching agreement on a new price for crude oil, they feel it will be "relatively less sticky than set ting a price for gas."

One of the major problems is that gas is undervalued compared with other fuels, an energy department spokesman said.

New contracts for gas set the price at 40 cents a thousand cubic feet, while the average price, including the old contracts, is 44.5 cents.

Energy officials estimate that with oil selling at $6.50 a barrel, the price for an equal amount of gas in heat units of energy value should be $1.20 a thousand cubic feet.

Energy Minister Donald Macdonald has said several times he feels natural gas prices should go up to commodity value with oil.

But he says he favors a gradual increase over a period of at least three years to lessen the impact on the economy.

An immediate increase to the commodity value would add about $821 million to the cost of the 1.2 trillion cubic feet of natural gas consumed annually, most of it in Ontario.

It also would add $114 to the annual bill of an average consumer using natural gas to heat his home. The Canadian Gas Association estimates average residential consumption at 100 thousand cubic feet a year.

Extortionist Siezed

NEW YORK (AP) — A man described as a would-be bank extortionist set off an explosive device Friday as police and the FBI closed in on him in front of Macy's department store.

One FBI agent suffered minor facial burns in the capture of the man in Herald Square, one of the world's busiest crossroads. A bomb squad official said the device consisted of a maze of wires and detonators, but that there were no high explosives.

The FBI identified the man as Edward Williams, about 30, of Paterson, N.J.

Many Jobs Open

NEW YORK (AP) — Unemployment in the United States in March was 8.7 per cent, the highest since 1941, it was announced Friday. But jobs hundreds of thousands of them—remain unfilled.

Based on U.S. employment service estimates, more than 700,000 jobs were open in January, the latest month for which it has such figures and a month when the unemployment rate was 8.2 per cent. At that rate 7.5 million persons in the U.S. were out of work.

Welcomes Snow

TORONTO (CP) — While most southern Ontario residents curse this week's snowstorm, John Zaidar is jumping with joy.

"It's heavenly," said Mr. Zaidar.

As Metropolitan Toronto's biggest private snow-removal operator, Mr. Zaidar finds snow nothing to complain about. With $1 million invested in a company that was shaky because of a winter of light snow, Mr. Zaidar, 48, said he and his bank manager became nervous.

Right now business is excellent and I hope it snows some more."

Want Free Sale

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Some theoreticians feel oral contraceptives should be removed from the prescription list and sold across the counter in drug stores, Dr. Walter Hanbah, chief of obstetrics at the Women's College Hospital in Toronto, told the Sault Ste. Marie Star on Friday.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE with Major Hoople

Seek Release

By DAVE BLAIKIE

OTTAWA (CP) — A committee of well-known United States and Canadian persons is pressuring the government to intervene in the case of Dr. Henry Morgentaler, jailed last week for performing an illegal abortion.

The group, headed by Paul Kurtz of Buffalo, N.Y., sent a telegram to Prime Minister Trudeau urging that steps be taken to release the 53-year-old Montreal gynecologist from jail in Montreal where he began an 18-month sentence last Friday.

The petition also calls for relaxation of Canadian abortion laws and a ban on further charges against Dr. Morgentaler, who has admitted performing thousands of abortions at a Montreal clinic.

Oppose Change

TORONTO (CP) — C. O. Bick, chairman of the Metropolitan Toronto board of police commissioners, and Police Chief Harold Adamson have both rejected a proposal to have more elected representatives on the five-member police commission.

A Metro council committee is considering reorganization of the commission to include the Metro chairman, four elected representatives and four appointed persons.

The commission now has one elected representative from Metro council, the Metro chairman and three Ontario government appointees.

Back Mobile Homes

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario is investigating ways to ease the housing shortage and beat soaring house prices by opening the door for more mobile homes in the province, Michael Warren, deputy housing minister, said Friday.

The government hopes to bring in legislation to protect owners of mobile homes, who at present, he said, have literally no rights at all."

Fear Late Spring

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — Despite a relatively mild winter, farmers in this northern area now are concerned about the possibility of a late spring, says Lorne Brunet, district representative of the provincial ministry of agriculture.

The large snowfall of the last few days and accompanying cold weather are reasons for the farmers' concern, he said in an interview Friday.

Speed Adoptions

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario families wishing to adopt orphans from South Vietnam must go through the usual adoption channels, a spokesman for the ministry of community and social services said Friday.

Interested families are advised to contact one of the province's 50 Children's Aid Society branches, which handle all adoptions in Ontario.

The spokesman said the adoption process usually takes about nine months to complete. However, it will be "drastically speeded up" for the Vietnamese orphans.

Train Derailed

DUNDALK, Ont. (CP) — CP Rail workmen continued efforts Friday to right an 11-car freight train after Thursday's collision with a farm tractor at a level crossing 2½ miles north of here.

CNR Head Wants To Split Railway

MONTREAL (CP) — Robert Bandeen, the new, young president of Canadian National Railways, says he wants a major overhaul of the giant railway, splitting it into smaller companies as an economic shot in the arm.

Dr. Bandeen, who has been president less than a year, said in an interview this week the publicly-owned corporation is already talking to the government about reorganizing the railway. A plan has not yet been submitted.

If the changes are made, the taxpayers as a shareholder in CN will see his investment in the corporation increase in value, said the 44-year-old economist.

CN would remain as a small holding company and the corporation president would retain over all responsibility to Parliament on operations for the various subsidiaries.

Dr. Bandeen's proposal reflects his view that the railway organization needs to be brought up to date to fit CN's changing role.

The railway itself is no longer best designed to pick up goods at the factory door and deliver them on the doorstep of the purchaser, he said.

Railways now are a kind of supermarket of transportation offering services like piggyback, container and bulk commodity transport.

CN had moved into trucking because it saw trucks were more efficient in certain circumstances. The corporation wanted to offer the customer everything he needed.

"We are a conglomerate," he said candidly. CN has trucking, hotel, real estate and telecommunications units.

CN, which has about 80,000 employees, is too big to be run efficiently and economically as one monolithic organization, the CN president said. An chief executive officer he could not keep in close touch with all developments in every branch of he railway.

Budget Has Little For Municipalities

TORONTO (CP) — There will be more money for housing and roads in the Monday budget of Ontario Treasurer Darcy McKeough.

But there is little prospect of any great tax relief for municipalities looking for ways to keep down mill rates.

In general, when the 45-year-old MPP from Chatham-Kent reads his budget at 8:30 p.m. Monday, it is expected to reflect spending restraints and some relief for low-and fixed income groups.

And while the likelihood of any tax increase in personal income tax is remote, there is also little likelihood of any great tax relief for the average taxpayer.

Mr. McKeough's message to the province's towns and cities Monday will be clear.

All governments must practise spending restraints in those difficult times—and municipals and school boards included.

Grain and Oilseed Plantings to Increase

OTTAWA (CP) — Farmers generally are heeding the Wheat Board's call for higher grain and oilseed acreages this year, but figures released Friday by Statistics Canada show over-all acreages down slightly from last year.

Otto Lang, minister responsible for the board, called five weeks ago for substantial increases in acreages of most of the crops handled by the board.

The Statistics Canada figures show farmers intend to plant 25.14 million acres of wheat, below the 26 million recommended by Mr. Lang.

The 1975 wheat projection includes 3.65 million acres of Durum, well above the requested 2.5 million and above the three million acres last year.

The statistics are based on a survey of farmers' plans as March 15. The federal agency warned that the plans may change when farmers have had more time to assess the market outlook and conditions before and during planting.

Perhaps the most noticeable gap between Mr. Lang's expectation and the farmers' intention is in barley. The minister had suggested 12.5 million acres' but the farmers intend to sow only 11.2 million, a difference of 1.17 million acres. This is six per cent below the 1974-75 total and two per cent below the 1969-73 average.

Ottawa Is Silent On Blakeney Offer

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Saskatchewan's offer to forgo an immediate oil price increase if a government energy security fund is set up drew nothing but silence from the federal government Friday.

Premier Allan Blakeney outlined his province's plan in a statement issued in Regina, saying up to $2 billion could be provided annually for energy development if it is accepted at the national energy conference next week.

A spokesman for Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said the minister would have no comment until he received a text of the premier's proposal and had time to review it.

Under the plan, any increase in the price of oil beyond the current $6.50 a barrel would go into the fund. The federal government would determine the extent and timing of such increases in order to lessen the impact on the economy while still providing developmental funds.

Premier Blakeney planned to fly to Toronto today for meetings Sunday with Premier William Davis of Ontario to outline the plan.

He also plans to meet Monday in Saint John with Premier Richard Hatfield of New Brunswick.

Opposition Liberals in the Saskatchewan legislature reacted quickly to Premier Blakeney's proposal, branding the proposal a sellout that amounts to making Saskatchewan residents pay for oil exploration elsewhere in Canada.

Under opposition questioning, Mineral Resources Minister Elwood Cowley agreed that the proposal might be interpreted as being a "very substantial contribution"—up to $1.5 billion.

But, he added, the oil-producing provinces to the country.

But, he added, the oil-producing provinces would get a substantial benefit from part of the proposal calling for the federal government to return to the system of allowing royalty payments to provinces to be tax-deductible.

Alberta and Saskatchewan also would have part ownership of the fund.

Allmand Opposed To Death Penalty

OTTAWA (CP) — Solicitor-General Warren Allmand says he is more convinced than ever that capital punishment isn't the answer to murder.

"The problem is serious but the proposed solution is not likely to help," he said in a statement. "We should really be focusing on the causes of violent crime and the most effective ways to deal with such crime."

The statement follows the sentencing this week of two men for the murder of two Moncton, N.B., policemen shot last year while investigating a kidnapping. They are among seven men appealing death sentences arising from the killing of police.

5 YEAR ROAD HAZARD INSURED

Here's why we say 2+2+2 Multi-Cord is the best bias-belt made: 2 body plies of Du Pont 66 Nylon ensure twice the 'Run-Soft, Safe Warning Time' possible only with Nylon (See Nevada Test results posted in our stores); 2 body plies of non flat-spotting Polyester for smooth-riding comfort; 2 belts of Kevlar (Fibre B) to hold tread firm from squirm and achieve almost double the mileage of many other tires.

Kevlar—the amazing new Aramid cord developed by Du Pont expressly for tires—provides longer mileage and a softer-than-steel ride. Won't kink like steel, or fail like glass under abnormal compression. Five times stronger than steel, its relative lightness means less unsprung weight per wheel, resulting in fewer front-end repairs. The culmination of years of research!

Multi-Cord 2+2: Drop Polyester from our 2+2+2 tire, use giant Nylon cords instead and this simplified construction retains most performance features of its big brother 2+2+2—at considerably lower cost. 33,000-Mile Treadwear-Rated!

Shaped like a Radial. A popular tire for high-speed highways!

The Whippet II is made with twin-ply Du Pont 66 Nylon body cord—50% stronger than that used in regular 4-ply tires, for a cooler running high speed tire. Its tread-pattern is formed of many separate elements for faster starts and safer stops. A quality-tire!

On Way to New Homes

61 Orphans Reach Vancouver

Saigon May Refuse To Allow Flights

VANCOUVER (CP) — Sixty-one Cambodian and Vietnamese orphans arrived here Sunday from war-torn South Vietnam but many more may not be as fortunate.

A u s t r a l i a n government sources in Canberra said today that Saigon authorities have decided not to grant any more exit visas to refugee children.

Australia's second flight to Vietnam to bring back orphans was cancelled just as a Qantas 747, loaded with 27 tons of relief supplies, was due to take off from Sydney.

Ten of the children who arrived on flight to Canada Sunday were survivors from a United States military transport that crashed near Saigon Friday. Most of the orphans will be with their new families today.

Senator Ray Perrault, who represented the department of immigration at Vancouver International Airport, said before the Canberra announcement that Ottawa is re-assessing its position and will make a statement, probably early in the week.

He said Canadian officials in Saigon were evaluating the cases of orphans there and would be referring some for adoption in Canada in cases where there was a "valid need for adoption."

He said the terms of a valid need are best determined by Canadian officials in Saigon.

Robert Bronstein, a spokesman for Families for Children, a Montreal-based group organized by parents who want to adopt the refugee children, said before the Canberra announcement that "there is talk of 500 children coming to Canada."

"Our organization, as well as others in Canada, has been besieged with phone calls from people who want to adopt a child."

All 61 children have been adopted or are in the process of being adopted. Four of the seven children staying in B.C. will live in the Vancouver area, two are going to Victoria families and one is going to Fort St. John, B.C.

One child was flown to Los Angeles to meet his new father, National Hockey League goalie Regatien Vachon of the Los Angeles Kings.

Of the 32 children who flew on to Montreal, seven will go to families in Vermont and New York.

Mr. Bronstein said he doubted that there would be a massive influx of children because of the difficulties involved in ascertaining which are orphans.

Films show parents leaving their children onto boats and aircraft "anything, just to save them."

Some of these parents will be looking for their children so "unless a child really has abandonment papers or orphanage releases there is no real proof that they are legitimate orphans and it's a ticklish situation," he said.

Mr. Bronstein praised external affairs and immigration officials for their help in bringing the children out of Vietnam.

All but 10 of the orphans are less than two years old and the group includes an 18-year-old youth.

Second Mercy Flight in Doubt

Trenton Crew in Hong Kong Could Make Saigon Flight

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — An armed forces aircraft and crew from CFB Trenton are on standby duty in Hong Kong today awaiting a possible second Canadian airlift of Vietnamese from Saigon Tuesday.

An external affairs department spokesman in Ottawa said Sunday, the aircraft, a 426 squadron Hercules, is scheduled to fly to Saigon Tuesday. However, the airlift is subject to cancellation by the chargé d'affaires in the Canadian embassy in Saigon.

The spokesman said the flight "hinges on the number to come out." with the bulk of potential passengers being immigrants who have been nominated or sponsored by Canadian citizens.

The aircraft, piloted by Capt. Murray Dust, is the second of three planes lent the base on training flights over the Pacific Ocean. Each plane makes a stopover in Hong Kong.

A spokesman at CFB Trenton said Saturday the first aircraft landed in Hong Kong last Thursday and was ready to fly to Saigon on the mercy flight by the external affairs department.

It returned to Hong Kong Saturday after a three-hour flight from Saigon with 77 evacuees 61 orphaned children and their 16 escorts.

The orphans were subsequently flown out of Hong Kong on a commercial CP Air flight and landed in Vancouver Sunday.

The Canadian Hercules now in Hong Kong is the model of a 24-week training flight. Routinely, it stops in Hong Kong and lays over two days before going on to Japan. Layovers have now been extended to three days.

The plane will stay in Hong Kong April 8 one day after the third and final plane from CFB Trenton lands to take up standby duty.

According to a defence department spokesman in Toronto, the last plane of the three is scheduled to leave for Japan April 11.

Citizens Bureau Likely To Return to Belleville

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — The Citizens Bureau, now in its 18th month of operation in Trenton, will likely be moving back to Belleville, into offices near downtown, later this month.

Ron Bates, chairman of the bureau's three-member relocation committee, said Saturday, the move, made possible by a $12,000 federal government grant will be made after a one month search for new quarters for the consumer help group.

He termed the new location — either on or near Coleman St. — tentative, and still subject to final approval by the bureau's full board.

The Citizens Bureau, originally created by a Local Initiatives Program (LIP) grant in 1972 in Belleville, relocated in Trenton in January, 1974, after receiving another LIP grant.

The latest $12,000 grant from the Consumer and Corporate Affairs ministry, comes after a series of financial problems. Frequently, over the past three years, the Bureau was forced to limit operations and work with voluntary staff.

"Our intention, more or less, is to move to Belleville but also function in Trenton," Mr. Bates said.

In the search for Belleville offices, the chairman approached the United Community Services and requested space for rent.

Mr. Bates said he met with a refusal and was told there wouldn't be room enough for the bureau at the UCS William St. offices.

Gordon Mullin, director of the UCS in Belleville said today, "The matter of using space at our William St. offices came up during one of our meetings and the board felt it would be overcrowded if we tried to put them in.

"We just don't have space available for another office," said Mr. Mullin.

Such a reason, said Mr. Bates, he couldn't understand, because with only two staff members, the bureau "needs a very, very small area".The request for space was made of the UCS because the bureau had previously been located there, the UCS offices were known, and it was felt the UCS would offer affordable rent.

The committee chairman said he was "not happy" with the UCS refusal to rent space to the bureau, but declined to comment on what he felt were reasons his requests was refused. He would not elaborate further.

Board chairman Allen Baldwin, when asked to comment, said Saturday he is "not saying anything until all the factors in and the committees (relocation and finance) have reported".

Mr. Baldwin said he was unfamiliar with the work of the board committee and that "it is up to the full board of directors to make a decision". It is expected sometime this week.

He would not say whether the bureau had received the grant or federal terms defining bureau operation.

Earlier this year, Mr. Baldwin said the bureau was "thinking of operating in both centres but one (either Trenton or Belleville) would be a branch bureau working one or two days a week".

Chiang Kai-shek Dies at Age 87

TAIPEI (AP) — President Chiang Kai-shek of Taiwan will be buried April 16 in the little mountain village of Tsihu, a favorite retreat of the 87-year-old generalissimo, official sources said today.

The officials said a Christian ceremony would precede the burial. But the state funeral will be postponed indefinitely in the hope that someday it can be held on mainland China that Chiang lost in 1949 to Mao Tse-tung's Communists.

Guns boomed every half hour today in tribute to the longtime leader, who died of a heart attack Saturday night.

Peking is believed to have suggested recently that after Chiang's death, Taiwan could become an autonomous province of China with the Generalissimo's elder son, Premier Chiang Ching-kuo, as governor and only gradual changes in the way of life and the economy of the island to be made during his lifetime.

Vice-President Yen Chia-kan, 79, was sworn in as president Sunday. But the power remains with Premier Chiang, who has been running the country since July 1972.

Quota Reached, Evacuation Ends

SAIGON (AP) — Operation Baby Lift, the airborne-country evacuation of orphans from war-torn South Vietnam, ended on a large-scale basis today and a Saigon official said that from now on the children will leave in smaller groups.

Diplomatic and government officials said the airlift had reached the quota approved earlier by the South Vietnamese government.

They said all the evacuated children had entered the adoption process, and the airlift only speeded up the paper work and their departure.

Welfare Minister Dr. Phan Quang Dan was at the airport to say goodbye to the last 203 orphans who left Saigon aboard two planes for the United States.

"The large operation has ended," he said. "From now on, the orphans will leave in smaller groups."

The exact number of children, ranging in age from one week to nine years, was not immediately available. But it was believed more than 1,700 orphans left Saigon during the last five days.

The official government approval for the airlift provided for 1,400 children to go to the United States, Hundreds of children went to Australia, Britain and Canada.

Children Being Used Says Airlift Official

VANCOUVER (CP) — An organizer of Sunday's orphan airlift into Vancouver termed the sudden race by the West to help destitute Southeast Asian children "like getting meat in a meat market."

"We started this work six years ago and it was not fashionable then to save orphans," said Naomi Bronstein of Montreal who returned from Saigon with the 61 children.

"It wasn't even fashionable two months ago. Now it appears that since I've been away it's become fashionable."

Mrs. Bronstein, who is a co-director with her husband, Herb, of Families for Children which organized the flights, left Phnom Penh Cambodia 3½ weeks ago to help 43 orphans in Phnom Penh.

Where were all those planes when we needed them before?" she asked.

"It's like getting meat in a meat market. This province wants 200 babies. This province wants 300. Australia is trying to outdo the U.S.; the U.S. is trying to outdo somebody else.

"The feeling in Saigon, and this is mine also, is that the children are being used for a big show."

Full Slate of Events For Bancroft Centre

CASTLETON — Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority officials will be planting between 40,000 and 42,000 young red pine and white spruce on 50 acres of land in Cramahe Township this year in a pilot reforestation program.

Its $2,500 total cost will be covered by the authority. Farmers on whose land the trees will be planted, have only to maintain and protect the stands for a 20-year period.

General technologist Jim Kelleher, who has been working since late 1974 on the projects, says the tree planting should have several beneficial effects on land in north-central Cramahe and Cold and Salt Creeks.

All trees will be planted at the creeks' headwaters in five separate 10-acre lots.

"The whole purpose of the program is to decrease the rate of run-off in spring," says Mr. Kelleher. This will create a more uniform creek flow year round.

Such uniformity of flow he says, will stabilize the two creeks and either maintain or improve them as trout streams.

Siltation of the creeks will be decreased and erosion will be cut back.

But such results, says Mr. Kelleher, will not become apparent for some 10 years when the trees will have grown enough to provide some drainage and water control.

Tree-planting Program To Lessen Spring Runoff

It's understood to be a long term project and that five area farmers, three of whom are north of Castleton, have agreed to abide by. An agreement to protect the trees, now left while standing on the balcony of a hotel in Nicosia on Tuesday. Funeral services were held in London after which burial took place in Toronto.

Staff Study Queries Recent Hospital Report

The time is now for Belleville General Hospital to start planning against a shortage in bed space.

The caution is sounded in an administration report circulated Friday to BGH's board of governors.

A shortage of 70 beds forecast by 1979 for the 440-bed hospital, indicates "serious problems" ahead in medical areas increasingly in demand — including psychiatry, obstetrics and chronic care for the aged.

The problem is compounded by a shortage of nursing home beds for the elderly. With four more psychiatrists due on staff this year, the pressure will mount on psychiatric facilities.

Therefore, it's appropriate to "begin planning" now to correct the predicted deficit — which could be even higher by 1979 — if BGH "is to meet the needs of the area."

The assessment is an administrative analysis of conclusions reached by Dr. Peter Gordon, who late last year presented a report — commissioned by the Ontario health ministry — on area medical facilities centred on BGH.

The critique queries a number of the Gordon findings which called for new alternatives to institutional care to ease pressure on present facilities.

Conclusions throughout the Gordon report, claims the staff analysis, are drawn "instances "based on little substance" and not always "consistent with data." There, "constructive comment" is difficult.

A Gordon suggestion that hospitals are "backing-into" through the local medical-care system draws the comment that as late as last January there were 28 chronic care patients in BGH because of lack of alternative facilities. This is clear indication, says the administration that the "back-up" is real and that "there is need for more nursing home beds in the area."

Mayor Says City's Hands Tied in Transit Dispute

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Belleville mayor Robin Jeffrey says there is no possibility of council intervention in the transit strike which has handcuffed city commuters since last Friday.

The 22 members of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Transport and General Workers voted 70 per cent in favor of strike action Thursday in support of wage demands.

At the close of bargaining Thursday, the union demanded an across-the-board increase of $1 an hour in a one year contract. The commission's counter offer stands at an immediate 75-cent raise followed by a 16-cent increase in June.

Earlier, the mayor said she hoped there was some possibility that council could participate in the negotiation.

She told The Intelligencer today "there's no way we can interfere".

The transit commission bylaw allows council authority only in discussions of routes, fares and capital budgets, said Mayor Jeffrey.

"The only answer in ending the strike is the willingness of both sides to sit down and talk some more," she said.

Commission spokesman today said there has been no change in the status of the strike since last Friday and that no meetings have been arranged.

No union comment was available.

Laurence St. Pierre, Peterborough, chief union negotiator is expected in Belleville this evening. It is not known if he intends reopening talks with the commission.

Commission chairman Maryléa Burtt, said "I have heard nothing at all since last Friday."

Three Students Win Trip in Science Fair

Three prize winners of the Rotary Club's Annual Science Fair chosen Saturday will travel all-expenses paid to compete in the Canada-wide Science Fair in Jonquiere, Quebec, later this year.

One of this year's winners was Dale Paus, one of three grand prize winners in last year's local science fair, who went on to compete in the national fair in Calgary. The exhibit of the 17-year-old Bayside Sedondary School student was on aerodynamics and featured a model of a rocket engine.

The other winners were Scott Tripp and Danny Templeton, both 13, and students at Prince Charles School in Trenton. Their exhibit dealt with environment and learning and attempted to show how living in a controlled environment can affect learning.Under science fair regulations, only one participant of a grand prize-winning display can travel to the national science fair, no matter how many participants took part in the display.

Third winner was Edward Mah, 16, a student from Centre Hastings Secondary School in Madoc. His display was on S-R Basic of Learning.

The three winners were chosen toward the end of this year's Science Fair at about 8 p.m. Saturday at the Armory. A good crowd attended both days of the combination science fair and hobby show, despite the heavy snow.

Window Smashed

Damage was estimated at $235 when unknown vandals smashed a front plate glass window at Cole's Jewelry on Front St. at about 1:35 a.m. Sunday.

Deputy-Chief Harold Reid of city police said the window las valued at $200 and $35 damage resulted to four glass articles on a display counter. NNothing was reported stolen.

He said the window appeared to have been kicked in.

Hearing Today

TRENTON — A bail hearing was to be held today in Belleville for Joe Cannon, Jr., 37, of 133 Spring St., who was arrested and charged with three counts of pointing a firearm and possession of a firearm dangerous to public safety after an incident in a downtown Trenton store Friday.

Town police says man was brandishing a rifle at the rear of the R. A. Beamish Stores Co. Ltd. store on Dundas St. where three police officers talked him into relinquishing his weapon.

Cannon was detained in the Quinte Regional Detention Centre north of Napanee during the weekend.

Juvenile Sought

City police are seeking a juvenile wanted in connection with a break-in at a city woman's apartment late Saturday.

Deputy-Chief Harold Reid said today the suspect is described as 13 or 14 years of age, with shoulder-length blonde hair wearing a blue denim jacket and jeans.

Four dolls, a bracelet and a quantity of food were stolen from the apartment of Fern Nisbet at 54 Dundas St. E. She reported the incident at about 11 p.m. Saturday, he said.

Parents To Meet

AMELIASBURG — An emergency meeting of "concerned parents" has been called here tonight at Kente Public School to discuss personnel matters, according to Douglas Caley, chairman of the Prince Edward County School Board.

Parents, contacted by The Intelligencer, were reluctant to talk about the meeting, which is closed to the public. Trustees and director of education John McNeil will not be attendin due to prior commitments, Mr. Caley said.

Mr. Caley said the committee has been advised by the board it is prepared to accept a delegation concerning the personnel matter. It is expected that a majority of the 400 parents may attend the meeting tonight at 8 p.m.

A resident of Ameliasburg Township, who wished to remain anonymous, said a petition was circulated last Saturday among parents of Kente students pertaining to the meeting tonight.

Families Offer Homes To Viet Nam Orphans

More than 50 area families have offered to adopt Viet Nam orphans, Marg Baile, adoption supervisor for the Hastings County family and Children's Services said today.

By Friday afternoon after news reports of the evacuation of orphans by the Canadian government, 46 families had acquired at the Children's Aid Society about adoption. By early today another half dozen families telephoned the Front St. offices, she said.

"We have certainly had a lot of response," Mrs. Baile said.

"People are seeing children in need and they are responding in a human way — as parents and as people who care," she said.

Mrs. Baile added that there is such a shortage of infants and toddlers available for adoption in the province and in the county that the events in Viet Nam have offered would-be parents new hope.

Only a handful of the more than 50 families who have telephoned Mrs. Baile's department have already adopted children of another race. The vast majority of the remaining families are unfamiliar to the Children's Aid, she said.

"This is an emotional response," Mrs. Baile said. "People must remember that may of these children are ill, some have been injured. We have no background information and we don't know what their capabilities are. And we must remember there will be culture shock."

The director of the Children's Services Bureau for the province has requested county agencies to supply a list of approved home to him, Mrs. Baile, said, but added that at this point she is unsure whether any children will be placed in this area or whether the department will be asked to investigate more homes.

AMELIASBURG — A one-man deer season opened unexpectedly Saturday night for Wellington motorist Ronald VanHaarlem, 21, of 120 Belleville Rd.

Y And The Community

We sympathize with supporters of the Belleville YMCA. They're damned if they do and they're damned if they don't.

One minute, the "Y" is under fire for what Quinte District Labor Council vice-president Jan Reilly likes to call "double-dipping" — receiving a grant in lieu of taxes from city coffers as well as a portion of the United Way campaign proceeds.

This accusation so incensed the labor council, for a while, they asked organized labor in the area to boycott the 1974 United Way drive. Finally, sanor skulls prevailed and it was realized that such a move would hurt the other 12 member United Community Service agencies.)

Now that it has become public that city alderman Ben Corke and other "Friends of the Y" have devoted themselves to quietly raising some $87,000 towards erasing the "Y's" $100,000 mortgage, Mr. Reilly is even more indignant.

"The YMCA should receive no more funds from the United Way until this money is spent", he tells his labor council colleagues.

Mr. Reilly seems to make no distinction between the money city businessmen so generously — and anonymously — donated to try and rid the "Y" of its outstanding capital debt, and the day-to-day cost required to operate the many programs the organization offers.

We're not going to outline here the assortment of activities the "Y" offers, or list the names of the hundreds of volunteers, or identify the dozens of children who benefit from free memberships. Mr. Reilly and his fellow critics can pick up a brochure at 433 Victoria Avenue.

But if the "Friends of the Y" succeed in their goal of burning the building's mortgage by the end of April, it may breathe new life into the organization to the extent that they might one day be totally self-sufficient.

Even then, someone would likely find something about which to complain.

Refugee Aid is Vital

In the wake of what is one of the greatest human tragedies in history — the plight of the refugees of Vietnam — we have the president of a private airline who tried to get some out charging local authorities with incompetence.

World Airways chief Ed Daly said bungling by both U.S. and South Vietnamese officials hampered his attempts to fly out the refugees, not to mention the undisciplined rabble of South Vietnamese soldiers who forced their way aboard the planes.

There is an immediate need by the international community to try and help those in genuine need, such as the women and children and older folk, but there appears to be no concerted effort in this direction.

An offer by Canada of a 707 to help in such transportation would have been appropriate, and indeed there has been talk of one or more planes going to Saigon. There are difficulties though, such as the fact that some children may only have become separated from parents. Immigration Minister Andras moreover, speaks in terms of going through the routine process of sponsorship by relatives already here although of course, with events moving so rapidly, this could be too late.

However, as the events of the weekend have indicated, quite a number of children have been flown to Canada and the United States.

The agony of Vietnam meanwhile is typified by the cover picture of a news magazine, showing an older woman, a grandmother perhaps, stumbling across empty countryside carrying a shrapnel-pocked baby girl alive, but for how long?

A Study in Contrasts

Two contrasting news items in a recent issue of The Globe and Mail illustrate the heights and the depths of human behavior — from youthful heroism on the one hand to unbridled indiscipline and brutality on the other.

The first story, from Saint John, N.B., told the story of four brothers aged 7, 8, 9 and 10 who saved a 70-year-old man from drowning at the bottom of an 80-foot cliff below the Reversing Falls bridge.

The man had slipped and fallen down the almost sheer cliff face which a police official said later could only be negotiated by kids. Seeing the elderly man's peril, two of the boys slid down to where he lay and held his head above water while the other two went for help. A rescue squad worked against time and the tide to bring all three to safety.

The second story told the unhappy story of 40-year-old Robert Arthur Marks of Toronto who on a Sunday in November 1970 was assaulted by a gang of teenage boys and girls and was so badly injured he may never be able to work again.

Marks, father of two boys aged 14 and 10, and his wife had set off on a six-block walk to their new home when the assault occurred.

Since then it has been months in hospital, operations and financial woes for the couple, with Mr. Marks having to borrow money from his mother and sisters. He says nothing is left of a $25,000 award paid by the Criminal Injuries Compensation Board.

He says he would like to be able to work again, to be able to do something "more than read newspapers and watch TV."

Every decent citizen would have the same wish for Mr. Marks. At the same time it might be well to reflect on trends in "Toronto the good," on police warnings that it may be heading for the kind of dread atmosphere that pervades cities in the United States, and that the law should be made rigorous enough to control this kind of threat to the citizenry.

Setback

The Western World — and the United States in particular — has come a long way in a short time.

And the distance travelled has been by way of reverse.

The Communists have broken the peace accords achieved under the Nixon administration; they are now carving up South east Asia, and as The Yorkshire Post of Britain has put it, they have in the process handed the United states "a whole series of kicks in the teeth."

The Communists are getting their way with their tough, disciplined soldiery.

The Americans for their part are not long released from the long travail in Southeast Asia, and understandably are tolerating no further intervention. The government it supported is on the point of collapse and the Communists are ready to fill the vacuum.

What a legacy of policies gone awry . . . and what sinister prospects for all of Southeast Asia.

Credibility of Henry Kissinger Undermined

Soviet Union's Arms Support Breaks Spirit of Detente

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The confusion of Americans over the collapse of South Vietnam, and the shock that their client state might come under Communist domination entirely, also has international ramifications which the world is only beginning to see.

The obvious one of a Communist-dominated Indochina poses insula, the nightmare of the domino theory of one South East Asian nation after another tumbling to Communism, is probably coming true. But there is another ramification, perhaps more ominous.

My comments refer to an even wider, and in the light of South Vietnam's sudden defeat by very superior North Vietnamese forces, even more dangerous position which the U.S. has been in the world.

I am referring to the Soviet-American detente arrived at with much personal accord between the former President Richard Nixon and Brezhnev and sustained during his recent Vladivostok visit by President Ford, again with Brezhnev.

Detente means many things, but chiefly some kind of deal between the two super-nuclear powers on their arms control. And arms control is exactly what the Soviet Union has not been practicing during the last two years in Asia.

In spite of this new display of Soviet military strength used in the South East Asian conflict when they are committed to arms detente, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has come out in support of both detente with the U.S.S.R. and support for small nations friendly to the U.S. facing aggression.

How can he possibly do this given what is currently happening with such haste in South Vietnam? Where is his credibility?

The fully-armored North Vietnamese divisions sweeping into South Vietnam have been equipped mainly with Soviet tanks, and the foot soldiers mainly with Soviet automatic weapons.

The rockets pounding into Cambodia's capital city of Phnom Penh are Russian. The armored tactics used by the North Vietnamese for the first time in years of war against South Vietnamese and the American army left without in 1973 are Russian ones of merging infantry and tanks in a combined attack.

Who then has not been practicing detente? The Soviet Union.

Why did the chief North Vietnamese negotiator Lee Duc To, who worked with Kissinger on the 1973 truce in South East Asia, refuse to accept a Nobel Peace Prize for his work?

Was it because he knew even then that the truce was borrowing time needed by Hanoi for the final massive armament of North Vietnam but made impossible by the chronic American bombing of 1970-72?

And were the instructions to Lee Duc To and the North Vietnamese leaders in Hanoi, Soviet instructions, calling for the Nixon big push perhaps by 1975?

And why has not Dr. Kissinger reacted to information the North Vietnamese were arming about which he should, one must have been advised by the large U.S. intelligence network in Saigon?

The Soviet Union remains as it has been since the Second World War, the nation in the world capable of the most perfidy and of a cynicism in international dealings that is boundless in intent.

As Yar Dr. Kissinger, he has paid a great disservice to a nation going through a terrible trauma about the Vietnam disaster. Should he be permitted to survive in his high post?

Ed Havrot Chairman Northland Transportation Scene

By DON O'TEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service

TORONTO — A correction: Writing about Ed Havrot, PC member for Temiskaming and new chairman of the Ontario Northland Transportation Commission (ONTC) said it wasn't too strong in his riding and that the appointment might be to hold him up in advance of an election.

This apparently was wrong.

Word from the riding (And not from Havrot) is that he has a good personal grip on it.

Also he should make a good chairman of ONTC.

One reason there have been some doubts about this is that the member runs a bakery. And baking doesn't seem a particularly good training for the chairman of a railroad.

The baking business, however, is just incidental.

Havrot actually is an accountant. Taking over the bakery was just incidental.

And few would disagree with an accountant as chairman of a railroad.

But this time of somebody who's error.

This one concerns Treasurer Darcy McKeough and a group that should know better.

MacKeough made a speech to the Ontario Chamber of Commerce.

He talked about taxes, made some mention of Quebec, which, of course, collects its own taxes, and described some of the difficulties Ontario had had with the federal government in working out details of the tax collection it does for our province.

Somehow or other this got reported in the chamber's official publication Exchange as a declaration that within two or three years Ontario could "certainly" be collecting its own taxes.

This is one of the most uncertain "certainties" to cross the eye of man.

There is absolutely no chance, barring some epochal revolt in our whole taxation system, that we will be collecting our own taxes and the federal government that Ottawa collects for us.

On the first place, it is estimated that such a switch would be costly in administrative machinery.

And then among other factors there is the problem of fact that the government here is not unsure that the government that sends out the tax bills gets the total blame for them from most people.

Invisible Earnings Help Keep the British Afloat

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

LONDON — Britons often complain of the never-ending stream of tourists who crow-d into their beloved pubs and theatres, and slow traffic with their over-sized buses.

But it is the spending of those tourists that enables many of those pubs and theatres to stay in business, that creates thousands of jobs in the service industries, and that helps to whittle down the staggering U.K. trade deficit.

That deficit on "visible" (merchandise) trade rose to a record $3 billion in 1974, from about 5.7 billion in 1972.

But it was offset to the extent of $3.5 billion last year and $1 billion the previous year by "invisible" foreign earnings. Tourism ranks high as an earner of invisibles, along with investment receipts and payments for financial services.

The year-by-year growth of British earnings from tourism, however, is becoming less automatic than it was during the great travel boom of the 1960s.

Gross expenditure by visitors to Britain reached $2 billion in 1974, an increase over 1973 of 20 per cent. When last year's inflation rate of 19.1 per cent is taken into account, real earnings on tourism were almost unchanged.

The explanation, in a nutshell, is that fewer Americans are coming to the U.K.

An estimated 1.3 million U.S. visitors came here in 1974 — that's 17.5 per cent fewer than 1973's total of 1,576,000 and the lowest number since the Yom Kippur War of October, 1973.

The surviving British holiday wholesalers are stronger than ever, since the bankrupt capacity has been reduced while Britons' savings and disposable incomes are sharply last year.

The exodus of holiday-shy free-spending Britons is becoming a threat to the status of the U.K. as the only northern European country to earn more from foreign tourists than its own people spend as tourists abroad.

Canada — particularly Ontario—is a smaller but more dependable source of U.K. tourist earnings. Canadian visitors last year increased by 3.5 per cent to a total of 500,000, and are expected to number 520,000 in 1975.

Spending by those Canadians boosted 25 per cent to $60 million in 1974, and BTA thinks it will rise another 25 per cent this year.

One reason for the steadier trend is the well-established pattern of visits by Canadians to British friends and relatives.

More and more North Americans visiting or coming here in package tours such as the popular London Show Tour. Under such plans, the tourist pays an all-inclusive price (which, may be approximately the same as airfare alone on a scheduled transatlantic flight) and receives not only the flight but vouchers for hotel, airport-hotel shuttle, theatre tickets, gambling-casino membership, one day's car rental, perhaps even free cocktails and meals.

The considerable savings are based on the principle of bulk-buying—a principle that the British people themselves exploit fully in taking their own holidays.

The British package-tour trade—that is, the industry that caters to the British—has just gone through a major shake-out.

Three large companies, which had one-quarter of the market, collapsed after cutting their prices too steeply and then finding themselves unable to meet the sudden increase in fuel and other operating costs after the Yom Kippur War of October, 1973.

The surviving British holiday wholesalers are stronger than ever, since the bankrupt capacity has been reduced while Britons' savings and disposable incomes are sharply last year.

The exodus of holiday-shy free-spending Britons is becoming a threat to the status of the U.K. as the only northern European country to earn more from foreign tourists than its own people spend as tourists abroad.

20 YEARS AGO

April 7, 1955.

Sir Winston Churchill has resigned. "Retired" is not the word. A man retires when he withdraws from business. Churchill's business is life. He will not retire while breath is left in his aging, pudgy, gallant body. If there hasn't been on Churchill, the poet's hard, grey Englishman would still have been prepared to bleed and sweat and cry, to fight on the beaches, on the landing fields, in the streets and in the hills. But they would never have been able to say so. They needed a man, not hard, not grey, only half an Englishman, to give utterance to the cry locked in their souls. They found that man, and that man found them, and together they sweated and bled and wept and fought — and came at last to victory. He was a dreamer with his shirt sleeves rolled up, his tools in order, and his spirit kindled for the task ahead. He met life's challenges with spirit and with joy, and while he took his duties seriously, he never took himself too seriously. Sir Winston is one of history's most gallant knights ... The above is extracted from the editorial which appeared in The Intelligencer the day after Sir Winston Churchill resigned as Prime Minister of Great Britain.)

The summary of a large number of industrial workers, shop and plant employees and residents in general, who underwent X-ray examination a few weeks ago can be taken as definite proof that the war against tuberculosis is being waged with considerable success here. Of well over 2,000 people, only one was found to be a victim of active tuberculosis and was forwarded to an institution for treatment. Originally, the clinic sponsored by the Department of Health was intended only for workers in war plants and other industry. So well, however, was the idea received that government officials decided to extend the service, gratis, to workers in small plants, businesses, shops and offices. Dr. G. G. Beasley is director in charge of the Travelling Chest Clinic, Department of Health, for the city and district.

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

I do not wish at this time to go into all the details of the incident which prompted me to write this letter. However, I would like to ask the help of citizens of Belleville this bit of hard-learned information.

If you happen, for some reason or other, to have to call some dentist in Belleville other than your regular one, use a fake name. Even if you just need information ask your dentist is not available — make sure you do not give your real name. If you do, this will almost guarantee that you will not see your dentist for months. Do not underestimate the power of the telephone and female staff members — they'll get you very time.

Thank you for this opportunity to pass on this valuable third information to the population of Belleville.

Dr. Doolittle Theme Of County Ice Carnival

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Pantasy Land, a two-hour trip to the world of Dr. Doolittle and his animals, Sunday, was presented by the Prince Edward Skating Club at the County Centre.

The ice carnival, featuring guest solo skaters from Frankford, Wellington, Belleville and Mattawa, packed the arena with spectators.

Highlights of the show included a solo by Donna Kings of Picton, a dance number by Miss King and Wayne Backer, a novelty number titled Imitation to a Bullfight by Mark Mulima, Darin Barber and Doug Thoms and a demonstration of power skating.

Solos also were performed by Shanne Smith of the Frankford Figure Skating Club, Shaei Knott, Quinte club and Andrea Channell, Wellington club.

Colorful group numbers such as Dr. Doolittle and his animals and Caterpillar proved popular with the crowd.

Scene-stealer was three-year-old Suzanne-Marie Bechard of Picton who made her debut as a butterfly in a solo number.

The carnival was staged to earn money to pay debts owed by the Prince Edward Figure Skating Club.

About 150 youngsters participate in the skating classes but their fees do not cover the cost of ice time.

Approximately 90 children starred in Sunday's presentation.

Instructors for the club are Lana Latchford who runs the learn-to-skate program and Shirley Schooratra, teacher for advanced skaters.

Hockey players who studied power skating were taught this year by Howard Seeley.

Cancer Blitz Under Way

By NAN WHITLAW
Staff Correspondent

Bancroft — The Bancroft unit of the Canadian Cancer Society launched its local campaign for funds on Saturday, April 5 with the traditional Daffodil Tea for North Hastings Residents.

The tea room, which was decorated with fresh daffodil blooms helped patrons believe the rumor that spring is just around the corner even though the snow was a foot deep outside the door.

The local campaign is headed by Anna Wilson, who has also organized a blitz night for the volunteer canvasers.

In addition to their fund-raising efforts, local unit members are involved in a public education program and in patient care and services.

In charge of the patient services is Beth Mattin who, along with volunteers provides transportation, gifts and homecare for cancer patients in an area that stretches from Whitney and Madawaska to McArthurs Mills, Coe Hill and Cardiff.

Mrs. Mattin said she is enthusiastic about the patient services program, adding, "even more funds than are collected in this area are given to us by the Ontario division for patient care."

The North Hastings campaign for cancer society funds now is officially underway and volunteers will be calling at homes throughout the area during the next month.

Campaign Begins

North Hastings residents attended the Daffodil Tea given by the Bancroft Unit of the Canadian Cancer Society Saturday. The Tea is the traditional launch for the campaign for funds in the local area.

Picton to Appoint Reeve To Replace Ailing Official

PICTON — Town council tonight is expected to appoint a new reeve of Picton from its members during the regular April meeting.

At a special council session held last month the resignation of reeve Ross Crookwright was read by mayor Donald King.

Reeve Crookwright has been ill for several weeks and submitted his resignation saying he did not feel his health would permit him to continue with his duties.

When a reeve is appointed from council there will be a vacant councillor's seat created by the shuffle.

This vacancy may be filled by former councillor John Kinney, who sought re-election last December but was defeated, or any other member of the community council chooses to appoint.

Of those who ran for council and were defeated, Mr. Kinney won the most votes.

He served a two-year term on town council prior to his defeat in the hotly contested 1974 elections.

Minor Softball First Goal Of Newest Kinsmen Club

By CHRIS ALMEY
Staff Correspondent

TWEED — The Quinte area witnessed the birth of a new service club Friday night — the Kinsmen Club of Tweed-Hungerford. Club Secretary Leonard O'Leary said that the club has a young nucleus, that there are 20 members who are under 23.

MP Jack Ellis was on hand to watch Claude Leclair sworn in as president. The charter chairman was Kin Joe Dutkiewicz of the Kinsmen Club of Belleville. Secretary O'Leary said "Kin Dutkiewicz was the expansion chairman. He brought us from a phone call to where we are tonight."

How did the club get started? "It was a shot in the dark," the secretary said. "We know there are things than can be done. Our major project will be minor softball. We know we can do this. The majority of members are young with families. With support of something like this club we can get into it seriously."

Chairman for the charter evening was Belleville Kinsmen Club president Bob Thomas. He also Initiated The New Members. Ken Murchie, deputy governor from Gananoque installed the Tweed-Hungerford Kinsmen Club officers. Governor of district 6, John Jenkinson of Brockville presented the charter.

Chili Con Carne

one lb. hamburger large can tomato sauce one bay leaf
one minced garlic clove
one medium onion chopped two celery stalks, chopped
two carrots finely diced
½ green pepper, diced cinnamon allspice chili powder
thyme oregano paprika
salt and pepper sweet basil
one tbsp. minced parsley
one can pork and beans

Better Listening Topic for Secretaries' Seminar

Wilf Wilkinson

"People today just don't listen."

Iris Downing, seminar chairwoman for the National Secretaries Association, Bay of Quinte Chapter, says that's the reason she chose "Please! Listen" as the topic for the group's fifth annual seminar held Saturday at Centennial Secondary School.

The seminar, which was opened by Mayor Robin Jeffrey, included small discussion groups for the 100 persons who attended followed by a speech by Wilf Wilkinson, the National Secretaries Association's Boss of the Year.

Before his address, Marjory Cross Barbara Haynes Marie Reed and Lena Dearborn summed up the discussion groups' findings.

Mrs. Cross a past president of the association, said people have six bad listening habits.

"Our minds won't wait for the speaker's words; we think we know already what the speaker is going to say; we're looking at the speaker, not listening; busy listeners let part of their attention wander; we mine the main idea and emotions make us deaf."

Mrs. Cross suggested a formula for better listening: "Tune in, shutting everything else out; Question what the speaker is saying; listen as you really hear what is being said and review in your mind what was said."

Barbara Haynes told the women attending the seminar that the speaker's personality makes a good listener.

Lena Dearborn said that a person's environment and experience affects the way she listens.

She said if a person is used to a great deal of noise, for example, they might habitually tune out what is being said.

Geraldine R. Tepper, Barister and Solicitor, was the afternoon speaker.

Her main topic was Canada Pension and the new rules as of January 1, 1975.

Mrs. Tepper explained the three main recipient benefits of CPP retirement pensions, disability benefit and survivors' benefits.

One new ruling she said, is that husbands and or children for in a physical sense by various levels of government.

"But these people need more than dull and to give it we must listen".

Mr. Wilkinson said that during World War II it was discovered that combat fatigue in aviators was in part caused by the strain of listening to the noise of plane to plane communication.

"Interestingly, the study also discovered that a person's listening ability can be improved."

He said that people must realize that to listen we use physical energy and that listening takes concentration.

"You can't, listen to more than one thing at a time."

He quoted one expert who deplored North Americans' need for "background murk to everything" and who believed the habit of having radio or television blaring is "mind crippling".

Even piped music in stores, Mr. Wilkinson said, is distracting to shoppers and employees.

To better listening habits, he suggested that the audience close their eyes for one minute and concentrate on the sounds around them.

"Don't think of anything except what you can hear.

"In this noisy age we learn to shut out sounds for our own comfort but we mustn't become so expert at shutting out that we can't tune back in."

'Lady-like' Clothes in Demand Again

MONTREAL (CP) — The return to femininity in women's fashion has created a demand for designer Hugh Garber's clothing. The Montreal designer is known for his classic, casual but ladylike styles, even when pantsuits were in vogue.

"I like to dress ladies in ladylike clothes," said Garber in a recent interview. "While is my favorite color for any season and I like navy too."

"I hang up the items in each of my collections and look at them for a week before I know if I really like them."

He designs a Hugh Garber label line and another called Grasshopper for Margo Dress of Montreal. Since he started designing for Margo seven years ago, Garber has developed such a substantial United States market that the firm has established a New York office and factory.

Garber always yearned to be a designer. After completing a two-year course in dress designing at the Hornsey College of Art in London, he attended the Fashion Arts Academy in Montreal.

He was lured by the European fashion houses and ateliers emanating from the Montreal academy he wrote to nine top designers in Italy requesting interviews.

"I was sure my sketches would set the fashion world on fire," he said.

He landed a job with Patrick de Barbarin of Rome and remained there for two years. Then he designed for a ready-to-wear firm for four months until he realized there was no future for him in Italy, and the pay was poor.

Back in Montreal he canvassed the fashion manufacturers and was hired by Margo Dress. His fall '75 line will include dresses in flannels, corduroys and velvet.

His affinity to using prints is obvious when he says, "I've found some charming race-horse prints for the fall line."

Return to Femininity

Strike by Women Paralyzes City for One Day

BOMBAY (CP)—Life in Bangalore, a major Indian metropolis with a population of nearly two million, was virtually paralysed for 24 hours recently.

Law courts, colleges, cinemas and shops shut down. In some areas, even cigarette kiosks were not open.

The general strike was called by the Women's Action Committee for Justice. According to S. Pramila, its chairman, it was the first general strike in any part of the world organized by women.

The shut-down was ordered by Bangalore's women to protest injustices to "widows, wives and daughters" in the recent land reforms legislation passed by the legislature of Karnataka (formerly Mysore) state.

Associations of lawyers, students and shopkeepers as well as several opposition political parties backed the general strike.

"The response from our men was just splendid," said Miss Pramila. "It shows that men are not selfish."

The Karnataka women complain that the legislation will make it difficult for women to own as much land as men and for daughters and widows to inherit land. They call it "man-made, male-dominated" legislation.

The opposition Socialist and Communist parties have promised women their "fullest support" on the issue.

The Women's Action Committee for Justice is hoping to launch a national campaign to protect the ownership rights of women in regard to land. It says that women's rights in Indian states have been treated "shabbily" by their "male-dominated" administrations.

Sashikala Kulkarni, women's leader of Poona City in Maharashtra state, has suggested a "women's march on Parliament" to focus attention on the problem.

"Even though a woman is the prime minister of India, our legislators and officials do not care for the interests of women," Mrs. Kulkarni told a meeting.

Meanwhile, the Karnataka committee has called for the resignation of Mrs. Nagarathna Amma as Speaker of the state legislative assembly.

It says that women in positions of authority should either fight for women's rights or admit failure and quit.

Says Narayan Sastry, a Bangalore businessman: "I hope the government will stand firm against these women. Unless equal rights demand is only a cover for the ultimate female domination of our society."

Sastry plans to organize a group for the defence of men's rights.

Books By And About Women

OUR HIDDEN HERITAGE
by Eleanor Tufts

One hears so rarely of great women artists, few of us know much about women such as the French artist Rosa Bonheur, famous for her paintings of animals, particularly horses Nor are we well acquainted with Suzanne Valadon, a friend of Toulouse-Lautrec, and whose son, Maurice Utrillo, became a well-known painter.

However, our Hidden Heritage remedies this Both Valadon and Bocheur are included in this book along with twenty other women artists.

An interesting fact emerges in this study of artistic women: Most of these women were the daughters of artists They were able to learn how to paint because of the availability of their fathers' studios and training.

These interesting portrayals provide new insights into the lives and works, the frustrations and successes of these talented women The author delves into their relationships with their contemporaries, husbands, friends, and families.

Ann Landers

Atheist Says Ann Offends

Dear Readers: Recently I said I was waiting for permission to print a good letter from an atheist. I use the writer's name. Today, permission was granted. Here it is.

The author, Madalyn Murray O'Hair, founder of the Society of Separationists, Inc.

Dear Ann Landers: I am addressing you because I receive thousands of pieces of mail each year with clippings of your column enclosed, as you continue to refer persons with troubles to their minister, rabbi and priest.

The atheistic community of the United States comprises about 20 per cent of the population. This means you are offending a helluva lot of people week in and week out. Your columns are replete with religious references also, in other vein.

The Society of Separationists, Inc., which I founded, is dedicated to the common good of decent people, fine citizens, educated and mature adults. Please stop offending them by pretending they don't exist. Telling an atheist to go to his minister with a family problem is like telling a Jew to light a candle for the Virgin Mary. Consideration, understanding and empathy extends to us also, along with everyone else.—Madalyn Murray O'Hair

Dear Madalyn Murray O'Hair: I have sent you on TV and am impressed by your sincerity and courage.

I, too, am a firm believer in the separation of religion and government, but after that we part company.

I'm sorry if you feel I am offending "a helluva lot of people" in my column. I use the reason my columns are "replete with religious references" is because I happen to be a person who has religious beliefs and my column reflects my convictions.

When one has an audience of 60 million readers, seven days a week, 365 days a year, it is impossible to tailor every reply to every segment of society. Surely you are aware that I stop telling people to seek help from a minister, rabbi or priest when you yourself have stated that 80 per cent of the people in the United States do hold religious beliefs. (Actually, it's 77 per cent, according to a recent Gallup poll.) I frequently advise people to seek help from physicians, psychiatrists, lawyers, and marriage counselors as well.

I'm sure many atheists are fine citizens, educated and mature. But I see no reason for those individuals to be offended by my references to God. The way I see it, if the advice doesn't fit they can ignore it.

Sincerely yours,
Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: You are a traitor to your sex. Instead of sticking up for us women who deserve your help, you always support the selfish, inconsiderate husbands who should get a swift kick in the bartstool.

Why don't you be honest with your readers and tell it like it is? Some of these jerks we're stuck with are just plain stinkers and they wouldn't come home for Elizabeth Taylor. Signed me—Former Ann Fan in Ra-

Dear Former: I agree that some men are stinkers—but who picked them? Since you brought it up, beauty doesn't guarantee faithful homecoming. Elizabeth Taylor now is in the process of considering No. 6.

How Many Ministers Do You Know Who Are Women?

VANCOUVER (CP) — A headline on a newspaper advertisement for International Women's Year says: "Most parents don't encourage their daughters to become doctors, lawyers and politicians."

It might have included ministers.

Although enrolement of female students at Vancouver School of Theology (VST) has climbed in recent years, there still are only 11 women among 52 full-and part-time students and no female professors.

"The number of women interested in studying theology and in professional ministries is growing," said Rev. Tom Anderson, an ordained United Church minister and a professor at Christian social ethics at VST. "I suspect it's because of women's changing role in society."

Mr. Anderson said the women's movement has forced re-examination of some Christian attitudes.

He cited three issues of increasing concern: the role change and sex identity of women in the ministry; social justice for women and whether there is such a thing as a women's theology.

"In a number of churches women played a key, if not a dominant, role in parish work but not in leadership. That's changing, or I hope it is, he said.

"On the surface women have been well accepted but I don't know how carefully male theology students have worked through their feelings toward women on a deeper level.

"In the parish, the female minister is sometimes seen by other women as a threat. Her fellow clergy have difficulty relating to her too. They're used to relating to women in a more sexual way and find it hard to treat her as a peer."

Mr. Anderson said the problem of sex identity in the ministerial profession has been more overly discussed in recent years.

"In the past, men's sexual identity has been challenged and ministers have often been thought of as more or less feminine.

"Now women are entering the ministry and are being confronted with the attitude that they're entering a masculine profession."

Mr. Anderson said the question of social justice for women focuses on the church's relation to injustices towards women, adding that this issue is the least ambiguous of the three.

"The church teaches that we must love our neighbors as ourselves and if you show intelligent caring for your neighbors then you seek justice for them.

"If we are to act in accordance with Jesus' teachings and in accordance with loving our neighbors, then we must attribute dignity and power to all human beings."

The possibility of women's theology is in the sense that one speaks of a black theology or a Third World theology still is being explored, Mr. Anderson said.

"I don't think the church's track record has been as bad as society's but neither has it been good. We're working at changing."

Teachers Face New Problems

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—If unstuffed educationists are perplexed about the quality of education, no wonder the public is confused, says Irene Henderson, educational secretary for the Federation of Women Teachers' Associations of Ontario (FWTAO).

Speaking at a meeting of the Federation's Algoma chapter, Miss Henderson said: "The job of the teacher has been clouded by the rapidity and frequency of new fields entering into education.

She said this has caused a move from the basic academic education into the social aspect, a shift problem which is understanding the students' emotional difficulties.

"Approximately 15 new subjects have been added to bring the curriculum to twice the down to approximately five minutes of a full teaching day."

With each addition to the teacher's job, it becomes "less clear which way the quality of education is travelling."

Miss Henderson said teachers have an average of 35 students per classroom and of these 35, five are seen as emotional problem, not to mention a learning problem."

She suggested that someone has to clarify the teachers' goals.

"It is up to society to decide what the schools should be doing. Teachers are concerned about the children as a whole, but when we look at this aspect, it is difficult to solve one problem without aggravating another.

"It is difficult to educate a child in the basics, let alone his whole potential. The problem is we are letting each child develop at his own rate. That creates a problem with an average class of 35 students. This is not only a problem, it is simply impossible."

She said teachers are making the system work reasonably considering the high student-teacher ratio.

"In a business, you would not put one man in charge of 35 people, but teachers are confronted with that problem every day."

Doris Clark

Is Son's Divorced Wife Still Daughter-in-law?

Dear Doris: We have a heartbreaking situation. Our son has divorced his first wife and married again. Is the first wife still our daughter-in-law or not?

The children too would like to know if she is still their sister-in-law. She's a lovely girl and we all like her, but we do not know just which it is. For Christmas and birthdays, do we just count her alone, or not?

Your column is heartwarming.

N-Puzzled.

Dear Puzzled: Since the association or contract between you son and your loveable friend has now been dissolved, the "in-law" relationship is also dissolved. This does not mean that you need to lose her as a dear friend and an almost-daughter.

Consider the number of persons who have found their way into lifelong places in the affection of others, even to the point of being seen as "one of the family". We often hear this phrase. Love is too precious for us to let a loved one go lightly.

I think you might well remember her on special occasions such as Christmas or birthdays. All you have to remember is that neither she nor the new wife should ever be put into an embarrassing position by both being invited to a family gathering where they would come face to face. Your son should be considered in this ton.

Dear Doris: My grandmother will be 991 in a few months' time and has been going down hill fast — rapidly fall.

She lives with my uncle, who is a bachelor and also has a heart condition, making it impossible to care for her properly.

Doris, you wouldn't believe the shape their apartment is in. It's dirty, it is incredible.

My grandmother has high blood pressure and diabetes; her legs give out on her frequently and she falls. She is also incontinent, and is not kept clean.

I think she should be in a nursing home but my uncle won't consent, saying she won't go. I've called every organization possible — the V.O.N., Public Health, her doctor, and they all said they can't do anything without her permission or my uncle.

I think it's a sin to sit back and watch someone you love end their days this way. Surely they could be happy and comfortable in a nursing home.

I don't know whether to take it into my own hands and have a doctor in to see her or not, or do I just have to sit back and watch her die this way?

Worried Granddaughter.

Dear Worried: You do need consent of the person concerned or her next of kin.

But if she has high blood pressure and diabetes, she must be being seen regularly by her doctor? Surely such unsanitary conditions could be the means of bringing about public health inspection and resulting visits from the V.O.N. even if just to give your grandmother comfort. I'd guess that your uncle hates the idea of changes, but in this case a kindly nursing home will surely have to be the answer.

Keep working away at enlisting the doctor's sympathy — and you may surprise yourself by getting somewhere. Even stubborn uncles have been known to give in to pressure.

Two good ways to beat tree and shrub pests

John Bradshaw

Left unprotected, even the healthiest tree or shrub can fall prey to pests.

Yet keeping your trees and shrubs healthy and free from pests is usually not a costly or time-consuming business.

The expert gardener maintains a year-round tree and shrub health programme that may, he can catch a tiny problem before it becomes a disaster.

CIL has several very good products for such a program; here are two you should be using now.

CIL Organic Microbial Spray is a mix-and-spray liquid containing "Thuricide". It controls insect larvae like budworm, hornworm, looper's and other caterpillars. It cannot harm friendly insects — like ladybugs or bees, and it's safe for pets, fish and plants.

CIL SLIK* is a mix-and-spray systemic that controls the hard-to-get-at pests like leaf-miners, aphids, mites, and cutworms as well as armyworms and webworms. CIL SLIK contains two pesticides that control a broad spectrum of insects. It's an unusually effective product, and you should have it on your garden shelf; pick up one with the bottle of CIL Organic Microbial Spray.

Oil Price Bill Before House Hefty Weapon at Conference

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government goes into Wednesday's negotiations with the provinces on petroleum prices with a hefty weapon in reserve.

A bill before the Commons — not yet passed—would give Ottawa the right to set price for interprovincial sales of oil and natural gas if a suitable agreement cannot be reached in negotiation.

Consideration of the bill, introduced last fall, was delayed in December when it ran into stiff opposition from Progressive Conservatives, mainly those from Alberta.

Debate had been expected to resume after the Christmas recess, but Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said it had been delayed until at least after the meeting Wednesday.

Main reason for the delay, federal officials said, was a goodwill gesture to the producing provinces, who oppose it as an intrusion into their jurisdiction over natural resources.

However, if Prime Minister Trudeau and the 10 provincial premiers reach a deadlock in their negotiations ...towards a compromise, Ottawa could might bring the bill into play.

With a majority in the Commons, the Liberals could pass the bill and then same their price. However, the government would prefer that the new prices be set at the bargaining table.

Energy Minister Donald Getty of Alberta said last week he doubts whether the meeting will arrive at a specific price, but might reach agreement on the general principle that oil prices should be high enough to encourage exploration.

Alberta has "no preconceived price expectations" going into the meeting, he said, but published reports indicate the province wants a $2 or $3 increase on the current from domestic price of $8.50 a barrel.

Those increases would add between six and nine cents to the retail price of a gallon of gasoline or home heating fuel. In total they would cost the consumer $1.4 to $2.1 billion annually.

Reaction among consuming provinces is that no large increases should be approved. Ontario Premier William Davis says he will accept no significant increase while Premier Gerald Regan of Nova Scotia says there should be no increase at all.

The federal government, which sees its role at the conference as mediator between the conflicting views, says some increase is needed to encourage conservation and to provide additional revenue for Alberta and Saskatchewan.

Saskatchewan May Ask $2 Increase for Oil

TORONTO (CP) — Saskatchewan will press for an increase of at least $2 a barrel for oil at next week's federal-provincial energy conference if his compromise proposal is rejected, Premier Allan Blakeney said Sunday.

"If people are not concerned about security of supply, then we in Saskatchewan will be not pressing for a significant increase in the price of oil—$2 a barrel is the minimum we would consider," Mr. Blakeney told a news conference here.

Earlier, the Saskatchewan premier met with Ontario Premier William Davis to brief him on the proposal Saskatchewan will present at the Ottawa conference Wednesday and Thursday.

The proposal is for a multi-billion dollar fund to be set up by the federal government and the oil and gas producing provinces for exploration and development.

Mr. Blakeney said Saskatchewan would content itself with any minimal increase if his plan is accepted by the federal government and the other nine premiers.

"Every cent of the increase should be spent on exploration and development in Canada," the Saskatchewan premier said.

Ontario Premier Davis, who said Saturday night his province would strongly oppose any major increase from the present $8.50 per barrel, was noncommital about the Saskatchewan proposal.

The Saskatchewan leader is scheduled to meet with New Brunswick Premier Richard Hatfield today to brief him on Saskatchewan's position.

Mr. Blakeney said he still hopes to meet with Quebec's Robert Bourassa before formal talks begin Wednesday.

MP's Pay Debate Expected

OTTAWA (CP) — It's been a cold spring on Parliament Hill but MPs will walk into a blast of political heat when they return from an 11-day Easter recess today.

That quarrelsome bill to increase their salaries by 33 1-3 per cent is expected to be called for debate sometime this week, perhaps this afternoon. It is likely to revive the storm of controversy which blew across the country when it first was introduced just before Christmas.

MPs now earn a basic $18,000 a year, plus $8,000 a year in tax-free expense allowance, a total of $26,000. The bill calls for a $24,000 salary and an allowance of $10,000, for a total of $34,000. It also would peg these incomes to the industrial wage index.

The bill is a modified version of the one presented to the Commons in December. The original, prepared after talks between backbenchers in all parties, proposed boosting the salary and the allowance by 50 per cent.

That proposal caused an outcry that forced the government to reduce the planned increase by almost 17 per cent. However, the reduction did little to quell the opposition from all parts of the country.

The New Democrats and Social Credit are expected to fight the modified bill and they might be joined by some Progressive Conservatives.

Sarnia Drama Winners

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — Sarnia Little Theatre has won the 1975 Western Ontario Drama League festival for its presentation of the Neil Simon comedy drama, The Gingerbread Lady.

The production, which also received four other awards at the festival's concluding ceremonies Saturday, will represent the region in the Theatre Ontario competitive festival next month in Hamilton.

Two Convicted For Attica Prison Revolt

BUFFALO, N.Y. — New York state has won its first convincing victory in its effort to prosecute persons indicted in the 1971 Attica prison rebellion.

John Hill, 23, of Buffalo was convicted of murder Saturday in the beating death of guard William Quinn. Co-defendant Charles Pernasilice, 22, of Syracuse was convicted of an assault charge.

Quinn was attacked by prisoners on the first day of the Sept. 9-13, 1971, uprising and died of head injuries two days later, the first of 43 men—32 prisoners and 11 employees—to die in the revolt.

Hill and Pernasilice were both charged with murder, but state Supreme Court Justice Gilbert King instructed the jury to disregard the murder count against Pernasilice and consider only lesser charges. He also gave the jury the option of considering lesser charges against Hill, but allowed the murder charge to stand.

King ordered bail on the defendants revoked and remanded the men to the Erie County jail centre, setting sentencing for April 2.

Insurance Firms Shy Away From Nuclear Plant Policies

OTTAWA (CP) — The Atomic Energy Control Board apparently has been unable to talk private insurers into covering Canadians against "personal injury" arising from the existence of nuclear facilities.

The insurers are prepared to cover Canadians against physical injury, death or property damage arising from a "no clear incident," but they are wary of the term "personal injury" which might result not from an "incident" but from location in the area of a nuclear plant.

Claims might result from a decline in property values. Or an individual who found a nuclear plant nearby might become incapacitated by anxiety and claim damages, even if there was no incident.

The Atomic Energy Control Board and the Nuclear Insurance Association of Canada have been discussing the extent of liability for five years, since Parliament passed the Nuclear Liability Act.

The act would require nuclear facilities to have $75 million worth of insurance against "personal injury" arising from a nuclear incident. The haggling over what "personal injury" means nearly resulted in an impasse at one point in negotiations.

The government has agreed to cover the "fringe areas," which would be contested in court if claims were made, while the private insurers will stick to a standard policy specifying liability for physical or property damage arising from a nuclear incident.

In Ottawa, meanwhile, experts are working out the amount of basic insurance 15 or 20 nuclear facilities across Canada must have.

The act requires anyone handling fissionable—explosive—materials to have $75 million in insurance.

The policy for each plant will set out the amount of basic insurance, covering the worst expected damage that might result from an incident, the operator must carry. This might be $5 million for a fuel fabricating plant or a small university research reactor.

The remaining $70 million would be in the form of supplementary insurance on which premiums would be paid.

Petes Win Five Straight to Take Grand Championship

Peterborough forward, Bob Walling, puts the Petes ahead 4-2 with this goal in the third period of the Belleville Peewee Shrine Tournament Grand Championship game. Jean Lamon, Nepean goalie, made the original save, but dropped the rebound and Walling tucked it under the goalie's stick. Defenceman Jeff York was almost helpless in the situation. Peterborough went on to win the Grand Championship contest 6-2.

Sunday is supposed to be a day of rest, but obviously Peterborough's Jeff Larmer doesn't believe it. In two games on the Sabbath, Larmer scored four goals and three assists to lead his club to the A and Grand Championship of the 1975 Belleville Peewee Shrine Hockey Tournament at the Memorial Arena.

In the A Championship Peterborough edged St. Catharines 4-1 and Larmer led the way with two goals and assist. In the Grand Championship he tallied two more and added a pair of helpers as the Petes rolled to a 6-2 win over Nepean Raiders.

Until Sunday's games Larmer had scored only three goals and had picked up only one assist. His output in the finals was enough to give him the tourney's Most Valuable Player award.

Peterborough coach, Bob Gardner was more than pleased with his team's performance.

"We played well all weekend," he said. "It wasn't just a couple of guys either, it was everybody on the team, although there were a few who played particularly well."

Jeff York did particularly well were Larmer, his goalie Mark Evans and a defenceman named Tim Killingbeck, who was the tournament's trophy as the Most Valuable Defenceman.

This is the fifth straight year Peterborough has attended the Shrine Tournament and the second time they have won the Grand Championship of the 16-team event. Their first title came in 1969 in Gardner's first year of coaching.

"We like it here," said the coach, "you've always treated well when you come to Belleville. I've been to a lot of tournaments since I began coaching and this is probably the best one. The competition is good and the organization is great."

The Petes finished first in their Ontario Hockey Association AAA grouping with an 18-1 record. They lost in the second round of OMHA playdowns however, to Oshawa (a team from their own grouping). They also won the consolation title of the Oshawa tournament, won the Grand Championship of the London-Forest City tournament and lost in the semi-finals of the Quebec City tournament.

"We played 55 games this year and only lost seven of them," said Gardner. Five of those wins came at the Belleville Tournament. The Petes defeated Toronto Elues 4-2 Friday night, Brampton 7-2 and Burlington 5-4 in overtime Saturday and on Sunday downed St. Kitts and Nepean on their march to the title.

Nepean, the B Champion and runner-up to Peterborough for the Grand Championship, lost its opening game Friday night to St. Catharines 3-1. Saturday they beat Belleville Dixie Lees 7-2 and Whitby 2-1. Sunday they squeezed past Niagara Falls 5-4 to win the B title before losing to the Petes.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, MONDAY, APRIL 7, 1975

Shriners' Hockey Tournament At a Glance

FIRST ROUND

FRIDAY

Winners advance to A competition, losers drop to B.

PETERBOROUGH 4
TORONTO 2

Peterborough Petes, the pre-tournament favorites, edged Toronto Blues in the first game of the tourney. The hustling Petes had no trouble containing the Blues and Peterborough goalie, Mark Evan, was sharp whenever called upon.

BRAMPTON 7
Ottawa 2

The first period told the story as Brampton jumped into a 3-0 lead. Ottawa battled back, but couldn't get enough past goalie Larry Cannon. Again the netminding at both ends of the ice was sharp.

BURLINGTON 7
BELLEVILLE 1

Burlington skated, hustled and played good positional hockey to rout the host Belleville Rollins Majors. Despite the score, Hugh Northey was outstanding in Rollins goal. Mike Preddo and Scott Ward led the Burlington attack with two goals and two assists each. Jamie Robertson was the only Belleville marksman.

TRENTON 4
NIAGARA FALLS 2

Trenton came esp with a strong all round effort and surprised everyone with this victory over Niagara. Doug Ball fired two goals to bend up the Trenton scorers. The winners got tremendous netminding from Al Marchand, who proved you don't have to be big to be good in goal. Marchand was the smallest goalie in the tourney.

KINGSTON 7
BELLEVILLE DIXIE LEE 0

The locals were a last minute substitution, replacing Whitby in this game. The Whitby squad encountered a heavy snow storm just as they were leaving home. The scrappy minor squad kept Kingston off balance for most of the game with their aggressive approach to the contest. In the third period the Limestone City crew pumped in three goals that put the game out of reach. Ian MacInnis scored twice to top the Kingston scoring list.

ST. CATHARINES 2
NEPEAN 1

St. Kitts had a one-two punch in this game as Guy Pacquette and Scott Madole took care of scoring duties. Nepean opened the scoring, but Pacquette tallied to tie things up. Madole drew the assist on the goal. Late in the third, Madole scored from Pacquette for the win.

KINGSTON TOWNSHIP 2
WINDSOR 2

The Ken and Ray's crew came out like gangbusters and held a 3-0 lead before Windsor even got going. It was a surprise to everyone when Kingston won the game. Windsor was supposed to have been one o the higher seeded teams and the team from the Township hadn't even been given a rating. Troy St. Hilaire, Kingston's goalie, was instrumental in his club's victory. Marty Stover picked up a goal and two assists in the Kingston win and teammate Tracy Drinka scored twice.

LONDON 1
WHITBY 0

Because of the storm, neither Whitby nor Cornwall could make it to Belleville. Cornwall pulled out of the tourney unexpectedly, but Whitby assured organizers they would be able to make it down for the second round on Saturday. Belleville Dixie Lees were brought in to replace Whitby and Whitby moved into Cornwall's spot against London. The Whitby club automatically lost their first game by default and dropped into B competition, while London was awarded this 1-0 victory and automatically advanced to the A side.

SATURDAY

A QUARER-FINALS

Winners in this round advanced while losers were eliminated.

BRAMPTON 2

The Petes rolled to victory in this one. Brad Cowie and Kevin Casey fired two goals each and Warren Ferguson picked up a goal and two assists. The Petes played Todd Batley in goal, proving they had not one, but two strong netminders.

BURLINGTON 4
TRENTON 1

Burlington took advantage of a few sloppy mistakes in the third period to put the game on ice. The winners scored twice in the final frame. Trenton had several good chances, but couldn't get the puck past Burlington goalie Bob Doerrsam. Emilio Iovio tallied twice to top the winner's scorers and Bryant Seaton added a goal and two assists.

ST. CATHARINES 5
KINGSTON 2

Kingston showed the effects of a long layoff. They've been unable to get ice time in the Limestone City and they've only played twice in the last six weeks. St. Kitts simply outclassed the losers. Guy Holmes led the way with his two markers.

KINGSTON TOWNSHIP 1
LONDON 4

Tray St. Hilaire was again between the posts and was the mainstay of the Kingston squad. He robbed several London attackers from point blank range. Scott Rawling gave his team all the scoring they needed to earn the victory.

B QUARTER-FINALS

Winners in this round advanced while losers were eliminated.

OTTAWA 3

After falling behind 2-0, Toronto Bantals had to earn a 3-3 tie at the end of regulation time. Randy Kirton led the Blues comeback drive as he scored twice and drew an assist. With the score tied, a sudden-death, overtime period had to be played. Kirton was instrumental in setting up the winning goal by John Dvornechuk. Along with Kirton, Steve Poland also drew an assist.

NIAGARA FALLS 5
BELLEVILLE 2

The local Rollins Lumber team appeared to have fully recovered from their first round loss Friday as they jumped into an early 3-0 lead. Tom Quesnel scored that one from Steve Slaughter. That however, was the only lead they held as Niagara bounced back with five straight markers. Mary Grant scored three times and picked up an assist for Niagara and teammate Gary Gajjarolo tallied two other two. Belleville's Jamie Robertson rounded the scoring on with Tony Parks drawing the assist.

NEPEAN 7
BELLEVILLE DIXIE LEE 2

Gill Egan scored three times and Jamie York added a pair as the raiders dumped the locals. Nepean held a 3-0 lead before Belleville got on the scoreboard. Craig Saxby and D'Arcy Mager got the only goals for Dixie Lee. Mager also got an assist, as did Brian Cuskelly, Dave Howe, and Stu Emerson.

WHITBY 3
WINDSOR 1

Whitby made the trip a day late, but they were right on time when it came to playing as they blanked Windsor. Darrell Blacquiere tallied twice and added an assist to give his team the win. Dale Hinetz earned the shutout.

A SEMI-FINALS

BULINGTON 4

Peterborough proved why they were chosen the tournament favorites as they rallied well behind Burlington squad in overtime. Mark Evans, Tom the Petes, and Bob Doerrsam had a real goaltenders duel as both played exceptionally well. The Petes held a 4-1 lead early in the second period but Burlington bounced back with three consecutive goals to earn the tie and force the sudden-death overtime period. Tim Killingbeck was the man of the hour as he potted the game winner for the Petes. He also drew an assist earlier in the game.

ST. CATHERINES 1
KINGSTON TOWNSHIP 8

In another goaltending duel, Troy St. Hilaire from the Township, lost to Brent Eymann. St. Hilaire had so many shots that he was mentally exhausted. Guy Holmes was credited with the goal, but third in as many games.

B SEMI-FINALS

NIAGARA FALLS 3
TORONTO BLUES 1

Joe Sloan was just too much for Toronto as he kicked out everything in sight to record the shutout. Tommamate Dom Skrebiec scored once and assisted on another to lead offensive drive and Marty Grant drew two assists.

NEPEAN 3
WHITBY 1

Jean Lamon was the goalie with a bag full of saves this time, as he was beaten only once. Steve Ferrone, Jamie York and Mike Brady were the marksmen for the winners. York's goal was his fourth in three games.

A CHAMPIONSHIP

PETERBOROUGH 4
ST. CATHARINES 1

Jeff Larmer led his club past St. Kitts with two goals and an assist. The Petes held a slim 1-0 margin with less than 10 minutes to go and St. Kitts evened things back up. Peterborough replied a few minutes later and with two minutes to go in the game, went ahead 3-1. They put the game on ice with a goal into the empty net.

B CHAMPIONSHIP

NEPEAN 5
NIAGARA FALLS 4

The lead see-saved back and forth throughout the contest and with 47 seconds remaining in regulation time, Nepean scored the winner. It was the first title of any kind the Raiders have won at the Belleville tourney.

GRAND CHAMPIONSHIP

NEPEAN 2

Jeff Larmer continued his Sunday surge with two goals and two assists for the Petes, giving him 11 points on the weekend and the tournament's Most Valuable Player award. His output in this game led the Petes to their fifth consecutive win and the tournament's Grand Championship. Other Peterborough goals were scored by Tim Killingbeck, Kevin Casey, Greg Rowe and Bob Walling.

Nepean got singles from Gill Egan and Mike Brady.

Jamie York accepts the Belleville Shrine Club Trophy on behalf of the Nepean Raiders. The Raiders, led by captain York, scored with 27 seconds remaining in the B Championship game to oust Niagara Falls Flyers 5-4. Shrine Club President, Harry Birkenshaw (right) and Shrine Club Tournament Director, Aubrey Haines made the presentation to the Nepean forward.

Petes' Larmer Takes MVP

JEFF LARMER

Jeff Larmer, of Peterborough, was named the 1975 Belleville Peewee Shrine Tournament's Most Valuable Player Sunday following the Petes 6-2 win over Nepean in the Grand Championship game.

Larmer scored twice and drew a pair of assists in the Grand Championship and those points combined with his stats from Peterborough's previous four games gave him seven goals and four assists for the weekend.

His teammate, Tim Killingbeck, was given status as the tournament's Most Valuable Defenceman. Killingbeck picked up four assists and scored two goals in the five weekend games. He was also named the most important of weekend for his club. He tallied the winning marker in overtime in the Petes 5-4, semi-final game.

Niagara Falls alternate captain, Gary Gajjarolo turned honors as the Most Valuable Forward. His club, the beaten out in the B Championship game. In that contest Gajjarolo fired a hat trick. In the three games prior to that game he had scored four times for a weekend total of seven goals.

The Gajjarolo family appears to be headed in the same direction as the Larmer clan. At last year's Shrine Tournament, Gary's brother, Nick, was named the tourney's Most Valuable Goaltender.

This year's goalie award went to Kingston township Ken and Rays Troy St. Hilaire. In two and one-third games he allowed only three goals. The Township team was knocked out 1-0 by St. Catharines in the A semi-final, but still of St. Hilaire. The puck was kicked in by his own defenceman.

Cornerstone In Corner

Cornerstone Builders, first place finisher during the Quinte Hockey League regular season, find themselves with their backs to the wall in the final playoff series with Reid's Dairy.

When the six-point series resumes at Memorial Arena, tonight, Cornerstone will face a win or else situation.

The club fell behind 2-0 in games. Sunday night when Reid's Dairy, had of goals each from Brian Smith and Ralph Plane to go with a single marker by Jerry Lucas as the team skated to a 5-3 win.

Lionel Belly, Jim MacKay, Moe Hunter and Allan Ray each drew a pair of assists.

Terry Pope, Roger Johnson and Norm Pope polled the Cornerstone goals.

Tourney Runs on Time Despite Weather

All 23 games in the Belleville Peewee Shrine Tournament ran right on schedule. Officials had feared the Memorial Arena until 7 p.m. Sunday night and presentations after the Grand Championship were completed two minutes before the deadline.

Tournament Director, Don Gavey, had his hands full with this one because of the unpredictability of the weather. Nevertheless everything went as smoothly as if there were no complications.

Gavey said however, "this will be one I won't forget for a while." Only Cornwall had to cancel out at the last minute because of the weather. Whitby was a day late coming, but still made it.

Peterborough coach, Bob Gardner, expressed the chilling coaches' opinion after his club earned the Grand Championship. "This is probably the best run tournament around. We've been here for five years now, and we'll be back again next year."

Snow Doesn't Stop Fans

Fans didn't seem to mind the weather. Over 5,000 spectators braved their way to the Memorial Arena to watch games at one time or another during the weekend.

Shrine officials estimate that the tourney earned nearly $2,000 for crippled children.

Islanders Feel Rangers Could 'Choke' Again

By GLENN COLE

The National Hockey League's 720-game schedule concluded Sunday night and for six teams, it was the end of a long year.

But for the 12 teams that qualified for the Stanley Cup playoffs, it's like starting all over.

"Now we start a whole new season," said Peter Stemkowski, a veteran centre with New York Rangers.

The Rangers closed out their season Sunday by dropping a 6-4 decision to New York Islanders, who they will meet in the first game of their best-of-three first-round series Tuesday night.

In other Sunday action, Philadelphia Flyers clinched the best overall record in the league by downing Atlanta Flames 6-2, Montreal Canadiens topped Detroit Red Wings 4-2, Boston Bruins and Toronto Maple Leafs played to a 4-4 tie, Chicago Black Hawks blanked Minnesota North Stars 3-0, St. Louis Blues topped Kansas City Scouts 3-2, Los Angeles Kings and California Seals played to a 1-1 tie and Washington Capitals bombed Pittsburgh Penguins 8-4.

Saturday night, Buffalo Sabres topped Toronto 4-2, Los Angeles defeated the Seals 5-3, Montreal thrashed Washington 10-2, Pittsburgh downed Detroit 7-1, St. Louis nipped Chicago 5-4 and the Flyers defeated the Islanders 4-1.

Both the Islanders and Rangers finished the season with 88 points but the Rangers get second place in the Patrick Division because they had 17 wins compared with 23 for their crosstown rivals.

This is the ninth consecutive year the Rangers have made it to post-season play while the three-year-old Islanders are making their first appearance.

"Maybe they'll choke again," said Islanders goaltender Glenn Resch referring to the fact the Rangers have only made it to the finals once in the nine-year span and lost to Boston in the 1971-72 final.

The Islanders were 2-3-1 against the Rangers this season, with both wins coming in the last two weeks of the year.

Sunday, Jude Drouin and Jean Pavelich scored goals in the second period to help the Islanders to their first-ever win in nine games at Madison Square Garden where the play-offs opens Tuesday.

The Flyers earned the right to home-ice advantage for all their playoff series by downing Atlanta. By finishing the Flames in second place, the Flyers clinched the Vezina Trophy awarded annually to the goaltenders on the team allowing the fewest goals during the regular season.

The Flyers gave up 181 goals in 80 games with veteran Bernard Parent appearing in 68 of the games and posting a 2.03 average.

"It's nice. It's nice," said Parent, slowly sipping on a cool beer.

The Flyers, champions of the Patrick Division, will not play again until the quarter finals begin next Sunday. Montreal, the North Division winners, Buffalo, tutlast in the Adams Division and Vancouver Canucks, first-place finishers in the Smythe Division, also get automatic byes into the quarter finals.

The Flyers finished the season with a 14-game unbeaten string, including 12 wins and coach Fred Shero was asked if the layoff would hurt.

"You never know," he said. "It will give us a chance to recover from our injuries."

"Well, it's better than playing in those two-of-three series," noted Montreal coach Scotty Bowman, who put his 200th NHL win against the Red Wings.

Serge Savard scored twice for the Canadiens to become the 10th Montreal player to score at least 20 goals this season.

Bobby Orr scored two goals and assisted on Don Marcotte's game-tying effort to increase his league-leading points total to 135. Orr finished with 32 goals and 103 assists for 135 points, eight ahead of teammate Phil Esposito.

Billy Reay got his 500th coaching win and Tony Esposito posted his sixth shutout of the year as the Black Hawks blanked the North Stars. Never the Blues managed to nip the Scouts to finish in second place in the Smythe Division with 84 points, two less than Vancouver and two more than Chicago.

A second-period goal by Larry Patey gave the Seals the tie with the Kings while Steve Gilbertson's four goals powered Washington past Pittsburgh.

The Capitals finished their season with eight wins, 67 losses and five ties for 21 points, tied worst record since the Islanders 15-60-5 mark in their first season. Washington established a league mark for mediocrity with one win and 8 losses on the road.

The Caps, Seals, Scouts, Flames, North Stars and Red Wings are through with the NHL's pressure until next October but for the others, the crunch starts Tuesday night.

Aside from the Islanders-Rangers series D clash, series A opens with the Kings at home to the Leafs while series B will see Boston playing host to Chicago. The Penguins meet the Blues in Pittsburgh in the first game of series B.

Thursday night, the Leafs will play host to the Islanders, the Bruins will go to Chicago, the Penguins will visit the Blues and the Islanders will be at home to the Rangers. If a third game is necessary in any series, it will be at the site of the first game on Friday night.

Each member of the first-round participants will win $1,000, regardless of its team wins or loses the series. The winning teams advance to the quarter-finals which are scheduled to begin next Sunday.

Bobby Hull – Scores 77

Golden Jet Breaks Espo's Goal Barrier

WINNIPEG (CP) — A hard wrist shot by Bobby Hull of the World Hockey Association Winnipeg Jets made major hockey league history Sunday.

Hull, 36, let the shot go from inside the blueline at the 19:26 mark of the second period, beating goaltender Russ Gillow of the San Diego Mariners for his 77th goal in 78 games.

The goal, which gave the Jets a 3-2 lie in a game eventually deadlocked 5-5, eclipsed the old record of 76 goals in a season set in 1970-71 by Phil Esposito of the National Hockey League Boston Bruins.

"I didn't hesitate a moment," Hull said. "We were both flying when we hit the blueline. Anders (Hedberg) gave it to me and I let go with a full wrist shot."

It was Hull's eighth goal in six games against San Diego this season and raised his major league total to 785 in 1,252 games. He has scored 181 goals in 218 games in the WHA.

Hull, dubbed the Golden Jet for his scoring feats during a 15-year NHL career with Chicago Black Hawks, credited teammates Ulf Nilsson and Anders Hedberg for his success.

"What happened this year was just because of those guys. Hull said after the game. "Everything that happened was because . . . they allowed unselfishly all year.

"I guess you could make that all of us who played together so much," he said, praising defencemen Lars Erik Sjoberg and Mike Ford.

Winnipeg coach Rudy Pilous said the record was all the more "incredible" because of the constant checking Hull faced all season. "If Bobby would have had the straight up and down normal checking, it's conceivable he could have gotten 10 more goals."

But the jubilation over Hull's record goal didn't quite dispell the dejection of the Winnipeg players in missing the playoffs for the first time in the WHA's three-year history.

Hull and Nilsson conceded that the club may have distracted by pressure to get the record, accounting for its poor showing in the final four games of the season.

"I think we maybe tried a little too much for the goal," Nilsson said. "But I think it did not really hurt us that much as to cost us a playoff spot."

Hull agreed: "When anything like this happens you try your best to keep it localized and prevent it from spreading. But it's bound to have an affect on how your line plays and, much as you try to stop it.

"Missing the playoffs is a letdown, yet everything we've been able to do a line kind of we heals the wound a little."

Lacroix Smashes Assists Mark, Wins WHA Crown

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The World Hockey Association's regular season all ended Sunday with Bobby Hull and Andre Lacroix both finishing with scoring records.

The season officially ends tonight with a meaningless game between Houston Aeros and Baltimore Blades.

The best-of-seven quarter-final playoff lineup has Cleveland at Houston, Toronto at Quebec, Minnesota at New England and Toronto at San Diego for the first two games.

The New England and San Diego openers are set for Wednesday, Houston for Thursday and Quebec has yet to announce whether it will open Wednesday or Thursday.

In Sunday's final games, the 5-5 overtime tie at Winnipeg had little to contribute to the final standings but it contained the final battle for the scoring records.

Hull scored his record 77th goal of the season for Winnipeg Jets against San Diego Mariners while the Mariner's Andre Lacroix wound up his league scoring title with 41 goals and a record 106 assists.

Hull's goal scoring surpassed the pro hockey record of 76 scored by Phil Esposito of the National Hockey League Boston Bruins in the 1970-71 season.

In that same season, Esposito teammate Bobby Orr had the pro record of 102 assists in one season which Lacroix surpassed by four.

In other games Sunday, Houston Aeros edged Toronto Horse 5-2, Minnesota Fighting Saints defeated Baltimore 6-5, Vancouver Blazers beat Indianapolis Racers 4-3 and Edmonton Oilers beat Chicago Cougars 6-3.

Hull had tied Esposito's mark with his goal in a 9-5 Jets loss to the Nordiques at Quebec Saturday night. In other Saturday games, San Diego beat Indianapolis 8-3, Houston defeated Minnesota 8-2, Cleveland Crusaders beat New England Whalers 5-2, Baltimore upset Phoenix Roadrunners 7-6 and Vancouver edged Edmonton 3-2.

Hull's final goal in the last second period game on a 30-foot shot past San Diego goalie Russ Gillow. It gave the Jets a 3-3 tie and they went ahead 4-3 midway in the third period before Lacroix, who had two assists in the game, scored his 41st goal.

Winnipeg's Mike Ford made it 5-4 for the Jets with less than four minutes remaining but Lacroix helped set up Rick Seaters for his 44th goal of the season and second of the night to tie the game at 5 and the clubs went scoreless through the overtime.

Hull, who had led the scoring parade for much of the season, finished second behind Lacroix with 65 assists and 142 points.

Mariners centre Rick Dudley 31 points in his final 10 games, leading the team to a record of 9-1-1 in their last 11 games.

When the Toronto game finished, the Winnipeg game was still in progress and thus the Toros were unsure when their playoff opponent would be.

But Toros coach Bobby Leduc said it didn't make much difference to him who he went against. "If we play like we did tonight, we're not going to beat anybody. The team came out so flat I can't believe it."

The Toros' relaxed attitude allowed the Aeros to open a 3-0 lead on goals by Jim Sherrit, Frank Hughes and Mike Hoves before Frank Mahovlich scored his 20th of the season late in the second period.

Sherrit and Hughes, both scored again later in the contest which was preceded by a special ceremony honoring Aeros right winger Gordie Howe who plans to retire after next season's first game at Houston.

The game was marred by a brawl, and his third of the night in the overtime.

The Baltimore fans became unruly and police were called to escort the referee from the arena.

Centre Hugh Harris scored twice to lead Vancouver in its final win at home which clinched fourth place in the Canadian Division.

Leafs Have Work Cut Out For Them in First Round

By GLENN COLE
The Canadian Press

Toronto Maple Leafs hope to accomplish what they could not do during the regular National Hockey League season when they meet Los Angeles Kings in first-round play of the Stanley Cup playoffs.

The Leafs, who open their best-of-three series at Kings the Kings in Los Angeles Tuesday night, failed to defeat the Kings during the 1974-75 season, gaining a tie in five meetings. The Kings outscored the Leafs 34-7 and in two games in Los Angeles, posted 4-0 and 8-0 wins.

The other three first-round series also are to begin Tuesday. Series B will begin in Boston with the Bruins meeting Chicago Black Hawks. Pittsburgh Penguins will be at home to St. Louis Blues in series C. New York Rangers and New York Islanders will meet in series D with the opener scheduled for Madison Square Garden, the Rangers home rink.

Twelve teams—three from each of the four divisions—qualified for this year's expanded playoffs which could run as late as May 28. Last year, eight teams—four from each division—were eligible.

The pairings for each series are decided by points gained during the regular season, although divisional winners all gained a bye. Of the remainder, the highest qualifier meets the lowest qualifier in series A, the second-highest team plays the second-lowest in series B, series C pits the third seeded team against the sixth-ranked club and series D has the fourth seeded squad against the fifth-highest qualifier.

Philadelphia Flyers of the Patrick Division, Buffalo Sabres of the Adams Division, Montreal Canadiens of the Norris Division and Vancouver Canucks of the Smythe Division have gained byes into quarter-final play. Philadelphia, by defeating Atlanta Flames Sunday, gained home ice advantage for all series in which they play by having the best over-all record.

The Flyers, Sabres and Canadiens all finished with 113 points to lead the Stanley Cup champions, gained top ranking by posting the most wins—51. Buffalo was second with 49 and Montreal third with 47. Vancouver had 88 points, lower than the Kings, Bruins, Penguins, Rangers and Islanders.

The Bruins and Black Hawks met four times during the regular season with each team winning two games. Chicago outscored Boston 15-14.

Chicago has never taken a playoff series from the Bruins. Last year, the Bruins took the semi final series in a five game to advance to the final against the Flyers.

The Penguins and Blues each had a win and two ties in four meetings this season, with St. Louis outscoring Pittsburgh 13-11. The Blues defeated Pittsburgh in a six-game semi-final in 1970 in the only previous playoff series between the two clubs.

The Islanders, making their first playoff appearance, had two wins, three losses and a tie against the Rangers—the two wins in the last two weeks of the schedule including Sunday's 6-4 triumph on Rangers home ice. The Rangers outscored the Islanders 23-21.

Each first-round participant will win $1,000, regardless if his team wins or loses the series. The winning team advances to the quarter finals, scheduled to begin next Sunday.

Thursday, the Leafs will play host to the Kings, the Bruins will go to Chicago, the Penguins will visit the Blues and the Islanders will be at home to the Rangers. If a third game is necessary in any series, it will be at the site of the first game on Friday night.

The CBC has announced it will not televise the opener of the Toronto-Los Angeles series, but will carry Thursday's clash.

Take Me Out to the Ball Game

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The weatherman must be a baseball fan, at least in Cincinnati.

After more than a week of unseasonably cold weather, the temperature rose above 10 degrees Celsius Sunday and a further warming trend is expected to push the thermometer close to 20 today for the opener of the major league baseball season between the Reds and Los Angeles Dodgers.

Three more games are scheduled under the lights as the National League begins its 100th campaign and the American League its 75th.

In the NL, Montreal Expos will be in St. Louis to face the Cardinals while Atlanta Braves invade Houston to play the Astros. The loss AL contest finds Kansas City Royals in Anaheim against California Angels.

The Royals and Angels meet again Tuesday night while eight other AL clubs get under way: New York Yankees against the Indians in Cleveland,Milwaukee Brewers against the Red Sox in Boston, Minnesota Twins against Texas Rangers in Arlington and Chicago White Sox against Oakland against the world champion A's.

In NL games Tuesday, Phila ddphia Phillies face the Mets in New York, San Francisco Giants meet the Padres in San Diego and the Pirates and Cubs go at it again in Houston.

The recent storm that tormented the midwest caused two of Tuesday's scheduled openers to be called off. Chicago Cubs will play host to Pittsburgh Pirates in their NL opener on Wednesday instead while the AL's Baltimore Orioles will face the Tigers in Detroit on Thursday in a regularly scheduled game. Tuesday's Detroit game will be made up later in the season.

The Dodgers finished four games ahead of the Reds in the NL West last year and the two teams are expected to pick up where they left off. Don Sutton, 19-9 in 1974, will pitch for the Dodgers against Cincinnati's Don Gullett, 17-10, before a sellout crowd of 52,000 in Riverfront Stadium, including baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn and Ohio Senator Robert Taft, who will throw out the first ball.

After viewing the Dodgers and Reds, Kuhn will rush to St. Louis to watch veteran pitcher Bob Gibson begin his final season. Gibson will be opposed by Montreal lefthander Dave McNally, 16-10 with Baltimore Orioles, who traded him to the Expos during the off-season.

In Houston, the Braves, two seasons ago the first time in 22 years, will knuckleballer Phil Niekro against the Astros' Larry Dierker.

However, the best may come when California's Nolan Ryan goes against Kansas City Royals. Ryan has pitched no hitter in each of his first two seasons.

Expos Win 20th

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (AP) — Mike Jorgensen and Pat Scanlon each hit two-run homers as Montreal capped ended their exhibition baseball season Saturday with a 6-2 victory over Boston Red Sox.

Jorgensen capped a four-run first inning against Boston starter Bill Lee with his second homer of the spring. Scanlon replaced Hal Breeden as the designated hitter in the ninth and added two insurance runs with his second exhibition homer off Diego Segui.

Montreal righthander Dennis Blair, who had allowed just two earned runs in 29 preseason innings, picked up the victory. He walked nine, but allowed just two hits and two runs in six innings.

Morales For Carrithers

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Tony Conigliaro, out of baseball for 3½ years, was listed Sunday as Boston Red Sox' designated hitter for the baseball team's 1975 American League opener against Milwaukee Brewers Tuesday in Boston. Conigliaro, 30, who led the American League with 32 home runs for Boston in 1965, was struck in the eye by a pitch in 1967.

TRADE OUTFIELDER

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP) — Philadelphia Phillies traded outfielder Bill Robinson to Pittsburgh Pirates Saturday for pitcher Wayne Simpson, assigned to the Phils' Toledo farm team in the International League. Robinson, 31, with the National League baseball team for 3½ seasons, batted .256 with 25 home runs and collected 29 runs batted in. Simpson is a 26-year-old righthander.

Low Cost – NO DOWN PAYMENT
Housing
FROM ROLLINS LUMBER

THE SELF-HELP HOME PLAN

"SHOULD I BUILD NOW WHEN PRICES ARE HIGH?"

It may surprise some people that this same question has been asked continually for years and years. It seems that everything is relative. While building materials are cheaper ten years ago, your paycheck was a lot smaller as well. There is no sense kidding ourselves, quality materials cost money, but when assembled properly into the form of a house — their value doubles. You can own that house for far less than you think with the Self-Help Home Plan.

Rollins Lumber once again suggests that you make your move now Here's why: (a) It seems obvious that prices are not going to go down. (b) Interest rates are as low as they'll ever be. (c) Mortgage money is presently available. (d) We have approved building lots available, but they are getting scarce. (e) If you build before October 31, 1975, first-time home buyers may be eligible for the $500.00 government grant.

We have ready-to-build plans available and we will assist you in arranging the proper mortgage. Basically what Rollins Lumber has done is lowered the cost of home ownership and eliminated a lot of the red tape to make it easier for you. You don't even need a Down Payment. Call today — there's nothing to stop you now!

Weiskopf Back on Top

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Tom Weiskopf, a winner again after 18 months of frustration, turned a happy face today toward Augusta, Ga., and the upcoming Masters, that annual spring rite that occupies a unique position in the game of golf.

While Weiskopf's relatively easy, three-stroke triumph Sunday made him the happiest man in the Greater Greensboro Open, there was a large number of pro golf's greats who found their own ray of sunshine in the wind and cold that plagued this old event.

"I think I accomplished what I wanted to," said Johnny Miller, a three-time winner this season who made a surprise entry here to hone his game for the Masters.

"I played a good, solid tournament," he said. "My game is good. My swing is good. My putting is coming along. It isn't great yet, but it's good." He tied for sixth.

"I'm really quite pleased," said Gary Player, the South African who holds the British Open crown and will play in Augusta. A final round 69 brought him a big smile to his face.

"That's the best round I've played in several years," said Arnold Palmer. "It's really very encouraging." After shooting himself out of contention in the early going, Palmer closed with a five-under-par 66 in the final round but, like Player, was far back.

"Fantastic," said Lee Elder, who will be the first black to play in the Masters. "Maybe you surprise some people." Elder secured a rare double eagle—hole in 1 is rare—when his second shot on the par-five 14th hole.

Lee Trevino finished fourth in the wind and biting cold that sent him digging for extra sweaters every round. "I was wearing everything I owned," said Trevino, who shot a late round 68 for 281.

George Knudson of Toronto finished with a 75 for 286, worth $395.

Weiskopf, a leader since his opening round of 64, pushed his lead to six shots with a 15-foot sidehill putt for an eagle on the ninth hole, then cruised home with a 68 and a 275 total, nine under par on the 6,645-yard Sedgefield Country Club course.

Al Geiberger slipped in to take second with a 66—278 after Jerry McGee. Weiskopf's only challenger in the final round, hit in the water and made a double bogey on the 17th hole. He was third at 68—280.

"I'm swinging the way I did in '73," said Weiskopf. "I'm hitting the same type of shots."

That was his banner season, one of the great seasons anyone has compiled in recent years. He won seven times in four countries and included the British Open among his triumphs.

But he hadn't won since.

"I'd played injured last year," Weiskopf said, referring to a hand ailment that plagued him most of 1974. "I compensated, and I got my swing fouled up. This year I've worked hard.

MacDonald Opposes More Toronto Growth

BRESLAU, Ont. (CP) — Flora MacDonald, federal Progressive Conservative critic, says that steps should be taken to stop growth in the Toronto area.

The MP for Kingston and the Islands also told about 60 people today that the federal and provincial governments will have to relocate industry in other parts of Ontario if an acute housing shortage is to be avoided.

"Where industry goes, people go," she said. "And where people go, houses will have to be built. We should be past the time where we consider it economical to have industry only in certain parts of the country."

Miss MacDonald said that by the year 2000, Toronto's population will be about seven million people, but no one has stopped to ask Toronto if its wants seven million people."

She said the federal government has not dealt effectively with providing housing because it thinks only in terms of major centres, an attitude that makes the housing situation worse.

Air Canada Machinists Ratify New Contract

MONTREAL (CP) — A two-year agreement to increase salaries by 25 per cent and incorporate cost-of-living adjustments was ratified by a small majority Sunday following close voting by Air Canada machinists across the country.

The machinists, members of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers, voted 1,079 to 1,438 to accept the agreement which goes into effect today, a union spokesman said.

Under terms of the agreement, wages are increased 15 per cent in the first year and 10 per cent in the second. The agreement also incorporates cost-of-living adjustments of 23 cents hourly in the first year and $10-a-month during the second.

Hourly salary rules for machinists during the first year of the contract range from $6.87 to $8.29 in the maintenance division and between $7.33 and [illegible]

IN MEMORIAM

BATEMAN, Annie Elizabeth — In loving memory of a dear wife and mother and grandmother who passed away April 7th, 1958.
Though her smile is now forever, And her hand we cannot touch, Still we have our memories, Of the one we loved so much.
Her memory is a treasure, Which will never fade, God has her in His keeping, We have her in our hearts —dearly missed, by husband Percy and family.

STONE — In loving memory of a dear sister, Mrs. Catherine M. Stone who passed away April 7th, 1958.
Our eyes are moist, our hearts are sore, Each time we think of Mom and Dad.
Though Dad departed many years ago, We waited up there for Mom, we know.
As time goes by we word our way, We do our chores day by day, We stop many times to say a prayer.
God bless you Mom and Dad up there.
—Lovingly remembered by son Proctor and wife Doris.

WILLIAMS — In loving memory of a dear brother Howard who passed away April 7th, 1948.
There are doors, one does not open, There are roads, one does not travel, Chest and the love discarded, For the rust of years to find, Yet when the time has reached the hour,
When the chiming of a clock, Memory picks up the key, And turns it in the lock.
—Ever remembered by sister Barbara, Jim and Janice.

CHAPMAN — In loving memory of our dear father, Charles Chapman, who passed away April 7, 1948.
You gave us years of happiness, You gave kind and loving care, You gave us all you could share, —In the rest of our days.
—Lovingly remembered by daughters and son-in-law, Velma, Edna and Percy, Aletha and Bill.

A centre hall with a formal dining room on one side and living room on the other — the Georgian style fireplace in the living room burns either wood or coal. The master bedroom on the second floor is 18 feet 8 inches long by 12 feet 9 inches wide. The other 3 rooms are equally spacious — there are 2 bathrooms — roomy closets in all rooms.

Ninth Consecutive Year

Knicks Earn Playoff Berth

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

For the ninth year in a row, New York Knicks are in the National Basketball Association playoffs, but this year they waited until the last day to get there.

The Knicks, who used to breeze into the playoffs in past years, had to squeeze in this time—and in fact needed the help of another team to do it—Sunday.

The Knicks beat Buffalo Braves 105-94 and then had to sweat out Kansas City-Omaha Kings' 95-94 win over Cleveland Cavaliers. The results gave New York and Cleveland identical records of 40-42, but the Knicks claimed the wild-card berth because they beat the Cavaliers 3-1 in their season series.

The Knicks landed the 12th and last berth and will face Houston Rockets Tuesday night in the opener of the Eastern Conference playoffs. In another first-round game Tuesday night, Seattle Supersonics will play Detroit Pistons in the Western Conference.

Both of those quarter-finals are best-of-three affairs. The eastern winner meets Boston Celtics and the western winner takes on Golden State Warriors in the conference semi - final rounds.

The other eastern semi-final opens Thursday with Buffalo at Washington Bullets. Kansas City-Omaha visits Chicago Bulls for the first game of the other western semi-final Wednesday night. All of the semi-finals are best of seven series.

In other games Sunday, Washington beat New Orleans Jazz 119-103, Portland Trail Blazers walloped Los Angeles Lakers 136-97, Seattle stopped Phoenix Suns 114-111 and the Chicago ripped Milwaukee Bucks 123-108.

In NBA games Saturday, Boston topped Philadelphia 76ers 111-97, Milwaukee dumped Detroit 118-106, Washington overcame Atlanta Hawks 123-115 and Seattle edged Golden State 108-106.

Three quarter-final series opened Sunday in the American Basketball Association with New York Nets topping the Spirits of St. Louis 111-105, Kentucky Colonels beating Memphis Sounds 99-91 and Denver Nuggets defeating Utah Stars 125-107.

Saturday night San Antonio Spurs opened the other quarter-final with a 125-119 decision over Indiana Pacers.

New York's victory overshadowed a 38-point effort by Buffalo's Bob McAdoo which made him the fifth highest single-season scorer in NBA history. McAdoo finished the season with 1,831 points, the most since Wilt Chamberlain accumulated 2,948 with San Francisco in the 1963-64 season.

Nate Archibald scored 23 points and Ron Behagen blocked a shot by Fred Foster with one second left as Kansas City-Omaha shattered Cleveland's playoff hopes.

Wes Unseld hauled down 20 rebounds to win the NBA's rebounding title as Washington beat New Orleans. Lloyd Neal poured in 21 points and Portland outscored Los Angeles 38-15 in the second period to run away from the Lakers.

Archie Clarke fired in 31 points to lead Seattle over Phoenix while Norm Van Lier scored 24 points and Richard Garrett added 19 to power Chicago past Milwaukee.

Reds Pick Bad Time To Start Losing

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Providence Reds had the best regular-season record in the American Hockey League, but they're changing the rosters in the Calder Cup playoffs.

The Reds are one game from playoff elimination after dropping a 5-0 decision Sunday night to Springfield. The Indians lead the best-of-seven quarter-final series 3-1.

After other weekend quarter-final action, regular Red Wings and New Haven Nighthawks tied 1-1, Hershey Bears lead Richmond Robins 3-1 and Nova Scotia Voyageurs and Rochester Americans are tied 1-1.

The Wings downed the Nighthawks 5-2, the Bears beat the Robins 5-2 and the Americans edged the Voyageurs 5-4 in other Sunday games. On Saturday, the Indians stopped the Reds 5-2 and the Bears overcame the Robins 6-3.

Providence dominated its season series with the Massachusetts team, winning seven games and tying three, but since winning the opener 5-4 they have lost 5-0, 5-2 and 5-0.

Lorne Stamler, a rookie from Michigan Tech, has been a big factor in the Springfield surge. A breakaway gave him one of his two goals Sunday. Dale Lewis, Tom Cassidy and Bob Pollenroth were the other scorers for the Indians, who led 3-0 after the first period.

A Springfield crowd of 4,250 saw Springfield goalie Rick Charron turn aside 28 shots to earn the shutout.

Cassidy scored twice and Pete Harasym, Dennis Abgrall and Stamler once each in Saturday's game.

At Norfolk, Va., a crowd of 3,117 saw the Wings build a 5-0 lead Sunday night before Rick Kessell and Bob Cook deprived Virginia goalie Terry Richardson of a shutout in the third period.

Brian Murphy, Ron Simpson, Ken Mann, Mike Jakubo and Dennis Johnson were the Virginia scorers.

Yves Bergeron scored a pair of goals, including the winner, for Hershey in its Sunday win over the Robins before a Richmond crowd of 3,464.

Other scorers for the Bears were Mario Faubert, Derek Smith and Billy Inglis. Serge scored for Richmond.

Richmond goalie Bernie Wolfe, who had 36 saves in Sunday's game, turned in an outstanding performance to keep the score down at Hershey Saturday night with 36 saves, including 19 in the third period when he blanked the Bears. Morris Titanic scored twice for Hershey in that game.

Gordie Clark skated in alone and fired a shot that trickled off the pads of Nova Scotia goalie Ed Walsh at 11:54 of overtime to give the Americans their win before a home crowd of 7,268.

Craig Sarner scored twice and Doug Gibson and rookie defenceman Ray Malinta once each for Rochester. Greg Hubick had two goals and Mike Bumbak and John Van Boxmeer one each for the Voyageurs.

Playoff action resumes Tuesday when the Red Wing-Nighthawk series switches to New Haven. The other series resume Wednesday at Halifax and Hershey and Friday at Providence.

Trophy Honors Gordie Howe

HOUSTON (CP) — The World Hockey Association has announced a new trophy to be presented the most valuable player in the league playoffs—the Gordie Howe Award.

The trophy was unveiled at a Houston Aeros' booster club gathering Friday and honors the 47-year-old winger who has said this will be his final year, marking the end of a 27-year career as major league hockey's most prolific scorer.

Howe was the MVP award winner in the WHA last year.

The trophy, sculptured in Howe's likeness, was announced by Ben Hatskin of Winnipeg, chief executive officer of the WHA.

"There is no question that this represents one of the most cherished awards a player can receive," Hatskin told the gathering. "The name Howe is synonymous with greatness."

Howe, who went over the 2,000-point mark this year, played 25 years in the National Hockey League with Detroit Red Wings, retiring four years ago to take a front-office job with the Wings organization.

He had, however, expressed a long-standing desire to play on the same team as his two sons, Marty and Mark. When the Aeros plucked the two younger Howes from the Toronto Marlboro junior organization two years ago, Howe senior went along with the deal, and later signed on as a player, realizing a dream.

The Parable of

"The Hotel Man and the BEDBUGS"

Once upon a time there was a hustling young newspaper advertising salesman who called upon the operator of a small hotel in his town. He suggested that the hotel man begin a schedule of display ads to increase the use of his hotel for guests of local people who did not have overnight accommodations for out-of-town guests.

The local hotel entrepreneur agreed there was merit in the suggestion and that advertising to local people for this purpose could result in an increase in his hotel's occupancy rate.

He felt, however, that he could not afford "large enough" ads to do the job. He told the energetic and imaginative young space salesman that "nobody reads small ads".

The not-to-be discouraged newspaper man thought for a moment-and then said, "Mr. Jones, I know people do read small ads. In fact, I'm so convinced they do that I'm going to run a series of two-inch ads for you absolutely free."

This perked up the ears of the slightly reluctant innkeeper, who was still smiles when Mr. Adman said, "But, I want to write the copy in the ads myself." This didn't seem like a too unreasonable request, so Mr. Jones responded with "O.K., but what are you going to say in my ads?"

"Nine words, Mr. Jones, is all I want in your ad. It will simply read: 'The Jones Hotel has the biggest bedbugs in town.'"

To which the now nearly apoplectic innkeeper responded, "You'll drive me out of business!" and received the quick rejoinder: "Mr. Jones, you said no one ever reads small ads."

MORAL:

People do read small ads. Many a large business started with small ads, and only because the small ads produced results were they able to become big enough to run larger ads. Don't put off telling people about your products or services just because you can't compete elsewhe with larger businesses . . . call today for an Intelligencer display advertising account executive to help you set up a small-space advertising campaign.

Tonight Tells Kingston Tale

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Sudbury Wolves advanced to their first Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A semi-final series Sunday, tying Ottawa 2-2.

The tie enabled the Wolves to take their eight-point quarter-final series 8-4 and moved them against either Toronto Marlboros or Kingston Canadians, deadlocked 7-7 after Toronto defeated the Canadians 5-4 Sunday.

Kingston plays at home in Toronto tonight to resolve their series. The Canadians defeated Toronto 5-2 in Kingston Saturday.

A sellout crowd of 9,355 in Ottawa watched Geoff Green score at 7:43 of the third period to lift Sudbury to the semi-finals.

Since entering the league in 1973-74 season, the Wolves lost four consecutive quarter-final games to Ottawa and four games to Kitchener Rangers last season.

Ron Duguay scored the other Sudbury goal, the only one of the second period, after Peter Lee and Tim Higgins had moved Ottawa into a lead in the first period.

The Wolves peppered goaltender Bob Daly with 43 shots while the 6ts managed only 26 on Bob Bedard in the Sudbury net.

Ottawa was playing without Tim Young and Jim Roberts while Steve Maringere played with a broken thumb. The Wolves lost Bruce Baker with a severe charleyhorse late in the first period.

During the regular season Ottawa finished in fourth spot, one point ahead of Sudbury. In the series, Sudbury took the opening three games but Ottawa rallied with two wins and two ties.

In Toronto, the Marlboros took powerplay goals at 1-0 and 3-2 and cushioned the lead with two unanswered goals in the final period.

Mark Napier led Toronto with two goals. Mike Kasprcki, John Anderson and John Smrke got the others.

Alex Forsyth and Greg Holham replied for Kingston, which finished in eighth place after the regular season. Toronto topped the standings and held a 45-point margin over Kingston.

The Canadians outshot Toronto 36-34.

Kingston's inability to score powerplay goals seemed to make the difference as the Marlboros drew eight of 13 penalties assessed, including a five-minute major for fightticking.

On Saturday, the Canadians jumped three third-period goals, the final one into an empty net, to take a temporary lead in that series.

Holham, Tony McKegney, Barry Smith, Michel Mais and Mike O'Connell scored for Kingston before a crowd of 4,268.

Napier scored twice for the Marlboros while Lynn Jorgenson got the other. Each team had 38 shots on goal.

Top Team

Big winners in the annual ANAP Winter Dart Tournament Saturday were the Hawkeyes from Oshawa Legion Branch 43. With the winning dart still in the bullseye 20, Al Grant, Dick Brown, Bill Raderford (who shot the winner) and Doug Grant got $160 to go along with their trophies. Forty-five teams from eastern Ontario registered for the tournament, which concluded with a dance in the ANAP Tartan Lounge.

Hawkeyes Live Up to Name

A four-man team from Oshawa, the Hawkeyes, took a top money — $160 — and trophies at the second annual ANAP winter dart tournament Saturday. Al Grant, Pick Brown, Bill Raderford and Doug Grant represented Oshawa Legion Branch 43, one of 40 teams competing.

Tournament organizer Tim Beaver had 45 teams signed up for the event, with an additional dozen applying after the cutoff. Weather kept five registered teams from competing.

Runnersup in team play were Belleville ANAP shooters Dick Thompson, Paul Pelletier, Rusty Garvin and Gerry Robertson. Another ANAP team placed third: Bob Totten, Neil Ford, Jack Asselstine and Harry Vesterfelt.

Doubles winners were P. J. Hill and Bob Hart, of the Havelock Legion. Belleville ANAP's Rusty Garvin and Gerry Robertson were second; Trenton Junior ranks shooters Ken McLeod and Archie Beauregard placed third ahead of Belleville Legion members Ken Glen Denike and Bob Reid.

Top scorer was Al McGuire of the Whitby Falcons with a maximum 180 and the prize for top woman scorer went to Angie Stilt of Kingston with 132.

Marichal Killing For Dodgers

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Juan Marichal, the ex-Dodger-killer, is still at it—only this time he's pitching for them.

The veteran right-hander, recently signed by the Dodgers after failing to come to agreement on a contract with Oakland A's, made his debut Sunday and was the losing pitcher in Los Angeles' 3-2 exhibition loss to California Angels.

Marichal gave up three runs—all in the first two innings—and seven hits in six innings. He walked four and struck out three ad his performance improved notably after the third inning when he control got better.

Marichal, longtime ace of the rival San Francisco Giants' pitching staff, received a mixed reaction from the Dodger Stadium crowd when his name was announced.

But he was applauded when he took the mound for the first time and received a standing ovation from the fans behind the Dodger dugout when he left the field after his final inning.

Elsewhere on the final day of spring training, Baltimore Orioles edged Atlanta Braves 5-7 in Orlando, Texas Rangers and Houston Astros bulled to a 2-2 tie in 11, New York Yankees slipped Pittsburgh Pirates 3-2 in Fort Lauderdale, Detroit Tigers clobbered New York Mets 14-1, Minnesota Twins downed Boston Red Sox 7-2, Milwaukee Brewers slugged Chicago Cubs 13-6, Chicago White Sox trounced San Diego Padres 9-3 and Oakland A's beat Tucson Toros, their Pacific Coast League farm affiliate, 8-5.

Baltimore's Al Bumbry singled home the winning run to cap a two-run rally in the 12th inning against Atlanta, which dropped eight of nine spring decisions to Baltimore.

Texas' Jim Fregosi homered in the seventh inning to tie the game and the Rangers and Astros battled through 11 innings before the game was called to allow the Rangers to catch a plane home. Bobby Bonds doubled with one out in the 10th and scored on Bob Oliver's single to hit the Yankees past Pittsburgh.

Mauch Goes With Rookies

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Bob Gibson of St. Louis Cardinals takes the mound tonight against the Montreal Expos in his 19th straight National League season-opening assignment.

"He's been throwing well," said Cards' manager Red Schoendienst, referring to Gibson's 2.81 earned-run average in six spring training games. "He pitched more games this spring than he has the last two."

Gibson, the major leagues' top active winner with 248 career triumphs, was hampered in 1974 while recovering from previous knee surgery. The 38-year-old two-time winner of the Cy Young Award has vowed to cap a 17-season career with a flourish this summer.

"I've never thought spring training meant much. But I've been satisfied with the way I've been throwing. The thing that's encouraging is the knee. When I wake up in the middle of the night I halfway expect it to be stiff like it was last year, but it isn't."

The Expos' lineup will include only shortstop Tim Foli and catcher Barry Foote from Montreal's starting roles on opening day a year ago.

Manager Gene Mauch will go with a lineup that includes rookie Tony Scott and Gary Carter flanking newcomer Pepe Mangual in the outfield and last rookie Larry Parrish at third base.

By contrast, St. Louis' lineup remains the same as in 1974 with the exceptions of Ed Brinkman, a veteran from the American League, at shortstop and rookie Keith Hernandez at first base.

Another Montreal newcomer is left-hander Dave McNally, a former American League all-star for Baltimore Orioles, who will be Gibson's pitching opponent.

OMHA Roundup

District Teams Looking Good After Weekend Action

Success came in large helpings for area teams involved in Ontario Minor Hockey Association provincial final playoff series on the weekend.

It wasn't all roses for teams representing communities in the district but teams either took commanding leads in their showdown sets or remain strong contenders for honors.

In Juvenile AA action at Oakridge Village, Trenton Bitt's Handy Stand, bidding for an unprecedented three straight Ontario titles, came out of the opening two games of the eight-point series with a split. The teams traded 6-4 wins.

Saturday, Bitt's got a pair of goals from Dave Lewis and singles from Harold Roberts and Rick Matheson. Joe Henry looked after the bulk of the Oakridge production, counting four goals. Tom Walton and Jeff Stevenson rounded out the winners' scoring.

The Trenton team was never headed in the Sunday match. Leading the club to even terms in the set was Lewis, with a pair of markers. Matheson, Roberts, Bob Thompson and Dave Stevenson connected for the other Bitt's goals.

Henry, Steve Stoyanovich Greg Heleson and Jerry Leland hit for Oakridge.

The teams are in Trenton on the weekend for Games 3 and 4.

Saturday at Trenton Community Gardens, the action is called for a 7 p.m. start and Sunday, the teams go at it at 3 p.m.

Remaining games are scheduled for Trenton, Wednesday, April 16 at 7 p.m. Oakridge Village, Friday, April 18 and Trenton, April 20 at 3 p.m.

Bantam B play in Exeter saw Picton Kiwanis drop a pair as the title set opened but after a lopsided 10-1 reversal in a Saturday match, Kiwanis showed Sunday that the club is far from being written off when the home team had to work for a narrow 5-4 win.

Picton owned a 4-0 lead after two periods Sunday but couldn't hold Exeter off in the third frame when the winners whipped in five unanswered goals to pull it out.

"They're a big, aggressive team," commented Picton club manager Vern Armstrong. "But we proved Sunday we can skate with them."

Kiwanis gets a chance to square things this weekend at home with games Saturday (8 p.m.) and Sunday (2 p.m.).

Dennis Brown was the loser in Picton marksman Saturday. Duane Krock potted two Sunday with singles for Darryl Crone and Steve Allan.

In Teeswater, Marmora Bustams moved to within a win of capturing the second OMHA title for the village they represent when they skated to a 7-3 win Sunday after opening the six-point series with a 7-6 win Saturday in Madoc.

The Marmora club can wrap it up Friday night in Madoc when Teeswater will be in town for an 8 p.m. match.

Most of the players on the Wilf Terrion-coached team were with the Ontario championship Marmora Peewees two years ago. Tom Henley is club manager and Bob Bacsch, trainer.

Brighton's OPP Peewees took the opener of their C series final, Saturday at home, topping Mitchell 5-3 as Brian Roraback scored twice and picked up an assist.

Mike Cline, Larry Reddom and Alan Currie each scored once for the home side.

Mitchell marksmen were Jay Heinbeck with two, and Mike Pederson.

Only four minor penalties were assessed in the game with the winners on the receiving end each time.

The series switches to Mitchell for Games 2 and 3, Saturday and Sunday.

A polished Wellington Loyalist Coach Lines team is just one win away from the Peewee D crown after taking a 2-0 lead in games by turning back Cayuga Sunday in Cayuga.

The third game is scheduled to be played in Wellington, Friday night at 7.30 p.m.

Glenn McQuaid potted three goals for Wellington. Singles went to Dick Mountney, Don Macdonald, Stewart Carter and John Jackson.

Jim: "South became a member after going down at three notrump. He remarked: "Ilida seen that my diamond suit was in self-defence, I'da made my contract".

Oswald: "South won the spade lead with dummy's jack and promptly led a club to his queen. West won with the ace and shifted to a heart. East was allowed to win and continued hearts. South took the third heart in dummy, cashed four diamonds but could not get to his hand to enjoy the last two."

Jim: "South was very unlucky. East had made a brilliant defensive play when he continued hearts instead of leading a spade back. Had he done so, South could have ducked and discarded a diamond from dummy. Later on he could unblock by discarding another diamond on the ace of spades. East's continuation of hearts ruined this chance."

Oswald: "South had two ways to make his contract. The ultimate one would have been to overtake dummy's jack of spades with his queen, lead the low spade right back and discard a diamond right then. The second diamond would go on the ace of spades later."

To Your Good Health

Angina Patients Need All Tricks

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 67 years old. Seven years ago I suffered a slight heart attack. Shortly afterward, I began suffering angina attacks. I am a hot potato farmer and still do what work I can, driving a tractor or truck.

However, walking bothers me as much as anything, especially upgrade. I am taking medication for my angina. Do you tell me if I am better off keeping active or should I retire completely?—F.R.C.

Many angina patients continue active lives and learn the art of using nitroglycerine tablets—nitro—effectively to take one, when not to. They don't have to wait for an attack, but learn to anticipate a potential attack situation, such as before heavy activity or a heavy meal, or, in your case, when there is a need to walk considerable distances.

They learn, too, that exertion is not the only factor in bringing on an attack. Breathing cold air will induce angina pain.

But, as to your question: I would not advise you to retire, but instead I advise you to learn all the tricks you need, including the ones I've listed, so you can remain active, safely.

Take cold, for example. There is a plastic mask that can be worn over the nose and mouth in cold, windy weather.

As in your walking, you know that tractors and trucks, especially as they get on in years, become unpredictable in behavior. Since walking gives you problems, you should be armed with a whistle or a horn, so that if you are ever stranded or 30 to 40 acres away from the dinner bell, you can give a signal to let someone know to come and get you.

If you are overweight, reduce—admittedly, a tough assignment with a farm kitchen around.

Studies have shown that anginal discomfort can be reduced, along with the need for nitroglycerine, if one engages in regular but mild forms of exercise. Driving a tractor or truck within reasonable limits seems to qualify for this.

So, no, there's no need for retirement, even though you are 67, beyond the generally accepted retirement age. Having been as active as you probably have been all your life, you might deteriorate more quickly as a retiree.

I would suggest a modification of your chores, especially those involving extensive walking. And there is medication besides nitroglycerine which can be used in a regular, long-acting dosage to avoid angina pain.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have always had healthy fingernails. For the past few years I've been troubled with ridges on only some of them. I've left a polish off for weeks, and have stopped creating them with cream. I always wear gloves for chores, as you recommend, so it can be no abrasion.

Also, I have another problem. My jaw seems to move around. My left ear seems to be involved. The whole thing is bothering me—Mrs. E.L.

Nails first. I presume you are referring to longitudinal, or lengthwise, ridges. Small ones are not uncommon as one gets older. Larger ridges can be caused by a disease (a scar, for example) at the base of the nail, or in the matrix from which the nail growth begins.

Local application of creams will not help this. Often, it is a matter of the stress to which your nails have been subjected over your lifetime. It is not strange for only two or three nails to be affected. The thumb and forefinger nails of the hands seem to take the worst of this punishment over the years.

As to your jaw problem, have your dentist check your "bite." Malocclusion of the teeth can often be a factor. This can produce some ear sensations with jaw movement.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I've had a sore throat for over a month. It is not strep, as though I've always had one.

It has a second pair of tonsils; on the back of my tongue. The first tonsils were removed. Is this possible? I have perfect health other than for this. Could these tonsils be diseased?—A. M.

Everyone has this second pair of tonsils. They are called lingual tonsils to distinguish them from the palatine tonsils, the pair that is seen prominently at the rear of the throat, the ones that usually cause the much problems.

The lingual tonsils were there at the time you had your earlier tonsillectomy, but they probably were not so prominent and others. Then it is possible for tonsils to come back. But from your letter regeneration does not seem to be the problem. I believe you are referring to those lingual tonsils.

With your history of chronic sore throat, you could be dealing with a recurring infection of these tonsils. You should return to your doctor. Removal would depend upon the size and the degree of infection.

ELMIRA, Ont. (CP) — A $200,000 legacy left by a frugal bachelor and his sister is helping needy students in this community. Residents say Gilbert and his sister, Vickie, left everything they had in trust funds to help needy students. So far their generosity has aided about 150 students since the funds were set up 10 years ago.

CP News Roundup

May Order Teachers Back to Job

PARKHILL, Ont. (CP) — The Ontario government is under pressure to force striking Ottawa secondary school teachers back to work, William Stewart, Ontario minister of agriculture, said during the weekend.

Mr. Stewart, speaking Saturday at the opening of a $1.8-million addition to North Middlesex district high school at Parkhill, 25 miles northwest of London, said that if the teachers' salary dispute is not settled soon, the government might have to legislate them back to work.

The strike, affecting more than 26,000 students, started Feb. 27.

The minister said the teachers' proposals for increases of 47 per cent are "completely unreasonable."

He also criticized Metropolitan Toronto's 12,000 secondary school teachers who are asking for salary increases of 43.8 per cent in a one-year contract.

"Surely the demands have gone too far," Mr. Stewart said."If every teacher in Ontario demanded, and got, a 40 per cent increase, the bite on the province would come to an additional $560 million."

Demands Opposed

TORONTO (CP) — A request for a 30-per-cent wage increase by Toronto's 4,500 policemen was termed "exorbitant" Saturday by a lawyer for the metropolitan board of police commissioners.

George Mace told an arbitration hearing for the 1973 police contract that present salaries and benefits were substantial.

"The commission seriously questions the advisibility of continuing the trend to escalate police salaries and benifits at a greater rate than those of the taxpayers who ultimately are required to provide the funds necessary for the financing of the force," he said.

Plane Crashes

BOBCAYGEON, Ont. (CP) — James Banford of Yellowknife, N.W.T., escaped injury Sunday when his single-engine aircraft crashed on a private airstrip near this community 70 miles northwest of Peterborough. Police said the airplane flipped over when its wheels dug in at the airstrip, which had not been plowed since a snowstorm last week. There were no passengers aboard.

Many Inquiries

ORILLIA, Ont. (CP) — Response here to the adoption of Vietnamese orphans is excellent, an immigration officer said Sunday.

Charles Brooks, Canadian immigration representative here, said his office has received more than 100 inquiries and telephone calls during the weekend.

"It is excellent for the size of Orillia," he said.

Violence Feared

LETHBRIDGE (CP)—The next major confrontation between Indians and the federal government might result in people being shot unless the government starts responding to native problems, says the Canadian director of the American Indian Movement (AIM).

Ed Burnstick of Edmonton said Friday that the government has taken a negative view of what is happening to Indians in Canada.

Twenty Homeless

OTTAWA (CP) — Twenty persons were left homeless early Sunday by fire that burned through a body shop and five adjoining apartments in neighboring Vanier. Firemen estimated damage at $100,000. The blaze is believed to have started in rubbish or rags inside the body shop. No injuries were reported.

Queen May Visit

LONDON (AP) — Queen Elizabeth is likely to attend the Olympic Games in Montreal next year and then may visit the United States to attend celebrations marking the 200th anniversary of its independence from Britain, a Buckingham Palace spokesman said Sunday. But the spokesman stressed that no definite plans have been made.

Few Tax Cuts Likely in Budget

TORONTO (CP) — Opposition spokesmen at the legislature say they expect few tax cuts or vote-winning measures tonight when Ontario Treasurer Darcy McKeough brings down the provincial budget.

But they see the timing of what may be an election-year budget as important in tactics of the Progressive Conservative government, coming as it does two days before a federal provincial energy conference.

Ian Deans, NDP house leader, said in an interview that rather than promising new programs which would add to inflation, the government is likely to blame Ottawa for its economic and social ills.

Liberal finance critic James Breithaupt said he foresees that the government might allow "certain packages of goodies ..." but tax cuts would not be among them.

More important in what he suggests might be the Conservative election plan, is the Ottawa conference where Ontario is expected to oppose any increase in oil prices.

If the results of that meeting go badly for Ontario, it would "give Premier Davis the opportunity to fight the election by fighting Ottawa," he said. "What we could well have is a budget announced and an election called before I even get a chance to reply to it."

The NDP spokesman predicted that the 8:30 p.m. EST budget would contain "mere puffery and argument with Ottawa" than election-aimed "goodies."

Both parties expect a sizeable deficit of between $1 billion to $1.5 billion in a $10 billion budget.

Opposition spokesmen see possible "marginal increases" in social benefits, tax credits for eastern and Northern Ontario or a one-per-cent cut in sales tax and an end or modification to the land-speculation and land transfer taxes.

The latter measures, introduced last year to inhibit speculation and increases in housing prices, have collected little revenue and alienated Conservative party supporters, opposition critics say.

Modification or abolition of the taxes would be presented as a measure to stimulate housing production, critics say.

Housing Minister Donald Irvine has made known that the provincial budget for housing this year will be increased to more than $434 million from $274 million, but critics say he is playing with figures and much of that amount has been committed in existing programs.

The actual increase will be "considerably less than they'll try to sell," Mr. Deans said.

Woman Saved By Her Friends

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP) — Two Detroit women saved the life of a friend Friday after ignoring fellow passengers on a CNR passenger train who insisted the woman was dead.

Kathy Ellen Carakostas, 21, also of Detroit, collapsed in her seat from a heart attack on the Windsor-Toronto train. Travelling companions, Donna Brennan, 31, and Kimberly Miller, 22, applied external cardiac massage and mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.

"A lot of people were saying she was dead," Miss Brennan, a nursing student, said Sunday.

She and Miss Miller, a nursing assistant, continued first aid until the train arrived in Chatham and Miss Carakostas, a ward clerk at a Detroit hospital, was taken to St. Joseph Hospital. Her condition was fair Sunday.

Help Orphans

TORONTO (CP) — A team, headed by Victoria Leach, adoption coordinator for Ontario, left Sunday for Hong Kong to work with officials of welfare affairs and the immigration department in the transfer of Vietnamese orphans to Canada.

The team, including a doctor, a nurse and social worker, left by commercial plane. They will help orphans bound for Ontario.

The orphans are being ferried to Hong Kong from Saigon by Canadian forces Hercules aircraft.

Davis to Fight Oil Price Boost

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Premier William Davis has warned that his province will stand strongly against any attempt by Western oil-producing provinces to get large increases in oil prices at next week's federal-provincial energy conference in Ottawa.

He said in a speech Saturday night that "we might indulge in a little less gentlemanly stickhandling and a little more body contact."

"I don't think there should be any mistake about the implications of increasing the price of crude oil and natural gas. Even an increase of $1 per barrel for crude oil will eliminate thousands of jobs in the consuming areas of Canada, as well as adding to the already dangerous inflationary pressures."

"What it would also do, of course, if the pattern of the 1974 increase is followed, is fatten the treasury of the federal government and the producing provinces without necessarily adding anything to our capacity to bring on new supplies of oil and natural gas in Canada.

Mr. Davis said he did not want to indulge in what he called the "we-helped-you-when" syndrome, when Ontario paid a higher price for Canadian oil than it would have paid for imported oil for about 10 years.

"We agreed to the commitment of the big industrial market of Ontario, west of the Ottawa River, to the oil producers of Western Canada. We agreed because the producing provinces needed the market.

He said Ontario should make any needed contributions toward the Canadian confederacy, whether equalization payments, assistance to producing provinces or co-operation with other governments in strengthening Confederation.

"But at a point, resistance begins," he warned. "Demands must be reasonable."

Lewis Opposes Blakeney Plan

TORONTO (CP) — Stephen Lewis, Ontario NDP leader, says the Ontario government has already decided to capitulate to western demands for higher oil prices.

The Progressive Conservatives will make tough speeches against the price increases but have already decided to accept the higher tariff, Mr. Lewis told a Metropolitan Toronto-area party conference Saturday.

He said an increase of $2 a barrel, proposed by Saskatchewan Premier Allan Blakeney, was "blind extortion on the part of the oil companies," and said the increase would mean Ontario oil consumers will pay $400 million more each year.

Hotel Burns

CAMBRIDGE, Ont. (CP) — Fire destroyed the Iroquois Hotel in downtown Cambridge early Sunday.

One fireman was taken from the scene in an ambulance. His condition was not immediately known. No other injuries were reported.

South Africans Told Unisex Threatens Nation

JOHANNESBURG (Reuter) — South Africans have been warned of the tactics the country's "enemies" are using to degrade the nation's morals—the unisex trend in clothes, butterfly molds as decoration and bright red apples as sex symbols.

The warning comes in the current issue of Salve, the weekly publication of the state run Armaments Corp.

In a full-page article entitled "Know Thine Enemy," this week's issue says: "A strategy is being practised by the enemies of our country in using harmless looking symbol to deceive, lure and finally detroy."

On the unisex trend, Salve comments: "A major campaign of the enemy is to break down nature's clear line of demarcation between the sexes. The symbol the enemy uses is a circle with a line through the centre implying half man, half-woman.

"Men's and women's clothes, which are identical, are being advertised.

"Think of the psychological effect on young children when the father and mother images are so effectively obscured. Thus the seeds are planted for a homosexualized world."

Referring to the apple as a sex symbol, Salve says that the replica of a bright red apple with a piece bitten out of it is frequently worn on blouses and shirts and also appears as decoration on writing paper.

"The impression one gives in wearing such a symbol is that of sexiness or nakedness," the article says.

On the butterfly, Salve says the butterfly motif implies moral laxity. The butterfly, it notes, flits from flower to flower—lovers of color, seeking nectar, ...

Beef Given Away

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Manitoba Cow-Calf Producers Association, protesting the economic plight of the farmer, tried to give away 1,500 pounds of ground beef Saturday. But when the demonstration ended, the farmers had almost 500 pounds left.

The protest, held on the grounds of the legislature, drew about 300 people who received two pounds each. It was the second such protest by the farmers in recent weeks.

When the first demonstration was held March 20 at Winnipeg City Hall, about 375 people showed up and about 75 were turned away empty-handed when supplies ran out.

Idle Total Peaks

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment in Central Canada last month was the worst in almost 14 years, Statistics Canada reported today.

The March unemployment rate in Quebec was nine per cent and in Ontario six per cent.

Across the country the rate went to 7.2 per cent from 6.8 in February. There also were increases in unemployment in the East but virtually no change in the West.

A total of 840,000 were without jobs.

A major part of the problem was caused by new job seekers. The economy has not been growing fast enough to create jobs for people wanting work.

The nine-per-cent unemployment rate in Quebec is the worst since September, 1961, and is up from 8.8 per cent in February. The rate in the province was about seven per cent at the start of the winter.

In Ontario, the rate had jumped to six per cent in January, then back to 5.8 per cent in February. The last previous time it was at six per cent was in April, 1961.

These figures all are adjusted to account for seasonal variations.

The actual unemployment rate last month was 8.6, unchanged from February. The labor force expanded by almost 73,000 workers in March.

Total employment was 8.95 million, up from 8.87 million in February.

The seasonally-adjusted figures indicate the number wanting jobs was growing more than twice as fast as job openings.

Budget Bolsters Economy

Sales Tax Slashed To Stimulate Buying

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Treasurer Darcy McKeough distributed a wide assortment of tax cuts and other benefits Monday night—including a slash in the retail sales tax to five from seven per cent—in a budget expected to be the last before a provincial general election this year.

Besides the sales-tax cut, effective only for the remainder of this calendar year and worth an estimated $250 million to consumers, he provided an $83-million bill for first-home buyers—also effective this year only—and knocked 450,000 low-income earners off provincial income-tax rolls in addition to spreading around other cheer.

All old-age pensioners will automatically qualify for free prescription drugs, adding 375,000 beneficiaries for a total of one million at an additional cost of $15 million.

The province's guaranteed annual income payments will rise to an average $9.50 a month to make Ontario's minimum income for recipients the highest in Canada, nosing out British Columbia.

Buyers or builders of their first home between now and the end of 1975 will qualify for $1,500 grants, $1,000 immediately and $250 a year for the next two years.

Industry gets a temporary break worth $410 million through elimination of the sales tax on production machinery and equipment up to the end of 1977, while $19 million a year will be saved through eliminating taxes on gasoline (mixed diesel fuel for commercial use.

In all, the package of tax cuts and benefits added up to $607 million for the current fiscal year, though Mr. McKeough calculated the net cost of the budget measures would be $430 million when offsetting items are taken into account.

These include $100 million to be received in corporation taxes in the current fiscal year through accelerated tax due dates of payments, and $30 million resulting from a decision that oil and gas royalties will not be credited against provincially-taxable income.

Talking to reporters before he went to the legislature with his third budget, the 45-year-old Mr. McKeough smilingly skirted questions about whether it was an election-aimed document.

"Whether it is the right kind of budget politically is a point I am sure you will have no hesitation about deciding for yourselves," he said.

If observers saw election implications in the one-shot 1973 budget poodle, Mr. McKeough said he regards them as expedients to add to his spending power to help Ontario over a weak spot in the economy, which he expected to be rectified by the last/quarter of 1975.

Something for Everybody

Budget Seen as Springboard To Catapult PCs to Victory

TORONTO (CP) — Treasurer Darcy McKeough presented a springboard budget to the people of Ontario Monday night.

It is a budget from which the Progressive Conservative government of William Davis hopes to catapult to another victory in the general election expected later this year.

The budget that contains a little something for everybody—including a cut to five per cent from seven per cent in the retail sales tax, more money and free drugs for pensioners and a $1,500 incentive grant for first-time home buyers.

Significantly, two of the major government incentives, the sales tax cut and the home grants, will be terminated as the programs indefinitely and the economy is expected to take a turn for the better by then.

Political observers expect that the election will probably be held no later than this fall.

The treasurer served notice that Ontario will take a tough stand on oil prices at the federal-provincial energy conference in Ottawa Wednesday and Thursday.

Political observers predict that Ontario's resistance to continuing increases in oil prices may be a major plank in the government's electoral platform.

At a news conference Mr. McKeough consistently avoided questions on what effect on oil-price increase from the present $6.50 a barrel would have on his budget.

But he said in his speech noted at the end of the year.

Mr. McKeough told a news conference that the government couldn't afford to cop that any increase would be harmful.

"A further oil-price increase in 1975 would severely retard the anticipated recovery in the Canadian and Ontario economies."

His prediction is that the Ontario economy will take a turn for the better later this year.

And government members are hoping that Progressive Conservative party will do the same with the ai dof the new budget.

Consumers Aided In Inflation Fight

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario consumers—especially those contemplating major purchases such as a home or car—received some welcome relief from inflation in the budget announced Monday night by treasurer Darcy McKeough.

Mr. McKeough announced that, effective today, the basic retail sales tax rate is being reduced to five per cent from seven per cent. This reduction will remain in effect until Dec. 31, 1975.

He estimated that the individual consumer will save about $100 on purchase of a new car and a total of about $125 on appliances and furnishings for a home. The direct benefits to consumers from this tax cut will be about $250 million a year.

Buying a house to store the furnishings and appliances and at which to park that new car also will be made more appetizing under a grant program announced in budget speech.

Effective today, Mr. McKeough said, anyone purchasing a first home, whether new or old, in Ontario will receive a $1,500 grant the first year plus an additional $250 in each of the two succeeding years, for a total grant of $1,750.

The program is to remain in effect until Dec. 31, 1975. Price of the dwelling will have no bearing on the grants.

Ontario residents will find, however, that it will cost as much as ever to indulge in some of life's smaller luxuries—such as dining out and having a cocktail or two.

The existing 10-per-cent retail sales tax on alcoholic beverages, prepared meals and soda water is to remain.

Morning In Jail Planned

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Town councillors, accompanied by Picton Mayor Donald King, will spend Saturday morning in jail to familiarize themselves with the lock-up.

The decision to visit the old county court house and jail where the town leases lock-up facilities came in response to a motion from the Picton Police Commission terming the lock-up "a most deplorable situation".

Council also received a detailed report of the lock-up and its facilities from Picton Police Chief Charles Fletcher.

"While a prisoner is incarcerated in our cells the only way he can relieve himself is by using a pail which is placed outside the cell doors," stated Chief Fletcher.

"There are no floor drainages in the cells or corridor and the heating is effected by three hot water radiators placed along the outside wall of the cell corridor."

A motion from the police commission stated "We feel it is our responsibility, on behalf of the town, to take action to rectify a most deplorable situation insofar as the lock-up facilities which are now in use by the town are concerned and recommend to the council as a strong terms as possible, that some steps must be taken to rectify the situation."

At last month's council meeting it was observed the lock-up does not meet all required safety standards and should an inmate commit suicide the town would share heavily in the responsibility for his death.

Mayor Donald King suggested a tour of the lock-up is necessary before council can further discuss the police commission's motion and Chief Fletcher's report.

Employee for 33 Years Refused Picton Pension

By MAGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Picton Councillor Russell Alexander Monday termed council's refusal to grant a monthly pension to a long-term municipal employee as "showing discrimination."

John Carey, who retired in 1973, had been an employee of the public works department for 33 years.

He appealed to council by letter for an annual retirement allowance, stating he had had no opportunity to contribute toward a town-sponsored pension plan, a privilege now available to municipal workers.

Councillor Alexander rele-red to council's approval of a $189 per month retirement allowance to retired police chief George Pitt and said he could see no difference in the requests for a supplement.

"If one gets it the other should too," he asse-ted.

"Either we give him (Mr. Carey) $100 a month or we should rescind the policeman's allowance," added Mr. Alexander.

He moved provision of an annual pension of $1,200 for Mr. Carey but the motion was defeated.

Councillor Richard Byers suggested council was "once again falling into the mistake of dealing with personalities instead of principles."

He said the question councilors must answer is whether or not they support pensions paid by the town for retired employees.

Councillor Alexander observed he was in agreement with this question of principle but asked why a pension had been given to one man — the police chief.

"A good question," replied one councillor.

Mayor Donald King pointed out Chief Pitt did contribute to a pension plan for 10 years before retirement.

He contended that Mr. Carey had had an opportunity to contribute but did not do so.

Picton deputy-reeve Harry Richardson said councillor Alexander had forced other members of council to take "a good honest look" at themselves.

He said from a practical point of view, if council supported the pension request, it would be setting a potentially harmful precedent.

It was noted by councillor Norman March that the Municipal Act does not permit the town to supplement the pension incomes of employees hired after 1948.

Waiting For Spring

The bubbly laughter of youth and the serious business of adult relaxation are reflected in O'Hara Mill just north of Madoc. Both are waiting for each other, still captured in winter's prolonged grasp. Soon the saw will be singing its interesting tune again for the folks who enjoy coming to this pastoral setting to breath clean air or perhaps catch a pink-fleshed trout in the pond, which is all part of the complex publicly owned by the Moira Conservation Authority.

Hercules Gets No Refugees

THE CANADIAN PRESS

A Canadian Forces Hercules left Saigon today without any Indochina war orphans aboard.

The 90-seat aircraft landed in Hong Kong with only seven adults and one child, not believed to be an orphan. An immigration department spokesman said in Ottawa today that the adults brought out of Saigon were Canadian officials.

"We are still on a standby situation," the spokesman said. "If Saigon says we can get another plane in and there are people we can bring out, we will go."

It was believed that a curfew imposed after the Monday night bombing of the presidential palace in Saigon prevented refugees from reaching the plant.

Meanwhile, Immigration Minister Robert Andras said in the Commons Monday that while thousands of Canadian families have offered to adopt war orphans "many of them will not receive children."

Your best estimate in a confused situation is that there may not be more than 50, 100 or 150 children."

Replying to opposition questions, Mr. Andras said Canada requires exit visas for all the children. The government did not want to remove children whose parents could be alive and looking for them.

Ontario Would Aid Orphans

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hundreds of Ontario families have offered to provide permanent homes for orphaned South Vietnamese children but there may not be enough children to go around.

The airlift of orphans out of the Saigon has slowed because opposition critics claimed the plan was a propaganda move by the government of President Thieu.

Picton Advertising Rent Help Program

PICTON — A rent supplement program has started through the Ontario Housing Corporation will be advertised in Picton and the response evaluated.

Town councillors Monday agreed to insertion of the ad in the local press after hearing the rental supplement program explained by OHC representative John Cook.

Under the program the OHC seeks rental accommodation for lower income families who are spending more than they can afford for housing.

The rental supplement program for landlords will guarantee units will be occupied at the prevailing market rents for three years or more. Rents for the second and annuality in ensure their consistency with rents in the Picton area.

If the program is introduced the town would contribute seven and a half per cent of any operating loss resulting from the operating cost of the housing units.

For developers, the OHC will provide a second mortgage financing at below market interest rates — up to 25 per cent of capital cost — to bring mortgage financing up to 95 per cent of construction cost. In return, developers are requested to participate in the rent supplement program.

John Cook, an OHC representative told council renters are subsidized for the difference in what they can afford to pay and what the landlord is charging. Tenants are integrated into the community and any stigma associated with low rental housing is removed.

He noted rental supplement programs involving about 2,000 units have been introduced in several communities the size of Picton as well as in large centres such as Oshawa and Toronto.

Mr. Cook told council there are now 26 families in Picton on a waiting list for low rental housing and 50 senior citizens also seeking accommodation. He suggested the rental supplement program would fill an immediate need.

Town clerk Andrew Jarvis reminded council that tenders have been called for 16 senior citizen units in Picton and negotiations are in progress for acquisition of land for more low rental housing.

Picton deputy-reeve Larry Richardson suggested the OHC proposal appears as "a gap measure" and "a different kind of plan."

He said he plans to stress to Prince Edward county council that a delay of undetermined length has been suggested by the OHC in relation to senior citizen housing unit construction here.

Suggest Taxi Move

PICTON — The Picton police commission has suggested to town council that taxis now renting parking slots on Main Street could move their stands to a central area of the Market Square from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

A metered area on Main Street then would be available for public parking in daytime hours.

"It might also be considered to whether 15 minute parking would be appropriate and that, in this way, traffic would be encouraged to return within the 15-minute time limit," stated the commission.

Park Plan Review

Trenton official clerk Aubrey Sharp (left) and Deputy — Clerk Arden Royce stand on either side of Toronto consultant Brad Johnson as he points out details Monday of the final draft of the master plan for Centennial Park on Trenton's waterfront. The consultant estimates development cost for the project could range between $700,000 and $1 million and take a minimum of five years to complete.

New Reeve In

PICTON — Picton deputy — reeve Larry Richardson Monday was acclaimed reeve of the town following the resignation of reeve Ross Cronkwright, who resigned in March because of ill health.

Councillor Richard Byers, a lawyer who topped the polls last December was acclaimed to fill the vacant deputy-reeve's seat.

To fill the vacant council seat resulting from the shuffle councillors appointed John Kinney, a defeated candidate in the 1974 election.

Trenton Could Spend Million

Park Plan to Include Plaza

By AL ZARAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Trenton council received with little comment or criticism Monday a Centennial plan that could cost up to one million dollars to implement.

The cost estimate was made outside consultants by Brad Johnson, Toronto consultant with Johnson Sustrunk Weinstein Associates, Ltd., who have been working on the plan since November, 1974.

Mr. Johnson said the cost of park development could go as high as $1-million and he could not see it going below about $700,000.

He emphasized the cost need not be borne entirely by the town since sponsorship from local groups and industries could be sought. His estimated cost does not include that for the marina.

In unveiling the final draft of the park plan, he told council its central feature is a plaza tied closely to the park waterfront.

The plaza, nestled between two man-made hills, would form a natural amphitheatre that could handle up to 4,00 people. Plaza, soccer pitch, baseball diamond and play-

Development Urged for Centennial Park Diamond

TRENTON — It is imperative a decision be made to go-ahead on plans to build the baseball diamond in Centennial Park, LeRoy Wannamakker, town recreation committee chairman, told council here Monday.

He urged council not to "dally" over plans when the prime season for grading and seeding the park site for the diamond was at hand.

Some features of the plan:

— the existing water treatment plant is to be transformed into a multi-purpose community centre.

— a ball diamond is to be built adjacent to the existing tennis courts now in the park's southeast corner.

— washrooms and a concession stand (and possibly sport change rooms) would be located just south of the tennis courts, to be expanded from three to six.

— a marina, which would require federal government money, to be complete with club house and restaurant.

Eliminated from the plan as originally drafted are:

— small offshore islands termed too costly by the consultant.

— a man-made 65-70-foot land sculpture, or hill, on the waterfront that was earlier opposed by council.

— camp sites in a large passive parkland area at the park's eastern extremity.

Mr. Johnson said council extensive land fill, especially in the area set aside for the ball diamond, must be done.

Final costs would depend on the amount of detail followed in implementing proposals in the master plan he sees as lasting 20 to 30 years.

If required money was immediately available, it would take at least five years to complete, Mr. Johnson said. Land fill alone would take a minimum of three years.

Snow Fence Stays Put

TRENTON — Council will take no action to remove a snow fence partially blockading Murphy St. in front of the fire-gutted Gilbert Hotel until it consults with its lawyers.

Country decision came Monday in response to a request by Gilbert owner Earl Steinburg for removal of the fencing.

Town work crews threw the fence up the day after a $165,000 fire March 11 that gutted the three-storey Trenton downtown landmark.

It was felt no action to remove the barricade should be taken until either the walls of the fire-damaged hotel were re-inforced or ripped down.

Town officials have previously offered to support, particularly at the third floor level, are weak and could topple into Murphy St. under a heavy snow load or high winds.

Trenton Retailers Ring Up $42 Million

TRENTON — In 1974, Trenton retailers rang up $42.4-million in sales, less than half of Belleville's total, but roughly a fifth of the entire county's sum of $202.8-million.

The sales picture is based on figures compiled by the Financial Post in its survey of Canadian markets.

In Trenton, a town of about 15,000 people and second largest in Hastings County, the survey reveals that personal disposable income at $4,100 is above the county average of $3,989, but below Belleville ($4,530), the county's largest municipality.

In per capita spending in Trenton's 140 retail outlets (1966 census) the town ranks first in the county at $2,830, $250 above Belleville.

Trenton's retail outlets are concentrated in the downtown area — between the old Dundas St. bridge and Division St., and along Front St. However, commercial development is also taking place along Dundas, Trenton's main thoroughfare, to the town limits.

Retailers range from chainstore supermarkets, to automobile dealerships to clothing, hardware, and home furnishing outlets. In fact the town as a whole, food stores and carrelated businesses have the largest representation.

Downtown in Trenton, numerous banks and financial institutions are represented.

Stirling Wants Cost Shared

By CHRIS ALMEY
Staff Correspondent

STIRLING — Stirling is being charged $2,000 by the Ontario Ministry of Housing for the Stirling Senior Citizens Housing Units and council wants other municipalities to share the cost.

Speaking at council yesterday, Stirling Reeve Ray Short, who was Rawdon reeve before, said a verbal agreement was made that the cost would be split, but nothing was put in writing, when he was Rawdon Reeve.

Any municipality that has similar units is charged a standard seven-and-one-half percent operating loss per year. Former residents of Rawdon, Sidney and Huntington townships live in the Stirling complex, as well as Stirling people, Reeve Short said. He said that each municipality should be asked to pay its share based upon the percentage of citizens living in the quarters who formerly lived in specific municipalities. The townships are being written to by Clerk Robert Hulin.

In other business, council endorsed a letter to the official of a public body. Clerk Hulin brought to the attention of council that the chairman of the planning advisory committee received $20 for a meeting, whereas his counterpart in the committee of adjustment received $5 less.

Council took the $5 extra given to the one chairman away, and will pay them both the same as other sitting members, $15. It was pointed out that the previous workload no longer existed.

* * *

The Stirling Fair Board made its annual request for a grant. Clerk Hulin said that it was $300 a year for the past two years. He said it had been but $125 previously. Councillor Wayne Martin said inflation should be taken into consideration, and council went along with his suggestion of $225.

* * *

Regarding a request from another Ontario municipality for support in a bid to get the province to give grants for firefighting equipment, council turned the matter over to fire chief Graham Mouck for a report.

Deputy-reeve Fred Brandt said that when trucks become old, parts are difficult to obtain. He called Stirling's fire truck "obsolete" and a "burden on the village".

Bill Queried

TRENTON — A $1,454 bill from Toronto management consultants failed to get Trenton council approval Monday after councillor Peter De Groot sparked questions over the purpose of the billing.

A January bill from Stevenson Kellogg Ltd., a Toronto management consultant, lacked any details upon which the charge was based according to Mr. De Groot.

"We had one meeting with them," he said.

The councillor's question prompted council to give approval to the March cheque register of $400,000-plus with that one exception.

Council will request the consultants to provide a detailed breakdown of the bill.

Ottawa Clings to 'Contract'

Government Annuitants Are Stuck With Only Four Per Cent on Investments

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Bet you would never guess, but there is a sizable group of Canadians — better than 102,000 of them according to official figures — the federal government has been taking as gulaag pigs in the one single, lonely effort it has ever has made to hang tough on inflation.

They are the unlucky clients of an obscure branch of the federal bureaucracy that went out of business eight years ago.

It is the Canadian Government Annuities, a branch, ironically enough, of the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

Ironical, because these 102,000 or more prudent Canadians years ago paid their good dollars — remember when they were spelled dollars? — more than the current $7 cental — into the government's Annuities Branch, with the idea, in their later years, of drawing a small, assured income. They weren't unemployed — in those years "negro" was just a gleam in the eye of some bureaucrat ambitious to invent a new federal tax-and-spend program — they were workers.

And they had no remote idea of becoming unemployed and getting paid for it, for prudently, they were just plugging away at their jobs and socking a few dollars into their annuities for the future.

Then eight years ago the government stopped selling and writing new annuity contracts.

But the contracts it had written with the luckless annuitants remained in force, and the branch continued in operation to receive ongoing installments into and payments out of the fund on maturity.

Along this route, former federal finance minister tipped off a friend — there must have been more than one — to stop further annuity payments, and distribute the dollar drawing payments even at a necessarily reduced amount.

Why?

"You'd know," he said, "when you see what we are going to be doing to the dollar."

What they were going to do" — and have continued doing since — was the printing of more money, the devaluing of the dollar and the inflating of the economy.

Death yearly removes annuitants from the rolls, but currently some 102,000 remain, and the annuity fund has piled up assets of some $1,300 million.

Now here is the rub that makes the annuitant the bull of the whole sick inflation joke — the conclusions he reaches to the now fat devalued dollar fund earn only four percent interest.

The government is suspect of creaming the difference between the four per cent it pays on the investment and the interest it earns on it at the higher going market rates.

The issue is raised regularly, year after year, in the Commons.

In simple justice to their constituents who paid into the annuity fund, MPs regularly demand:

An increase in the fixed payout to annuitants to compensate for inflation's devalued dollar.

The right of "captive" annuitants, held "prisoners" for four per cent, to withdraw the money they have contributed and deposit it elsewhere at a higher yield.

The answer is always no.

But meanwhile the government raises the yield on Canada Savings Bonds held to maturity . . . adjusts the Canada Pension Plan . . . increases the Old Age Pension and supplements (although with ingratiatory hand) . . . and moves up the Civil Service Pension rates, providing increases to offset inflation.

So why not the same treatment for annuitants?

Because, says the government, the annuitant gets the amount he contracted for up to a maximum $100 monthly, and a contract is a contract, even if the title is worth only $67.

And because, argues the government, while Canada Savings Bonds can be cashed at any time, annuities are a long-term investment — with more than 30 annuitants now 100 years or older, the payout can be so prolonged that the investor might come out of the inflation red and into the break-even or better black.

And finally, contends the government, not every annuitant is a charitable case, it is that an automatic increase in maximum payments, offsetting inflation, as has been done with other groups, would be unfair.

You have got to hand it to the government — they can hang real tough. Only when it comes only a helpless 102,000 or so Canadians are involved, whose votes, if all gathered together, would not worry any politician or bureaucrat.

World of Starvation

The picture on this page of a lustrates starkly the continuing plight of a great host of children — an estimated 860 million in 112 countries — around the world.

It emphasizes also the need for further aid to agencies such as UNICEF which in 1973 had only $81 million at its disposal to these youngsters.

Only $81 million compared with the $200 billion the nations of the world spend annually for military purposes.

A UNICEF bulletin points out that an additional $14.4 million was used for relief and rehabilitation — still a modest enough sum by comparison, and remembering the further strain that will be imposed on all relief agencies by events in Vietnam.

About 70 per cent of UNICEF's long-term aid goes to equip health centres, provide piping and pumping for village wells, food production, textbooks and teaching aids; and nearly 30 per cent goes to support training of nurses and other essential personnel.

A message from the Ontario UNICEF committee points out a need for more volunteers at the community level. It asks a nucleus of interested people to form committes to sell Christmas and Year Round greeting cards and to organize the Hallowe'en program — in addition to informing people of the work of UNICEF.

Children, the bulletin rightly points out, are the world's most important natural resource, and it invites anyone interested in the organization's continuing work to write to: Ontario UNICEF Committee, 6 Pailton Crescent, Toronto.

Child of Our Time

The child in this UNICEF picture is a victim of our times, of a harsh and brutal world. It is a world some in our own society experience in their malnourished and underprivileged state. It for the most part it is a phenomenon of the societies of Asia, Latin America, Africa and some parts of Europe. More and more it is a situation that compels the attention of the so-called "have" nations, which must concern themselves with providing both short-term relief for these people as well as helping them toward long-term self-sufficiency.

Pamphlet Peddlers

A number of city residents have been annoyed by a group calling themselves the Children of God.

They confront you with a pamphlet, sometimes with the inference, sometimes with an explicit suggestion that a "donation" is expected.

Since begging and vagrancy have been removed from the Criminal Code, such activity is within the realm of the law.

Impeding of traffic is about the only misdemeanor with which police officers could charge the often overly-persistent claim members.

On the surface, the problem does not seem serious. But a recent Globe and Mail expose revealed that unwitting young people are often mesmerized by such groups into leaving homes and joining them on their "crusades."

One Toronto girl literally had to be held down by experts hired by her distraught parents and "de-programmed" from a brainwashing that she says saw her collecting up to $300 a day for the particular sect she left home to join.

A number of complaints have reached The Intelligencer about over-zealous pamphlet peddlers: one woman was seen closing her car window on a young man's hands when his requests for funds at the Quinte Mall became too persistent.

This city has a bylaw enforcement officer, one of whose jobs it is to see that all lotteries and public fund drives have municipal approval. As we all know, there are few teeth in this bylaw, at best.

What is drastically needed is a byaw requiring specific approval for any street soliciting.

Without it, the consequences of permitting anyone to hawk whatever they want on city sidewalks far surpass the danger of a "buddy-can-you-spare-a-dime."

Red Advance

Remember when the United States, in the person of then Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, threatened the Communist world, the Soviet Union in particular, with "massive retaliation" if they unleashed a nuclear war.

That's all in the past now and the Communists are gaining a lot of ground, and absorbing whole nations, by conventional military and political means.

The U.S. meanwhile is drained of any will to halt the Red tide in Southeast Asia. And a final irony: remember one of the articles of the peace accords in Paris, ending U.S. involvement in Vietnam, was a U.S. undertaking to assist in the rebuilding of Communist North Vietnam.

In view of events, it is not surprising that the Americans are not giving effect to any such undertaking.

Viewpoint

Credibility at Stake

Yorkshire Post

Russia has never ceased to pour aid, including heavy armament, into Hanoi, but Congress has used the fig leaf of the Paris peace agreement to crawl away from American commitments, and in doing so to starve Saigon, economically and militarily to its present state. Interests and alliances were traded for scraps of paper and assuaged consciences. Now they await a Communist victory in Indochina to bury their betrayal. What guarantees can the United States give now? Her credibility and therefore her ability to negotiate has evaporated. The American people cannot be blamed for no longer wanting to hear about South-East Asia at all. Their country has taken a whole series of kicks in the teeth.

British Educational Policy's Diverse Image

As Viewed by Visiting Belleville Principal

Bayside Secondary School principal LINTON HEAD is spending a sabbatical in England attending seminars and lectures on the secondary school system there. The emphasis is on the comprehensive school system and Mr. Head is visiting a number of schools in England and Scotland.

In the following article, Mr. Head discusses the wide range of facilities and sabbatical he encountered in Britain and notes a certain British snobbishness and capacity for what is called "muddling through" that tends to be lacking here.

In English secondary schools, the only thing consistent, is inconsistency. I have now visited 19 schools in and around London and perhaps I can best get to the heart of my impressions by quoting the words of two headmasters.

Headmaster Mr. J. R.: "Occasionally, of course, we still use the birch rod on bad boys up to 14 or 15."

Headmaster Mr. K. J.: "We are particularly concerned with two aims — to become a real community school and to develop 'half-way house' techniques for young people rebelling against the seeming irrelevancy of much 'Ed' their studies."

Here is exemplified the wide diversity of English educational policies and attitudes. The questions are exactly as I heard them from two admirably qualified and committed school principals.

Paradoxical? Mutually incompatible? Not really. All of English life is securely based on a contradiction between an amazing ability to adapt to radical upheavals in a whole way of life and a stubborn clinging to tradition. And so it is in education as well.

I have seen large comprehensive schools with a tone and attitude that jarred my sensibilities — a tone of acceptable dress and behaviour on the part of staff and students alike. On the other hand I have been in equally large schools in similar socio-economic areas which were a joy to visit. I have seen five year old school buildings in a state of disrepair though to make one heartsick; but I have also been in a not quite completed secondary school community school costing $5,000,000 and highly imaginative in architecture and projected philosophy. (It even included a $50,000 pipe organ!)

One day I visited a residential school for emotionally and mentally maladjusted boys. England is more concerned and generous than we are with these problem people. What a terribly difficult place in which to teach! But on another day I spent several hours in a prestigious grammar school where there are no discipline problems and no truancy. What a delightful sincere for teacher and headmaster.

Principals in England enjoy much more more autonomy than we in Ontario; they receive even less direction from the Ministry — and yet every secondary school has its own Board of Governors that meets each term to assist the headmaster in policy making and staff promotions. There still exist as well, Her Majesty's Inspectors, but they are essentially resource and support people and are our regional consultants in Ontario. Headmasters are not required to take principal's courses, or to secure special certification and master's degrees as are principals in Ontario. There are still a number of principals of English secondary schools without university degrees of any sort!

While this is surprising, it is far from appalling. I have been very much impressed by the high intellectual level of the headmasters when I have visited. Although in one or two instances I would quietly question their administrative know-how and ability 'to relate warmly with staff and students. The real accomplishment of them all, however, is to have created a soundly based, well structured educational opportunity for their students in the face of seriously limited funds, an alienated and tumultuous public controversy as to the aims of education.

Much stress is placed here on "pastoral care" i.e. the concern for teachers' deep concern with the personal, social, emotional and vocational problems of his special group of students. To support him in England are much better developed ancillary services than we have available to schools in Ontario — medical, dental, psychological, social agencies on call. While there are shortages of trained personnel, nevertheless the needs are recognized and are being met in every possible way.

"Further Education," too is expanding the opportunities for the non-university student very rapidly — almost to the point that like our Ontario community Colleges, institutes of higher education over here are in competition with each other for students.

One could write so much about the turmoil in education brought about by the sheer roller of "socialism at any cost" that it is so profoundly affecting English society. One could shake your head in despair at the physical state of buildings at the bureaucratic nightmare, at the militancy of teachers, at the discipline and absenteism problems. But the English ability to cope because of that wonderfully intelligent equanimity and imperturbability lead me to the firm conclusion that gradually things will work out and that British educators ultimately will achieve what they strive in their relentless quest for liberal education — equality of educational opportunity for all.

I close with a twinkle in my eye. The English have a great flair for sophistication and the civilized amenities — and so on several occasions during my visits, I was asked by principals as they opened very special cupboards or sideboards in their offices: "Would you care for a sherry before lunch? Do you think that when I return I could introduce this custom at Bayside?

Ontario Lottery

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thursday, April 3, 1975

TORONTO — After at least 30 years of arguing and indecision, Ontario at last is actually getting into the lottery business.

A while ago I had to do some research in 1948 newspapers.

And one of the headlines that caught my eye was Argument Wages Over Lotteries.

Quite a common one actually in those more precious times.

The argument, as we all know, now has been settled.

Provinces all details are worked out in time—a reservation which, of course, one always has to make when dealing with acts of government—on April 17 tickets will go on sale for the first official Ontario lottery.

Then a few weeks later the draw will be made for the first $100,000 winner plus several hundred other prizes.

Following this, every two weeks there will be further draws and further $100,000 prizes.

And Ontario will be a step closer to the 1970s.

It will be on a par, or close, with Ireland, Quebec, the western provinces and those other jurisdictions, including the Cayman Gamos which have seen it as fitting to give the public a chance to wage a bob and take in some handy loot at the same time.

I say "close" because Ontario isn't quite starting out in the big league of lotteries.

Other jurisdictions have bigger prizes and higher goals.

But though our government is willing to let its parents, it isn't willing to gamble that much on its own and is starting out on a smaller, and more secure basis.

In fact there apparently was quite an argument whether the corporation administering the program was just how big the approach should be.

However, the conservative element won.

In fact, considering how big a conservative element there still have in Toronto, it is somewhat surprising that at least some people are willing to go the whole plan.

So far as I know there has been none.

Now you at the wicket, and then for one little buck we can have a two-week dream of fortune.

And next, of course, off-track betting.

Unemployed

Editor,
The Intelligencer

With reference to your article "Young Folk Want Jobs" in last night's paper, I agree with everything said.

My husband was transfered to Belleville at the beginning of the year and on enquiring at Canada Manpower was told I'd have no trouble in obtaining a job with my qualifications. What a laugh.

I have written to various companies in response to newspaper letters in reply to advertisements in your paper. I have not had an acknowledgement, at same, been granted an interview or advised that the position has been filled.

The employers have no intention of interviewing would be applicants they should not advertise.

No wonder so many people go on Unemployment Insurance in order to survive.

Please, future Belleville employers, won't you help.

DESIGN S4-1012
Upper — 1,136 sq. ft.
Lower — 580 sq. ft.

The Colonial split-level house illustrated contains two bedrooms on both the upper and lower levels with each level having its own full bath room with double basins. For additional space the upper level is cantilevered over the lower at the front.

Living room and dining room form an L with a good sized kitchen — over 180 square feet — tucked into the angle of the L. The living room looks on to a protected front entry and porch.

All bedrooms have ample closet space, in addition the two rear bedrooms have built-in dressers. The exterior is a combination of brick and horizontal siding and any builder could easily extend the garage to two-car width if required. The covered patio behind the garage would then be so wide that its outer end could be further sheltered by including a large storage cupboard for outdoor equipment.

Plans for Design S4-1012 cost $35 for the first set, $11 each additional set and are supplied by return mail.

North Bay Rock Structure Shows Indians Geometricians

THUNDER BAY, Onlo (CP) — A gigantic rock structure of stairways, paths and low walls, built more than 500 years ago near North Bay, Ont., indicates by its measurements that geometry was practised in Canada at least 100 years before European man arrived, an Ontario government archeologist has reported.

Allen Tyrska, archeologist with the provincial ministry of natural resources, told a meeting of the Canadian Archeological Association that the structure, on a natural slope of granite near a small lake, consists of an "elaborate configuration" of paths winding up the slope to a pavement at the top. The whole structure, built of rocks quarried from the local granite, covers an area 180 feet by 160 feet.

Beside it stands a long pile of rocks in the shape of a serpent.

Mr. Tyrska said all lengths of walls and paths are either six, 12, 24 or 48 feet—that is a geometric progression of 1:2:4:8.

"All accessory walls are six or 12 feet long; pathways and staircases are 24 feet long; the serpent petroform, following its outline from the tip of its tail to the tip of its nose, measures 48 feet."

He said "suspicions of an ordered system are again roused by the petroglyphs," which are two small figures chiselled into the rocks along the pathways. One of these is an isosceles triangle whose apex angle is 72 degrees and whose base angles are each 54 degrees—that is, all multiples of 18 degrees.

The second petroglyph shows a human-like stick figure appearing to leap.

"The leaping figure is a combination of angles, every one of them a multiple of 18 degrees," Mr. Tyrska said. "Indeed, the figure contains all multiples from 1x18 to 18x18."

Mr. Tyrska said he "tinkered" with blueprints of the whole rock structure and found that the Indians deliberately used geometric progressions, such as multiples of 18-degree angles, to lay out the entire structure.

Mr. Tyrska's "tinkering" involved the use of a small pecked bowl-shape depression in a rock at the centre of the structure as a datum point and then he drew lines at 18-degree intervals out from the centre.

He said he found that the 18-degree arcs coincided with several focal points on the structure — "the serpent's tail, the serpent's neck, the serpent's nose, the alignment of the curved stairs' lowest flight, a bowl shaped depression at the straight stairs' foot and the top of the upper stair."

Indeed, he said, every major point of the structure coincides with the arcs or with triangles and circles geometrically produced by the arcs.

"I suppose that we are all surprised to encounter allegations of geometry in the prehistoric Canadian Shield," he said. "I suppose many of us are inclined to suspect that the mathematics here are the projections of a 20th-century mind. . . . However, I think reflection will confirm the logical necessity that deliberate geometrical thought preceded structure at this site."

Realtors Attend Conference

60 Reps At Seminar

More than 60 Quinte area real estate personnel attended the Region seven sales seminar in Peterborough last Wednesday.

The region — one of nine in the province — has 1,600 members and is one section of the Ontario Real Estate Board.

Seminar highpoint was a discussion of the pros and cons of regional government.

New Democratic Party house leader Ian Deans spoke against regional forms and Lon Parsons, chairman of the regional municipality of Peel spoke for regional government.

Gerry Joyce, past president of the Quinte board and current Ontario Real Estate Board vice-president, said the discussions "ended up in a tie," after returning from the convention Friday.

Takes Action

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Kingston Township's dog catcher, ordered by council to clean up the stray dog problem, is taking the crackdown seriously. At a council meeting he reported putting the "bite" on nine dogs and charging three owners with violations. Earlier, he had told council he seldom laid charges and usually issued a warning to the owners.

Learning Early

ST. THOMAS, Ont. (CP) — Students in kindergarten and Grade 3 at Balaclava Street School are learning how to make maple syrup. The students have tapped five maple trees on school property and will make maple syrup for a pancake feed.

Now's the Time to Prune Fruit Trees, Hedges

There may be snow on the ground, but it's still April.

And gardeners are already beginning their summer's work.

First chore for ornamental and fruit gardeners alike is pruning.

It's the best time of year to prune because there are no leaves — you can easily remove shoots.

Currants and gooseberries benefit from pruning and they'll produce larger fruit. In addition, air circulation is better in pruned bushes and they get fewer diseases.

Black currants produce the best fruit on year-old wood so be sure half of the 10 to 12 shoots left on each mature bush are one year old. These shoots are unbranched. The remaining shoots should be two years old. These have single branches. Cut out all wood older than two years.

Most fruit on red and white currant bushes and gooseberry bushes is produced on two- and three-year-old wood. Keep four shoots of each of the three-, two- and one-year-old wood on each bush. One-year-old shoots are unbranched, two-year-old shoots have single branches and three-year-old shoots have side branches on single branches.

Remove all shoots older than three years.

This is also the time to prune apple and pear trees. It's an annual job and keeps branches well-spaced, stops them from shading each other and allows better air circulation and sun-ripening.

Short cuts are the fruiting branches on apple and pear trees and they should not be removed.

Remove branches that lay over top of others but do not make too many small cuts. A few major cuts are much more effective. They should be clean and as close to the remaining branches as possible so that stubs are not left.

After branches of a large diameter have been removed, place a tree dressing over the fresh cuts. These help prevent disease and drying out.

Even ornamental shrubs need annual pruning.

Deciduous flowering shrubs can be preserved best by pruning to keep them the desired shape and size and to encourage prolific flower and foliage production.

Don't use hedge shears to round deciduous shrubs and don't remove low branches that arch toward the ground for they hide unsightly bases.

Summer-and fall-flowering shrubs, like hydrangea, bloom at the ends of branches grown during the current year. Last year's growth should be pruned back to two to four buds from the base; weak growths should be removed entirely.

Forsythia and other spring shrubs should really be pruned immediately after flowering since they produce bloom on growth made in previous years. If your shrubs are large and overgrown, however, now is a good time to remove old wood.

Prune a third of the old wood right to the ground. Repeat procedure each year until the plant is composed of fresh strong growth.

MEXICO TRIP

A group of 16 Girl Guides from the Belleville area, along with leaders Eileen Stoneham and Merle Brennan, leave tomorrow for a 10-day visit to Mexico. The girls and women will spend a week at "Our Cabana", a Girl Guide World Centre near Cuernevaca, where they will participate in a program of crafts, sports, discussions and sight-seeing trips with Guides from other nations.

More than 600 Bellevillians enjoyed the rendering of sacred music performed by the Oshawa Kingsway College Band at Centennial Auditorium. Through the free-will offering, $450 was donated to the work of the Canadian Bible Society which has a newly-established office here in the city and whose district director is Rev. T. Rex Norman. The Seventh-day Adventist Church sponsored the program.

JESS AND BOB

These brothers with the delightful smiles are looking for a mother and father and a home where they can grow up together. Bob, left, has just turned 12. Big brother Jess is 15.

Cree Indians, they speak both English and Cree. The boys are proud of their Indian heritage and take pleasure in interpreting it to white friends and classmates. Naturally they need parents who will share that pride.

These healthy, active youngsters are popular at school with teachers and classmates. Their foster parents say both are easy, co-operative members of the household.
